any gas price increases if they signed up, and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[49] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, fined the company US$90,000, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[50]

In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a US$200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[51]

In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[52] The article also mentions that some of the complaints that led to the PUCO's action "stemmed from contracts sold on behalf of Just Energy by another company, saveonenergy.com."[53]

There are also thousands of complaints about the Just Energy Entities on the internet. Over the last three years alone, Just Energy has had at least 282 complaints filed against it with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB").[54] Even though Just Energy is listed on the BBB's website as having been in business for 24 years, the BBB clearly declares that "THIS BUSINESS IS NOT BBB ACCREDITED" and displays the following "Pattern of Complaint" warning to the consuming public:

> BBB files indicate that this business has a pattern of complaints concerning door to door sales representatives who are using misleading sales tactics, misrepresenting themselves as the consumer's current energy or gas company, and not being transparent about cancellations fees which may be charged by their

> In November 2019, consumers also began filing customer reviews alleging sales representatives stationed at a local warehouse club were not being truthful about the rates for natural gas. We also received a customer review that stated the Just Energy employee was wearing a t-shirt with the warehouse club's logo.

Media reports about Just Energy equally condemn the Just Energy Entities. When the confidential results of the Illinois Commerce Commission's audit referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[55] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[56]

A 2014 exposé by Canada's Global News highlights that the "CUB, the Better Business Bureau (BBB), the Ontario Energy Board, among others, have been inundated with complaints from consumers about the sales methods employed by Just Energy. The most common grievance is Just Energy promises people savings that don't materialize."[57]

The exposé further reported that Just Energy's founder Rebecca MacDonald has "raked in an estimated $150 million from the company since she established it in the 1990s" and is facing accusations "over whether she's misled investors in her company."[58] Those accusations include that MacDonald faked her credentials and the conclusions by "two of Canada's top forensic accounting firms" that Just Energy used "an unregulated form of accounting to paint a much rosier picture of the company's financial situation," which in turn allowed Just Energy to show an "artificial profit."[59]

The Global News exposé also contains a 22-minute video entitled the "Just Energy Hustle." Below is an excerpt of a Global News journalist's videotaped interview with Just Energy's then-Co-CEO Deborah Merril. Despite having joined Just Energy in 2007, in the 2014 interview the

More than a year prior to the Global News exposé, on July 31, 2013, New York-based investment management firm Spruce Point Capital Management released an investment analysis that labeled Just Energy as "a company that U.S. consumers and investors are quickly realizing has become toxic to their wallets through deceptive energy marketing practices, and harmful to their brokerage accounts."[61] The report signaled that Just Energy's "growth appears to be the result of deceptive sales tactics, now at risk of unravelling" which is "evidenced by a large body of consumer fraud complaints."[62] The report also highlights how Just Energy uses a teaser rate to deceive consumers:[63]

As noted in the table and analysis excerpted below, Just Energy (referred to in the report as "JE") "appears" to offer the lowest price fixed contract, but there's a 'catch:'

JE's gas RateFlex prices are fixed only for three months – despite the 5-year term – and after three months, the contract reverts to a fluctuating price based on "business and market conditions." The Electric RateFlex is fixed for 2 months. JE then gives its customers the option of locking in this new, variable and unknown price. The company tries to reassure consumers that the rate won't fluctuate that much by guaranteeing that the variable rate won't increase by more than 35% per month (see: section 7). Just Energy also allows consumers to cancel their contract free within 30 days – before the misleadingly low introductory price expires – but charges a $50 "Exit Fee" if cancelled thereafter. Of course, most consumers don't bother to read the fine print, particularly if salesmen are pushing quick cash back incentives with Visa Gift Cards for registering and referring friends.

A May 8, 2019 article in the Chicago Reporter tells a similar story. The article showcased the experience of a 45-year-old carpenter who, over the course of 10 years, paid Just Energy more than US$20,000 more than he would have paid his local utility.[64] This Just Energy customer's experience was used to highlight the then-proposed Illinois Home Energy Affordability & Transparency Act ("HEAT"). On August 27, 2019, Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker signed HEAT into law. Effective January 1, 2020, HEAT requires inter alia ESCOs like Just Energy operating in Illinois to include the utility's comparison price on all marketing materials, during telephone or door-to-door solicitations, and on every consumer's utility bill so consumers can make informed price comparisons.

In addition, on May 9, 2019, CommonWealth featured the Massachusetts Attorney General's findings that Massachusetts consumers who switched to ESCOs paid US$177 million more over a two-year period than they would have if they had stayed with the local utility.[65] The CommonWealth article references the fact that the Massachusetts Attorney General brought successful lawsuits against ESCOs "including Just Energy" which actions resulted "in almost $10 million in refunds to consumers and forc[ed] the defendant companies to cease their unfair practices." Id.

V. The Class Actions Encompass Approximately 8,000,000 U.S. Just Energy Customers

Using Just Energy's public 2015 Annual Report (which covers the year ended March 31, 2015), Class Counsel calculated the approximate number of Class Members during the relevant period of 2011 to present:

A. U.S. Residential Electric Class Members – 2,481,640 RCEs[66]

Total U.S. Class Members (All Combined) – 7,876,060 RCEs

Regarding Class Counsel's methodology for calculating the U.S. class size, Just Energy's 2015 Annual Report discloses (a) the number of worldwide Just Energy gas RCEs by commodity and the number of worldwide Just Energy electric RCEs by commodity for the year ended April 1, 2014, and (b) the "additional" number of worldwide gas and worldwide electric RCEs by commodity added in the one-year period from April 1, 2014, to March 31, 2015. The 2015 Annual Report also identifies the percentage of Just Energy's customer base that takes service in the U.S. and distinguishes between commercial and residential RCEs.

Beginning with the April 1, 2014 current customer data, Class Counsel used the percentage of U.S. Just Energy customers to calculate the number of U.S. residential and commercial gas and electric customers as of April 1, 2014. Class Counsel then took the number of additional gas and electric customers added in the one-year period from April 1, 2014 to March 31, 2015 and multiplied it by the percentage of U.S. Just Energy customers to determine the number of U.S. gas and electric customers added at each service level during this one-year period. For example, Just Energy's 2015 Annual Report states that as of April 1, 2014 Just Energy had 1,198,000 RCEs and that 72% of Just Energy customer base takes service in the U.S. Class Counsel thus calculate that as of the April 1, 2015, the Just Energy Entities had approximately 862,560 U.S. residential electric customers (i.e. 1,198,00 RCEs x .72). The 2015 Annual Report also states that Just Energy added 489,000 residential RCEs in the one-year period from April 1, 2014, to March 31, 2015. Using the same percentage of U.S. based customers (72%), Class Counsel [66] According to Just Energy's 2021 Annual Report, an "RCE" means residential customer equivalent, which is a unit of measurement equivalent to a customer using 2,815 m3 (or 106 GJs or 1,000 Therms or 1,025 CCFs) of natural gas on an annual basis or 10 MWh (or 10,000 kWh) of electricity on an annual basis, which represents the approximate amount of gas and electricity, respectively, used by a typical household in Ontario, Canada.

calculates that during this one-year period Just Energy added approximately 352,080 U.S. residential electric customers (i.e. 489,000 RCEs x .72).

During each of the reporting years from 2015 to 2021, Just Energy reported figures for the number of additional residential and commercial gas and electric RCEs as well as the percentage of Just Energy's U.S. customer base. Beginning with the 2014 total customer count and using only the "additional" U.S. residential and commercial RCEs added each year, Class Counsel calculated the approximate total class size. The following chart summarizes Class Counsel's class size calculations:

Year	U.S. Residential Electric Customers Added	U.S. Residential Gas Customers Added	U.S. Commercial Electric Customers Added	U.S. Commercial Gas Customers Added
2014[67]	862,560	537,840	1,627,920	146,880
2015	352,080	133,920	503,280	48,240
2016	271,440	105,120	395,280	61,920
2017	237,850	85,200	234,300	38,340
2018	260,000	115,700	274,950	110,500
2019	226,800	87,570	291,690	88,200
2020	142,120	25,160	259,760	59,840
2021	128,790	5,670	115,020	42,120
Total	2,481,640	1,096,180	3,702,200	596,040
Total Customers Across All Four Customer Categories:				7,876,060

Please note that due to missing data from the 2011 to 2014 period, these calculations are underinclusive. With discovery, the Representative Plaintiffs' expert will be able to provide the exact class size.

[67] 2014 figures represent current U.S. Just Energy customers as of April 1, 2014.

Class Counsel for the Representative Plaintiffs and the Class

EXPERT REPORT OF DR. SERHAN OGUR

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. Introduction and Qualifications

My name is Serhan Ogur, Ph.D., and I am a Senior Economist and Principal at Exeter Associates, Inc. ("Exeter"). Exeter is an economics consulting firm specializing in regulated energy industries (e.g., electricity and natural gas) and in competitive wholesale and retail electric power markets.

In this report, I have been asked by the Plaintiffs' counsel to offer my expert opinions on the following topics:

1. How energy service companies ("ESCOs"), such as Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy Solutions Inc., and other affiliated Just Energy entities (collectively, "Just Energy") can procure electricity and natural gas for their customers;
2. Whether ESCOs like Just Energy bear more or less risk to service fixed- or variable-rate customers; and
3. How much Just Energy variable-rate customers were overcharged from 2011 to 2020.

I have worked on electric power market issues for 20 years, including both wholesale and retail market issues. Prior to joining Exeter, I was employed by the Illinois Commerce Commission ("ICC"); PJM Interconnection, LLC ("PJM"); and Fellon-McCord & Associates, LLC ("Fellon-McCord").

At the ICC, I worked at the Federal Energy Program ("FEP") under the Energy Division. The FEP's function is to advise ICC's commissioners on all energy-related matters that fall within the jurisdiction of the federal government (e.g., the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ["FERC"], the Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. Department of Justice). The duties I performed at the FEP included reviewing federal and state rate cases, reviewing utility filings at the FERC regarding the formation of regional transmission organizations ("RTOs"), and serving as the ICC Staff's expert witness at ICC regulatory proceedings. While at the ICC, I testified in an electric utility merger case and in a case that established auction-based default service electric supply procurement and pricing mechanisms for the major investor-owned utilities ("IOUs") in Illinois.

At PJM, I was assigned to the Market Strategy and Performance Compliance departments. The duties I performed at PJM included periodic reporting to the board of managers, the senior management, and PJM's stakeholder committees on the performance of all markets and services administered by PJM.

At Fellon-McCord, I worked as the lead analyst at the Power Control Center, which was the department responsible for performing all wholesale and retail electricity market operation and compliance tasks of large customers that were their own load-serving entities ("LSEs") (rather than taking retail supply service from the incumbent utility or from a mass-market competitive supplier). My role at Fellon-McCord required me to be familiar with all wholesale and retail tasks (e.g., scheduling, forecasting, settlements, billing, risk management) related to supplying electric power to wholesale and retail end-users.

As previously noted, my current role is as a Senior Economist and Principal at Exeter Associates. The majority of Exeter's client base consists of federal and state government agencies, including the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Army, and the U.S. Department of Energy ("DOE") (as purchasers of electricity and natural gas from competitive retail suppliers in retail choice states and from the utility in bundled states); state offices of consumer advocate; state public utility commission ("PUC") staffs; and state offices of attorneys general. That work entails assisting federal government agencies (Air Force bases, Army installations, DOE national laboratories) with optimizing their utility services (electricity, natural gas, potable water, and wastewater) and minimizing their supply procurement costs, which requires in-depth knowledge of all facets of wholesale and retail electricity and natural gas markets. Exeter's work also entails supporting state governments and state agencies in energy-related formal proceedings (e.g., rate cases, default service implementation cases, utility merger and acquisition applications) before state PUCs and the FERC.

I have testified numerous times in front of the Pennsylvania PUC in default electric service design and implementation cases on behalf of the Pennsylvania Office of Consumer Advocate ("PA OCA"). I am a trusted advisor for the PA OCA in all matters related to electric utility regulation, wholesale and retail electricity markets, and electric power procurement and risk management.

I am the main consultant to the Defense Logistics Agency – Energy ("DLA Energy"), which in turn is one of the major power and natural gas procurement agencies for federal government sites (alongside the General Services Administration ["GSA"]), with competitive electricity acquisitions in some of the same markets, states, and utility service territories in which Just Energy is also active. I helped DLA Energy issue solicitations for competitive supply, evaluate the price and service offers, and draft contract terms in various markets. The states in which I helped DLA Energy procure competitive supply include Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Texas. I have extensive experience in the procurement of fixed-rate, variable-rate, and hybrid-type (arrangement with both fixed- and variable-rate elements) contracts.

I hold a doctorate degree in Economics from Northwestern University, where my studies focused on competition in deregulated wholesale electricity markets. My undergraduate degree is also in Economics from Bogazici University (Istanbul, Turkey). My resume, containing the state PUC dockets in which I have submitted written and oral testimony, is provided in Exhibit A.

II. Electricity and Natural Gas Markets

Historically, states have regulated the retail electricity and natural gas markets within their borders, including how utilities procure or supply electricity and natural gas, the retail prices charged for electricity and natural gas, and the distribution of electricity and natural gas to end-use customers.[1,2] The predominant electric utility model relied on fully vertically integrated local monopolies. These monopolies oversaw all aspects of electricity provision: generation, transmission and distribution, and the full suite of retail services.[3] Similarly, the regulated natural gas industry relied on the competitive procurement of natural gas in wholesale markets and the distribution of that gas to its retail customers.[4] States granted for-profit utilities licenses to operate these monopolies, subject to regulatory oversight. This arrangement is often referred to as the "state regulatory compact."

Under the state regulatory compact, state-regulated utilities agreed to provide safe and reliable public utility service. In return, the regulating body gave the utilities an exclusive franchise territory and allowed the utilities the opportunity to recover their reasonably and

prudently incurred costs.[5] In addition to cost recovery, the regulator provided the utilities an opportunity—but not a guarantee—to earn a fair return on their invested capital.[6]

Starting in the late 1980s and early 1990s, many states began considering the potential benefits of restructuring electricity and natural gas markets.[7] In particular, states evaluated the potential to deregulate—meaning substitute the forces of market competition for administrative control—portions of electricity and natural gas service to reduce costs and improve efficiency. Developments towards the deregulation of electricity and natural gas markets followed similar efforts in the airline, trucking, and telecommunications industries.[8]

During the late 1990s and early 2000s, several states officially unbundled their electricity and natural gas markets; that is, these states separated the functions of providing electric and natural gas service into competitive and non-competitive components.[9] Some components, such as the distribution of electricity and natural gas, both of which require significant amounts of upfront capital, were thought to be "natural" monopolies and, therefore, these functions were generally left to the traditional local monopoly providers. These non-competitive services remained subject to cost-of-service regulation and the regulatory compact. Other portions of electric and natural gas service, such as electric generation and natural gas supply procurement, were opened to market competition, in this case from independent power producers in electricity markets and independent retail natural gas suppliers in natural gas markets. Providers of these services no longer received the same guarantee of cost recovery, meaning they absorbed greater risk. They also, however, gained the ability to compete in previously closed markets and earn a market return.

In some states, policymakers went further by also opening the provision of retail services to competition. This last reform is referred to as retail deregulation, retail restructuring, or retail choice.[10] As many as 20 states have pursued electricity retail deregulation to some degree, including New York, the state in which Plaintiffs Ms. Fira Donin and Ms. Inna Golovan reside.[11] Similarly, as many as 25 states have implemented natural gas deregulation to some degree, including New York and Pennsylvania, the states in which Plaintiffs Ms. Donin and Mr. Trevor Jordet, respectively, reside. In electricity or natural gas retail choice states, customers have the option to purchase supply (i.e., unbundled service) from ESCOs under market-based rates.[12] This means that customers can "shop" among competing ESCOs for energy supply instead of relying on service from the local monopoly provider.

In retail choice states, apart from electricity supply in Texas, retail electricity and natural gas customers that either cannot switch to, or choose not to adopt service from, a competitive supplier are allowed to continue receiving service from the regulated local monopoly utility (i.e., bundled service).[13] Supply for default service is procured by the utilities (which serve as the default service providers in their respective service territories) in the competitive market. This procurement task takes various forms including default service auctions and procuring directly from wholesale markets,[14] depending on the state and the customer class.[15] The utilities rely on market-provided electric generation supply or competitively procured natural gas supply to serve their default service customers. In the case of electric power utilities, they are generally precluded from owning electric generation resources to avoid potentially anti-competitive impacts on the wholesale and retail markets.[16] Default service is provided by the utilities to default service customers without any, or with very little, markup. As a result, the supply price (or rate) associated with the energy component of default service, also known as the default service rate or the default price, reflects the costs of competitive, market-provided energy.[17]

[12] ESCOs are also referred to as alternative retail electric suppliers, third-party suppliers, retail electric providers, and retail electricity suppliers, depending on the state.

[13] Service from the local utility is also referred to as "default service" or "standard offer service."

[14] Default service auctions, also known in the industry as basic generation service auctions, are a way for the utilities to assign the responsibility or cost of serving the generation supply portion of their default service customers' loads to unregulated wholesale suppliers through a transparent procurement mechanism (auctions or requests for proposals) overseen by the PUCs.

The default service rate is also referred to as the "price to compare" ("PTC") in the energy industry. The PTC is the rate (or price) charged by the local utility to customers who are on default service for the portion of their electric and natural gas service that is open to competition. The default rate can change as frequently as monthly. Nevertheless, for residential customers in most states, the major components of default service rates change no more frequently than quarterly or semi-annually. It is typical that retail customers may leave or return to default service at any time without penalty from the default utility.

ESCOs procure electric power and natural gas on behalf of the customers they serve in a variety of ways. These include: (1) making short-term (day-ahead in the case of natural gas, and day-ahead or real-time in the case of electricity) purchases on wholesale markets established to facilitate the buying and selling of electricity and natural gas;[18] (2) purchasing electricity and natural gas in the wholesale market directly from power plants and from natural gas suppliers; (3) generating electricity from power plants owned or contracted for by the ESCO; (4) purchasing power and natural gas from wholesale brokers or marketers, including other ESCOs; and (5) any number of combinations of the above options.

In deregulated markets, the wholesale price of electricity and natural gas at any given time is determined by supply and demand conditions.[19] Supply factors include the price of fuels, the availability of generating and transmission and pipeline resources, and external conditions that could, for example, affect the availability of solar and wind generation (affecting electricity prices) or the production and transportation of natural gas. Demand is affected by weather conditions, time of day and day of week, and general economic conditions. In organized electricity and natural gas markets, the price is constantly changing, typically daily for natural gas and multiple times within each hour for electricity.

There are a variety of rate arrangements that ESCOs offer to shopping customers. Variable rates, which can change monthly, are the type of rate arrangement at issue in this case. Just

Energy offered customers service at a fixed rate for an initial period, often several months.[20] These fixed rates tended to be low or competitive relative to the PTC.[21] Thereafter, customers were automatically switched to variable-rate service. In the retail energy (electricity or natural gas) markets, the nature of the pricing arrangement between the ESCO and the end-use customer affects the way in which the energy supply can be rationally procured by the ESCO in the wholesale market.

When an ESCO acquires a fixed-rate customer, it has a strong incentive to hedge the purchase price of its projected sales to that customer for the duration of the term of the fixed-price retail supply contract at the time the contract is executed. Hedging refers to an attempt to eliminate most of or all the price risk associated with serving a customer's future consumption by entering into various transactions prior to the delivery period. Hedging to support a fixed rate for a specific contract duration allows the ESCO to try to lock in a profit by acquiring the customer's estimated future energy needs at a predetermined cost that is lower than the fixed rate at which the customer has agreed to pay the ESCO. If the ESCO does not hedge to avoid cost fluctuations for energy to serve a fixed-price contract, it incurs the risk of paying more for the customer's energy supply than the fixed rate at which the customer agreed to pay the ESCO. ESCOs typically hedge almost all of their expected fixed-rate supply contract exposure. However, if customers' actual usage is higher than expected, the ESCO faces the risk that the electricity or natural gas purchased to fill the gap between expected and actual usage will be more expensive than the hedged price or the fixed rate. Similarly, if the ESCO ends up being over-hedged due to unexpectedly low consumption or contract cancellations, the ESCO may have to sell the excess energy supply at a lower price and, as a result, incur a loss.

ESCOs have the opposite incentive for variable-rate supply contracts that are based on business and market conditions; that is, their incentive is to not hedge any of the variable-rate commitments. Hedging in this circumstance increases the ESCO's risk since the agreement between the ESCO and the variable-rate customer is such that the ESCO can pass through the market costs that the ESCO incurs to serve the customer's load, plus a reasonable profit margin. Therefore, the ESCO is assured of a profit if the ESCO serves the variable-rate customer's energy consumption through wholesale market purchases without any hedging.

III. Goals and Expectations of Electricity and Natural Gas Industry Restructuring

Energy industry restructuring consists of a variety of reforms intended to improve economic outcomes for market participants, including customers.[22] The typical reform model includes unbundling competitive market components such as electric generation, initiating new or expanded wholesale markets, and introducing competitive procurement of supply.

Retail deregulation (rather than just wholesale deregulation) is a relevant part of overall energy industry restructuring because it establishes how the benefits of wholesale restructuring can potentially be realized by retail customers.[23] Competition in retail markets should, theoretically, result in the convergence of retail and wholesale prices. ESCOs, unlike the franchised monopolies that previously supplied electricity and natural gas, are not guaranteed a customer base or the opportunity to earn a reasonable return. Thus, to be able to compete in an open market in which participants have reasonable access to relevant information, ESCOs should pass through cost savings to their customers, offer novel products and services, and better align service offerings with customer preferences. Additionally, to manage the risk inherent with serving load, ESCOs have an incentive to develop innovative procurement methods and practices.

There are two major risk categories associated with serving fixed-rate customers: volume risk and market price risk.[24] Volume risk refers to the consumption risk associated with such factors as the weather, increases and decreases in the number of customers, and general business and economic conditions. Market price risk stems from the need to balance energy requirements with purchases in the wholesale market.

Mistakes in procurement, marketing, or pricing to end-use consumers—including failure to account for the impacts of market forces—can result in economic losses to an ESCO. Success in managing these factors, meanwhile, can (but is not guaranteed to) provide economic gains.

These gains should reflect success with competing in the retail market based on the relative merit of the ESCO's competitive offerings.

The availability of default service provides a backstop to the competitive retail market. It also establishes a benchmark against which one can evaluate ESCOs' rates and the extent to which they offer a competitive rate. In other words, the PTC allows a comparison of the prices offered by ESCOs to what is available from the local monopoly utility, whose rates reflect market conditions.

An ESCO providing energy under a fixed-price arrangement will typically procure almost all of the needed supply using hedging instruments in order to lock in a price for a defined period into the future for a specified quantity of electricity.[25] The same is true for natural gas. The period of such hedges can extend out from days to several years. There is typically additional cost associated with forward-looking purchases since the wholesale supplier is being asked to absorb the market price risk, for which some degree of compensation is required. As the procurement period gets further away (i.e., the fixed-price contract extends further out), the cost of hedged energy generally becomes more expensive, holding all else equal. It is also important to note that some additional electricity and natural gas will need to be purchased to exactly match demand. Consequently, regardless of the hedging strategy, the ESCO will need to incur some degree of risk in serving its fixed-price customers. The potential benefit of a fixed-rate arrangement to the end-use customer is that rates remain stable for the duration of the contract period; that is, the market price risk is borne by the suppliers (some by the wholesale supplier(s) and some by the retail supplier).

Selling energy under a variable-rate arrangement in which the customer agreement provides that the rate may vary according to business or market conditions, as was done by Just Energy, relieves the supplier of almost all the risks applicable to fixed-price rates. If demand increases (e.g., due to weather conditions) or market prices increase, the ESCO can pass on the increased costs to its customers consistent with the contract arrangements under which the ESCO's customers agreed to receive service. In essence, the variable-rate arrangement shifts the burden of risk away from the ESCO and on to the end-use customer. The theoretical benefit of a variable-rate arrangement to the end-use customer is that the customer can expect that, on average, prices will be lower than they would be under a fixed-rate arrangement due to the difference in the incidence of risk, that is, because the ESCO bears less risk for variable-rate customers. Alternatively stated, variable-rate customers should incur a lower risk premium than fixed-price customers, which should translate into lower average prices.

IV. Calculation of Just Energy Overcharges

I am informed by the Plaintiffs' counsel that, in both the Jordet case and the Donin case, Just Energy's motions to dismiss were denied by the court and discovery will commence. In the absence of data that the Plaintiffs' counsel expects to be provided by Just Energy, I used publicly available data, as described in each relevant section below, to estimate how much the class of affected Just Energy customers were overcharged from 2011 to 2020. The affected class consists of the residential and commercial electricity and natural gas supply customers of Just Energy (and its affiliates) in the United States who purchased supply from Just Energy under variable rates between 2011 and the present day.[26] The overcharge theory is based on the difference between the electricity and natural gas rates the affected class were charged versus what they would have been charged if Just Energy's rates were based on business and market conditions.

A. Summary of Just Energy Overcharges

In the relevant sections of this report, I describe the methods by which I estimated Just Energy overcharges to the affected class by commodity (electricity and natural gas) and customer class (residential and commercial). Table 1 shows my estimates of Just Energy overcharges for residential electricity customers, commercial electricity customers, residential natural gas customers, and commercial natural gas customers, as well as the total overcharges.

[26] Just Energy also supplies electric and natural gas customers outside the U.S. Sales to those customers, and any potential overcharges related to those sales, are not included in this analysis, which is limited to only U.S. customers.

Table 1. Just Energy Overcharges by Commodity and Customer Class, 2011-2020
Commodity and Customer Class	Overcharges
Electricity – Residential	$1,144,609,092
Electricity – Commercial	$717,711,010
Natural Gas – Residential	$449,392,725
Natural Gas – Commercial	$68,624,767
Total	$2,380,337,594

I derived an estimate of Just Energy's overcharges to customers using two public sources of information: the Energy Information Administration's ("EIA's") Form 861, and Just Energy's annual reports. More specifically, I referenced the following information from each source:

- EIA Form 861: I downloaded the annual "Sales to Ultimate Customers" data from 2011-2020. The Sales to Ultimate Customers dataset, according to EIA's website, is "compiled from data collected on the Form EIA-861 and an estimate from Form EIA-861S for data by customer sector." It includes the following information: "retail revenue, sales, and customer counts by state, balancing authority, and class of service (including the transportation sector which was added in 2003) for each electric distribution utility or energy service provider."
- Just Energy Annual Reports: I downloaded the complete annual reports from Fiscal Years ("FYs") 2011-2021. In these reports, I referenced several measures of Just Energy's gross margin (i.e., net sales less the cost of goods sold) and load served. Load served is represented in terms of Residential Customer Equivalent ("RCE"). Just Energy subdivides gross margin and RCE by geographic region (e.g., U.S., Canada, United Kingdom), customer type (e.g., residential or commercial), and commodity type (e.g., natural gas or electricity). The availability of any particular cross-sectional data point (e.g., RCEs for U.S.-based residential gas customers), however, depends on the report year.

In addition to the above public sources, I also referenced utility billing data provided by the Plaintiffs' counsel (from the two complaints in Jordet and Donin). More specifically, I referenced the following four datasets:

- Mr. Jordet's natural gas supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy natural gas supply rate for service between April 15, 2016 and February 15, 2018 (22 billing periods) and the PECO Energy Corporation ("PECO") default natural gas service rate for the same period. The provided information was converted from per-hundred-cubic-feet ("CCF") to per-therm using a conversion ratio of 1 therm = 1.037 CCF.

- Ms. Donin's natural gas supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy natural gas supply rate for service between January 5, 2015 and July 5, 2016 (17 billing periods) and the National Grid USA Service Company, Inc. ("National Grid") default natural gas service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-therm.

- Ms. Donin's electricity supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy electricity supply rate for service between June 26, 2011 and July 28, 2016 (49 billing periods) and the Consolidated Edison, Inc. ("ConEd") default electricity service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-kilowatt-hour ("kWh").

- Ms. Golovan's electricity supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy electricity supply rate for service between July 10, 2014 and May 11, 2015 (10 billing periods) and the ConEd default electricity service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-kWh.

For each of the four customer class/commodity pairings (i.e., residential electric, commercial electric, residential natural gas, commercial natural gas), I estimated overcharges using two key measures: Just Energy's excess margin and the quantity of affected Just Energy load. Excess margin represents the amount by which Just Energy is estimated to have charged variable-rate customers in excess of rates that reflect market conditions. The quantity of affected load represents the estimated aggregate class size (i.e., energy usage subject to Just Energy's excess margin). The product of the excess margin and quantity of affected load is equal to the total overcharges incurred by the affected class. The assumptions used to estimate both of these factors differ by customer type (i.e., residential versus commercial) and by utility type (i.e., natural gas versus electricity) due to the nature of provided and/or available data. The following subsections discuss the applicable assumptions for the estimates provided above in Table 1.

The price a variable-rate customer should have been charged in any given month or billing period can be calculated based on a number of benchmarks, including the PTC, or Just Energy's realized cost of serving that customer during that billing period (plus a reasonable profit margin). Once discovery is conducted (and monthly customer-level sales and price data, and cost of sales data, are provided by Just Energy), overcharges can be calculated more precisely for each member of the affected class as well as for the entire class.

I summarize the caveats to my analysis and estimates in the last subsection of this section.

B. Estimated Overcharges to Residential Electricity Customers

I estimated excess margins for all residential electricity customers using the average excess electricity margin applicable to Ms. Donin between June 2012 and July 2016. For each separate billing month within this time frame, I subtracted the default supply rate (i.e., the ConEd PTC rate) from Ms. Donin's Just Energy supply rate. The difference between the Just Energy and default service rate represents the excess margin. The magnitude and direction of the excess margin varies by month. To account for this variability, I used the average excess margin for the full period of provided data.[27] Ms. Donin's average excess electricity margin over these 49 billing periods was $0.0340/kWh.

I estimated the quantity of affected residential electricity load using annual reporting (provided by Just Energy) captured in EIA Form 861. More specifically, I summed the total quantity of reported residential load served by Just Energy and each of Just Energy's affiliates for each year between 2011 and 2020. Available information includes data for Just Energy, Just Energy New York Corp., Amigo Energy, Commerce Energy, Hudson Energy Services, and Tara Energy, LLC. These entities collectively serve or served customers in the following 11 states: California, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas. EIA Form 816 data include customers served under various retail rate products, including variable- and fixed-rate plans. I account for the inclusion of non-class volumes (i.e., fixed-rate contracts) in EIA Form 861 data by scaling the total volume by half (i.e., 50%). I selected 50% as a reasonable mid-point given the absence of further information about the nature of Just Energy's customer book and the share of customers served under rates included within the Plaintiffs' proposed class.

I estimated overcharges to residential electricity customers as follows:

Overcharges = Total EIA-Reported Sales x Class Volume Adjustment x Excess Margin
= $1,144,609,092[28]

[27] The electric billing for Ms. Donin is inclusive of the time frame during which Just Energy served another Plaintiff, Ms. Golovan. Further, Ms. Golovan also received Just Energy service in place of default supply from ConEd. I elected to exclude Ms. Golovan's electric billing data to avoid over-weighting the overlapped time period (i.e., July 2014 – May 2015). I note that including Ms. Golovan's excess margins in the excess residential electricity margin calculation would have increased the resulting excess residential electricity margin. Therefore, calculating the excess residential electricity margin based solely on Ms. Donin's billing data is a conservative assumption.

[28] The mismatch is due to independent rounding.

C. Estimated Overcharges to Commercial Electricity Customers

I estimated the excess margin for commercial electricity customers by using the excess electricity margin I calculated for residential customers (see Subsection B above) as the starting point. I adjusted the residential customer excess margin to reflect the average difference in Just Energy's gross margin for residential and commercial customers, as reported by Just Energy on an RCE basis. In general, gross margin for commercial customers is lower than gross margin for residential customers. I evaluated several data points in Just Energy's annual reports to identify the appropriate scaling ratio, and ultimately used 27.3%. This scaling factor equals the ratio of realized base gross margin per RCE for commercial electricity customers to the realized base gross margin per RCE for residential electricity customers, averaged over a two-year period (FY 2020 and FY 2021). Just Energy does not provide a similar measure of realized base gross margin per RCE (as distinguished by commodity and customer class) in its annual reports prior to 2020. However, other potential metrics yield similar average ratios despite being less precise.[29] Multiplying the excess residential electricity margin (i.e., $0.0340/kWh) by the 27.3% adjustment factor for commercial customers yields an estimated excess commercial electricity margin of $0.0093/kWh.

I estimated the quantity of affected electricity customer load using annual reporting (provided to EIA by Just Energy) captured in EIA Form 861. More specifically, I summed the total quantity of reported commercial load served by Just Energy and each of Just Energy's affiliates for each year from 2011 through 2020. The affiliates and the states are the same for commercial and residential customer segments, except for the inclusion of Tara Energy Resources for commercial customers. Similar to the assumption I employed in the residential electricity subsection, I scaled the total volume by half (i.e., 50%) to account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in EIA Form 861 data.

[29] The ratio of average gross margin per RCE (not accounting for commodity type) for commercial and residential customers ranges from 23% to 42% and averages 35% from FY 2013 through FY 2021. A calculated average base gross margin per RCE using reported electricity base gross margin and electricity end-of-fiscal year RCEs (i.e., a point-in-time total, rather than inclusive of all points in time during the period) adjusted for U.S.-only RCEs yields a ratio that ranges from 17% to 36% and averages 23% from FY 2011 through FY 2021.

I estimated overcharges to commercial electricity customers as follows:

Overcharges = Total EIA-Reported Sales x Class Volume Adjustment x Excess Margin
= 154,577,982,000 kWh x 0.5 x $0.0093/kWh

D. Estimated Overcharges to Residential Natural Gas Customers

I estimated the excess margin for all residential natural gas customers using the average excess natural gas margin applicable to Plaintiffs Mr. Jordet and Ms. Donin from April 2016 to February 2018 and from January 2015 to July 2016, respectively. For each separate billing month within this time frame (for both customers), I subtracted the default supply rate (i.e., PECO or National Grid service rate) from the applicable Just Energy supply rate. To account for variability, I used the average excess margin for the full period of provided data. The average excess natural gas margin over these 22 billing periods for Mr. Jordet and 17 billing periods for Ms. Donin was $0.2478/therm.

I estimated the quantity of affected residential natural gas load using RCE data provided in Just Energy's annual reports. First, I identified the end-of-period RCE quantities by customer class and commodity type. These data points are available as far back as FY 2013. For FY 2011 and FY 2012, Just Energy's RCE reporting does not distinguish between residential and commercial customers. For these years, I apportioned the provided total RCEs between customer classes using the average ratio of residential to commercial RCEs from the FY 2013 through FY 2021 period. Second, I adjusted the provided RCE data to remove non-U.S. customers. This adjustment was made using a percentage share of RCEs attributable to U.S. customers. The best available data from Just Energy were used for each review period year when adjusting for U.S. versus non-U.S. location.[31] Third, I converted RCEs into therms using Just Energy's provided definition of 1 RCE = 1,000 therms per year for natural gas customers. Fourth, I shifted the data to a calendar year basis (versus fiscal year basis) using period weighting. The estimated RCE data in each Annual Report represent an end-of-period, point-in-time estimate as of the last day (March 31) of the applicable FY. I derived 25% of the weighted total for a calendar year from the FY report starting in the same year, and the remaining 75% portion for the FY report starting in the next year.[32] Fifth, I adjusted the RCE to better approximate actual load to account for distinctions between RCEs (an aggregate, imprecise measure) and customer usage. The scaling factor applied to this adjustment is calculated based on the observed relationship between residential electricity RCEs (converted into kWh using a similar process as Steps 1 through 4 outlined above) and EIA-reported annual residential usage. For residential customers, this scaling factor equals 86% (i.e., actual load is lower than RCE load) based on the average ratio between Just Energy RCEs and EIA Form 861 kWh load from 2011 through 2020 for residential customers. Finally, similar to the approach I followed as described in the previous subsections, I account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in Just Energy's RCE totals by scaling the total volume by half (i.e., 50%).

[31] From FY 2017 to FY 2021, this share is differentiated by customer type but not by commodity type. From FY 2013 to FY 2016, this share is only provided on a book-wide basis (i.e., not differentiated by customer type or by commodity type). From FY 2011 to FY 2012, this share is differentiated by commodity type but not by customer type.

I estimated overcharges to residential natural gas customers as follows:

Overcharges = Total Sales x Class Volume Adjustment x Excess Margin
= 3,626,720,117 therms x 0.5 x $0.2478/therm
= $449,392,725[33]

E. Estimated Overcharges to Commercial Natural Gas Customers

I estimated the excess margin for commercial natural gas customers by using the excess natural gas margin I calculated for residential customers (see above) as the starting point. I adjusted the excess natural gas margin for residential customers to reflect the average difference in Just Energy's gross margin for residential and commercial customers. I evaluated several data points in Just Energy's annual reports to identify the appropriate scaling ratio, and ultimately used 25.1%. This ratio equals the ratio of the realized base gross margin per RCE for commercial gas customers to the realized base gross margin per RCE for residential gas customers, averaged over a two-year period (FY 2020 and FY 2021). As noted above, Just Energy does not provide a similar measure of realized base gross margin per RCE (as distinguished by commodity and customer class) in its annual reports prior to 2020. Multiplying the residential excess natural gas margin (i.e., $0.2478/therm) by the 25.1% adjustment factor for commercial customers yields a commercial excess natural gas margin of $0.0622/therm.

[32] For example, the calendar year 2020 RCE total is estimated based on 25% of the FY 2020 reported RCE (i.e., as of March 31, 2020) and 75% of the FY 2021 reported RCE (i.e., as of March 2021).

[33] The mismatch is due to independent rounding.

I estimated the quantity of affected commercial natural gas load using RCE data provided in Just Energy's annual reports. The steps to convert fiscal year RCEs into calendar year therms for commercial customers are similar to those applicable to residential customers, except I used the data reported by Just Energy for commercial customers. Like the adjustment I performed for residential natural gas customers, I adjusted the RCE to better approximate actual load to account for distinctions between RCEs and customer usage. For commercial customers, this scaling factor equals 108% (i.e., actual load is higher than RCE load) based on the average ratio between Just Energy RCEs and EIA Form 861 kWh load from 2011 through 2020 for commercial customers. I scaled the total volume by half (50%) to account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in Just Energy's RCE data.

I estimated overcharges to commercial natural gas customers as follows:

= 2,204,852,190 therms x 0.5 x $0.0622/therm

F. Caveats

The overcharge estimates provided above are based on the best available information at this time. In several cases, I made assumptions regarding the volume of the affected class load and the applicable excess margin due to the absence of more detailed determinants. Plaintiffs' counsel informed me that the more detailed determinants applicable to these calculations will be available through discovery. Therefore, I reserve the right to modify my findings based upon new information. This includes updating the methodology described above to account for more precise or disaggregate determinants and measures of overcharges.

The major simplifying assumptions employed in my analysis and overcharge estimates include the following:

- The excess electricity margin for residential customers was derived using one customer's billing data. Due to this small sample size, my estimate for the residential excess electricity margin is subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess electricity margin for all of

Just Energy's residential variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess electricity margin for commercial customers was derived using my estimate for the excess electricity margin for residential customers and an adjustment factor for the difference between Just Energy's unitized gross margin for commercial and residential customers. Therefore, my estimate for the commercial excess electricity margin is also subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess electricity margin for all of Just Energy's commercial variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess natural gas margin for residential customers was derived using two customers' billing data. Due to this small sample size, my estimate for the residential excess natural gas margin is subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess natural gas margin for all of Just Energy's residential variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess natural gas margin for commercial customers was derived using my estimate of the excess natural gas margin for residential customers and an adjustment factor for the difference between Just Energy's unitized gross margin for commercial and residential customers. Therefore, my estimate for the commercial excess natural gas margin is also subject to potentially significant modification. The average realized excess natural gas margin for all of Just Energy's commercial variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- I estimated Just Energy's (and its affiliates') total electricity sales to residential and commercial customers based on the data published annually by EIA. While I expect that the customer-level data that the Plaintiffs' counsel anticipates receiving from Just Energy as part of the discovery process will result in similar volumes, they may differ from the EIA-reported sales volume data for various reasons such as adjustments and reporting discrepancies.

- I estimated Just Energy's (and its affiliates') total natural gas sales to residential and commercial customers based on the RCE data reported by Just Energy in its annual reports and various conversion and adjustment factors to convert these RCE data into relevant units (kWh for electricity, therms for natural gas). While I expect that the customer-level data that the Plaintiffs' counsel anticipates receiving from Just Energy as part of the discovery process will result in similar volumes, they may differ from my estimates due to the assumptions I relied upon in this conversion process.

- I estimated the affected (variable-rate) volumes of loads for Just Energy's electricity and natural gas customers in the United States as a percentage of my estimates of Just Energy's total electricity and natural gas sales to residential and commercial customers. I assumed that Just Energy's sales to each customer class-commodity pairing made under variable-rate plans account for half of Just Energy's total sales for each such pairing. The true volume of Just Energy's sales customers made under variable-rate plans, which will be able to be calculated from information obtained through the discovery process, potentially can be significantly larger or significantly smaller than the estimates contained in this report.

V. Conclusion

I estimated Just Energy's overcharges to its residential and commercial electricity and natural gas customers using the small sample of customer billing data I received from the Plaintiffs' counsel and two categories of publicly available information: EIA Form 861 and Just Energy's annual reports. Based on the more precise customer-level data and Just Energy's cost-of-sales data that I anticipate receiving as part of the discovery process, I will be able to more accurately calculate Just Energy's overcharges to each class member, and thus for the entire affected class.

This concludes my expert report.

Dr. Ogur is a Principal of Exeter Associates, Inc. with 20 years of experience in the energy industry specializing in organized wholesale (Regional Transmission Organization/Independent System Operator) and retail electricity markets. Dr. Ogur's diverse background comprises energy management and consulting; analysis, design, and reporting of RTO electricity markets and products; and state and federal regulation of electric utilities.

Dr. Ogur's coursework in graduate school focused on Microeconomic Theory, Game Theory, and Industrial Organization. His doctoral dissertation investigates imperfect competition in deregulated wholesale electricity markets and oligopolistic competition between private and public generators.

Education

B.A. (Economics) – Bogazici University, Istanbul, Turkey, 1996

Ph.D. (Economics) – Northwestern University, Evanston, IL, 2007

Previous Employment

2014-2015	Senior System Operator Fellon-McCord & Associates, LLC Louisville, KY
2005-2014	Senior Economist PJM Interconnection, LLC Audubon, PA
2001-2005	Economic Analyst Illinois Commerce Commission Springfield, IL

Dr. Ogur's work at Exeter includes analysis of electricity supply contracts; utility rates and tariffs; energy markets and prices; power procurement; default electric service design; project evaluation; demand response opportunities; congestion hedging strategies; and price forecasting.

Prior to joining Exeter, Dr. Ogur's responsibilities at Fellon-McCord encompassed overseeing and performing the daily tasks of the "24/7" wholesale electricity desk, including all aspects of scheduling, managing, and monitoring direct market participant load and generation assets (mostly in ISO/RTO markets) as well as their settlements and custom reporting. He was also in charge of developing strategies and making recommendations, through analytical, financial, and market research, for longer-term management of clients' load obligations and generation assets such as Auction Revenue Rights (ARR) nominations; participation in energy, ancillary services, and capacity markets; load forecasting; energy, basis, and capacity price forecasting; hedging; and peak load management. Dr. Ogur also served as the company's lead analyst in various special consulting projects.

He was part of the team that developed the protocols and business rules for participation of energy efficiency in PJM markets as well as a lead reviewer for energy efficiency plans and post-installation measurement and verification (M&V) reports for PJM's capacity market auctions. He also has training and experience in PJM's stakeholder management process.

Dr. Ogur's responsibilities at the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) included monitoring all Illinois-related developments under federal jurisdiction, mostly Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) filings and rulings concerning major Illinois electric public utilities. In addition, Dr. Ogur reviewed all actions concerning Illinois public utilities at the FERC level (applications to join RTOs, market-based rate authority filings, merger applications, transmission rate cases, etc.), and developed positions and official comments for the consideration of the ICC to file in the related FERC dockets. Dr. Ogur also filed written testimony and served as staff witness (including standing cross-examination) in the ICC dockets establishing auction-based competitive wholesale energy procurement mechanisms for major Illinois electric public utilities.

Attorneys for Plaintiffs and the Class

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

FIRA DONIN and INNA GOLOVAN,

on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

JUST ENERGY GROUP INC. JUST ENERGY NEW YORK CORP., and JOHN DOES 1 TO 100, Defendants.

FIRST AMENDED CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Case No: 17 Civ. 5787 (WFK) (SJB)

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Plaintiffs Fira Donin and Inna Golovan ("Plaintiffs"), by their attorneys Wittels Law, P.C. and Hymowitz Law Group, PLLC, bring this consumer protection action in their individual capacity, and on behalf of a Class of consumers defined below, against Defendants Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy New York Corp., and John Does 1 to 100 (hereafter collectively "Just Energy" or "Defendants" unless otherwise specified), and hereby allege the following with knowledge as to their own acts, and upon information and belief as to all other acts:

OVERVIEW OF DEFENDANTS' UNLAWFUL PRACTICES

1. This consumer class action arises from Just Energy's fraudulent, deceptive, unconscionable, bad faith, and unlawful conduct in "supplying" residential gas and electricity to consumers.

2. Traditionally, residential gas and electricity was supplied by regulated utilities like Con Edison. The rates utilities could charge were strictly controlled. In the 1990s, however, Enron's unprecedented lobbying campaign resulted in deregulation of state energy markets in New York and elsewhere such that consumers were permitted to choose from a variety of companies selling residential energy. Seizing on deregulation, independent energy service companies ("ESCOs") like Defendant Just Energy have grown rapidly.

3. Just Energy entices residential customers to sign up for its service by offering its energy at low initial "teaser rates." Yet Defendants do not alert their unsuspecting customers that when the teaser rate period expires consumers are charged exorbitant variable energy rates. Just Energy's customers are given no advance notice of these excessive variable rates. Just Energy also does not disclose to customers that its rates are consistently higher than the rates charged by consumers' existing utilities, or how variable rate customers can calculate (and avoid) Just Energy's steep variable gas and electricity charges.

4. Just Energy also breaches its customer contracts through a pricing shell game rigged in Just Energy's favor. Just Energy's customer contract explicitly incorporates the terms of Defendants' welcome emails into the contract. In April 2012 Just Energy sent Plaintiff Donin a welcome email stating that after her "intro rate" expired she would be charged an electric rate of 8¢ per kWh. Notwithstanding this contractual promise, Just Energy consistently charged Ms. Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. In fact, based on the billing data Ms. Donin has as well as the information gathered by her counsel, during a four-year period there was only one month when Just Energy charged Ms. Donin less than the 8¢ per kWh contractual rate. The same scenario occurred with Ms. Donin's Just Energy gas account. In April 2012 she received a welcome email (also explicitly incorporated into the Just Energy contract) which stated that after her "intro rate" expired she would be charged a gas rate of 63¢ per therm. The 17 months of billing data Ms. Donin has demonstrates that during all of those months Just Energy's rate was higher than 63¢ per therm.

5. Just Energy further breaches its customer contract in two additional ways. First, Just Energy's contract states that its variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle." Yet Just Energy violated this contract term when it increased Plaintiff Donin's August 2013 electricity price by more than 80% over the prior month's rate. Just Energy also increased Ms. Donin's May 2016 gas rate by more than 36% compared to the rate she paid in April 2016.

6. Second, Just Energy's customer contract states that the company's variable rates are "determined by business and market conditions," yet Defendants' variable rates are not determined by business and market conditions. Instead, when the underlying wholesale market price of gas and/or electricity that Just Energy purchases for re-sale goes up, Defendants simply pass on these costs to their customers by raising rates. However, when the market price goes down, Just Energy's rate remains at an inflated level higher than the market rate. Through this scheme, Just Energy subjects consumers to consistent and unlawful "heads I win, tails you lose" pricing.

7. Just Energy's practice of charging inflated electric and gas prices is intentionally designed to maximize revenue.

8. Plaintiffs and the Class of Defendants' gas and electric customers have been injured by Defendants' unlawful practices. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and the Class defined below seek damages, restitution, declaratory, and injunctive relief for Just Energy's fraud, violation of state consumer protection statutes, unjust enrichment, and breach of contract. Residential energy costs are a significant portion of most families' budgets. To prey on consumers as Defendants have done here is unconscionable.

9. Defendants' deceptive marketing and sales practices are unlawful in multiple ways, including:

a. Using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy;

b. Failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates;

c. Failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire;

d. Actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants will charge when the teaser rates expire;

e. Failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges;

f. Failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge; and

g. Failing to clearly and conspicuously identify in its contract and marketing materials the variable charges in Defendants' variable energy plans.

10. Defendants also breached their customer contract in at least the following three ways:

a. Charging rates higher than the rates promised in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers.

b. Violating the contract's requirement that Defendants' variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

c. Failing to comply with the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

11. Only through a class action can Just Energy's customers remedy Defendants' ongoing wrongdoing. Because the monetary damages suffered by each customer are small compared to the much higher cost a single customer would incur in trying to challenge Just Energy's unlawful practices, it makes no financial sense for an individual customer to bring his or her own lawsuit. Further, many customers don't realize they are victims of Just Energy's deceptive conduct. With this class action, Plaintiffs and the Class seek to level the playing field and make sure that companies like Just Energy engage in fair and upright business practices.

I. Defendants' Fraudulent, Deceptive, and Unlawful Conduct.

12. Price is the most important consideration for energy consumers. Given that there is no difference at all in the electricity or natural gas that Just Energy supplies as opposed to the consumer's utility, the only reason a consumer switches to an ESCO like Just Energy is for the potential savings offered in a competitive market as opposed to prices offered by a regulated utility. That is, after all, the entire point of energy deregulation.

13. Understanding this basic fact about residential energy consumers' decision-making, Just Energy uses introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of its energy. For example, Just Energy enticed consumers like Plaintiffs and the Class to switch their gas and electric accounts by showing them low introductory rates. Yet Defendants did not adequately apprise consumers that the sample energy rates were teaser rates. Defendants also did not effectively disclose that Just Energy's introductory teaser rate would expire or the date on which Just Energy's actual and much higher variable rate would kick in.

14. Defendants further defrauded and deceived Plaintiffs and the Class by actively misrepresenting the rates Just Energy charges when its teaser rates expire, and by failing to adequately disclose that Just Energy's gas and electricity rates are consistently higher than the rates charged by the customers' regulated utility.

15. Defendants are aware of the variable energy rates they intend to charge. Yet to conceal Just Energy's price gouging, Defendants do not provide customers any advance notice.

16. Just Energy's material misrepresentations and omissions concerning its energy rates violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(3), which prohibits deceptive acts and practices in the marketing of residential energy. Section 349-d(3) is part of a new law, called New York's ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, which was specifically enacted in 2010 to combat widespread consumer fraud in New York's energy markets and to protect New York's energy consumers from underhanded business tactics like those employed by Defendants.

17. Just Energy's material misrepresentations and omissions concerning its energy rates also violate New York's and other states' consumer protection statutes and common laws of fraud and unjust enrichment.

18. Plaintiffs are not the only consumers harmed by Just Energy's conduct. On December 31, 2014, Just Energy agreed to settle strikingly similar claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General, making various concessions related to its deceptive residential energy sales and billing practices in Massachusetts.[1]

19. The Massachusetts Attorney General alleged that Just Energy made misleading, false, and unlawful representations and omissions concerning its energy, including that:

> Just Energy represented to consumers that purchasing residential gas and/or electricity from Just Energy will save customers money;
>
> Just Energy failed to disclose complete and accurate pricing information; and
> Just Energy failed to disclose to consumers that its rates following any introductory period may be higher than the rates charged by consumers' traditional utilities.[2]

20. In response to the Massachusetts Attorney General's allegations, Just Energy agreed to refund a total of $4,000,000 to Massachusetts customers along with implementing several key changes to its marketing and sales practices, as follows:

> Just Energy must cease making representations, either directly or by implication, about savings that consumers may realize by switching to Just Energy, unless Just Energy contractually obligates itself to provide such savings to consumers.[3]
> Where Just Energy quotes introductory teaser rates in its marketing material or in any verbal representation, the rate quote must be accompanied by a statement informing consumers that the quoted rate is an introductory rate and state when the rate will expire.[4]
>
> Just Energy is banned for three years from enrolling consumers into variable rate energy products unless it complies with the following requirements:
> - Within 30 days of a customer enrolling in a variable energy rate product, Just Energy must provide the customer with written notice of the date on which the introductory rate will expire.

[2] Id. ¶¶ 19(a), 20(a)–(b).

[3] Id. ¶ 26(a).

[4] Id. ¶ 26(c).

- Any new contracts for variable rate products shall either (i) include the calculation that will be used to set monthly rates under the contract such that the customer can calculate the cost of Just Energy's residential energy, or (ii) make the rates available 60 days in advance via phone and the internet.[5]

For three years Just Energy is banned from charging consumers variable electricity rates in excess of 14.25¢ per kWh.[6] [7]

For current Just Energy variable rate customers, the company is required to clearly and conspicuously post its current variable rates and post subsequent variable rates with at least 45 days advance notice.[8] Just Energy is also required to mail notice to all existing Massachusetts variable rate customers alerting them to the fact that advance pricing information is now available via phone and on Just Energy's website, and that these customers can cancel their Just Energy contracts without paying termination fees.[9]

Just Energy must at its own expense hire an independent monitor for three years to audit inter alia Just Energy's Massachusetts marketing materials, billing data, consumer communications, and direct marketing efforts.[10]

Just Energy must distribute a copy of the Assurance of Discontinuance to current and future (for three years) principals, officers, directors, and supervisory personnel responsible for the Massachusetts market.[11] Just Energy must also secure and maintain these individuals' signed acknowledgement of receipt of the Assurance of Discontinuance.

21. Notably, while as discussed below Just Energy has been fined by regulators for deceptive marketing at least six times, no other actions have to date been brought by New York's

[6] Id. ¶ 30(a).

[7] Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin electricity rates higher than this very high rate for 17 months while she was a Just Energy customer. 14 of those 17 months were consecutive. For the 10 months of billing data Plaintiff Golovan possesses, Defendants charged her more than the 14.25¢ cap every single month.

or other states' enforcement authorities to recoup the millions Just Energy unlawfully extracted from consumers in New York and elsewhere. That is the purpose of this action.

II. Just Energy's Contract and Marketing Materials Also Violate New York's Mandatory ESCO Disclosure Statute.

22. Under N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7), Just Energy is required to clearly and conspicuously identify its variable charges in all consumer contracts and in all marketing materials. The purpose of this disclosure requirement is to ensure that consumers are adequately apprised of how their rates will be set.

23. Rather than complying with Section 349-d(7)'s disclosure requirements, Just Energy's marketing either does not mention its variable rates at all or fails to make the required disclosures in a clear and conspicuous manner.

24. Just Energy's contracts, which arrive when a customer can still cancel without penalty, likewise fail to meet the New York ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights' variable charge disclosure requirements.

25. Had Just Energy provided Plaintiffs with truthful, adequate, and appropriate disclosures about Just Energy's variable energy rates, they would not have switched to Just Energy.

III. Defendants' Breach of Contract.

26. Just Energy imposed on Plaintiffs and the Class a standard, non-negotiable, and uniform customer contract referred to by Defendants as the "Agreement." Defendants have advised Plaintiffs that they believe that the contract applicable to Plaintiffs is the document attached hereto as Exhibit B. Exhibit B has the following document identification code: NY_SVC_MOMENTIS_CODE_VAR_V3_Mar_27_12.

27. The Agreement Just Energy drafted is made up of various documents. Paragraph 1

of Just Energy's "General Terms and Conditions," the section entitled "Key Defined Terms," defines the Agreement to include "[c]ollectively, the Customer Agreement (the front page, the Momentis online enrollment page website, and the welcome email), these General Terms and Conditions, and any authorized attachments."

28. The welcome emails sent to Plaintiff Donin state "[w]here the words 'front page' appear in the Terms and Conditions of your Agreement, we are referring to this correspondence, the information contained herein, and the Momentis website." The welcome emails therefore constitute part of the "Customer Agreement" defined in the General Terms and Conditions, which in turn is part of the larger Agreement between Plaintiffs and Defendants.

29. "Electricity Price" is also defined in paragraph 1 of the General Terms and Conditions as "[e]ither your Intro Price or your Electricity Price, as specified on the Customer Agreement. The Intro Price will be your Electricity Price for the first 3 months of the Term of this Agreement and thereafter your Electricity Price will be the Variable Price as specified on the Customer Agreement."

30. Paragraph 1 of the General Terms and Conditions similarly define the "Natural Gas Price" as "[e]ither your Intro Price or your Natural Gas Price, as specified on the Customer Agreement. The Intro Price will be your Natural Gas Price for the first 3 months of the Term of this Agreement and thereafter your Natural Gas Price will be the Variable Price as specified in the Customer Agreement."

31. The welcome emails Defendants sent to Plaintiff Donin do not list an intro rate and instead state that the "Supply Rate after Intro period" for Plaintiff Donin's Just Energy electric account will be 8¢ per kWh. The Supply Rate after Intro period for Plaintiff Donin's gas account was set forth in Defendants' welcome email as 63¢ per therm.

32. Another part of the Agreement, the first page of Exhibit B attached hereto called the "Customer Disclosure Statement (Essential Agreement Information)," which is either "the front page" or an "authorized attachment" under the General Terms and Conditions, states that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle (see para. 7)."

33. Paragraph 7.1 of the General Terms and Conditions, entitled "Natural Gas Charge" states in relevant part that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

34. Paragraph 7.3 of the General Terms and Conditions, entitled "Electricity Charge" states in relevant part that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

35. As set forth more fully below, Defendants breached the aforementioned contract provisions by (a) charging rates higher than the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers (b) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," and (c) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

PARTIES

Plaintiff Fira Donin

36. Plaintiff Donin is a citizen of New York residing in Brooklyn, New York.

37. In the Spring of 2012, Ms. Donin was contacted by a Just Energy sales representative. Upon information and belief, the sales representative was affiliated with Just

Energy Group Inc.'s Momentis network marketing program. Just Energy's representative used a written, standardized sales script and had been trained by Defendants in a way that emphasized uniformity in sales techniques. Upon information and belief, Just Energy's representatives were only permitted to use sales scripts that had been centrally approved and the content of such scripts did not meaningfully vary over time.

38. The Just Energy representative showed Ms. Donin Just Energy's rates for gas and electricity, which Plaintiff believed were representative of Just Energy's rates. The truth, however, is that the rates were teaser rates not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. It was thus fraudulent for the Just Energy representative to show Ms. Donin a teaser rate that was supposedly representative of Just Energy's rates when in fact the teaser rate was much lower than Just Energy's ordinary rates. Based on these teaser rates, Ms. Donin agreed to switch both her electric and gas account to Just Energy. As described herein Just Energy's statements about its rates were false, fraudulent, and constitute material misrepresentations. Just Energy's statements both during the initial enrollment and at all relevant times thereafter also included several material omissions about Just Energy's variable rates, as described herein.

39. Shortly after agreeing to switch her gas and electric accounts to Just Energy, Defendants sent Plaintiff Donin emails which misrepresented the rates Just Energy would charge after the introductory period. The rates in Just Energy's emails were not substantially different from Defendants' teaser rates. Just Energy's deceptive emails repeated and reinforced Defendants' misrepresentations and omissions regarding Just Energy's rates. The emails were sent from the "justenergysales@mymomens.net" email account. The following pages contain the relevant portions of the email Defendants sent to Plaintiff Donin regarding her electric account:

New York Notice of Cancellation

40. Once Ms. Donin's gas and electricity accounts were successfully transferred to Just Energy, Defendants began supplying Plaintiff's residential energy in June 2012. After Ms. Donin learned in August 2016 that she had been overcharged by Just Energy by more than $2,000 compared to what her local utilities would have charged, she notified Just Energy that she wanted to cancel her gas and electricity accounts.

Plaintiff Inna Golovan

41. Plaintiff Golovan is a citizen of New York residing in Brooklyn, New York.

42. In or around the Summer of 2012, Ms. Golovan was contacted by a Just Energy sales representative. Upon information and belief, the sales representative was affiliated with Just Energy Group Inc.'s Momentis network marketing program. Just Energy's representative used a written, standardized sales script and had been trained by Defendants in a way that emphasized uniformity in sales techniques. Upon information and belief, Just Energy's representatives were only permitted to use sales scripts that had been centrally approved and the content of such scripts did not meaningfully vary over time.

43. Defendants' representative showed Ms. Golovan Just Energy's electricity rate, which Plaintiff believed was representative of Just Energy's rates. The truth, however, is that the rate was a teaser rate not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. It was thus fraudulent for the Just Energy representative to show Ms. Donin a teaser rate that was supposedly representative of Just Energy's rates when in fact the teaser rate was much lower than Just Energy's ordinary rates. Based on this rate, Plaintiff Ms. Golovan agreed to switch her electric account to Just Energy. As described herein Just Energy's statements about its rate were false, fraudulent, and constitute material misrepresentations. Just Energy's statements both during the initial enrollment and at all relevant times thereafter also included several material omissions about Just Energy's variable rates, as described herein.

44. Once Ms. Golovan's electricity account was successfully transferred to Just Energy, Defendants began supplying Plaintiff's residential electricity in August 2012. After Ms. Golovan learned in April 2015 that Just Energy's electricity rates had been consistently high, she notified Just Energy that she wanted to cancel her electricity account.

Defendant Just Energy Group Inc.

45. Established in 1997, Defendant Just Energy Group Inc. (which refers to itself as "Just Energy"), is a publicly traded Canadian corporation incorporated under the laws of Ontario. In 2004, Just Energy made its initial expansion into the United States. Headed by Enron alums James Lewis and Deborah Merril, Just Energy is operated out of dual headquarters in Houston, Texas and Toronto, Ontario. Just Energy's operating affiliates include Defendant Just Energy New York Corp., Just Energy Illinois Corp., Just Energy Indiana Corp., Just Energy Texas L.P., Just Energy Massachusetts Corp., Just Energy Michigan Corp., Amigo Energy, Commerce Energy Inc., Green Star Energy, Hudson Energy Services, LLC, Momentis U.S. Corp., National Energy Corp., Tara Energy, Universal Energy Corporation, and Universal Gas and Electric Corporation. Just Energy and its operating affiliates market and sell natural gas and/or electricity in New York, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas.

46. Just Energy's shares are traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the New York Stock Exchange bearing the ticker symbol "JE." Just Energy is the 11th largest independent energy supplier in the United States, with over 1.8 million customers across North America. Variable rate plans are one of Just Energy's main products.

47. Just Energy has amassed a damning public dossier. The following chronology unearthed by Plaintiffs' counsel's pre-suit investigation documents Defendants' deceptive business practices.

48. In June 2003, the Toronto Star reported that Just Energy (then operating under the name Ontario Energy Savings Corp.) was fined for violating the Ontario Energy Board's code of conduct for fraudulently enrolling customers.[12]

49. In 2008, the Illinois Attorney General sued U.S. Energy Savings Corp. (whose name was changed to Just Energy in 2012), alleging violations of Illinois' consumer fraud laws. The May 2009 Press Release announcing a $1 million settlement noted that the Illinois Attorney General had "received a nearly unprecedented number of calls from consumers who were deceived by false assurances that they would receive significant savings by switching to this alternative gas supplier."[13] According to the Attorney General's complaint, among other deceptive conduct "consumers were led to believe that they would automatically save money by enrolling in the U.S. Energy Savings program."[14]

50. During this same period, the Citizens Utility Board (the "CUB") and AARP filed a formal complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission (the "ICC") alleging, inter alia, that Just Energy told customers they would "save money" by signing up, that consumers would not see any gas price increases if they signed up, and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[15] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, fined the company $90,000, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[16]

51. In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a $200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[17]

52. As previously noted, in December 2014 Just Energy agreed to settle deceptive marketing claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General.

53. In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[18] The article also mentions that some of the complaints that led to the PUCO's

54. There are also numerous complaints about Just Energy on the internet.

55. Over the last three years alone Just Energy has had at least 284 complaints filed with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB"). Of the customer reviews posted to the BBB's website, 93% are categorized by the BBB as "Negative Reviews."

56. Below are a few examples taken from the consumer complaint website Ripoff Report:[20]

> Just Energy Switched my energy rate to variable with NO NOTICE, doubled fees for six months.
> I have noticed over the past few months that the energy cost was getting higher and I thought it was due to the cold winter and higher energy usage. I called Duquesne Light last month and they said call your energy supplier which is JUST ENERGY. In December they had changed my fixed electrical usage rate to a nearly DOUBLE variable rate with NO NOTICE (total extra fees amounting to about $1,500.00). I called Just Energy and tried to get reimbursed, they reviewed my account and said they sent me a POST CARD in the mail when the rate change occurred (which I have never received). I have gotten no reimbursement and they offered to send me a $20.00 visa gift card which I declined. If anyone can offer any information about anything I can do to try and reclaim some money that would be great!!!!

> Just Energy Our bill has doubled since signing up for this, "energy efficient" program. Nipsco checked what we have been paying and what we are now paying and confirmed that. Our thermostat is digitally programmed to have heat set at 65 and our bill is $354.20
> We signed up for Just Energy because of them of course telling us we can save more money on our gas bill. We just received a bill of $354.20 and a disconnect notice. We called Nipsco to figure out what is going on and they were able to look at what we have been paying with them which had been .38 cents per therm and now we are being charged double that! I would like to note that our indoor thermostat is electronically programmed to be at 65 degrees when heat is running . . . . I was also told by Nipsco that they cannot check or confirm because Just Energy is a different company, that we are now most likely stuck into a contract with these people and obligated to pay these outrageous bills. Having 4 children having our services disconnected is not an option, it's just sad . . . that instead of buying my kids Christmas presents I now have to pay this high gas bill or go without heat in the dead of winter.

Commerce Energy dba Just Energy Just Energy, US Energy Broken Promises

For the past 7 months, I was understanding that Just Energy was a utility company that was about helping the consumer save money on their electric bills from AEP. Come to find out that they were in fact charging my account more than what I could have been paying if I stayed with AEP. I was also told that when I signed up with them that my rate would be a fixed rate of 6.5 cents but in fact it wasn't. I am completely at a loss of words at how this company has done me wrong.

I am on a very fixed income and every dollar I can save is a blessing, so when they come to my house promising that they can save me money I was all for it. Just recently I was told that I was being charged an additional fee of supplier charges that I wasn't supposed to have on my bill. I am very upset with this and I want some explanation as to why this was happening . . . as well as I want my money back. So to anyone who is thinking about signing up with this company, please do your research and think again.

Just Energy of Massachusetts Just Energy of Ontario Just energy promised me 6.9 cents, not to ever go above Nstar rates, after a month or two the rate is almost twice Nstar rate, because I use electricity for heating my bill was very high after they doubled their rates that I noticed, most people would not, they ripped me off for $1,300, only God knows how much the rip off in their final month. Please do not sign with them.

Just Energy sales representative called me promised 6.9 cents rate, that will never go above Nstar rate, that happened for a month or two, now my rate is almost twice Nstar rate, I only noticed because I use electricity for heat, my utilization is high so is my rip off, so I have to notice most people with low utilization would not, they ripped me off $1,300 in 2 months and only God knows how much is the rip off this month, the problem is by the time you realize and change they already ripped you off 3 months. Please no matter what you do, do not sign up with Just Energy.

Just Energy 100% scam. Pushy sales people lie. Company won't cancel service. Rates went way up!!!

Pushy sales people who lie. Rates went way up, not down as promised.

Company not allowing me to cancel service . . . . Upon receiving the first bill after the switch to Just Energy our cost for gas doubled, and electric went up 50%. Calls to cancel service and switch back to our local company do not go though, month after month I continue to get ripped off.

Just Energy Scummy bunch of scheisters! Avoid them at any cost. I bought their spiel, and I suffered as a result. Prices are not competitive. After I moved, they screwed me cause I wouldn't continue with the Just Energy, Scam, Untrustworthy, Avoid AVOID Just Energy. Quick talking salesmen, who will rip you off. Rates are not competitive, and they charged me $50 when I moved out of my apartment. Never deal with this company if you want a truth in advertising and a good deal.

USESC, Just Energy Scammed me I'm a 72 year old Hispanic. This man flashed a badge made me get my gas bill and promised I'd save money.

I am a 72 year old Hispanic lady, on social security and Section 8. A man showed up at my apartment. He flashed a badge and began to explain on what USESC was all about.

He talked about how high the gas rates are going and that by signing with this company I would be locked into a certain rate and that my gas bills would be lower. He made me get my current gas bill and he showed me the rate I was at and compared it to a rate he said I would be locked into.

I was made to believe that I would be saving money. When I began to look at my bills after signing I noticed that instead of saving money I have begun to pay more. On my bills I have seen a 200 dollar increase monthly and have not saved a dime on anything.

I was completely scammed into signing this contract and I believe it's because I'm a senior citizen. I now cannot afford to pay my gas bill and feed my children.

It would be best if no one else got scammed the way I did. I'm raising my grandchildren and we are barely surviving. I'm outraged that a company would purposely scam the weak and helpless

57. Just Energy's twitter feed tells a similar story, as the word "scam" appears more than 40 times in posts from 2009 to the present.

58. Media reports about Just Energy equally condemn Defendants for deceptive conduct. When the confidential results of the audit ordered by the ICC referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[21] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[22]

59. A 2014 exposé by Canada's Global News highlights that the "CUB, the Better Business Bureau (BBB), the Ontario Energy Board, among others, have been inundated with complaints from consumers about the sales methods employed by Just Energy. The most common grievance is Just Energy promises people savings that don't materialize."[23]

60. The exposé further references Just Energy's founder Rebecca MacDonald who has "raked in an estimated $150 million from the company since she established it in the 1990s" and is facing accusations "over whether she's misled investors in her company."[24] Those accusations include that MacDonald faked her credentials and the conclusions by "two of Canada's top forensic accounting firms" that Defendants used "an unregulated form of accounting to paint a much rosier picture of the company's financial situation," which in turn allowed Just Energy to show an "artificial profit."[25]

61. The Global News exposé also contains a 22-minute video entitled the "Just Energy Hustle." Below is an excerpt of a Global News Journalist's videotaped interview with Just Energy's Co-CEO Deborah Merril. Despite having joined Just Energy in 2007, in the 2014 interview the Co-CEO denies even knowing about the many criticisms leveled at Just Energy's marketing and sales practices:

> Journalist: "Critics have accused your company of underhanded sales tactics, sleazy tactics to try to get people to sign their name to a contract."
> Co-CEO Merril: "I have not heard those accusations, so, nobody said that to me, no."

63. The report also highlights how Just Energy (referred to below as "JE") uses a teaser rate to deceive consumers:[29]

JE's gas RateFlex prices are fixed only for three months – despite the 5-year term – and after three months, the contract reverts to a fluctuating price based on "business and market conditions." The Electric RateFlex is fixed for 2 months. JE then gives its customers the option of locking in this new, variable and unknown price. The company tries to reassure consumers that the rate won't fluctuate that much by guaranteeing that the variable rate won't increase by more than 35% per month (see: section 7). Just Energy also allows consumers to cancel their contract free within 30 days – before the misleadingly low introductory price expires – but charges a $50 "Exit Fee" if cancelled thereafter. Of course, most consumers don't bother to read the fine print, particularly if salesmen are pushing quick cash back incentives with Visa Gift Cards for registering and referring friends.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

I. Energy Deregulation and Resulting Wide-Spread Consumer Fraud.

82. In 1996, New York deregulated the sale of retail gas and electricity. As a result of deregulation, New York consumers can purchase natural gas and electricity through third-party suppliers while continuing to receive delivery of the energy from their existing public utilities. These third-party energy suppliers are known as energy service companies, or "ESCOs." Since New York opened its retail gas and electric markets to competition, approximately two New York consumers have switched to an ESCO.

83. ESCOs are subject to minimal regulation by New York's utility regulator, the New York State Public Service Commission (the "PSC"). ESCOs like Just Energy do not have to file their rates with the PSC, or the method by which those rates are set. The PSC also does not limit in any way the prices ESCOs charge.

84. ESCOs play a middleman role: they purchase energy directly or indirectly from companies that produce energy and sell that energy to end-user consumers. However, ESCOs do not deliver energy to consumers. Rather, the companies that produce energy deliver it to consumers' utilities, which in turn deliver it to the consumer. ESCOs merely buy gas and electricity and then sell that energy to end-users with a mark-up. Thus, ESCOs are essentially brokers and traders: they neither make nor deliver gas or electricity, but merely buy energy from a producer and re-sell it to consumers.

85. If a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer's existing utility continues to bill the customer for both the energy supply and delivery costs. The only difference to the customer is which company sets the price for the customer's energy supply.

86. After a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer's energy supply charge (based either on a customer's kilowatt hour [electricity] or therm [gas] usage) is calculated using the supply rate charged by the ESCO and not the regulated rate charged by the customer's former utility. The supply rate charged is itemized on the customer's bill as the number of kilowatt hours ("kWh") or therms multiplied by the rate. For example, if a customer uses 145 kWh at a rate of 10.0¢ per kWh, the customer will be billed $14.50 (145 x $.10) for their energy supply.

87. Almost all states that deregulated their energy markets did so in the mid to late 1990s. This wave of deregulation was frantically pushed by then-corporate superstar Enron. For example, in December 1996 when energy deregulation was being considered in Connecticut, "the most aggressive proponent" of deregulation, Enron CEO Jeffrey Skilling said:

> Every day we delay [deregulation], we're costing consumers a lot of money . . . . It can be done quickly. The key is to get the legislation done fast.[30]

88. Operating under this concocted sense of urgency, the states that deregulated suffered serious consumer harm. For example, in 2001 forty-two states had started the deregulation process or were considering deregulation. Today, the number of full or partially deregulated states has dwindled to only seventeen and the District of Columbia. Even within those states several have recognized deregulation's potential harm to everyday consumers and thus only allow large-scale consumers to shop for their energy supplier.

89. Responding to shocking energy prices, many key players that supported deregulation now regret the role they played. For example, reflecting on Maryland's failed deregulation experience, a Maryland Senator commented:

> Deregulation has failed. We are not going to give up on re-regulation till it is done.[31]

90. A Connecticut leader who participated in that state's foray into energy deregulation was similarly regretful:

> Probably six out of the 187 legislators understood it at the time, because it is so incredibly complex . . . . If somebody says, no, we didn't screw up, then I don't know what world we are living in. We did.[32]

91. One of deregulation's main unintended consequences has been the proliferation of ESCOs like Just Energy whose business model is primarily based on taking advantage of consumers. As a result of this widespread misconduct, states like New York began enacting post-deregulation remedial legislation meant to "establish [] important consumer safeguards in the marketing and offering of contracts for energy services to residential and small business customers." [33] As the sponsoring memorandum notes, the ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, codified as G.B.L. Section 349-d, in 2010 sought to end the exact type of deceptive conduct Plaintiffs challenge here:

> Over the past decade, New York has promoted a competitive retail model for the provision of electricity and natural gas. Consumers have been encouraged to switch service providers from traditional utilities to energy services companies. Unfortunately, consumer protection appears to have taken a back seat in this process.

[33] ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, New York Sponsors Memorandum, 2009 A.B. 1558, at 1 (2009) attached as Exhibit C.

* * *

> High-pressure and misleading sales tactics, onerous contracts with unfathomable fine print, short-term "teaser" rates followed by skyrocketing variable prices—many of the problems recently seen with subprime mortgages are being repeated in energy competition. Although the PSC has recently adopted a set of guidelines, its "Uniform Business Practices" are limited and omit important consumer protections in several areas. The fact is, competition in supplying energy cannot succeed without a meaningful set of standards to weed out companies whose business model is based on taking unfair advantage of consumers.

Id. at 3–4 (emphasis added).

92. New York regulators have also begun to call out the high levels of misconduct that pervade deregulated energy markets. For example, in 2014 the PSC concluded that New York's residential and small-commercial retail energy markets were plagued with "marketing behavior that creates and too often relies on customer confusion."[34] The PSC further noted "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[35] The PSC concluded as follows:

> [A]s currently structured, the retail energy commodity markets for residential and small nonresidential customers cannot be considered to be workably competitive. Although there are a large number of suppliers and buyers, and suppliers can readily enter and exit the market, the general absence of information on market conditions, particularly the price charged by competitors, is an impediment to effective competition . . . .[36]

93. The PSC's complaint data confirms its conclusions. The PSC's annual complaint statistics reports indicate that in 2012 the PSC received 1,733 ESCO related complaints of which 322 alleged deceptive marketing. The number of ESCO related complaints increased to 2,384 in 2013 with 2,001 reporting deceptive marketing practices. In 2014 there were 4,640 initial ESCO related complaints, with 2,510 claiming deceptive marketing. In 2015 the data shows there were 5,044 initial ESCO related complaints with 2,348 alleging deceptive marketing practices. In 2016 there were 2,995 initial complaints against ESCOs, with 1,375 alleging deceptive marketing practices.

[34] CASE 12-M-0476, Order Taking Actions to Improve the Residential and Small Nonresidential Retail Access Markets, at 4 (Feb. 25, 2014).

94. The number of deceptive marketing allegations against ESCOs far exceed the combined number of complaints received by all other regulated utilities in New York, including the lightly regulated telecommunications industry. Further, no single ESCO or single region of New York is responsible for most of the complaints. Rather, the complaint data demonstrates that consumer fraud is part of the industry's standard operating procedures.

95. A large percentage consumer complaints to the PSC concern variable rate pricing like Defendants' where consumers' bills are more or less as advertised during the teaser or fixed rate period, but after this initial period expires, instead of switching the consumer back to the utility the ESCO uses the consumers' inaction to substantially increase the price without further notice or explanation as to how the new rate is determined.

96. Statistics from the New York Attorney General's ("NYAG") office confirm the pattern of activity this consumer class action seeks to combat. From at least the year 2000 to the present, the NYAG has investigated numerous ESCOs' deceptive and illegal business practices. These investigations have resulted in at least eight settlements providing for extensive injunctive relief and millions in restitution and penalties.

97. In the last three years, the NYAG has also directly received more than 600 complaints against ESCOs. These complaints demonstrate that the ESCO practices that were the subject of the NYAG's previous settlements continue, and that industry participants like Just Energy view regulatory enforcement actions as simply the cost of continuing their fraudulent business practices.

98. The deceptive conduct of ESCOs like Just Energy has been devastating to consumers nationwide. For example, "[a]ccording to the data provided by [New York's] utilities, the approximately two million New York State residential utility customers who took commodity service from an ESCO collectively paid almost $1.2 billion more than they would have paid if they purchased commodity from their distribution utility during the 36-months ending December 31, 2016."[37] "Additionally, small commercial customers paid $136 million more than they would have paid if they instead simply remained with their default utilities for commodity supply for the same 36-month period."[38] Combining these two groups, New York consumers have been "'overcharged' by over $1.3 billion dollars over this time period."[39]

99. New York's low-income consumers have also been hit hard. The utilities reported that low-income ESCO customers (a subset of the residential customers mentioned above) "collectively paid in excess of $146 million more than they would have paid if they took commodity supply from their utility."[40]

100. Based on the flood of consumer complaints, negative media reports, and data demonstrating massive overcharges the PSC announced in December 2016 an evidentiary hearing to consider primarily whether ESCOs should be "completely prohibited from serving their current products" to New York residential consumers.[41] In other words, to reassess whether

New York's deregulation experiment has failed everyday consumers.

101. Then, on December 16, 2016, the PSC permanently prohibited ESCOs from serving low-income customers, because of "the persistent ESCO failure to address (or even apparently to acknowledge) the problem of overcharges to [low income] customers . . . ."[42]

102. Following the first part of the evidentiary hearing announced in December 2016, on March 30, 2018, PSC staff reached the following conclusions about ESCOs in New York:

> [M]ass market ESCO customers have become the victims of a failed market structure that results in customers being fooled by advertising and marketing tricks into paying substantially more for commodity service than they had remained full utility customers, yet thinking they are getting a better deal. Rather than fierce ESCO against ESCO price competition working to protect customers from excessive charges, ESCOs have deliberately obfuscated prices and resisted market reforms such that the Commission's decision to allow ESCOs access to the utility distribution systems to sell electric and gas commodity products to mass market customers has proven to be no longer just and reasonable. [43]
>
> [T]he Commission must direct that mass market ESCO customer bills disclose a relative bill comparison showing the current bill charges and what the customer would have paid had they taken delivery and commodity from their utility.[44]
>
> The primary problem with the retail markets for mass market customers is the overcharging of customers for commodity due to the lack of transparency to customers on ESCO prices and products; this lack of transparency allows ESCOs to charge customers practically whatever they want without customers' understanding that they are paying substantially more than if they received full utility service. Consequently, potential commodity customers attempting to choose between the ESCO offerings > and the default utility service cannot readily determine which ESCO offers the best price for comparable products or if the ESCOs' prices can possibly "beat" or even be competitive with the utility's default commodity service for the duration of the contract term.

> Thus, as the current retail access mass markets are structured, customers simply cannot make fully informed and fact-based choices on price . . . since the terms and pricing of the ESCO product offerings are not transparent to customers. For variable rate products this is due, in large part, to the fact that ESCOs often offer "teaser rates" to start, and after expiration of the teaser rate, the rate is changed to what is called a "market rate" that is not transparent to the customer, and the contract signed by the customer does not provide information on how that "market rate" is calculated.[45]
>
> ESCOs take advantage of the mass market customers' lack of knowledge and understanding of, among other issues, the electric and gas commodity markets, commodity pricing, and contract terms (which often extend to three full pages), and in particular, the ESCOs' use of teaser rates and "market based rate" mechanisms that customers are charged after the teaser rate expires. In fact, ESCOs appear to be unwilling to provide the necessary product pricing details as to how those "market based rates" are derived to mass market customers in a manner that is transparent so as to enable an open and competitive marketplace where customers can participate fairly and with the necessary knowledge to make rational and fully informed decisions on whether it is in their best interest to take commodity service from their default utility, or from a particular ESCO among competing but equally opaque choices.[46]

103. As for the ESCOs' claim that their marketing and overhead costs explain the overcharges, PSC staff found that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges" ESCOs levied on New York consumers.[47] Likewise, when the ESCOs claimed that their provision to consumers of so-called value-added products such as light bulbs and thermostats contributed to their excessive rates, PSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[48] Similarly, the PSC staff found that the "claim that at least a portion of the significant delta between ESCO and utility charges is explained by ESCOs offering renewable energy is disingenuous at best. ESCOs may be charging a premium for green energy, but they are not actually providing a significant amount of added renewable energy to customers in New York."[49]

104. Instead, PSC staff reached the following conclusion:

> The massive $1.3 billion in overcharges is the result of higher, and more often than not, significantly higher, commodity costs imposed by the ESCOs on unsuspecting residential and other mass market customers. These Overcharges are simply due to (1) the lack of transparency and greed in the market, which prevents customers from making rational economic choices based on facts rather than the promises of the ESCO representative, and (2) obvious efforts by the ESCOs to prevent, or at least limit, the transparency of the market. These obvious efforts include the lack of a definition for "market rate" in their contracts, resulting in the fattening of ESCOs' retained earnings.[50]

105. This class action, which seeks more than $100,000,000 in damages, restitution, penalties, and equitable relief is further proof that residential energy deregulation has been an abject failure.

II. Just Energy Misled Its Customers and Then Gouged Them Compared to What They Would Have Paid Had They Stayed with Their Local Utility.

106. To convince consumers to switch, Defendants represented that customers would save money on their energy costs by switching over from their current utilities.

107. As evidenced by the fact that Just Energy used to be called "U.S. Energy Savings," Defendants understand that the potential for saving money on their home energy costs is the primary, if not exclusive, reason consumers switch to Just Energy.

[48] Id. at 87.

[50] Id.

108. Defendants' primary way of enticing consumers with promised savings is through Just Energy's teaser rates. Defendants make the consuming public aware of Just Energy's teaser rates through various means, including via company-controlled in-person solicitations, telemarketing calls from Defendants' call centers, internet ESCO price aggregators such as www.chooseenergy.com and www.saveonenergy.com that Defendants pay to showcase Just Energy's prices, or through state utility ESCO pricing websites such as New York's www.newyorkpowertochoose.com.

109. Just Energy's teaser rates consistently misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy because they suggest Just Energy's rates are lower than what Just Energy knows it will eventually charge consumers once the teaser period expires. Just Energy's teaser rates also misleadingly suggest to the consumer that Just Energy's rates are lower than their utility's rates. The truth is that Just Energy has a long history of charging substantially more than customers' local utilities.

110. To compound the deception, Defendants do not adequately disclose that the quoted rates are introductory teaser rates and that when Just Energy's teaser rates expire the consumer will pay a rate that is much higher than the utility's rate.

111. Defendants also do not adequately disclose when Just Energy's teaser rates expire. Instead, Just Energy enrolls consumers into variable rate plans knowing (but failing to disclose) that once the teaser rate expires Just Energy's rates will surpass the utility's rates.

112. Just Energy also actively misrepresents the rates it will charge when its teaser rates expire. For example, in April 2012 Just Energy sent Plaintiff Donin an email stating that she would be charged an electric rate of 8¢ per kWh once her "intro period" lapsed. Yet Just Energy consistently charged Ms. Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. The Just Energy billing data Ms. Donin has in her possession shows that Just Energy's charges were far in excess of 8¢ per kWh.

113. Despite having ample advance notice of the variable rates it will impose on customers, Just Energy also fails to advise consumers of the rates they will be charged.

114. Defendants' entire sales model is structured to take advantage of well-studied patterns of human decision-making. Just Energy lures consumers to switch with misleading teaser rates and then exploits consumer inertia once those rates expire to bill consumers for its high-priced residential energy.

115. It is well-established that defaults are powerful drivers of consumer behavior. There are various factors underlying this human tendency that have been discussed in the judgment and decision-making literature, such as the work about defaults and the "status quo bias,"[51] and "Nudges."[52]

116. In this case, Defendants know that once they have the consumer enrolled they can charge high energy rates and many consumers (if not most) will simply pay Defendants' exorbitant charges.

117. Defendants' cynical exploitation of consumer inertia is further exacerbated by the fact that (i) it is extremely difficult for consumers to compare Just Energy's prices with what their local utility charges, and (ii) Just Energy tacks on early termination fees as a disincentive to consumer mobility and choice.

118. Upon being shown Just Energy's teaser rate, a reasonable consumer understands—and expects—Just Energy's rates would typically be lower than the utility's rates.

119. But Just Energy's rates do no such thing. Instead, during the class period and during the time Plaintiffs were Just Energy customers, there were extended lengths of time in which Just Energy's rates were higher than the utility's rates.

120. Further, there are extended periods of time when the wholesale market price of gas or electricity declined or remained steady, yet Just Energy's prices rose. Moreover, even when market prices rise, Just Energy's rates often increase at a faster and higher rate than the market rates. But Just Energy does not disclose these material facts to its prospective or current customers.[53]

121. Just Energy misleads consumers into thinking that its rates are lower than consumers' utilities' rates. Yet when Plaintiff Donin was able to obtain comparison data in the summer of 2016 for what her electric utility would have charged from May 2015 to July 2016, Just Energy billed Ms. Donin more than the utility every single month. These overcharges total more than $375. For Plaintiff Donin's gas utility, Plaintiff Donin obtained comparison data in the summer of 2016 that showed Just Energy charged more than the utility every single month for the 31 months from December 2013 to July 2016 for which data was available to Ms. Donin. For this period Ms. Donin paid Just Energy $1,929.06 more than she would have paid her gas utility.

122. No reasonable consumer exposed to Just Energy's marketing would expect that

[53] The wholesale cost of energy is the most significant and potentially volatile component of electricity and natural gas costs that ESCOs like Just Energy incur for supplying energy. Costs associated with transmission or transportation costs or other similarly static market and business price related factors do not account for the extent to which Just Energy's prices are disassociated from changes in wholesale prices. Similarly, costs associated with Just Energy's supply of so-called "green" energy do not account for the extent to which Just Energy's prices are disassociated from changes in wholesale prices.

Just Energy would charge them more than the utility by so much money for so long.

123. The rates Just Energy actually charges in comparison to the utility rate demonstrates the deceptive nature of Just Energy's marketing. Yet it is extremely difficult for Just Energy's customers to determine what their utility would have charged as the only energy supply rate listed on their bills is Just Energy's rate and the utility's current rate is very difficult for ordinary consumers to locate or calculate.

124. Thus, Just Energy's statements with respect to the rates it will charge are materially misleading. Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher. Just Energy fails to disclose this and other material fact to its customers.

125. No reasonable consumer who knows the truth about Just Energy's exorbitant rates would choose Just Energy as an electricity or natural gas supplier.

126. Just Energy intentionally makes those misleading statements regarding its rates to induce reasonable consumers to rely upon its statements and switch their energy supply.

III. Just Energy Violates New York's Variable Rate Disclosure Law

127. Because of the New York Legislature's concerns with skyrocketing variable rates, New York adopted N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7), which requires that "[i]n every contract for energy services and in all marketing materials provided to prospective purchasers of such contracts, all variable charges shall be clearly and conspicuously identified."

128. Through their conduct, Defendants have violated both the spirit and letter of N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d, the law that is explicitly designed to allow energy consumers to make informed choices: "These provisions will go a long way toward restoring an orderly marketplace where consumers can make informed decisions on their choices for gas and electric service . . .

129. At all relevant times Defendants' marketing materials and contracts never clearly and conspicuously apprised Plaintiffs of the actual factors that make up Just Energy's variable rate.

130. The marketing materials Defendants produced that were provided to Plaintiffs and the Class violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7) by not clearly and conspicuously setting forth all of the factors actually affecting Just Energy's variable rates. Indeed, most of the marketing materials provided to Plaintiffs and the Class do not even mention that Just Energy's rates are variable, nor do they comply with the statute's requirement that the factors that comprise Just Energy's rate be clearly and conspicuously disclosed.

131. Further, as described below, the various incarnations of Just Energy's consumer contract provided to Plaintiffs and the Class also violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7).

132. The Just Energy sales representative who signed up Plaintiffs used Just Energy marketing material and Just Energy's published teaser rates. Among other omissions, that sales representative failed to mention that once the teaser rate expires Just Energy's prices are invariably higher than the utility's rates almost all of the time. Based on the sales representative's statements, Plaintiffs decided to switch to Just Energy.

133. The Just Energy materials the representative provided to Plaintiffs did not contain language clearly and conspicuously describing the factors that affect Just Energy's variable rates or disclose that Just Energy's rates were variable.

134. Following their agreement to switch their accounts to Just Energy, the contracts Plaintiffs received fail to make the clear and conspicuous disclosure of Just Energy's variable rates as mandated by New York's ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, as noted above.

135. Plaintiffs would have never signed up to purchase energy from Just Energy had Defendants complied with N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7).

IV. Just Energy Breaches its Consumer Contracts.

136. In or around the Spring of 2012, Plaintiff Donin (through her husband Stan Donin) enrolled their gas and electric accounts with Just Energy. Plaintiff Donin believed she was enrolling with the entity that controls the "Just Energy" brand, to wit Just Energy Group Inc.

137. In June 2012, Plaintiff Donin's electricity and gas accounts were switched to Just Energy. Thereafter, Plaintiff Donin paid the rate that she was charged by Just Energy.

138. In or around the Summer of 2012, Plaintiff Golovan enrolled her electric account with Just Energy. Plaintiff Golovan believed she was enrolling with the entity that controls the "Just Energy" brand, to wit Just Energy Group Inc.

139. In August 2012, Plaintiff Golovan's electricity account was switched to Just Energy. Thereafter, Plaintiff Golovan paid the rate that she was charged.

140. After Plaintiffs enrolled but before Just Energy began supplying their residential energy Just Energy provided Plaintiffs with Defendants' standard and uniform Agreement, including Defendants' welcome email. Just Energy also afforded Plaintiffs a rescissionary period during which they could rescind the Agreement prior to purchasing energy from Just Energy. During that rescissionary period, the Agreement served as a solicitation in which Just Energy identified the basis upon which the promised rate would be determined.

141. The Agreement represents that (a) Defendants energy rates will be the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers, (b) Defendants rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," and (c) Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

142. The following table identifies for Ms. Donin's electric account the billing periods for the 49 months for which Plaintiff Donin and her counsel have her Just Energy billing data, the variable rate Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin, the corresponding rate her electric utility Con Edison would have charged (which, as discussed below, is a reasonable representation of a rate based on business and market conditions), and the percent difference between Just Energy's and Con Edison's rates:

144. The following table identifies for Ms. Golovan's electric account the billing periods for the 10 months for which Plaintiff Golovan and her counsel have her Just Energy billing data, the variable rate Just Energy charged Plaintiff Golovan, the corresponding rate her electric utility Con Edison would have charged (which, as discussed below, is a reasonable representation of a rate based on business and market conditions), and the percent difference between Just Energy's and Con Edison's rates:

Billing Period From Date	Billing Period To Date	Just Energy Rate Per kWh	Con Ed Rate Per kWh	Difference	Percent Difference

4/10/2015	5/11/2015	$0.1551	$0.0828	$0.0723	87%

145. Defendants' multiple breaches of contract are demonstrated by the data in the above tables. For example, despite sending Plaintiff Donin welcome emails stating that the "Supply Rate after Intro period" for Plaintiff Donin's Just Energy account will be 8¢ per kWh (electric) and 63¢ per therm (gas), Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin in excess of these amounts for 48 of 49 months[55] (electric) and 17 of 17 months (gas).[56]

146. The tables also show that Defendants violated their contractual undertaking that Just Energy's variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle." Just Energy violated this requirement when it increased Plaintiff Donin's electricity price for the billing period ending on August 26, 2013 by 80.27% compared to the prior month's rate. Just Energy also increased Ms. Donin's gas rate for the billing period ending on June 6, 2016 by 36.48% compared to the rate prior month's rate.

147. Finally, that Just Energy's variable rate is not in fact based on the wholesale cost of electricity is demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than Con Ed's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices.

148. Indeed, in 45 of the 49 months Plaintiff Donin was a Just Energy customer (or 91% of the time) Just Energy's rate was higher than Con Edison's rate. In fact, on average, Just Energy's rate was 40% higher than Con Edison's rate.

149. The pre-discovery billing data available for Plaintiff Donin's gas account shows that 100% of the time Just Energy's rate was higher than National Grid's rate and that on average Just Energy's rate was 26% higher than National Grid's rates.

150. The pre-discovery billing data available for Plaintiff Golovan's electric account shows that 90% of the time Just Energy's rate was higher than Con Edison's rate and that on average Just Energy's rate was 53% higher than Con Edison's rates.

[55] Where data is available to Plaintiff and her counsel.

[56] Where data is available to Plaintiff and her counsel.

151. The utility's rates serve as an appropriate indicator of business and market conditions because they are based on the wholesale energy costs and the associated market costs that are the same costs ESCOs such as Just Energy incur.

152. While the utilities and Just Energy may not purchase energy and incur associated costs in precisely the same manner, over time the wholesale costs they incur should be commensurate. In fact, Just Energy has a tactical advantage over the utility as it can purchase energy from highly competitive markets for future use, and therefore its cost for purchasing energy should at the very least reflect (if not undercut) market prices, albeit over a longer term. Therefore, while the utility's rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should correlate with the utility's rates. Instead, Just Energy's rates are wildly incongruent.

153. For example, using Plaintiff Donin's electric account data (the account with the most available pre-discovery data) when Con Edison's rate dropped 14% from $0.10008 to $0.08577 per kWh from October to November 2012, Just Energy increased its already much higher prices by 7% from $0.125955 to $0.135003 per kWh. Similarly, when Con Edison's rate slid 40% from $0.12684 to $0.07601 per kWh between February and March 2013, Just Energy's rate rose 2% from $0.132674 to $0.135002 per kWh.

154. The disparities are also evident over time. For instance, while Con Edison's rate generally declined between February 2014 and November 2014 from $0.13686 to $0.08765 per kWh (declining 36%), Just Energy's already much higher rates increased from $0.148050 to $0.15900 per kWh (increasing by 7%).

155. Just Energy's stark rate disparities with those of the local utility, wherein Just Energy's rates were higher more than 90% of the time where Plaintiffs have available billing data, considered together with the fact that Just Energy's rates do not reflect market fluctuations, demonstrate that Just Energy does not charge a rate based on business and market conditions as required by its customer contract, but rather gouges its customers by charging outrageously high rates.

156. The disconnect between Just Energy's variable rate and changes in wholesale costs is also demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined.

157. The wholesale cost of energy is the primary component of the non-overhead "market conditions" Just Energy incurs.

158. Just Energy's identification of "business" conditions as the other contractual factor used for setting rates also does not explain Just Energy's price gouging. A reasonable consumer might understand that an ESCO will attempt to make a reasonable margin on the commodity it sells to consumers. However, such a consumer would also expect that such profits would be consistent with profit margins obtained by other suppliers in the market, and also that Just Energy's profiteering at the expense of its customers would not be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices but is instead outrageously higher. That other ESCOs' rates are lower, even though they purchase energy from the wholesale market, demonstrates that Just Energy sets its profit margins in bad faith. Similarly, the utility's rate reflects a rate that Just Energy could charge (because Just Energy could purchase energy in the same way and at the same cost as the utility) plus a reasonable margin. No reasonable consumer would consider a margin that is on 26% to 53% to be fair or commercially reasonable.

159. Any potentially conceivable additional business and market are insignificant in terms of the overall costs Just Energy incurs to provide its energy, and do not fluctuate over time.

Therefore, these other cost factors cannot explain the drastic increases in Just Energy's variable rate or the reason its rates are disconnected from changes in wholesale costs.

160. Thus, Just Energy's energy pricing does not comply with its customer contract's requirement that variable prices be "determined by business and market conditions." Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher those of competitors, especially Just Energy's main competitors—the utilities, and untethered from the factors specified in the contract.

TOLLING OF THE STATUTES OF LIMITATION

I. Discovery Rule Tolling

161. Plaintiffs and the Class had no way of discovering Just Energy's unlawful conduct. Even New York's public utility regulator, the PSC, has concluded that "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[57] By contrast, Just Energy was so intent on expressly hiding the fact that consumers had been duped by Defendants' deceptive teaser rates, Defendants concocted a scheme to misrepresent the rates it would charge once the teaser rates expire. Defendants further failed to give customers advance notice of the variable rates it was going to assess, even though Defendants knew well in advance what those rates would be.

162. Within the period of any applicable statutes of limitation, Plaintiffs and the other Class Members could not have discovered Just Energy's illegal conduct through the exercise of reasonable diligence.

[57] CASE 12-M-0476, Order Taking Actions to Improve the Residential and Small Nonresidential Retail Access Markets, at 11 (Feb. 20, 2014).

163. Plaintiffs and the other Class Members did not discover and did not know of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect they were victims of Just Energy's illegal conduct.

164. All applicable statutes of limitation have been tolled by operation of the discovery rule.

II. Fraudulent Concealment Tolling

165. All applicable statutes of limitation have also been tolled by Just Energy's knowing and active fraudulent concealment and denial of the facts alleged herein throughout the period relevant to this action.

166. Instead of disclosing that its quoted rates are teaser rates, when those rates will expire, that its energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing utility charges, and giving consumers advance notice of the rates Defendants will charge, Just Energy used its teaser rates to falsely represent the cost of its energy and actively misrepresented the rates Defendants would charge once the teaser rate expired.

III. Estoppel

167. Just Energy was under a continuous duty to disclose to Plaintiffs and the other Class Members the truth about its energy rates.

168. Just Energy knowingly, affirmatively, and actively concealed the true nature of its rates from consumers.

169. Just Energy was also under a continuous duty to disclose to Plaintiffs and Class Members that it was receiving thousands of complaints from customers who had been led to believe that they would save money with Just Energy compared to their incumbent utility.

170. Based on the foregoing, Just Energy is estopped from relying on any statutes of limitations in defense of this action.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

171. Plaintiffs sue on their own behalf and on behalf of a Class for damages, injunctive, and all other available relief under Rules 23(a), (b)(2), (b)(3), and (c)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

172. The Class, preliminarily defined as two subclasses ("Subclasses"), is as follows:

a. The Multistate Class, preliminarily defined as all Just Energy customers in the United States (including customers of companies Just Energy acts as a successor to) who were charged a variable rate for their energy at any time from [applicable statute of limitations period] to the date of judgment.

b. The State Classes, preliminarily defined as all Just Energy customers in the state of [e.g., New York, California, etc.] (including customers of companies Just Energy acts as a successor to) who were charged a variable rate for their energy at any time from [applicable statute of limitations period] to the date of judgment.

173. Excluded from the Subclasses (hereafter collectively the "Class" unless otherwise specified) are the officers and directors of Defendants, members of the immediate families of the officers and directors of Defendants, and their legal representatives, heirs, successors or assigns and any entity in which Defendants have or have had a controlling interest. Also excluded are all federal, state and local government entities; and any judge, justice or judicial officer presiding over this action and the members of their immediate families and judicial staff.

174. Plaintiffs reserve the right, as might be necessary or appropriate, to modify or amend the definition of the Class and/or add additional Subclasses, when Plaintiffs file their motion for class certification.

175. Plaintiffs do not know the exact size of the Class, since such information is in the exclusive control of Defendants. Plaintiffs believe, however, that based on the publicly available data concerning Just Energy's customers in the United States, the Class encompasses more than one million individuals whose identities can be readily ascertained from Defendants' records. Accordingly, the members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all such persons is impracticable.

176. The Class is ascertainable because its members can be readily identified using data and information kept by Defendants in the usual course of business and within their control. Plaintiffs anticipate providing appropriate notice to each Class Member, in compliance with all applicable federal rules.

177. Plaintiffs are adequate class representatives. Their claims are typical of the claims of the Class and do not conflict with the interests of any other members of the Class. Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class were subject to the same or similar conduct engineered by Defendants. Further, Plaintiffs and members of the Class sustained substantially the same injuries and damages arising out of Defendants' conduct.

178. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of all Class Members. Plaintiffs have retained competent and experienced class action attorneys to represent their interests and those of the Class.

179. Questions of law and fact are common to the Class and predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class Members, and a class action will generate common answers to the questions below, which are apt to drive the resolution of this action:

a. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349-d;

b. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349;

c. Whether Defendants' conduct violates various other state consumer protection statutes;

d. Whether Defendants' representations are fraudulent;

e. Whether Defendants engaged in fraudulent concealment;

f. Whether Defendants were unjustly enriched as a result of their conduct;

g. Whether Defendants breached their customer contracts;

h. Whether Defendants violated the duty of good faith and fair dealing;

i. Whether Class Members have been injured by Defendants' conduct;

j. Whether any or all applicable limitations periods are tolled by Defendants' acts;

k. Whether, and to what extent, equitable relief should be imposed on Defendants to prevent them from continuing their unlawful practices; and

l. The extent of class-wide injury and the measure of damages for those injuries.

180. A class action is superior to all other available methods for resolving this controversy because i) the prosecution of separate actions by Class Members will create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual Class Members that will, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other Class Members not parties to this action, or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests; ii) the prosecution of separate actions by Class Members will create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual Class Members, which will establish incompatible standards for Defendants' conduct; iii) Defendants have acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to all Class Members; and iv) questions of law and fact common to the Class predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class Members.

181. Further, the following issues are also appropriately resolved on a class-wide basis under FED. R. CIV. P. 23(c)(4):

a. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349-d;

b. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349;

c. Whether Defendants' conduct violates various other state consumer protection statutes;

d. Whether Defendants' representations are fraudulent;

e. Whether Defendants engaged in fraudulent concealment;

f. Whether Defendants were unjustly enriched as a result of their conduct;

g. Whether Defendants breached their customer contracts;

h. Whether Defendants violated the duty of good faith and fair dealing;

i. Whether any or all applicable limitations periods are tolled by Defendants' conduct; and

j. Whether, and to what extent, equitable relief should be imposed on Defendants to prevent them from continuing their unlawful practices.

182. Accordingly, this action satisfies the requirements set forth under FED. R. CIV. P. 23(a), 23(b), and 23(c)(4).

COUNT III

N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-D(7)

(ON BEHALF OF THE NEW YORK CLASS)

198. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

COUNT V

COMMON LAW FRAUD

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

220. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

221. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

222. As discussed above, Defendants (i) used introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy, and (ii) actively misrepresented the rates Defendants would charge when the teaser rates expire.

223. In deciding to become and remain Just Energy customers, Plaintiffs and the Class reasonably relied on these misrepresentations to form the mistaken belief that Just Energy's teaser rates were representative of Just Energy's ordinary rates and that thus they would save money on their energy compared to what their local utility would have charged.

224. To solidify and further their fraud, Defendants committed numerous fraudulent omissions including (i) failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates, (ii) failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire, (iii) failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges, and (iv) failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge.

225. Defendants' fraudulent conduct was knowing and intentional. The misrepresentations and omissions made by Defendants were intended to induce and actually induced Plaintiffs and Class Members to become and remain Just Energy customers.

226. Defendants' fraud caused damage to Plaintiffs and the Class, who are entitled to damages and other legal and equitable relief as a result.

227. Defendants' acts were done maliciously, oppressively, deliberately, with intent to defraud, and in reckless disregard of Plaintiffs' rights and well-being to enrich Defendants. Defendants' conduct warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount sufficient to deter such conduct in the future, which amount is to be determined according to proof.

COUNT VI

FRAUD BY CONCEALMENT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

228. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

229. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

230. Defendants concealed material facts concerning their variable energy rates including (i) failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates, (ii) failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire, (iii) failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges, and (iv) failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge.

231. Defendants sold Plaintiffs energy without disclosing these material facts and took active steps to conceal them including by (i) using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy, and (ii) actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants would charge when the teaser rates expire.

232. Defendants' material omissions and misrepresentations were intentional and were committed to protect Defendants' profits, avoid damage to Defendants' image, and to save Defendants money, and Defendants did so at Plaintiffs' expense.

233. The information Defendants concealed was material because price is the most important consideration for consumers' energy purchasing decisions.

234. Defendants had a duty to disclose the material information they concealed because this information was known and accessible only to Defendants; Defendants had superior knowledge and access to the facts, and Defendants knew the facts were not known to, or reasonably discoverable by Plaintiffs. Defendants also had a duty to disclose because Just Energy made affirmative misrepresentations about its energy rates, which were misleading, deceptive, and incomplete without disclosure of the material information.

235. Just Energy still has not made full and adequate disclosures and continues to defraud Class Members and conceal material information regarding Just Energy's rates.

236. Plaintiffs were unaware of these omitted material facts and would not have become Just Energy customers if they had known these concealed and/or suppressed facts; and/or would not have continued to be Just Energy customers for as long as they were. Plaintiffs' actions were justified.

237. In deciding to become and remain Just Energy customers, Plaintiffs and the Class reasonably relied on Just Energy's misrepresentations and omissions to form the mistaken belief that Just Energy's teaser rates were representative of Just Energy's ordinary rates and that thus they would save money on their energy compared to what their local utility would have charged.

238. Defendants' fraud by concealment caused damage to Plaintiffs and the Class, who are entitled to damages and other legal and equitable relief as a result.

239. Defendants' acts were done maliciously, oppressively, deliberately, with intent to defraud, and in reckless disregard of Plaintiffs' rights and well-being to enrich Defendants. Defendants' conduct warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount sufficient to deter such conduct in the future, which amount is to be determined according to proof.

COUNT VII

UNJUST ENRICHMENT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

240. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

241. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes.

242. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

243. This claim is brought under the laws of all states where Just Energy does business that permit an independent cause of action for unjust enrichment, as there is no material difference in the law of unjust enrichment as applied to the claims and questions in this case.

244. As a result of their unjust conduct, Defendants have been unjustly enriched.

245. By reason of Defendants' wrongful conduct, Defendants have benefited from receipt of improper funds, and under principles of equity and good conscience, Defendants should not be permitted to keep this money.

246. As a result of Defendants' conduct it would be unjust and/or inequitable for Defendants to retain the benefits of their conduct without restitution to Plaintiffs and the Class. Accordingly, Defendants must account to Plaintiffs and the Class for their unjust enrichment.

COUNT VIII

BREACH OF CONTRACT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

247. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

248. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

249. Plaintiffs and the Class entered into a valid contract with Defendants for the provision of residential energy.

250. Defendants' customer contract explicitly incorporates the terms of any of Defendants' welcome emails into the contract.

251. Defendants sent Plaintiffs and the Class welcome emails that state that after the "intro rate" expired consumers would be charged a specified energy rate.

252. Defendants' customer contract states that Just Energy's variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

253. Defendants' customer contract states that the company's variable rates are "determined by business and market conditions."

254. Pursuant to the contract, Plaintiffs and the Class paid the rates charged by Defendants.

255. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy consistently charged Plaintiffs and the Class more than the amounts specified in the welcome emails.

256. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy increased Plaintiffs and Class' prices more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle.

257. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy variable rates are not "determined by business and market conditions."

258. Plaintiffs and the Class were damaged as a result of Defendants' breaches of contract because they were billed, and they paid energy rates that were not consistent with the rates required under Defendants' customer contract.

259. By reason of the foregoing, Defendants are jointly and severally liable to Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendants' actions, the amount of such damages to be determined at trial.

COUNT IX

BREACH OF IMPLIED COVENANT OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING

BOTH IN THE ALTERNATIVE TO BREACH OF CONTRACT AND AN ALTERNATIVE BREACH OF CONTRACT COUNT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

260. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

261. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

262. Every contract applicable to Plaintiffs and the Class contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in the performance and enforcement of the contract. The implied covenant is an independent duty and may be breached even if there is no breach of contract's express terms.

263. Under the Defendants' customer contract, Defendants have unilateral discretion to set the variable rates for electricity based on "business and market conditions."

264. Plaintiffs reasonably expected that Defendants' variable energy rates would reflect business and market conditions and that Defendants would refrain from price gouging. Without reasonable expectations, Plaintiffs and other Class members would not have agreed to buy energy from Defendants.

265. Defendants breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by arbitrarily and unreasonably exercising its unilateral rate-setting discretion to price gouge and frustrate Plaintiffs and other Class members' reasonable expectations that the variable rates for electricity would be "determined by business and market conditions."

266. Defendants' acted in bad faith when they made contractual promises to base its rates on "business and market conditions" knowing full well that its rates were substantially higher than rates that are actually based on these criteria.

267. As a result of Defendants' breach, Defendants are jointly and severally liable to Plaintiffs and other Class members for actual damages in an amount to be determined at trial.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court:

(a) Issue an order certifying the Classes defined above, appointing the Plaintiffs as Class Representatives, and designating the undersigned firms as Class Counsel;

(b) Find that Defendants have committed the violations of law alleged herein;

(c) Render an award of compensatory damages of at least $100,000,000, the precise amount of which is to be determined at trial;

(d) Issue an injunction or other appropriate equitable relief requiring Defendants to refrain from engaging in the deceptive practices alleged herein;

(e) Declare that Defendants have committed the violations of law alleged herein;

(f) Render an award of punitive damages;

(g) Enter judgment including interest, costs, reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses; and

(h) Grant all such other relief as the Court deems appropriate.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

----------X

FIRA DONIN and INNA GOLOVAN, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

JUST ENERGY GROUP INC., JUST ENERGY NEW YORK CORP., and JOHN DOES 1 TO 100, Defendants.

----------X

DECISION & ORDER
17-CV-5787 (WFK)(SJB)

WILLIAM F. KUNTZ, II, United States District Judge:

On April 27, 2018, Fira Donin and Inna Golovan ("Plaintiffs") filed an Amended Putative Class Complaint ("Amended Complaint") against Just Energy Group, Inc, Just Energy New York Corp., and Johns Does 1 to 100 ("Defendants") setting forth claims for violations of the New York General Business Law, unfair deceptive acts and practices, common law fraud, fraud by concealment, unjust enrichment, breach of contract, and breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing. ECF No. 17. Defendants now move to dismiss the Amended Complaint in its entirety pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1), (2), and (6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See ECF Nos. 27–30. For the reasons that follow, Defendants' motion to dismiss is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

BACKGROUND[1]

Fira Donin and Inna Golovan (together, "Plaintiffs") are residents of Brooklyn, New York who allege they were gas and electricity customers of Just Energy NY from June 2012 through August 2016 and August 2012 through April 2015, respectively. See Amended Complaint ("Compl.") ¶¶ 36, 40–41, 44, ECF No. 17. Just Energy Group and Just Energy New York ("JE" and "JENY," respectively, together, "Defendants"), are energy service companies ("ESCOs"), which provide a "free-market alternative" to local utility companies. See Def. Mem.

in Support of Mot. to Dismiss ("Def. Mem.") at 2, ECF No 27-1. Just Energy NY "is the corporate entity that supplied Plaintiffs' energy." Compl. ¶ 64. Just Energy NY customers elect not to purchase energy from the local utility provider in their region, like Con Edison, and instead contract to purchase their energy supply from an ESCO. Def. Mem. at 2. Just Energy NY customers enter into a contract, by which Just Energy NY agrees to provide gas and/or electricity to the customer at agreed-upon terms. Id. The physical delivery of the gas or electricity to the customer's home, along with the reading of customer meters and determining usage amounts for billing purposes, remain the local utility's responsibility. Id. Plaintiffs allege "Defendants John Does 1 to 100 are the shell companies and affiliates similar to Just Energy New York Corp. through which Defendant Just Energy Group Inc. does business in New York and elsewhere. John Does 1 to 100 are also the Just Energy management and employees who perpetrated the unlawful acts described herein." Compl. ¶ 69.

Plaintiffs allege that Just Energy's "deceptive marketing and sales practices are unlawful in multiple ways including:

a. Using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy;

b. Failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates;

c. Failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire;

d. Actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants will charge when the teaser rates expire;

e. Failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges;

f. Failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge; and

g. Failing to clearly and conspicuously identify in its contract and marketing materials the variable charges in Defendants' variable energy plans." Compl. ¶ 9; see also Compl. ¶¶ 3, 187, 194, 210, 231.

Specifically, Plaintiffs allege they were contacted by representatives associated with Just Energy in 2012, and shown "teaser rates" not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. Compl. ¶¶ 37–38, 42–43. Plaintiff Donin alleges that after agreeing to switch her gas and electric accounts to Just Energy, she received emails from Just Energy that misrepresented Just Energy's rates. Compl. ¶ 39. Plaintiffs allege Just Energy lures consumers with a marketing campaign that touts low rates and fails to disclose that Just Energy's actual rates will not only be higher than those teaser rates, but will also be consistently and substantially higher than those charged by the utility. Id. ¶ 3.

Plaintiffs allege the "company also provides customers a set of documents, including a "welcome email" and "General Terms and Conditions," which together comprise the contract. Def. Mem. at 10. Plaintiffs allege that in this contract, Just Energy promises (1) to charge a specified energy rate, (2) not to increase customers' rates "more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," see Compl. ¶ 5, and (3) to base their variable rates on "business and market conditions," id. ¶ 6. Plaintiffs allege Defendants breach all three promises. Id. ¶¶ 4–6, 10, 31–35, 142–46, 255–56. Through these practices, Plaintiffs allege Defendants breached New York's General Business Law §§ 349, 349-D(3) and 349-D(7) (Counts I–III); engaged in unfair and deceptive acts and practices (Count IV); committed common law fraud (Count V) and fraud by concealment (Count VI); were unjustly enriched at the consumers' expense (Count VII); breached its contract (VIII); and violated the Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing (Count IX). For the reasons that follow, the Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Defendants' motion to dismiss.

LEGAL STANDARD

To survive a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), "a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.'" Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). A sufficiently pleaded complaint provides "more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation." Id. Indeed, a complaint that merely offers labels and conclusions, a formulaic recitation of the elements, or "'naked assertions' devoid of 'further factual enhancement,'" will not survive a motion to dismiss. Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557). At the motion-to-dismiss stage, this Court accepts all factual allegations in the Amended Complaint as true and draws all reasonable inferences in favor of Plaintiff, the nonmovant. Harris v. Mills, 572 F.3d 66, 71 (2d Cir. 2009). But the Court need not credit "threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements." Id. at 72 (quoting Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678) (alteration omitted). Rather, legal conclusions must be supported by factual allegations. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

DISCUSSION

Defendants move to dismiss the Complaint in its entirety on the basis that: (1) this Court has no personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. or the alleged John Does; (2) Plaintiff Donin has no standing; and (3) Plaintiffs otherwise fail to state a claim for which relief can be granted. For the reasons state below, this Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. and Plaintiff Donin has standing to proceed in this case. Furthermore, Plaintiffs' claims for breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing survive Defendants' motion to dismiss. Plaintiffs' remaining claims are DISMISSED.

I. Personal Jurisdiction

Defendants argue this Court does not have personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. and John Does #1–100. This Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc., but does not have personal jurisdiction over the John Does.

a. The Court has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc.

New York's long arm statute, N.Y. C.P.L.R. 302, permits jurisdiction over a non-domiciliary "who in person or through an agent: 1. transacts any business within the state or contracts anywhere to supply goods or services in the state; or 2. commits a tortious act within the state, except as to a cause of action for defamation of character arising from the act[.]" N.Y. C.P.L.R. 302(a)(1)-(2) (McKinney 2018). Courts have emphasized that, in the personal jurisdiction context, "[w]hile a plaintiff may plead facts alleged upon information and belief where the belief is based on factual information that makes the inference of culpability plausible, such allegations must be accompanied by a statement of the facts upon which the belief is founded." Vista Food Exch., Inc. v. Champion Foodservice, L.L.C., 14-CV-804, 2014 WL 3857053, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 5, 2014) (Sweet, J.) (internal quotations omitted). Pleadings based on "information and belief" are acceptable as long as they are allegations, not conclusions. Geo Grp., Inc. v. Cmty. First Servs., Inc., 11-CV-1711, 2012 WL 1077846, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2012) (Amon, J.) ("Second Circuit has expressly held that information and belief pleading is permissible for facts 'peculiarly within the possession and control' of the defendant.") (citing Arista Records, LLC v. Doe 3, 604 F.3d 110, 121 (2d Cir. 2010))).

This Court has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. pursuant to New York's long-arm statute. Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged JE "transacts any business within the state or contracts anywhere to supply goods or services in the state" and that the instant case arises from that transaction. Pl's Opp. to Def. Mem. ("Pl. Opp.") at 4, ECF No. ECF. Plaintiffs allege that JE itself "states that it sells [energy] in New York," see Compl. ¶ 78, "receives payment from New York utilities for it," see id. ¶ 77, "issues news releases about New York," id. ¶ 65, "sign[ed] up [New York customers] through its advertisements, sales staff, independent sales contractors and website," id. ¶¶ 65, 67, 76, its employees "drafted the customer contract at issue," id. ¶ 66, and its executives presented an overview of Group's strategies at a conference in New York, id. ¶ 75. See Amorphous v. Morais, 17-CV-631, 2018 WL 1665233, at *5, 7 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2018) (Buchwald, J.) (finding "defendants availed themselves of the privilege of doing business in the New York" when defendants filled orders to New York customers, participated in New York trade shows, and sent representatives to New York and that "not only N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 302(a)(1), but also due process's requirement of sufficient minimum contacts"). These facts directly contrast with Mr. Teixeira's declaration, see ECF No. 30-4, that JE "does not engage in any business in New York," id. ¶ 9.

Here, Plaintiffs allege specifically "that the subsidiary engaged in purposeful activities in this State, that those activities were for the benefit of and with the knowledge and consent of the defendant, and that the defendant exercised some control over the subsidiary in the matter that is the subject of the lawsuit." Jensen v Cablevision Sys. Corp., 17-CV-00100, 2017 WL 4325829, at *7 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 27, 2017) (Spatt, J.). Drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of Plaintiffs, the Court is satisfied that Plaintiff has alleged facts showing personal jurisdiction over JE is proper.

Furthermore, this Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over JE satisfies Constitutional Due Process. Defendants claim the exercise of personal jurisdiction over JE fails to comport with due process "in light of the Supreme Court's recent holding in Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. v. Superior Court of California, San Francisco County, 137 S. Ct. 1773 (2017). Defs.' Mem. at 7–8. However, unlike Bristol-Myers, where nonresident plaintiffs suffered harm out of state and tried to join their claims with those of in-state plaintiffs, here, there is a direct "connection between the forum and the specific claims at issue." Id. at 1781. Defendant JE allegedly solicited and defrauded customers in New York and supplied their energy services to New York residents in New York. This constitutes sufficient contacts for purposes of due process. Licci ex rel. Licci v. Lebanese Can. Bank, SAL, 673 F.3d 50, 62 (2d Cir. 2012) (holding a single in-state act performed by a non-domiciliary is sufficient for long-arm jurisdiction under CPLR §302(a)); Bradley v. Staubach, 03-CV-4160, 2004 WL 830066, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 13, 2004) (Scheindlin, J.) (holding "[c]ontacts sufficient to establish jurisdiction under C.P.L.R. § 302(a)(1) are sufficient to meet the minimum contacts requirements of the Due Process clause").

b. The Court does not have jurisdiction over John Does 1–100.

However, Plaintiffs have not sufficiently alleged facts to show this Court has jurisdiction over John Does 1 to 100. Plaintiffs describe John Does 1 to 100 as "shell companies and affiliates" through which Just Energy Inc. does business in and outside of New York, as well as "Just Energy management and employees who perpetrated the unlawful acts." Compl. ¶ 69. This vague and conclusory statement, without additional factual support, is insufficient to establish prima facie evidence of jurisdiction. See, e.g., Yao Wu v. BDK DSD, 14-CV-5402, 2015 WL 5664256, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 31, 2015) (Gold, Mag.) (dismissing complaint sua sponte for lack of personal jurisdiction over John Doe defendants where plaintiffs had averred no factual allegations to support a finding of personal jurisdiction), report and recommendation adopted, 14-CV-5402, 2015 WL 5664534 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 22, 2015) (Amon, J.). Accordingly, the Court hereby DISMISSES all claims against John Does 1–100 for lack of personal jurisdiction.

II. Plaintiff Donin has standing.

To demonstrate standing, the named plaintiff must have (1) suffered a direct personal injury, (2) fairly traceable to the defendant's allegedly unlawful conduct, (3) that is likely to be redressed by the requested relief. See Crist v. Commn. on Presidential Debates, 262 F.3d 193, 195 (2d Cir, 2001); see also Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992). Furthermore, "[t]here must be a direct, personal relationship between the party seeking relief, and the parties to the action for which that relief is sought." Howard v. Koch, 575 F. Supp. 1299, 1301 (E.D.N.Y. 1982) (Costantino, J.) (dismissing allegations of misconduct toward plaintiff's girlfriend for lack of standing); see also Galtieri v. Kelly, 441 F. Supp. 2d 447, 456 (E.D.N.Y.2006) (Bianco, J.) (holding the wife of a policeman lacked standing to challenge the police department's decision to comply with court order to garnish the policeman's benefits).

Defendants argue Plaintiff Fira Donin has no standing in this case because Defendants sent the emails in question to her husband Stanislav Donin, the accountholder with Just Energy, and because Plaintiff Donin is not a party to the contract at issue. Def. Mem. at 9. This Court disagrees. Plaintiff Donin was the recipient of the "welcome emails," which were sent to her by the Just Energy customer service representative who pitched to her in person. See Complaint ¶¶ 28, 39. The addressee of the emails is "fsdonin@juno.com." Pl. Mem. at 8. Furthermore, although Plaintiff Donin is not a signatory to the contract, she is a third-party beneficiary of the contract and can thus assert a claim of breach. See Logan-Baldwin v. L.S.M. Gen. Contractors, Inc., 94 A.D.3d 1466, 1468 (2012) ("Where, as here, performance is rendered directly to the third party, it is presumed that the contract was for his or her benefit."); see also Mirkin v. Viridian Energy, Inc., 15-CV-1057, 2016 WL 3661106, at *2 n.2 (D. Conn. July 5, 2016) (denying motion to dismiss breach of contract claim based on ESCO's alleged overcharges even though plaintiff "Mr. Mirkin is not a party to the agreement with Viridian"). Accordingly, Fira Donin has standing to assert her contractual claims against Defendants.

III. Fraud-Based Claims

Counts V and VI of Plaintiff's Complaint allege common law fraud and fraud by concealment. To state a claim for fraud in New York, a plaintiff must allege "(1) a misrepresentation or omission of material fact; (2) which the defendant knew to be false; (3) which the defendant made with the intention of inducing reliance; (4) upon which the plaintiff reasonably relied; and (5) which caused injury to the plaintiff." Schwartzco Enterprises LLC v. TMH Mgmt., LLC, 60 F. Supp. 3d 331, 344 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (Spatt, J.) (citing Wynn v. AC Rochester, 273 F.3d 153, 156 (2d Cir. 2001)). To survive a motion to dismiss, a plaintiff must: "(1) specify the statements that the plaintiff contends were fraudulent, (2) identify the speaker, (3) state where and when the statements were made, and (4) explain why the statements were fraudulent." Id. Plaintiff must also "allege facts that give rise to a strong inference of fraudulent intent." Id. (citing cases). "A cause of action to recover damages for fraud does not lie when . . . the only fraud charged relates to the breach of a contract[.]" Individuals Sec., Ltd. v. Am. Int'l Grp., 34 A.D.3d 643, 644 (2d Dep't 2006) (holding there was "no evidence that the defendants violated any duty extraneous to the bond thereby giving rise to an actionable tort").

Plaintiffs' fraud claims fail because they have not "allege[d] a breach of duty which is collateral or extraneous to the contract between the parties." Krantz v. Chateau Stores of Canada

Ltd., 256 A.D.2d 186, 187 (1st Dep't 1998). The relationship between Plaintiffs and Defendants exists solely from their commercial contract. See Compl. Additionally, Plaintiffs have not sufficiently alleged a duty to disclose, as is also required for fraudulent concealment. TVT Records v. Is. Def Jam Music Group, 412 F.3d 82, 91 (2d Cir. 2005). Again, Plaintiffs plead no special relationship between the parties, outside of the contract that would produce a duty to disclose. See Compl. Thus, Plaintiffs' claims for fraud and fraudulent concealment are hereby DISMISSED.

IV. Plaintiff's GBL claims are untimely.

The New York General Business Law ("GBL") has a three-year limitations period for statutory causes of action. See N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214 (McKinney 2018); Gaidon v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 750 N.E.2d 1078, 1083 (2001) (applying "the three-year period of limitations for statutory causes of action under CPLR 214 (2)" to GBL § 349 claims). An action under the GBL "accrues 'when all of the factual circumstances necessary to establish a right of action have occurred, so that the plaintiff would be entitled to relief.'" Globe Surgical Supply v. Allstate Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 3d 1227(A), 2011 WL 1884729, at *5 (Sup. Ct. Nassau Cnty. Apr. 18, 2011) (citation omitted). If an action is commenced outside the statute of limitations, "it is the plaintiff's burden to 'demonstrate that any delay was caused by fraud, misrepresentation or deception and that his reliance on the asserted misrepresentations was justifiable.'" Davidson v. Perls, 42 Misc. 3d 1205(A), 2013 WL 6797665, at *7–8 (Sup. Ct. N.Y. Cnty. Dec. 23, 2013) (collecting cases); see also Marshall v. Hyundai Motor Am., 51 F. Supp. 3d 451, 463 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) (Karas, J.) ("[T]he party seeking to invoke the doctrine bears the burden of demonstrating that it was diligent in commencing the action within a reasonable time after the facts giving rise to the estoppel have ceased to be operational." (internal quotations omitted)).

Plaintiffs' claims accrued in 2012 at the latest, when they first received their energy bills showing the rates they were charged by Defendants. This date predates the filing of the Complaint by over three years. See Heslin v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 287 A.D.2d 113, 115–16 (3d Dep't 2001) (holding that the statute of limitations for a GBL § 349 action is "three years and accrues when the owner of a 'vanishing premium' life insurance policy s first called upon to pay an additional premium"). Furthermore, an "[a]ccrual of a § 349 claim 'is not dependent upon any date when discovery of the alleged deceptive practice is said to occur.'" And so, Plaintiff's claims cannot be tolled. Statler v. Dell, Inc., 841 F. Supp. 2d 642, 648 (E.D.N.Y. 2012) (Wexler, J.). Plaintiffs' claims began accruing in 2012, either when they purportedly enrolled with Just Energy NY or when they first received their energy bills showing the rates they were charged by Just Energy NY. See Compl. ¶ 4. Under either accrual event, Plaintiffs would have had to file their Complaint long before October 2017 to state a timely claim under the controlling statute of limitations. Pike v. New York Life Ins. Co., 72 A.D.3d 1043, 1048 (2d Dep't 2010) ("Although the plaintiffs allege that they were induced to purchase unsuitable policies, and that they were unaware that they would have to pay 'substantial' premiums, they do not point to any specific wrong that occurred each time they paid a premium, other than having to pay it. Thus, any wrong accrued at the time of purchase of the policies, not at the time of payment of each premium."). Accordingly, the Court hereby DISMISSES Plaintiff's GBL claims as untimely.

V. Plaintiffs' claims for unfair and deceptive practices outside of New York are dismissed.

To assert claims on behalf of out-of-state, nonparty class members with claims subject to different state laws, the named plaintiffs' claims must not be time barred. Langan v. Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc., 897 F.3d 88, 93 (2d Cir. 2018). Because the named

Plaintiffs' claims are time barred under the GBL, they cannot assert the out-of-state claims on behalf of the out-of-state class members. Furthermore, courts in this district have held that plaintiffs lack standing to "bring claims on behalf of a class under the laws of the states where the named plaintiffs have never lived or resided." In re HSBC Bank, USA, N.A., Debit Card Overdraft Fee Litig., 1 F. Supp. 3d at 50 (holding that the plaintiffs lacked standing to "bring claims under state laws to which Plaintiff have not been subjected" and noting that, even if the plaintiff amended to add representatives from each state, "it would be difficult for the Court to adjudicate claims" under the various state laws); see also Ellinghaus v. Educ. Testing Serv., 15-CV-3442, 2016 WL 8711439, at *9 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 30, 2016) (Feuerstein, J.) (dismissing non-New York consumer protection claims on a motion to dismiss); Simington v. Lease Fin. Grp., LLC, 10-cv-6052, 2012 WL 651130, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 28, 2012) (Forrest, J.) ("Where plaintiffs themselves do not state a claim under their respective state's consumer statutes, . . . they do not have standing to bring claims under other state statutes—even where they are named plaintiffs in a purported class action."). Here, the two named Plaintiffs reside not only in the same state, but in the same borough of the city of New York, and—consistent with the holdings of numerous courts in the Second Circuit—are not entitled to bring state law claims asserting violations of consumer protection statutes outside New York. Compl. ¶¶ 36, 41. As such, these claims are DISMISSED.

VI. Plaintiffs have sufficiently stated a breach of contract claim.

To state a claim for breach of contract, a plaintiff must show "(1) the existence of a contract between [plaintiff and defendant]; (2) performance of the plaintiff's obligations under the contract; (3) breach of the contract by that defendant; and (4) damages to the plaintiff caused by that defendant's breach." Diesel Props S.r.l. v. Greystone Bus. Credit II LLC, 631 F.3d 42, 52

(2d Cir. 2011). Plaintiffs claim Defendants breached the Agreements "by (a) charging rates higher than the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers (b) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants 'will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle,' and (c) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable rates 'determined by business and market conditions.'" Compl. ¶ 35.

Defendants argue the Agreement expressly states that the rates charged are "variable," meaning they did not contract to charge Plaintiffs particular rates, and thus they did not breach the contract. However, Defendants ignore Plaintiff's allegations which specify that Defendants "made contractual promises to i) charge a specified energy rate (in Ms. Donin's case, 8¢ per kWh and 63¢ per therm), Compl. ¶ 4, ii) not to increase their rates "more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," id. ¶ 5, and iii) base their variable rates on "business and market conditions," id. ¶ 6, and that the Defendants breached these three promises.

First, Plaintiffs have put forth facts showing that Defendant charged them over a specific energy rate. Notwithstanding the contractual promise, Plaintiffs allege Just Energy consistently charged Plaintiff Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. See Compl. ¶ 4. Plaintiffs allege they have provided billing data during a four-year period showing there was only one month when Just Energy charged Ms. Donin less than the 8¢ per kWh contractual rate. Id. Similarly, Plaintiffs maintain the same allegations regarding her gas account. Id. Plaintiff Donin alleges that during the seventeen months of billing, Just Energy's rate was higher than 63¢ per therm. Id.

Second, Plaintiffs have put forth facts showing Defendants increased their rates more than 35% from previous billing cycles. Plaintiffs maintain that in August 2013 Defendants raised Plaintiff Donin's electricity price by more than 80% over the prior month's rate. Id. ¶ 5.

Similarly, in May 2016, Plaintiffs allege Just Energy increased Ms. Donin's May 2016 gas rate by more than 36% compared to the rate she paid in April 2016. Id.

Finally, Plaintiffs have put forward facts to substantiate their claim that Defendant's failed to base their variable rates on "business and market conditions." The Complaint sets forth a month-by-month comparison of what Con Ed would have charged during each of the months for which Plaintiffs' billing data is presently available, showing both the difference and the percent difference between a rate based on "business and market conditions" and the rate Defendants charged. Compl. ¶¶ 142–44. Based on these tables, Plaintiffs show "that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than Con Ed's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices." Id. ¶ 147. The Complaint also clearly shows that "Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined," further substantiating its claim that Defendants' rates are untethered to "business and market conditions." Id. ¶¶ 153–56. This is sufficient to state a breach of contract claim for an ESCO's failure to charge contracted-for market-based rates, and thus a claim for breach of contract.

VII. Plaintiffs sufficiently allege a claim for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing.

A "claim for breach of an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing does not provide a cause of action separate from a breach of contract claim" when based on the same facts. Atlantis Info. Tech., GmbH v. CA, Inc., 485 F. Supp. 2d 224, 230 (E.D.N.Y. 2007) (Spatt, J.); Esposito v. Ocean Harbor Cas. Ins. Co., 13-CV-7073, 2013 WL 6835194, at *2 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2013) (Feuerstein, J.). In New York, "all contracts contain an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, under which neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract." Claridge

v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, 15-CV-1261, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015) (Castel, J.). "Where the contract contemplates the exercise of discretion, this pledge includes a promise not to act arbitrarily or irrationally in exercising that discretion." Dalton v Educ. Testing Serv., 663 N.E.2d 289, 291 (N.Y. 1995). Whether a defendant exercised bad faith is an issue of fact for a jury to decide. See First Niagara Bank N.A. v Mortg. Builder Software, Inc., 13-CV-592, 2016 WL 2962817, at *7 (W.D.N.Y. May 23, 2016) (Skretny, J.).

The Court finds some factual allegations overlap in Plaintiff's claims. However, because Just Energy contests the viability of the contract claim, the Court allows Plaintiffs to alternatively maintain the good faith and fair dealing claim, as is routinely allowed in federal court. See, e.g., Claridge, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6 (allowing both claims to proceed and noting that "[g]iven the ambiguous language of the Agreement, the plaintiffs plausibly allege that [defendant ESCO] could have exercised its discretion in a manner contrary to customers' expectations"); Hamlen v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., 16-CV-3526, 2017 WL 892399, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 6, 2017) (Briccetti, J.); Edwards v. N. Am. Power and Gas, LLC, 120 F. Supp 3d. 132, 147 (D. Conn. 2015) ("[I]n pleading that [defendant's] prices were arbitrarily high and unreasonable, [plaintiff] . . .sufficiently alleged a claim of breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing."). Accordingly, Plaintiffs' "claim for breach of an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing survives Defendants' motion to dismiss.

VIII. Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim is dismissed.

Unjust enrichment "may not be plead in the alternative alongside a claim that the defendant breached an enforceable contract." King's Choice Neckwear, Inc. v. Pitney Bowes, Inc., 09-CIV-3980, 2009 WL 5033960, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 23, 2009) (Cote, J.), aff'd, 396 Fed. App'x 736 (2d Cir. 2010) (summary order); see also Ainbinder v. Money Ctr. Fin. Grp., Inc., 10-

CV-5270, 2013 WL 1335997, at *8 (E.D.N.Y. Feb. 28, 2013) (Tomlinson, Mag.) (collecting cases), report and recommendation adopted, 10-CV-5270, 2013 WL 1335893 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2013) (Feuerstein, J.). Unlike Plaintiffs' claim for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, here all facts of Plaintiff's breach of contract claim overlap with their breach of unjust enrichment claims. There is no dispute as to the existence of a contract, and thus, a claim for unjust enrichment cannot survive. Accordingly, Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim is DISMISSED.

CONCLUSION

In sum, the Defendants' motion to dismiss is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part. The Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Defendant Just Energy, Plaintiff Donin has standing, and Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged their breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing claims. All other claims are hereby DISMISSED. The Clerk of Court is respectfully directed to close the motion pending at ECF No. 27 and to remove John Does 1–100 from the caption.

SO ORDERED.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Brooklyn, New York

Exhibit 4

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

TREVOR JORDET, Plaintiff, v. JUST ENERGY SOLUTIONS, INC., Defendant.	Civil Action No. JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Trevor Jordet, by his attorneys, as and for his class action complaint, alleges, with personal knowledge as to his own actions, and upon information and belief as to those of others, as follows:

NATURE OF THIS CASE

1. This action seeks to redress the deceptive and bad faith pricing practices of Just Energy Solutions, Inc. ("Just Energy" or "Defendant") that has caused thousands of Pennsylvania consumers to pay considerably more for their natural gas than they should otherwise have paid.

2. Just Energy has exploited the deregulation of the retail natural gas market in Pennsylvania by luring consumers into switching natural gas suppliers using a bait-and-switch scheme designed to deceive reasonable consumers. Just Energy lures its customers into switching to its natural gas supply service by offering teaser rates that are fixed for a limited period of time and initially lower than the local utilities' rates for natural gas. Once the initial rate expires, Just Energy switches its customers over to its market variable rate, which is invariably higher than the initial teaser rate. Just Energy's market variable rate is likewise substantially higher than the competing local utilities' and independent energy companies' ("ESCOs") rates, and is disconnected from true market-based rates.

3. As a result, Pennsylvania consumers are being fleeced millions of dollars in exorbitant charges for natural gas.

4. This suit is brought pursuant to the Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("UTPCPL"), and Pennsylvania common law of on behalf of a class of Pennsylvania consumers who were charged a variable rate for natural gas by Just Energy from March 2012 to the present (the "Class" or "Class Members"). It seeks, inter alia, injunctive relief, actual damages and refunds, treble damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees, and the costs of this suit.

PARTIES

5. Plaintiff Trevor Jordet is a citizen of Pennsylvania residing in Norristown, Pennsylvania. Mr. Jordet was a customer of Just Energy from approximately 2012 through approximately February 2018, and as a result of Just Energy's deceptive conduct, he incurred excessive charges for natural gas.[1]

6. Defendant Just Energy was incorporated in California, and its principal place of business or corporate headquarters is in Houston, Texas.

[1] Mr. Jordet initially contracted with Commerce Energy for his natural gas services. According to a Just Energy press release, on April 1, 2017, Commerce Energy rebranded as Just Energy Solutions Inc. Press Release, JUST ENERGY GROUP INC., Commerce Energy Sheds Name to Begin Operating Under the Just Energy Brand (Apr. 3, 2017), http://www.marketwired.com/press-release/commerce-energy-sheds-name-to-begin-operating-under-the-just-energy-brand-nyse-je-2207232.htm. "The change represents a transition in name only, and does not affect the status of existing customer contracts, business licenses, or any other legal documentation." Id.

7. Upon information and belief, Just Energy provides natural gas and natural gas services to thousands of customers in Pennsylvania, and in other states including but not limited to Illinois, Michigan, and Virginia.

JURISDICTION

8. The Court has specific personal jurisdiction over Defendant Just Energy because Plaintiff's claims arise out of and relate to Defendant's conduct in Pennsylvania.

9. Subject matter jurisdiction in this civil action is authorized pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2)(A), as the amount in controversy is in excess of $5 million and Plaintiff and many class members are citizens of Pennsylvania, whereas Defendant is a citizen of California and Texas.

10. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(2).

OPERATIVE FACTS

The History Of Pennsylvania's Energy Industry

11. In 1999, Pennsylvania's state legislature made the decision to deregulate the market for retail natural gas and natural gas supply by passing the Natural Gas Choice and Competition Act, a major break with past policy. Before deregulation, retail residential consumers had to purchase both the supply and the delivery of natural gas from the local utility. The public policy motivation for allowing consumers a choice of natural gas suppliers is to enable retail customers to take advantage of competition between suppliers in the open market, as compared to the monopolistic and heavily regulated utility. The premise behind this policy is that competition would result in ESCOs being more aggressive than the monopoly utility in reducing wholesale purchasing costs and thereby lower prices and costs for retail customers.

12. ESCOs such as Just Energy have various options to buy natural gas at wholesale for resale to retail customers, including: owning natural gas production facilities; purchasing natural gas from wholesale marketers and brokers at the price available at or near the time it is used by the retail consumer; and by purchasing natural gas in advance of the time it is used by consumers, either by purchasing physical gas to be used in the future or by purchasing futures contracts for the delivery of natural gas in the future at a predetermined price. The purpose of deregulation is to allow ESCOs to use these and other innovative purchasing strategies to reduce natural gas costs, and pass those savings on to consumers.

13. Consumers who do not choose to switch to an ESCO for their energy supply continue to receive their supply from their local utility. However, if a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer will have his or her energy "supplied" by the ESCO, but still "delivered" by their existing utility. The customer's existing utility continues to bill the customer for both the energy supply and delivery costs. The only difference to the customer is which company sets the price for the customer's energy supply.

14. As part of the deregulation plan, ESCOs (like Just Energy) do not have to file or seek approval for the natural gas rates they charge with the state public services commissions or the method by which they set their rates.

15. Just Energy exploits the deregulation and the lack of regulatory oversight in the energy market by luring customers with enticing teaser rates and false promises that it will offer market-based variable rates when, in fact, Just Energy's rates are substantially higher than its own fixed rates, competing ESCOs rates, and the local utilities' rates, and are untethered from changes in wholesale rates.

Mr. Jordet's Experience

16. Just Energy solicited Mr. Jordet in or around 2012, representing that it would charge a rate lower than the local utility, PECO. Expecting to save money on his natural gas bills, Mr. Jordet expressed interest in Just Energy's offer.

17. Just Energy then provided Mr. Jordet its standard and uniform residential natural gas disclosure statement and terms of service (the "Agreement") that would govern their relationship. Just Energy also provided Mr. Jordet with a rescissionary period during which he could rescind the Agreement prior to its commencement should he not agree to its terms. During that rescissionary period, the Agreement served as a solicitation in which Just Energy identified the basis upon which the promised market-based variable rate would be determined.

18. According to the Agreement, customers are initially charged a fixed introductory rate (the "Introductory Rate") for a set number of months. Once the Introductory Rate expires, Just Energy automatically converts customers to its monthly variable rate.

19. The Agreement also represents that the variable rate, which is set by Just Energy, would be set "according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage[.]"

20. Any reasonable consumer, including Mr. Jordet, would understand based on Just Energy's representations concerning business and market conditions that its variable rate would primarily reflect the two main components of business and market conditions facing ESCOs like Just Energy, namely the wholesale cost of purchasing the natural gas it sells to its customers, and the business and market prices charged by Just Energy's competitors (i.e., the local utility and other ESCOs).

21. Mr. Jordet switched from PECO to Just Energy for his natural gas services in or around 2012, and cancelled his Agreement with Just Energy in February 2018. The following table identifies the billing periods for the past twenty-two months, the variable rate Just Energy charged Mr. Jordet, the corresponding rate PECO would have charged (which, as discussed below, is a reasonable representation of a market-based rate), and the differences between Just Energy's and PECO's contemporaneous rates:

Billing Period	Just Energy Rate Per Ccf[2]	PECO Rate Per Ccf	Difference	Percent Difference
4/15/16 – 5/16/16	$0.5895	$0.3422	$0.2453	71.3%

[2] Quantities of natural gas are occasionally measured in terms of volume. A Ccf is a volumetric measure of the amount of gas contained in a space equal to one hundred cubic feet.

22. Additionally, the following table likewise identifies the billing periods for the past twenty-two months, Just Energy's variable rate, and the U.S. Energy Information Administration's ("EIA") official cost of wholesale natural gas delivered to Pennsylvania ("Citygate rate")[3]:

1/17/18 – 2/15/18	$0.84	$0.3991

23. That Just Energy's variable rate is not in fact a competitive market rate based on the wholesale cost of natural gas is demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than PECO's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices.

24. Indeed, from April 2016 through February 2018 (his most recent bill), Just Energy's rate was higher than PECO's rate every single month. In fact, of the twenty-two months listed above, Just Energy's variable rate was more than double PECO's rate for ten months. In fact, on average, Just Energy's rate was 93% higher than PECO's rate.

25. PECO's rates serve as an ideal indicator of market conditions because they are based on the wholesale natural gas and the associated market costs (e.g., procurement costs, transportation, distribution, and storage -- the same costs ESCOs such as Just Energy incur). PECO and other Pennsylvania utilities can only adjust its rates quarterly based on changes in its wholesale supply costs and simply pass actual costs on to their customers -- without any markups or profit.[4] Because Pennsylvania utility rates do not include any profits, they serve as pure reflections of average market costs of wholesale natural gas, associated costs, and distribution over time.

26. While PECO and Just Energy may not purchase natural gas and associated costs in precisely the same manner, over time the wholesale costs they incur should be commensurate. In fact, Just Energy has a tactical advantage over the utility as it can purchase natural gas from a highly competitive natural gas market for future use, and therefore its cost for purchasing natural gas should at the very least reflect (if not undercut) market prices, albeit over a longer term. Therefore, while PECO's rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should be commensurate. But they are instead wildly disparate.

27. For example, when PECO's rate declined from $0.3501 to $0.2916 per Ccf (a decline of 17%) from August to September 2016, Just Energy increased its already exorbitant prices from $0.7183 to $0.744 per Ccf (an increase of 4%). Likewise, when PECO's rate declined from $0.4465 to $0.3858 per Ccf (decreasing by 14%) between August to September 2017, Just Energy's rate rose from $0.7233 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing 16%). Even when PECO's rate remained constant at $0.3501 per Ccf between June and July 2016, Just Energy's rate increased from $0.6725 to $0.7183 per Ccf (an increase of 7%).

28. The disparities are also evident over time. For instance, while PECO's rate generally declined between June 2017 and February 2018 from $0.4465 to $0.3991 per Ccf (declining 11%), Just Energy's rates increased from $0.616 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing by 36%).

29. Just Energy's stark rate disparities with those of the local utility, wherein Just Energy's rates were higher 100% of time from May 2016 through February 2018, considered together with the fact that Just Energy's rates do not reflect market fluctuations, demonstrate that Just Energy does not charge a rate based on business and market conditions as it states in its Agreement, but rather gouges its customers by charging outrageously high rates.

30. The disconnect between Just Energy's variable rate and changes in wholesale costs is also demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined. The Citygate rate identified by the EIA is the actual wholesale price of natural gas in Pennsylvania. Between August 2017 and February 2018, the Citygate rate drastically declined from $0.730 to $0.3991 per Ccf (decreasing 45%), PECO's variable rate steadily increased from $0.7233 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing 16%).

31. The cost of wholesale natural gas is the primary component of the non-overhead costs Just Energy incurs. Indeed, Just Energy concedes and represents as much, listing "the wholesale cost of natural gas supply" as the first factor in its list of business and market pricing components.

32. Just Energy's identification of "business" conditions among the factors it considers likewise does not justify its outrageously high rates. A reasonable consumer might understand that an ESCO will attempt to make a reasonable margin on the commodity it sells to consumers. However, such a consumer would also expect that such profits would be consistent with profit margins obtained by other suppliers of natural gas in the market, and also that Just Energy's profiteering at the expense of its customers would not be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices but is instead outrageously higher. That other ESCOs' rates are lower, even though they purchase natural gas from the wholesale market, demonstrates that Just Energy sets its profit margins in bad faith. Similarly, PECO's rate reflects a rate that Just Energy could charge (because Just Energy could purchase natural gas in the same way and at the same cost as PECO) plus a reasonable margin. No reasonable consumer would consider a margin that is on average 93% to be fair or commercially reasonable.

33. Any potentially conceivable additional business and market costs that are not explicitly disclosed in the Agreement (such as taxes, fees, and assessments) are relatively insignificant in terms of the overall costs Just Energy incurs to provide retail natural gas, and do not fluctuate over time. Therefore, these other cost factors cannot explain the drastic increases in Just Energy's variable rate or the reason its rates are disconnected from changes in wholesale costs.

34. Thus, Just Energy's statements with respect to the natural gas rates it will charge are materially misleading because consumers do not receive a price based on the specified factors like wholesale costs and competitor pricing. Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher (often more than double) those of competitors and untethered from the specified market factors. Just Energy intentionally fails to disclose this material fact to its customers because no reasonable consumer -- including Mr. Jordet -- who knows the truth about Just Energy's exorbitant rates would choose Just Energy as a natural gas supplier.

35. Just Energy's statements and omissions regarding its natural gas rates are materially misleading because the only consideration for any reasonable consumer when choosing an energy supplier is price.

36. In fact, all that Just Energy offers customers is natural gas delivered by local utilities, a commodity that has the exact same qualities as natural gas supplied by other ESCOs or local utilities. Other than potential price savings, there is nothing to differentiate Just Energy from other ESCOs or local utilities. Accordingly, the potential for price savings is the only reason any reasonable consumer would enter into a contract for natural gas supply with Just Energy.

37. Just Energy knows full well that it charges a rate that is unconscionably high, and the misrepresentations it makes with regard to the rate being market-based were made for the sole purpose of inducing consumers to sign up for Just Energy's natural gas supply so that it can reap outrageous profits to the direct detriment of its consumers without regard to the consequences high utility bills cause such consumers. As such, Just Energy's actions were actuated by actual malice or accompanied by wanton and willful disregard for consumers' well-being.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

38. Plaintiff brings this action on his own behalf and additionally, pursuant to Rules 23(b)(2) and 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, on behalf of a class of all Just

Energy customers charged a variable rate for residential natural gas services by Just Energy from April 2012 to the present (the "Class" or "Class Members").

39. Plaintiff also brings this action on behalf of a sub-class of Just Energy's Pennsylvania customers charged a variable rate for residential natural gas services by Just Energy from April 2012 to the present (the "Pennsylvania Sub-Class").

40. Excluded from the Class and Pennsylvania Sub-Class (collectively, the "Classes") are Defendant; any parent, subsidiary, or affiliate of Defendant; any entity in which Defendant has or had a controlling interest, or which Defendant otherwise controls or controlled; and any officer, director, legal representative, predecessor, successor, or assignee of Defendant.

41. This action is brought as a class action for the following reasons:

a. The Classes consist of thousands of persons and is therefore so numerous that joinder of all members, whether otherwise required or permitted, is impracticable;

b. There are questions of law or fact common to the Classes that predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, including:

i. whether Defendant violated 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201 et seq.;

ii. whether Defendant breached its contract with its consumers by charging variable rates not based on the factors specified in the customer agreements;

iii. whether Defendant breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by exercising its unilateral price-setting discretion in bad faith, i.e., to price gouge;

iv. whether Plaintiff and the Class have sustained damages and, if so, the proper measure thereof; and

v. whether Defendant should be enjoined from continuing to charge variable rates not based on market conditions;

c. The claims asserted by Plaintiff are typical of the claims of Class Members;

d. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Classes, and Plaintiff has retained attorneys experienced in class and complex litigation, including class litigation involving consumer protection and ESCOs;

e. Prosecuting separate actions by individual Class Members would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual Class Members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendant;

f. Defendant has acted on grounds that apply generally to the Classes, namely representing that its variable rates are based on market conditions, i.e., competitive and reflective of the wholesale market, when Defendant's rates are in fact substantially higher, such that final injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant from continuing its deceptive practices is appropriate with respect to the Classes as a whole;

g. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, for at least the following reasons:

i. Absent a class action, as a practical matter Class Members will be unable to obtain redress, Defendant's violations of its legal obligations will continue without remedy, additional consumers and purchasers will be harmed, and Defendant will continue to retain its ill-gotten gains;

ii. It would be a substantial hardship for most individual Class Members if they were forced to prosecute individual actions;

iii. When the liability of Defendant has been adjudicated, the Court will be able to determine the claims of all Class Members;

iv. A class action will permit an orderly and expeditious administration of class claims, foster economies of time, effort, and expense and ensure uniformity of decisions;

v. The lawsuit presents no difficulties that would impede its management by the Court as a class action; and

vi. Defendant has acted on grounds generally applicable to Class Members, making class-wide monetary and injunctive relief appropriate.

42. Defendant's violations Pennsylvania's UTPCPL and common law apply to all Class Members, and Plaintiff is entitled to have Defendant enjoined from engaging in illegal and deceptive conduct in the future.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

Violation of Pennsylvania's Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law (On Behalf of the Pennsylvania Sub-Class)

43. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

44. Defendant has engaged in, and continues to engage in, fraudulent and deceptive conduct in violation of 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-3.

45. Defendant's acts are willful, fraudulent, deceptive, unfair, unconscionable, and contrary to the public policy of Pennsylvania, which aims to protect consumers.

46. Defendant's misrepresentations and false, deceptive, and misleading statements and omissions with respect to the variable rates it charges for natural gas, as described above, constitute deceptive practices in connection with the marketing, advertising, promotion, and sale of natural gas in violation of 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-3.

47. Defendant's fraudulent and deceptive conduct was designed to and did result in misunderstandings on the part of Mr. Jordet and other reasonable consumers.

48. Defendant's false, deceptive, and misleading statements and omissions would have been material to any potential consumer's decision to purchase natural gas from Just Energy.

49. Defendant knew at the time it promised prospective customers that they will be billed a variable rate based on wholesale costs of natural gas and other business and market conditions that its promise was false because at the time of contract formation Just Energy knew that its variable rate was untethered from business and market conditions.

50. Defendant's intentional concealments were designed to deceive current and prospective variable rate customers into believing that rates will be commensurate with market conditions and the factors specified in the Agreement. By concealing its actual pricing strategy (presumably maximizing profits), Defendant benefits from reliance and deprive consumers from informed purchasing decisions and savings.

51. Defendant also baits and switches potential customers by enticing them with deceptively low Introductory Rates, only to shift them on to Just Energy's exorbitant variable rate plan shortly thereafter.

52. Defendant's practices are unconscionable and outside the norm of reasonable business practices.

53. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's unlawful deceptive acts and practices, Plaintiff and Class Members entered into agreements to purchase natural gas from Just Energy and suffered and continue to suffer an ascertainable loss of monies based on the difference in the rate they were charged versus the rate they would have been charged had Defendant charged a rate based on business and market conditions as specified in the Agreement or had they not switched to Defendant from their previous supplier. By reason of the foregoing and pursuant to 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-9.2(a), Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and the Class for trebled actual damages, attorneys' fees, and the costs of this suit.

54. Plaintiff and Class Members further seek equitable relief against Defendant. Pursuant to 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-9.2(a), this Court has the power to award such relief, including but not limited to, an order declaring Defendant's practices as alleged herein to be unlawful, an Order enjoining Defendant from undertaking any further unlawful conduct, and an order directing Defendant to refund to Plaintiff and the Class all amounts wrongfully assessed, collected, or withheld.

55. Defendant knows full well that it charges an unconscionably high rate, and the misrepresentations it makes with regard to the rate being market based were made for the purpose of inducing consumers to sign up for Defendant's natural gas supply so that it can reap outrageous profits to the direct detriment of Pennsylvania consumers without regard to the consequences high utility bills cause such consumers. As such, Defendant's actions are unconscionable and actuated by bad faith, lack of fair dealing, actual malice, or accompanied by wanton and willful disregard for consumers' well-being. Defendant is therefore additionally liable for punitive damages, in an amount to be determined at trial.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
Breach of Contract and the Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing
(On Behalf of the Class)

56. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

57. Plaintiff and the Class entered into valid contracts with Defendant for the provision of natural gas.

58. Pursuant to the Agreement, Defendant agreed to charge a variable rate for natural gas based business and market conditions, such as the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution, and storage.

59. Pursuant to the Agreement, Plaintiff and the Class paid the variable rates charged by Defendant for natural gas.

60. However, Defendant failed to perform its obligations under the Agreement. Indeed, Defendant charged a variable rate for natural gas that was untethered from the pricing components set forth in the parties' contract.

61. No reasonable consumer, including Mr. Jordet, would interpret the Agreement as granting Defendant with unfettered discretion to price gouge its customers.

62. Plaintiff and the Class were injured as a result because they were billed, and they paid, a charge for natural gas that was higher than it would have been had Defendant based its rate on the agreed upon factors.

63. By reason of the foregoing, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and Class Members for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions, the amount of such damages to be determined at trial.

64. Additionally, every contract in Pennsylvania contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in the performance and enforcement of the contract. The implied covenant is an independent duty and may be breached even if there is no breach of a contract's express terms.

65. Under the contract, Defendant had unilateral discretion to set the variable rate for natural gas based on market conditions and other factors, such as the amount of profit Defendant hoped to earn from the sale of natural gas in a customer's utility area.

66. Plaintiff reasonably expected that the variable rates for natural gas would, notwithstanding Defendant's profit goals, reflect the market and wholesale prices for natural gas and that Defendant would refrain from price gouging. Without these reasonable expectations, Plaintiff and other Class Members would not have agreed to buy natural gas from Defendant.

67. Defendant breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by arbitrarily and unreasonably exercising its unilateral rate-setting discretion to price gouge and frustrate Plaintiff and other Class Members' reasonable expectations that the variable rate for natural gas would be commensurate with market conditions.

68. As a result of Defendant's breach, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and Class Members for actual damages in an amount to be determined at trial.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
Unjust Enrichment
(On Behalf of the Class)
(In the Alternative to Count II)

69. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

70. By engaging in the conduct described above, Defendant has unjustly enriched itself and received a benefit beyond what was contemplated in the contract, at the expense of Plaintiff and the Class.

71. It would be unjust and inequitable for Defendant to retain the payments Plaintiff and the Class made for excessive natural gas charges.

72. By reason of the foregoing, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and the other members of the Class for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions, the amount of which shall be determined at trial.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court should enter judgment against Defendant as follows:

1. Certifying this action as a class action, with a class and a sub-class as defined above;

2. On Plaintiff's First Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Pennsylvania Sub-Class Members have suffered, trebled, and granting appropriate equitable relief;

3. On Plaintiff's Second Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Class Members have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions;

4. On Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Class Members have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions;

5. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class punitive damages;

6. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class interest, costs, and attorneys' fees; and

7. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.

DEMAND FOR TRIAL BY JURY

Pursuant to Rule 38 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Plaintiff hereby demands a trial by jury.

Attorneys for Plaintiff and the Class

Exhibit 5

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

TREVOR JORDET,

Plaintiff,

v.

DECISION AND ORDER

18-CV-953S

JUST ENERGY SOLUTIONS, INC.,

Defendant.

I. Introduction

This case alleges that Defendant imposed improper pricing for natural gas upon Plaintiff and the proposed class of Defendant's customers (Docket No. 1, Compl.). Before this Court is Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19)[1] the Complaint.

For the reasons stated herein, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss is granted in part, denied in part.

II. Background

This is a diversity jurisdiction class action under Pennsylvania common law and statute challenging terms of Defendant's utility supply contract (see Docket No. 1, Compl.). Plaintiff commenced the action in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, but it was later transferred to this District (Docket No. 23).

[1] In support of its motion to dismiss, Defendant submits its attorney's Declaration with exhibits (an example of Defendant's contract and Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission's Natural Gas Suppliers List) and Memorandum of Law, Docket No. 20. In opposition, Plaintiff submits his Memorandum of Law, Docket No. 26. Defendant filed a timely Reply Memorandum, Docket No. 32. Plaintiff moved to file a Sur-Reply, Docket No. 35, which this Court granted, Docket No. 38. He then filed the Sur-Reply, Docket No. 39.

Plaintiff then filed supplemental authorities, Docket Nos. 41 (Gonzales v. Agway Energy Servs., LLC, No. 18-235-MAD-ATB, 2018 WL 5118509 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018)), 42 (Mirkin v. XOOM Energy, LLC, 931 F.3d 173 (2d Cir. 2019)), presenting cases that denied motions to dismiss.

Plaintiff is a Pennsylvanian who was a customer of Defendant (incorporated in California with its principal place of business in Texas) from 2012 through February 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 6, 5).

Pennsylvania deregulated natural gas in 1999 (id., Compl. ¶ 11; see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 2). The purpose for deregulation was to allow energy supply companies ("ESCOs") to use their natural gas facilities, purchased gas from wholesalers and brokers or purchasing futures contracts at set prices, and other innovations to reduce natural gas costs and pass the savings to consumers (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 12).

Customers only select an ESCO for supplying natural gas while continuing to use the utility for delivery and billing (id. ¶ 13). The only difference from utility-furnished natural gas is the price of energy supply (id.). ESCOs' supply rates, including Defendant's, are not approved by the Pennsylvania public service commission (id. ¶ 14).

A. Pleadings

Plaintiff charges that Defendant entices customers with a low teaser rates and "false promises that it will offer market-based variable rates," then shifts the accounts to variable pricing that are "untethered from changes in wholesale rates" (id. ¶ 15).

In or around 2012, Defendant solicited Plaintiff to change natural gas supplier to Defendant, "representing that [Defendant] would charge a rate lower than the local utility, PECO" (id. ¶ 16). Defendant's agreement contained a rescissionary period when Plaintiff could change his mind and terminate without penalty (id. ¶ 17). Defendant charged Plaintiff a fixed, discounted introductory rate for a number of months then converted the account to a variable price (id. ¶ 18). The agreement represented that the variable price "would be set 'according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to,

Plaintiff alleges that a reasonable consumer (like him) would conclude that business and market conditions were the vendor's wholesale costs and the amounts charged by competitors (id. ¶ 20). Instead, Defendant set the variable price higher than Plaintiff's utility (PECO) and Defendant's ESCO competitors (id. ¶¶ 21, 22). Plaintiff contends that Defendant's prices were not competitive market rates; for example, these prices did not fluctuate with changes in natural gas prices (id. ¶¶ 23, 24). Instead, Plaintiff believes that PECO's rates were indicators of the market since it includes supply costs, transportation, distribution, and storage costs (id. ¶ 25). Plaintiff, however, fails to acknowledge that PECO's rates are approved by the public service commission. Even with the advantage of purchasing natural gas from a highly competitive market, Defendant's prices were higher and were not commensurate with PECO's rates (id. ¶¶ 26-30). Plaintiff characterizes these prices as "wildly disparate" (id. ¶ 26). He concedes, however, that Defendant had discretion to set variable prices (id. ¶ 65).

As for market conditions, Plaintiff states that a reasonable customer recognizes the vendor should recoup a reasonable margin on sales of gas (id. ¶ 32), which Plaintiff contends should be the same as other ESCOs and the utility. Because other ESCOs' rates are lower than Defendant's, Plaintiff claims that the profit margin sought by Defendant is in bad faith (id.). Defendant's undisclosed costs in taxes, fees, and assessments Plaintiff deems to be insignificant and not a justification for the disparity in Defendant's pricing from its competitors or PECO (id. ¶ 33). Plaintiff, however, does not state the profit or profit margin of these ESCOs or of PECO.

Plaintiff alleges three causes of action. The First Cause of Action alleges violation of Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practice and Consumer Protection Law ("UTPCPL") (id. ¶¶ 44-55), with this claim specifically addressed to a subclass of Pennsylvania residents (id.). The Second Cause of Action alleges breach of contract (including breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, not distinct causes of action under Pennsylvania law) (id. ¶¶ 57-68). The Third Cause of Action alleges unjust enrichment, as alternative to the Second Cause of Action (id. ¶¶ 70-72).

Plaintiff alleges a class of Defendant's customers who also were charged variable rates for residential natural gas services from April 2012 to the present (id. ¶ 38; see also id. ¶ 39 (subclass of Pennsylvania customers so charged)). The Second and Third Causes of Action apply to the full class, while the First Cause of Action applies to the broader class and also the subclass of Pennsylvania customers.

B. Procedural History

Plaintiff filed this action in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on April 6, 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl.).

With consent, Defendant moved to transfer venue to this District (Docket No. 17), see 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). There, Defendant argued that the interest of justice supported transfer, in part because of a similar case that then was pending in this Court (Docket No. 18, Def. Memo. at 3, 4-7), see Nieves v. Just Energy New York, No. 17CV561. The district court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania granted the transfer (Docket No. 23; see Docket No. 24 (transmitted docket)).

On the same day Defendant moved to transfer, Defendant moved to dismiss (Docket No. 19). The parties stipulated to set Plaintiff's response to the Motion to Dismiss to twenty-one days from the adopting Order (Docket No. 22), or by September 4, 2018. Following transfer to this District and upon the parties' stipulation to extend Defendant's time to reply (Docket No. 28), this Court set the deadline for Defendant's reply for October 5, 2018 (Docket No. 29). After filing a timely Reply (Docket No. 32), Sur-Reply (Docket No. 39), and supplemental authorities from Plaintiff (Docket Nos. 41, 42), the motion to dismiss was deemed submitted without oral argument.

In its Motion to Dismiss, Defendant provides an example of an unexecuted contract (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1). The definitional section there defined "Variable Price" as "the monthly rate that you will be charged per Ccf after expiration of the 12 month Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions." (Id.) In Section 5.1, Natural Gas Charges, the contract provides that

> "the Variable Price during the first billing cycle in which the Variable Price is in effect will be equal to the Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each monthly billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage, and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

(Id.; see also Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19).

III. Discussion

A. Applicable Standards

1. Motion to Dismiss

Defendant has moved to dismiss the Complaint on the grounds that it states a claim for which relief cannot be granted (Docket No. 19). Under Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court cannot dismiss a Complaint unless it appears "beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 45-46, 78 S.Ct. 99, 2 L.Ed.2d 80 (1957). As the Supreme Court held in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 554, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007), a Complaint must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) if it does not plead "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face," id. at 570 (rejecting longstanding precedent of Conley, supra, 355 U.S. at 45-46); Hicks v. Association of Am. Med. Colleges, No. 07-00123, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39163, at *4 (D.D.C. May 31, 2007). To survive a motion to dismiss, the factual allegations in the Complaint "must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level," Twombly, supra, 550 U.S. at 555; Hicks, supra, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39163, at *5. As reaffirmed by the Court in Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009),

> "To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.' [Twombly, supra, 550 U.S. at 570 . . . . A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. Id., at 556 . . . . The plausibility standard is not akin to a 'probability requirement,' but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully. Ibid. Where a complaint pleads facts that are 'merely consistent with' a defendant's liability, it 'stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of "entitlement to relief."' Id., at 557 . . . (brackets omitted)."

A Rule 12(b)(6) motion is addressed to the face of the pleading. The pleading is deemed to include any document attached to it as an exhibit, Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(c), or any document incorporated in it by reference. Goldman v. Belden, 754 F.2d 1059 (2d Cir. 1985). This Court deems incorporated here the contract since it is integral to Plaintiff's claim even if Plaintiff did not incorporate the actual document by reference, Chambers v. Time Warner, Inc., 282 F.3d 147, 152-53 (2d Cir. 2002); 5B Charles A. Wright and Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1357, at 376, 377 (Civil 3d ed. 2004). Neither party, however, produced Plaintiff's actual contract with Defendant (or any potential class member's contract). The Complaint alleges key terms of that agreement (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19), while Defendant's moving papers contains a facsimile of its Natural Gas Customer Agreement for the Natural Gas Rate Flex Pro Program (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. ¶ 1, Ex. 1). Both sides cite to an identical provision about variable prices. And, absent objection from Plaintiff, this Court will consider the Natural Gas Customer Agreement and its definition of "Variable Price" and its terms for natural gas charges (id., Secs. 1, 5.1).

In considering such a motion, the Court must accept as true all of the well pleaded facts alleged in the Complaint. Bloor v. Carro, Spanbock, Londin, Rodman & Fass, 754 F.2d 57 (2d Cir. 1985). However, conclusory allegations that merely state the general legal conclusions necessary to prevail on the merits and are unsupported by factual averments will not be accepted as true. New York State Teamsters Council Health and Hosp. Fund v. Centrus Pharmacy Solutions, 235 F. Supp. 2d 123 (N.D.N.Y. 2002).

2. Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law

Pennsylvania courts construe the Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. §§ 201-3, et seq. (the "UTPCPL"), liberally to effectuate the goal of consumer protection, Bennett v. A.T. Masterpiece Homes at Broadsprings, LLC, 40 A.3d 145, 151 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2012), citing Commonwealth by Creamer v. Monumental Properties, Inc., 459 Pa. 450, 459, 329 A.2d 812, 816 (1974) (see Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

The UTPCPL creates a cause of action for any person who purchases services primarily for personal, family, or household purposes and thereby suffers ascertainable loss of money as a result of employment by any person of a method, act, or practice declared unlawful by the Act, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-9.2 (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19). Plaintiff has to allege a deceptive act, an ascertainable loss of money or property, that resulted from the use or employment of a method, act, or practice declared unlawful by the UTPCPL, and that plaintiff justifiably relied on the deceptive conduct, Abraham v. Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 321 F.R.D. 125, 154 n.11 (E.D. Pa. 2017) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17); Landau v. Viridian Energy PA LLC, 223 F. Supp.3d 401, 418 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

Unlawful methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices include false advertising, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(v) ("Representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits or quantities that they do not have or that a person has a sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection that he does not have"), (vii) ("Representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another"), (ix) ("Advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised") (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; see Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19-20). To state a claim for false advertising as the unlawful method, a plaintiff has to allege that defendant's representations were false, that the representations actually deceived or tended to deceive, and the representation likely made the difference in the purchasing decision, Price v. Foremost Indus. Ins., No. CV 17-00145, 2017 WL 6596726, at *9 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 22, 2017) (citing Seldon v. Home Loan Servs., Inc., 647 F. Supp.2d 451, 466 (E.D. Pa. 2009) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18). The Third Circuit explains "Material representations must be contrasted with statements of subjective analysis or extrapolations, such as opinions, motives and intentions, or general statements of optimism, which constitutes no more than puffery," EP Medsystems, Inc. v. EchoCath, Inc., 235 F.3d 865, 872 (3d Cir. 2000). Puffery, however, is not actionable as false advertising under Pennsylvania law, Castrol, Inc. v. Pennzoil Co., 987 F.2d 939 (3d Cir. 1993); Commonwealth v. Golden Gate Nat'l Senior Care LLC, 158 A.3d 203, 215 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2017), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 648 Pa. 604, 194 A.3d 1010 (2018) (reversing dismissal of UTPCPL claims). Whether a statement is puffery is a question of fact to be resolved by a fact finder, Commonwealth v. Golden Gate Nat'l Senior Care LLC, 642 Pa. 604, 626-27, 194 A.3d 1010, 1024 (2018).

Unlawful methods also include a generic category of fraudulent and deceptive conduct. To plead this catchall provision for fraudulent or deceptive conduct, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(xxi) ("Engaging in any other fraudulent or deceptive conduct which creates likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding"), plaintiff needs to allege a deceptive act, that is conduct likely to deceive a consumer acting reasonable under similar circumstances; justifiable reliance based on the misrepresentations or deceptive conduct; and ascertainable loss caused by justifiable reliance, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418 (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

3. Pennsylvania Contract Law and Unjust Enrichment

Briefly, under Pennsylvania law, a breach of contract has these elements: the existence of a contract, including its essential terms; breach of a duty imposed by the contract; and resultant damages, Gillis v. Respond Power, LLC, No. 14-3856, 2018 WL 3247636, at *4 (E.D. Pa. July 16, 2018) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8); Landau v. Viridian Energy PA LLC, 223 F.Supp.3d 401, 408 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 6) The only element at issue is allegation of breach of the agreement by Defendant.

An implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contained in all contracts under Pennsylvania law, and breach of that duty is subsumed in the breach of contract claim, Kantor v. Hiko Energy, LLC, 100 F. Supp. 3d 421, 430 (E.D. Pa. 2015) (quoting Burton v. Teleflex Inc., 707 F.3d 417, 432 (3d Cir. 2013)) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 16); see Hatchigian v. State Farm Ins. Co., No. 13-2880, 2014 WL 176585, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 16, 2014) (breach of implied covenant and breach of contract is a single cause of action under Pennsylvania law), aff'd, 574 F. App'x 103 (3d Cir. 2014) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8).

Under Pennsylvania law, unjust enrichment is inapplicable when the relationship is founded on a written agreement or express contract, Hershey Foods Corp. v. Ralph Chapek, Inc., 828 F.2d 989, 999 (3d Cir. 1987) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25 (citing Pennsylvania state decisions)). "[T]o sustain a claim of unjust enrichment, the claimant must show that the party against whom recovery is sought either wrongfully secured or passively received a benefit that would be unconscionable for that party to retain without compensating the provider," Hershey Foods, supra, 828 F.2d at 999;

Torchia on behalf of Torchia v. Torchia, 346 Pa. Super. 229, 499 A.2d 581 (1985). Unjust enrichment cannot be alleged while alleging a breach of contract unless the validity of the contract itself is actually disputed, Grudkowski v Foremost Ins. Co., 556 F. App'x 165, 170 n.8 (3d Cir. 2014) (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8).

B. Motion to Dismiss Contentions

Defendant argues that Plaintiff fails to allege plausible claims for breach of contract and his other contract claims (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8-16). Defendant invokes Pennsylvania's statute of limitations of four years to bar claims prior to April 6, 2014 (id. at 16-17), 42 Pa. Cons. St. Ann. § 5525(a). Defendant asserts Plaintiff also failed to plead violations of the UTPCPL, namely the asserted violations in advertising and the catchall provision for fraudulent and deceptive conduct (id. at 17-18, 18-21, 21-24). Defendant also contends that Pennsylvania's gist of the action doctrine prohibits a plaintiff from recasting a contract claim as a tort, as Plaintiff did here in alleging unfair trade practice violations (id. at 23-24; see Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 7, citing Pollock v. National Football League, 171 A.3d 773, 77 n.2 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2017)). Defendant concludes that Plaintiff cannot invoke unjust enrichment while an express contract exists (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25; see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8).

Plaintiff contends that he plausibly alleged his three claims (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5-25). The breach of contract here was the manner in which Defendant set variable pricing. Plaintiff responds that Defendant is "hang[ing] its hat on the implausible assertion that the phrase 'business and market conditions' could mean something other than wholesale costs, competitor pricing, or charges Just Energy incurs to supply natural gas (like transmission costs, which are minimal and steady)" (id. at 3). Plaintiff argues that Pennsylvania law requires Defendant, as an ESCO, to disclose to Plaintiff the conditions of variability in its variable pricing, 52 Pa. Code § 62.75(c)(2)(i) (id. at 7). That provision requires the disclosure of the "conditions of variability (state on what basis prices will vary) including the [ESCO's] specific prescribed variable pricing methodology," id. Plaintiff counters that the gist of the action doctrine was not applicable, allowing his UTPCPL claim as distinct from his contract claim (id. at 23, citing Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 408-19 (E.D. Pa. 2016)).

Plaintiff presents a table comparing Defendant's variable prices to the average Pennsylvania ESCO's billing rate from April 2016-February 2018, with Defendant's variable prices exceeding the competitor's average rates (from U.S. Energy Information Administration table) in a range between 7% (in March-April 2017) to 102% (in August-September 2017) (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 7).

Defendant replies that Plaintiff concedes that Defendant did not promise to set rates based upon any single factor and that "business and market conditions" included a variety of nonexclusive factors (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 1), that Plaintiff alleged facts only for one factor in a multiple factor process (id. at 2-3). Plaintiff fails to plead in particularity (id. at 3 & n.2). Defendant points out that the Complaint failed to allege competitor ESCO rates (id. at 1, 4-5). Defendant denies that the difference between its rates and PECO's rates creates claims, thus Plaintiff failed to allege a benchmark for market prices (id. at 1-2).

Next, Defendant argues that Plaintiff has not established a violation of the catchall provision for the UTPCPL (id. at 6-7). Defendant asserts that Plaintiff's UTPCPL claim violates the gist of the action doctrine (id.; see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 23-24).

Finally, Defendant distinguishes the motion to dismiss cases cited by Plaintiff (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8-10 & nn.9-13).

The Sur-Reply argues that U.S. Energy Information Administration data includes pricing data from Pennsylvania for its ESCOs' rates (Docket No. 39). This, however, does not address the contention that the Complaint does not allege ESCO data was collected in Pennsylvania, Docket No. 32, Def. Reply at 1. As a motion to dismiss it rests solely on the four corners of pleadings where additional materials not integral to Plaintiff's claims were not incorporated by reference, cf. 5B Federal Practice and Procedure, supra, § 1357, at 376.

Plaintiff supplemented with two other cases in which motions to dismiss were denied in what he claims were similar circumstances (Docket Nos. 41, 42). In Gonzalez v. Agway Energy Services, LLC, No. 18-235-MAD-ATB, 2018 WL 5118509 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018) (Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Gonzalez]), the plaintiff alleged that Agway Energy misled by representing its variable rates for electricity were based on the cost of acquisition of electricity, transmission and distribution charges, market-related factors, plus applicable taxes, fees, charges, or other assessments, and Agway Energy's costs, expenses, and margins, at *1 (Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. at 1-2). In Mirkin v. XOOM Energy, LLC, 931 F.3d 173 (2d Cir. 2019) (Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Mirkin]), the Second Circuit reversed the grant of a motion to dismiss. Plaintiffs alleged that XOOM set its variable rate based on XOOM's "actual and estimated supply costs which may include but not be limited to prior period adjustments, inventory and balancing costs," id. at 175 (Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. at 1). They alleged XOOM breached the contract by charging a variable rate that did not reflect the factors in the contract (id. at 2).

After discussing the contract provision at issue here, this Court will consider (out of order) the common law causes of action of breach of contract and unjust enrichment and conclude with Plaintiff's First Cause of Action under the UTPCPL.

C. Variable Price Provision

Each of the three causes of action required Defendant to breach the standard of business and market conditions for imposing variable pricing. The key clause is Section 5.1, Natural Gas Charges of the Terms and Conditions of the contract, specifically declaring that

> "the Variable Price during the first billing cycle in which the Variable Price is in effect will be equal to the Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each monthly billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage, and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

(Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1). The contract stated in the definition section that changes in "Variable Price" would "be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions" (id.).

This case, like Nieves v. Just Energy New York, No. 17CV561, 2020 WL 6803056 (W.D.N.Y. Nov. 19, 2020) (Skretny, J.), and its variable rate provision, turns on the meaning of the phrase "business and market conditions." In Nieves, this Court relied upon the Second Circuit's decision in Richards v. Direct Energy Services, 915 F.3d 88 (2d Cir. 2019), and its definition of the terms "business and market conditions," recognizing that these terms (absent restriction or definition) was broad enough to cover the supplier's discretion in setting variable rates or prices, Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056 at *5. This Court distinguished Jordet's contract from Nieves because it provided some definition of what Defendant considered business and market conditions, id. at *6, from the inclusion of natural gas costs as a factor in rate setting.

D. Breach of Contract and Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith (Second Cause of Action)

As a breach of implied covenant of good faith, Plaintiff concedes that Defendant had unilateral discretion in setting the variable rate (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 65). As one noted commentator found, "there can be no breach of the implied promise or covenant of good faith and fair dealing where the contract expressly permits the actions being challenged, and the defendant acts in accordance with the express terms of the contract," 23 Williston on Contracts § 63:22 (4th ed. 2018); see Richards v. Direct Energy Services, supra,, 915 F.3d at 99.

As a breach of contract, the terms refer to Defendant setting variable prices based upon business and market conditions, defined (in part) to include wholesale natural gas supply costs, transportation, distribution, and storage. Plaintiff reads this as the extent of what are business and market conditions. The cost of natural gas was a factor in business and market conditions (see id. ¶ 19; Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex 1, Sec. 5.1), but not the exclusive factor. While Defendant has some discretion in setting variable rates, the contract gives some direction in that action.

Pennsylvania law, however, requires a natural gas supplier charging a variable rate to disclose the conditions for variation, 52 Pa. Code § 62.75(c)(2)(i). "Conditions of variability (state on what basis prices will vary) including the [natural gas supplier's] specific prescribed variable pricing methodology," id. This provision is part of natural gas supply regulation that mandates "all natural gas providers enable customers to make informed choices regarding the purchase of all natural gas services offered by providing adequate and accurate customer information," provided in "an understandable format that enables customers to compare prices and services on a uniform basis," 52 Pa. Code § 62.71(a). Marketing materials advertising variable pricing has to "factor in all costs associated with the rate charged to the customer for supply service," 52 Pa. Code § 62.77(b)(2).

Plaintiff alleges a breach of contract where Defendant's only stated basis for variable pricing is its natural gas acquisition costs and does not specifically include the other, undisclosed factors Defendant used to set the variable prices.

As in Nieves, Jordet cites to cases in other courts that deny motions to dismiss on similar contract provisions (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5 & n.2, 8; Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Gonzales]; Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Mirkin]). Again, these cases have limited precedential value because each is fact specific, resting upon different contract terms and governing law, see Claridge v. North Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-1261, 2015 WL 5155934, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015) (denying dismissal); Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056, at *6 (see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8-10). Plaintiff cites (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5 n.2) cases analogous to the "business and market conditions" provision for Defendant's variable prices where the provisions in these cases specified wholesale costs as part of the calculation, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 406; Steketee v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-585 (D. Conn. Apr. 14, 2016) (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl., Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 2-3); Sanborn v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 14-1731 (D. Conn. Apr. 1, 2015) (id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3); Fritz v. North Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 14-634 (D. Conn. Jan. 29, 2015) (id., Ex. 4, Fritz Tr. at 2). In Landau, plaintiff Steven Landau alleged that associates from defendant represented that he would enjoy lower rates than offered by utility PECO and that he would never have to worry about defendant suddenly increasing rates, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 406. The variable rates may fluctuate based upon "wholesale market conditions applicable to the [defendant electric distribution company's] service territory," id. In Steketee, plaintiff amended the Complaint to allege that the variable rate was based on wholesale market conditions and added that a representative of defendant explained to plaintiff that defendant's variable rate would be based on wholesale market conditions (id., Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 2-3). In Fritz, defendant's variable market-based rate plan "may increase or decrease to reflect price changes in the wholesale power market" (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 4, Fritz Tr. at 2).

In Sanborn, the court noted two statements at issue (id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr.). The first statement contained in the contract's terms and conditions provision stated that price may fluctuate from month-to-month "based on wholesale market conditions applicable" to defendant's service area. The second statement is a Massachusetts required disclosure statement that variable rates comes from a variety of factors including the wholesale market. (Id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3-4.)

Although noting that these cases do not present the actual contract texts, Defendant's contract here is like those supply agreements in these cited cases (see id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3-4). In all these contracts the variable rates were set by a combination of operating costs, the costs of purchasing fuel, and a "catch-all of other factors" (id., Sanborn Tr. at 3). As Defendant characterized Sanborn and similar cases, the courts found that the agreements there did not contain specific factors on which the variable rates would be set (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 10 & n.13). The factors stated in each of these cases provided a basis for those plaintiffs to allege breaches when the defendants set rates at variance with those standards or consistent with objective supply costs. Plaintiff plausibly states a claim where "business and market conditions" has some standard that Defendant had to apply in setting its variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in its pricing. Plaintiff also plausibly alleges this breach as natural gas wholesale prices decreased while Defendant's pricing increased (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 8). Plaintiff also claims Defendant made representations of savings as compared with utility prices for natural gas (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16) as was alleged in other cases, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 406; Steketee, supra, (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 3). In general, Plaintiff plausibly alleges a breach of contract claim.

E. Statutes of Limitations

Under Pennsylvania law, an action upon a contract "must be commenced within four years," 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 5525(a)(1). For an action for breach of contract, this limitations period begins to run from the time of breach, Baird v. Marley Co., 537 F. Supp. 156, 157 (E.D. Pa. 1982) (citing cases). With the filing of the Complaint here in April 6, 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl.), breach of contract claims prior to April 6, 2014, are time barred. Plaintiff did not argue the timeliness of the April 2012 to April 6, 2014, breach of contract claims (either his or the purported class members).

Plaintiff alleged that he signed with Defendant as his natural gas supplier in 2012 (id. ¶ 21). Plaintiff cites PECO and Defendant's rates from April 2016 to February 2018 (id. ¶¶ 21-22). Plaintiff complains the rates charged by Defendant from that period were higher than PECO's prices (id. ¶¶ 21-22, 24). Plaintiff also alleges a class of similar consumers of Defendant from April 2012 to the present (id. ¶¶ 38-39).

Under Defendant's contract, Defendant charged Plaintiff a fixed introductory rate for a number of months (id. ¶ 18). According to the model gas supply contract Defendant produced in its motion (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1), that introductory rate lasted twelve months (id., Definition "Variable Price"). Thus, Plaintiff had claims from variable pricing (the alleged breach of contract) from 2013. Under § 5525, Plaintiff's claims prior to April 6, 2014, are time barred; similarly, the purported class's claims prior to that date also are barred. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) these untimely claims is granted.

Therefore, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss the Second Cause of Action for breach of contract is granted in part, denied in part. The motion is granted for untimely breach of contract claims but denied as to the timely claims.

An action under the UTPCPL has a six-year statute of limitations, 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. Ann. § 5527(b); Morse v. Fisher Asset Mgmt., LLC, 206 A.3d 521, 526 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2019). Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action (and class claims) thus is timely. This Court below address the substance of Plaintiff's statutory claim.

F. Unjust Enrichment (Third Cause of Action)

Under Pennsylvania law, a plaintiff cannot allege an unjust enrichment where there is an existing contract, Hersey Foods, supra, 828 F.3d at 999; Umbelina v. Adams, 34 A.3d 151, 162 n.4 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2011) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25 (citing cases); see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8 & n.8 (citing case)). Plaintiff counters that she is alleging this cause of action in the alternative under Federal

Rule 8(d)(2) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 25). Defendant replies that, under Third Circuit precedent, where an express contract governs, a plaintiff may not plead unjust enrichment, even in the alternative, unless 'the validity of the contract itself is actually disputed'" (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8, quoting Grudkowski v. Foremost Ins. Co., 556 F. App'x 165, 170 n.8 (3d Cir. 2014)). Plaintiff expressly alleged that he entered into a valid contract (id., citing Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 57).

Rule 8 allows for alternative pleading; the Second Circuit differs from the Third Circuit in this respect, cf. Kaufman v. Sirius XM Radio, Inc., 474 F. App'x 5, 9 (2d Cir. 2012); U.S. ex rel. Kester v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., No. 11 Civ. 8196 (CM), 2014 WL 4401275, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 4, 2014). Under the Erie doctrine, this Court applies Pennsylvania substantive law but federal (here Second Circuit) procedures. The question thus is whether Plaintiff alleges an unjust enrichment claim separate from his contract claim.

Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim, however, cannot be separated from the contract. Plaintiff alleges in the Third Cause of Action (after repeating and realleging prior allegations acknowledging an express contract, Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 69, 57)), that "by engaging in the conduct described above, Defendant has unjustly enriched itself and received a benefit beyond what was contemplated in the contract, at the expense of Plaintiff and the Class" (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 70, emphasis supplied). His unjust enrichment claim measures from what Defendant should have been entitled to under the contract. Since he has (and purported class members had) an express contract with Defendant, Plaintiff cannot also allege an unjust enrichment claim. Plaintiff has not alleged that Defendant had a legal duty independent of that contract in setting its variable rates.

Thus, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action is granted.

G. Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law (First Cause of Action)

Finally, this Court considers dismissal of the First Cause of Action under the Pennsylvania UTPCPL.

As for the element of alleging a deceptive act, Plaintiff alleges deception from the offer made during the initial rescission period, arguing that this offer was a solicitation in which Defendant represented that variable prices would be determined in accordance with business and market conditions (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21; Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19). He also asserts that the deception was the setting of variable prices untethered to wholesale prices or competitively to other ESCOs (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 21-22).

By alleging paying higher rates than were charged for natural gas by his former utility or other ESCOs, Plaintiff has alleged a loss of money (see Docket No. 1, ¶¶ 53, 50), either the difference he paid Defendant under the variable price from what Defendant ought to have charged had it applied business and market conditions or the difference from what he paid from his utility's rates (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 22-23). Plaintiff has not specified either the ESCOs' rates or what Defendant charged from 2013 (after the introductory rate expired) through March 2016 under variable pricing (cf. Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 21-22) to establish that defendant charged Plaintiff higher rates.

As for Plaintiff's justifiable reliance on Defendant's representation, he alleges deceptive conduct that, but for Defendant's representation about the variable pricing, he would not have contracted with Defendant (id. at 22; Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 47-53, 66).

As for use of or employment of an illegal method, act or practice, Plaintiff does not allege specific violations of the UTPCPL(see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17). Both sides now agree Plaintiff alleges wrongful methods of false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21) and fraudulent and deceitful conduct, falling under the Act's catchall provision, 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4) (xxi) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19-20, 21-22). He claims this deceptive activity refers to false advertising or solicitation and the catchall of prohibited fraudulent or deceptive conduct. Defendant refutes two theories of deception contending that there is no allegation of false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18-21) or fraudulent conduct to meet the catchall provision (id. at 21-23).

1. False Advertising

a. Oral Representation

Plaintiff states that Defendant made a representation that, if he joined Defendant, his natural gas rates would be less than PECO's rates (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). After agreeing, Plaintiff argues that he was given a three-day rescission period before the contract went into effect, thus deeming this to be a solicitation regulated by the UTPCPL (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21). Plaintiff believed that the offer of the proposed agreement represented that Defendant's variable prices would be competitive with other ESCOs, but the actual rates were not (id. at 21).

Defendant argues that Plaintiff fails to allege violation for false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17). Defendant claims that the Complaint does not allege a misrepresentation, deception or fraudulent conduct (id.) or make promises regarding the variable pricing (id. at 5-6). The Complaint, however, alleges that Defendant represented to Plaintiff that Defendant would charge lower rates than PECO, his natural gas utility (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). Defendant counters that this allegation is parol evidence that is barred pursuant to Pennsylvania law (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 6, 20, 22), see Scardino v. American Int'l Ins. Co., No. CIV.A.07-282, 2007 WL 3243753, at *7-8 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 2, 2007). Defendant denies any representation that under the agreement Defendant would beat utility prices or guarantee financial savings (id.; see Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl., Ex. 1, model contract, at 1, Customer Disclosure Statement).

To allege false advertising as the unlawful method under the Act, Plaintiff has to allege that Defendant's representations were false. Defendant raises threshold objections that the oral representation is barred by Pennsylvania's parol evidence rule and that the agreement is not an advertisement. Courts in Pennsylvania have granted motions to dismiss because of the parol evidence rule, Bernardine v. Weiner, 198 F. Supp. 3d 439, 441, 443-44 (E.D. Pa. 2016). Pennsylvania law bars parol evidence and fraud in the inducement claim based on parol evidence, id. Here, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant represented that its rates would be less than PECO, inducing Plaintiff to sign up. This is parol evidence and fails to state a claim. Even if this oral representation remains, Plaintiff has not alleged that variable pricing after the introductory price expired.

Furthermore, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania held that representations by individual employees or agents of a defendant are not advertisements under the UTPCPL and cannot constitute a violation of that act, Seldon, supra, 647 F. Supp. 2d at 466; see Thompson v. The Glenmede Trust Co., No. 04428, 2003 WL 1848011, at *1 (Pa. Ct. Com. Pl. Feb. 18, 2003). The court also noted that 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(ix) false advertising requires allegation of intent, Seldon, supra, 647 F. Supp.2d at 466; Karlsson v. FDIC, 942 F. Supp. 1022, 1023 (E.D. Pa. 1996), aff'd, 107 F.3d 862 (3d Cir. 1997). Plaintiff here, however, has not alleged that Defendant intentionally engaged in false advertising; the Complaint merely alleges that Defendant intentionally concealed its pricing strategy while representing that it would base variable prices on business and market conditions (cf. Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 50).

Finally, Plaintiff's alleged representation is threadbare, merely alleging that Defendant's unnamed representative solicited Plaintiff representing lower rate than PECO (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). This is similar to the allegations rejected by the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania in Corsale v. Sperian Energy Corp., 412 F. Supp. 3d 556, 563 (W.D. Pa. 2019). In Corsale, plaintiffs alleged that Sperian Energy Corp. advertised that it offered "competitive" rates; the Western District of Pennsylvania held this was threadbare and the vague claim of competitive rates was nonactionable puffery, id. Therefore, Defendant's motion to dismiss the First Cause of Action for claims under Complaint ¶ 16 is granted.

b. Cancellation Provision Making Contract an Advertisement

The second representation or solicitation alleged is the offered agreement during a recessionary period (see Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 17). Plaintiff argues that its terms was an advertisement until it came into effect when Plaintiff did not reject the agreement. According to the model Natural Gas Customer Agreement furnished by Defendant, the customer could cancel that agreement up to three business days after receipt of the agreement without penalty (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1, at 1). The agreement repeats in all capital letters "THE CUSTOMER MAY RESCIND THIS AGREEMENT AT ANY TIME PRIOR TO MIDNIGHT OF THE THIRD BUSINESS DAY AFTER RECEIPT OF THIS AGREEMENT WITHOUT PENALTY" (id. (emphasis in original)).

Plaintiff argues that there was thus no contract for that three-day period because of his ability to rescind without penalty, concluding that the document he received was a solicitation or advertisement until those three days passed (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 21). Plaintiff cites for example In re Estate of Rosser, 821 A.2d 615, 623 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2003), where whether a contract had consideration or mutuality of obligation was necessary to determine if a decedent's conveyance could be voided by the survivors. To the contrary, Plaintiff and Defendant had mutuality of obligations even during the three-day rescissionary period. Plaintiff had to act to cancel the contract within those three days to terminate the agreement without penalty while Defendant still had to supply natural gas. Plaintiff has not cited other cases where the UTPCPL applied to the recessionary period of a contract by deeming that to be a solicitation or advertisement. He also has not cited authorities that render an agreement like the one in this case illusory merely because a party can opt out after a brief initial period. Pennsylvania law recognizes binding contracts that contain cancellation provisions, e.g., Samuel Williston, Williston on Contracts § 7:13 (2020), recognizing valid agreement with provision that one party may cancel provided the method to do so is limited. Reservation, for example, of right to cancel upon written notice or after a definite period after giving notice, "there is consideration for the promisor's promise, despite the fact that the promisor may in fact be able to avoid its obligation," id.; see also Philadelphia Ball Club v. Lajoie, 202 Pa. 210, 51 A. 973 (1902). That an agreement contains this initial cancellation provision does not invalidate it as a contract and render it into a mere offer.

This Court has not found precedent under the UTPCPL that considered an agreement as an advertisement. This Court agrees with the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in Price, supra, 2018 WL 1993378, at *5 (see also Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 21), that "to the extent Plaintiffs rely on the sales agreement itself for their claim, that claim is duplicative of the breach of contract claim." The distinction Plaintiff argues from the lack of a recessionary period makes little difference; as discussed above, Plaintiff entered the contract with a recessionary period. A claim that this agreement is also advertising merely alleges a duplicative claim under common law and the UTPCPL.

Thus, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) so much of the Complaint alleging the contract was advertising in violation of the UTPCPL is granted.

2. UTPCPL's Catchall for Fraudulent and Deceptive Practices and Federal Rule 9 Pleading Requirements

Defendant argues that Plaintiff has not alleged fraud and deception under the UTPCPL with specificity as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 22-23). The parties dispute whether Plaintiff alleged fraud and thus under Rule 9(b) needed to plead fraud with particularity. Defendant argues that violation of the UTPCPL needs to be alleged with particularity (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18 n.4, citing, e.g., Dolan v. PHI Variable Ins. Co., No. 3:15-CV-01987, 2016 WL 6879622, at *5 (M.D. Pa. Nov. 22, 2016) (Rule 9(b) heightened specificity extends to all claims that sound in fraud, citations to District of New Jersey case omitted). The court in

Dolan held that Rule 9(b) applied to state fraud claims including alleged violations of the UTPCPL, id.

Plaintiff counters that under Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418, pleading under the UTPCPL need not be particularized (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20 n.8). The court in Landau considered the amendment to the catchall provision adding deceptive conduct and the court held that pleading deceptive conduct only required Rule 8(a) normal pleading and not the heightened fraud pleading of Rule 9(b), 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418.

An Erie doctrine issue arises whether Pennsylvania law (here, as construed by federal courts in that Commonwealth) applies or does this Court's (or the Second Circuit's) procedural caselaw applies on the particularity issue. Both sides here cite federal decisions from Pennsylvania. Under the Erie doctrine, while state law governs the substantive issues, procedural law in diversity cases is federal procedures, e.g., Loreley Financing (Jersey) No. 3 Ltd. v. Wells Fargo Sec., LLC, 797 F.3d 160, 182 n.14 (2d Cir. 2015); NCC Sunday Inserts, Inc. v. World Color Press, Inc., 692 F. Supp. 327, 330 (S.D.N.Y. 1988) (applying Rule 9(b) to Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act claim, "while state law governs substantive issues of state law raised in federal court, it is federal law which governs procedural issues of state law raised in federal court, and Rule 9(b) is a procedural rule"). Where this Court or the Second Circuit has ruled on a procedure, this Court is bound to apply it. Absent that precedent, this Court reviews the decisions of other districts and may adopt its rationale.

As of 2016, the Second Circuit has not held that Rule 9(b) applies to similar state unfair trade practices laws, see L.S. v. Webloyalty.com, Inc., 673 F. App'x 100, 105 (2d Cir. 2016) (summary Order), where the court noted that Connecticut law did not require a plaintiff to allege or prove fraud for violations of the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act (or "CUTPA"), see Willow Springs Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Seventh BRT Dev. Corp., 245 Conn. 1, 43, 717 A.2d 77, 100 (1998). Acknowledging there that a CUTPA violation may overlap with common law claims, the Second Circuit and Connecticut courts recognize that "to the extent that they diverge, dismissal of a plaintiff's CUTPA claim is not warranted unless the facts as alleged do not independently support a CUTPA claim," L.S., supra, 673 F. App'x at 105. The Second Circuit then stated "we are doubtful, even assuming Rule 9(b) applies to certain CUTPA claims, Rule 9(b)'s particularity requirement would apply to a CUTPA claim premised" on the facts alleged, id., concluding that those alleged facts nevertheless would satisfy Rule 9(b) pleading requirements, id.

Magistrate Judge Hugh Scott of this District once found that an allegation under the New York General Business Law was not pled, Navitas LLC v. Health Matters Am., Inc., No. 16CV699, 2018 WL 1317348, at *19-20 (W.D.N.Y. Mar. 14, 2018) (Report & Rec), but did not require that pleading with particularity under Rule 9(b). There, co-defendant Bio Essentials asserted crossclaims for fraud and presumably for violation of New York General Business Law § 349 against defendant Health Matters America but not expressing alleging the claim under that statute, id. at *19, 3. Health Matters then moved to dismiss some of the crossclaims, including those alleging fraud and unfair business practices, id. at *4, 14-15. In two crossclaims, Bio Essentials alleged Health Matters false statements damaged Bio Essentials either as unfair trade practices or as fraudulent statements, id. at *14-15. Given Bio Essentials' relatively vague pleading, Health Matters argued that the fraud and unfair trade practice crossclaims violated Rule 9(b), id. at *15-16. Bio Essentials argued that only its fraud crossclaim required pleading under Rule 9(b), id. at *17. Magistrate Judge Scott then applied Rule 9(b) to the fraud crossclaim while recommending dismissal of the unfair practices crossclaims for failure to allege the elements of General Business Law § 349 claims, id. at *17-19, quoting Oswego Laborers' Local 214 Pension Fund v. Marine Midland Bank, 85 N.Y.2d 20,24-25, 623 N.Y.S.2d 529, 532 (1995).

Both L.S. and Navitas skirt applying Rule 9(b) particularity for state unfair trade practices actions, recognizing that they are distinct from common law fraud claims that would require particular pleading. Deceptive acts under the UTPCPL's catchall provision has been held not to be fraud and could be plead under Rule 8(a), Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418. But the UTPCPL catchall refers to "engaging in fraudulent or deceptive conduct," 73 Penn. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(xxi), which includes fraud. Therefore, so much of Plaintiff's catchall claim that alleges fraudulent conduct requires particular allegation under Rule 9(b), see 5A Charles A. Wright, Arthur R. Miller & A. Benjamin Spencer, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1297, at 63-64 (Civil 2018).

Even if Rule 9(b) is not required for allegations under the UTPCPL, Twombly and Iqbal require pleading details to allege a plausible claim, see Price v. Foremost Indus., Inc., Civil Action No.17-00145, 2018 WL 1993378, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 26, 2018) (plaintiffs' alleging UTPCPL violations stated misrepresentations that were "devoid of the details that Twombly and Iqbal require").

The allegations here, however, do not meet the plausibility standard of Twombly and Iqbal without regard to Rule 9(b) particularization, id. It is not clear what the deceptive act is here. The agreement ultimately gave Defendant discretion to set its variable pricing with one stated factor but allowing discretion to set it based upon "business and market conditions". Plaintiff alleges his understanding of what "business and market conditions" is (or ought to have been) but he does not allege that Defendant represented that this understanding was what it meant.

Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) the First Cause of Action under the UTPCPL is granted.

H. How This Case Differs from Nieves v. Just Energy New York Corp.

Since Plaintiff's counsel in this case also represented Malta Nieves and the same defense counsel represent the Just Energy Defendants in both cases, a comparison of the result here and in Nieves is in order. Defendant moved to transfer this case to the Western District of New York because of the then-pending Nieves action was before this Court. Factually, the cases are distinguishable. First, the language of the variable terms differs between this case and Nieves. In Nieves, Just Energy New York ("Just Energy") set the variable electricity rate solely based on "business and market conditions" without that phrase being defined or giving specific examples of those conditions. This Court held that Just Energy had unfettered discretion in setting these rates without reference to wholesale electricity rates or competitors' charges, Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056, at *4. Malta Nieves did not allege representations by Just Energy that she would pay less than the electrical utility; Nieves merely claimed that Just Energy represented that she would save money, id., at *2.

Second, Nieves arose in New York and argued breach of contract and other claims under New York law. Pennsylvania law expressly required natural gas suppliers to specify the basis for variable pricing while New York law does not. Third, the energy supplied differed, with Nieves involving electricity. There was no express breakdown of the cost of electrical supply, transmission, or storage as was in Defendant's gas supply contract with Jordet in this case. Fourth, both cases involve different corporate Defendants that might be affiliates but each Defendant was incorporated and had principal place of business in different jurisdictions.

The crucial difference between Nieves and this case is the variable terms in the supply contracts. Defendant here listed some (but not all) elements toward establishing business and market conditions in variable pricing, whereas Just Energy in Nieves has more open concept of that phrase "business and market conditions."

IV. Conclusion

Plaintiff's understanding of what a reasonable customer might expect is not the terms of the contract he signed with Defendant. That agreement gave Defendant some discretion to set variable rates, but expressly included natural gas costs as factors for business or market conditions. As summarized in wholesale gas costs (as Plaintiff argues), this is an element of Defendant's pricing but not necessarily the entirety of the business and market conditions.

Deregulation of natural gas supply rates moved the marketplace from regulated monopoly (rates set by PECO, for example, as approved by the Pennsylvania regulators) to those set in the marketplace. Defendant, as an ESCO, did not have its rates set by a public agency or by its competitors (including utilities like PECO). But Pennsylvania law in establishing deregulation required natural gas suppliers to furnish information for the basis of their pricing to have informed consumers.

Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) is granted in part, denied in part. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss the First Cause of Action for violation of the Pennsylvania

Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law is granted for both the advertising and fraudulent and deceptive conduct violations. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (id.) the Second Cause of Action for breach of contract is denied. Its Motion to Dismiss (id.) the Third Cause of Action for unjust enrichment is granted. Defendant shall answer the surviving Second Cause of Action within fourteen (14) days after entry of this Decision and Order. This Court then will refer this case to a Magistrate Judge for conducting pretrial proceedings.

V. Orders

IT HEREBY IS ORDERED, that Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) is GRANTED in part, DENIED in part. Defendant shall answer the surviving Causes of Action within fourteen (14) days after entry of this Decision and Order. This Court will refer this case to a Magistrate Judge for pretrial proceedings.

SCHEDULE A

The Claimant advances a claim against the "Just Energy Entities" in the amount of US$3,662,444,442.00 based on a proposed and uncertified class action filed in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on April 6, 2018, titled Trevor Jordet v. Just Energy Solutions, Inc., Case No. 2:18-cv-01496-MMB (the "Jordet Action"). The Jordet Action was subsequently transferred to the US District Court in the Western District of New York (the "New York Court").

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the claim in its entirety.

Status of Litigation

The Jordet Action was brought solely against Just Energy Solutions, Inc. ("Just Energy Solutions") on behalf of a putative class of all "Just Energy customers charged a variable rate for residential natural gas services by Just Energy from April 2012 to the present". The Claimant alleged, among other things, that the defendant violated Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("PUTPCP"), breached contractual provisions and an implied covenant of good faith requiring Just Energy Solutions to consider "business and market conditions" when it charged rates that were more than the local utility rate for natural gas, and was unjustly enriched as a result of the alleged misconduct. The Jordet Action does not purport to deal with any electricity customers of Just Energy Solutions.

Following a motion to dismiss brought by the defendant, the New York Court dismissed the PUTPCP and unjust enrichment claims, such that only the alleged breach of contract claim remains.[2] Moreover, the New York Court held that claims for breach of contract prior to April 6, 2014, are time-barred. The survival of a claim on a motion to dismiss is not an assessment of its merits but only a determination that, accepting as true all of the allegations in the complaint as required on that motion, the plaintiff has alleged a right to relief that is not entirely speculative. Indeed, the Court noted in its decision that it "cannot dismiss a Complaint unless it appears 'beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief.'"[3] The lone remaining claim turns on whether Just Energy Solutions breached contractual commitments to use its discretion to set rates consistent with "business and market conditions" (defined to include a host of factors), and the Court found that whether Just Energy Solutions'

[2] As the New York Court noted in its decision on the motion to dismiss, a breach of the implied covenant of good faith is not a distinct cause of action from breach of contract under Pennsylvania law. Jordet v. Just Energy Solutions Inc., Decision and Order 18-CV-953S regarding Motion to Dismiss dated December 7, 2020 ("Motion to Dismiss Decision"), Dkt. 43, at 4.

[3] Motion to Dismiss Decision, at 6.

pricing adhered to that discretionary standard could not readily be resolved solely on the pleadings.[4]

Improper Expansion of Claim

Almost four years after the commencement of the litigation, the Claimant now purports to advance a claim against all "Just Energy Entities" on behalf of both gas and electricity customers, notwithstanding the fact that the Jordet Action is limited to natural gas customers of Just Energy Solutions. Even if the underlying litigation had any merit (it does not), the Claimant cannot use these CCAA Proceedings to improperly expand the scope of his April 2018 claim to now add entirely new customer groups and new defendants who were not included in the Jordet Action.

Claim Is Meritless

The claim is contingent, uncertified, speculative, and remote, especially given that the Claimant's claim has not even proceeded to discovery. Even if discovery had taken place, the Claimant would still have to overcome substantial hurdles to be entitled to any recovery, including:

- dispositive motion practice (i.e. motion for summary judgment) following completion of discovery, which would involve the disclosure of expert reports and supporting evidence from fact witnesses, depositions, potential preliminary motions, written briefs, and oral argument;

- a contested class certification process, which would include written briefing, presentation of supporting evidence from fact and expert witnesses, and oral argument;

- a trial on the issue of liability, including pretrial submissions and motion practice to resolve evidentiary issues, voir dire, direct testimony and cross-examination of fact and expert witnesses, and legal argument from counsel; and

- resolution of damages of the plaintiff or certified class(es), which may require bifurcation from the trial on liability (especially if the Claimant continues to allege damages on behalf of a national class, which the defendant argues is impermissible).

A loss by the Claimant at any one of these phases would either entirely eliminate, or severely restrict, the Claimant's potential damages (and those of any other members of any certified class).

The claim is devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including the fact that the applicable contract contains multiple provisions that put customers (including the Claimant) on clear notice of the variable rates that Just Energy Solutions would set and to which customers (including the Claimant) will be subject:

- "This Agreement does not guarantee financial savings. However, at the end of your Term, if the Volume Weighted Average Utility Price is less than the Volume Weighted

[4] Motion to Dismiss Decision, at 17-18.

Average Just Energy Price, we will credit you $100 for each commodity included in this Agreement."[5] (emphasis added)

- "By signing for the Natural Gas and/or Electricity Rate Flex Pro Program, I agree to an introductory fixed price, the Intro Price, for the first twelve billing cycles and thereafter be a Variable Price for the remainder of the Term. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by business and market conditions." [6] (emphasis in original)

- "Variable Price: The monthly rate that you will be charged per Ccf[7] after the expiration of the 12 month Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions."[8] (emphasis in original)

- "After the Intro Price period expires, you will be charged a Variable Price per Ccf. The Variable Price during the first billing cycle in which the Variable Price is in the [sic] effect will be equal to the Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each monthly billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage…."[9] (emphasis added)

The parties' agreement thus expressly provides that it does not guarantee the financial savings about which the Claimant now complains. In complaining that his local utility's rates ended up being lower for a portion of the Claimant's contract term, the Claimant simply ignores away the operative agreement. There was no obligation under the agreement for Just Energy Solutions' rates to match or track those charged by the local utility.

Critically, the Claimant's allegation that the defendant breached the parties' contract by failing to set rates "according to business and market conditions" is premised on the erroneous assumption that local public utilities are the main competitors of Just Energy Solutions, and as such the defendant overcharged when its rates were higher than that of the local utility.[10] In reality, local utility rates are not an appropriate barometer by which to measure the rates of energy service companies ("ESCOs") like Just Energy Solutions (let alone an appropriate proxy for the long list of business and market conditions Just Energy Solutions was permitted to consider in exercising its discretion to set its rates) for several reasons, including because:

7 Ccf is a unit of measurement of natural gas that is the volume of 100 cubic feet.

8 Paragraph 1 of "Natural Gas Disclosure Statement and Terms of Service" incorporated into the Claimant's agreement with the defendant.

10 The allegation that the defendant breached the covenant of good faith by failing to act reasonably in exercising its discretion to set rates is based on the same erroneous assumption.

- Local utilities and ESCOs do not offer the same products and services. For instance, ESCOs offer 100% green products, fixed-rate products, energy conservation bundled services and products, dedicated customer service, and affinity rebates or refunds that many consumers prefer. ESCO retail commodity prices are part of a bundle of product and service offerings ESCOs provide their customers, in which products and services interact with each other; comparing the prices charged for those products and services with local utility commodity prices results in erroneous, misleading and distorted conclusions.

- Local utility commodity prices do not reflect wholesale energy prices. Local utilities are permitted to defer charges (with the approval of the regulator) to smooth price volatility during periods with particularly high wholesale gas and electricity costs (e.g., 2014 polar vortex price spikes). Such utility regulated deferral activity renders the local utility rates a particularly inappropriate proxy for actual wholesale rate and the actual business and market conditions for the given period and makes an accurate comparison between default service prices and ESCO prices for a particular period impossible. ESCOs do not have the ability to shift the costs of energy service over time, nor can they take advantage of regulated rates that ensure full cost recovery to the provider.

- Local utilities and ESCOs do not have the same business model. Just Energy Solutions must compete with other ESCOs to sell energy commodities to consumers. In contrast, local utilities are "default" providers of energy commodities and provide delivery service (gas and electric distribution) regardless of whether the consumer purchases energy commodities from the utility or an ESCO. As a result, local utilities do not face the same costs, risks and market forces that ESCOs face.

- Local utility commodity prices do not include reasonable profit margins. Unlike ESCOs, local utility commodity prices are designed to be a pass-through of wholesale costs (sometimes from different periods of time) and not a profit-generating business activity. Moreover, utilities are incentivised to allocate all possible commodity and employee/technology costs to a customer's delivery bill, since that is where the utility has a monopoly and is permitted to receive a return on investment. As a result, no accurate comparison is possible between utility commodity prices and ESCO commodity prices.

- General energy market conditions affect ESCOs and local utilities differently. ESCOs incur costs well beyond the costs of energy procurement, which are reflected in their prices. In addition to the costs of the product or service bundled with the commodity cost, ESCO prices may also include consideration of competitors' prices, profit margins, and customer retention policies in addition to overhead costs and marketing efforts. ESCOs account for the costs and values associated with their enhanced products and services, including renewables, and need to structure their businesses to successfully offer fixed-rate guarantees to customers who purchase such products. ESCOs face the business conditions of a competitive market—not at all like the business conditions faced by a regulated utility.

The Claimant's expert has failed to even consider the variable rates charged by other ESCOs during the relevant period in calculating the alleged damages, despite the Claimant's acknowledgment in the Complaint that "any reasonable consumer" would believe that Just Energy Solutions' variable rates would reflect the market prices charged by other ESCOs.[11]

Not only is the Jordet Action devoid of merit, it is not amenable to Rule 23 certification pursuant to the relevant US law, including because:

- Claimant will need to show that the language in the various contracts falling within the class definition are sufficiently similar to present common issues of law, and that those issues predominate over individual issues that different class members face.

- Claimant will need to establish that the proposed representative plaintiff's claims are representative of the experience other customers may have had. The one-size-fits-all approach taken in the Claimant's damages model does not account for the different products and services offered by Just Energy Solutions to its customers and the different providers individual customers had prior to contracting to purchase energy services from Just Energy Solutions, and those differences may be considered at class certification.

- The differences between various contracts and products would be even more pronounced and problematic for purposes of a motion for class certification to the extent the Claimant continues to take the position that they will be seeking to include in the proposed class consumers who are not natural gas customers of Just Energy Solutions whose variable rate contracts fit within the Claimant's class definition. Although such an expansion is impermissible for the reasons described above, the proposed class's failure to satisfy the strict requirements of Rule 23 would be exponentially more pronounced where the proposed class includes customers who contracted with different entities, using different contracts, subject to different regulatory regimes, and for different product offerings.

- The Court will also need to find that the proposed representative plaintiff or other subsets of the proposed class are not subject to unique defenses that would impair the fair and efficient resolution of the action. State specific regulations could present unique claims and defenses to the extent the Claimant's alleged class extended to Just Energy customers outside of Pennsylvania.

Expert Report

The Claimant has submitted a report, that purports to be an expert report, in support of his proof of claim. The quantum of damages set out in the report is speculative and highly inflated, as it is, among other things, based on several flawed assumptions. For example:

- The report includes electricity customers in its calculation of damages, but the proposed class in the Jordet Action is limited to only natural gas customers of Just Energy Solutions.

- The report assumes the correct "comparable" to determine "business and market conditions" is that of the local utility, instead of considering the rates charged by other ESCOs. As noted above, this assumption is deeply flawed. This approach fails for a number of reasons, including by failing to account for any ESCO reasonable profit margin on commodity prices, as local utility commodity prices are not designed to generate any profit.

- The report incorrectly includes commercial customers, whose contracts were materially different from (and subject to different regulatory regimes than) those of residential customers. Moreover, very few of Just Energy Entities' commercial customers are contractual counterparties of the named defendant. Commercial customers currently account for approximately 50% of the Just Energy Entities' customers' electricity and gas usage.

- Calculation of damages for residential and commercial gas customers is derived from a calculation that includes the residential gas load served by all Just Energy Entities. However, only Just Energy Solutions is a named defendant in the Jordet Action, and any damages must be limited to customers who were contractual counterparties with that defendant.

- The report assumes that 50% of residential and commercial natural gas usage of the Just Energy Entities' customer base is attributable to customers that are parties to variable rate contracts that would be included in the proposed class. This assumption is incorrect.

    - Currently, only approximately 34.9% of the Just Energy Entities' non-commercial customers' natural gas usage is being charged out based on variable rates. Of that, only 2.1% of natural gas usage is attributable to customers who are parties to variable rate contracts with the Just Energy Entities – the rest being customers who are parties to fixed-rate contracts with Just Energy Entities in certain jurisdictions that rolled over to variable rates when they did not renew their fixed rate contracts.[12] This latter subset of customers would not be properly included in the proposed class.

- The damages calculation includes time-barred claims. As Judge Skretny held in his decision dated December 7, 2020, regarding the motion to dismiss, all breach of contract claims with respect to alleged overcharges prior to April 6, 2014, are time-barred.

- The expert report erroneously assumes the same rate of damages applies for the period between 2018 and 2020 as applied to the period before 2018. Given that the Just Energy Entities ceased to market variable-rate contracts to new customers by the end of 2017, the quantum of damages, if any, would have continued to decline materially following 2017 as no new variable rate customers were added to the customer pool.[13]

- The damages in the expert report are based on the calculated excess natural gas margin for residential customers, which was derived using two customers' billing data. The Claimant's expert himself acknowledges that the excess natural gas margin "is subject to potentially significant modification". This miniscule sample size means that the estimate of damages is effectively useless in accurately estimating any alleged damages.

[12] In certain jurisdictions, the Just Energy Entities are required by the relevant regulations to roll over fixed rate customers to variable rates where they do not affirmatively renew their fixed term contract.

[13] As noted above, customers who are parties to fixed rate contracts with the Just Energy Entities in certain jurisdictions that rolled over to variable rates when they did not renew their fixed rate contracts would not be properly included in the class.

- The report assumes, without any evidence, that the differences between the variable rates the Claimant was charged and the local utility rates in Pennsylvania are the same as that in other states.

The speculative nature of the Claimant's damages calculations is further exacerbated to the extent he continues to seek to include in the proposed class consumers who are not natural gas customers of Just Energy Solutions whose variable rate contracts fit within the Claimant's class definition. Although such an expansion is impermissible for the reasons described above, the assumptions underlying the Claimant's proffered damages analysis are even more speculative where different utility rates and regulatory regimes apply in different jurisdictions, with different product offerings and rate structures. These variables are not accounted for at all in the Claimant's rudimentary damages analysis.

Inflated Claim of Prejudgment Interest

For all the reasons outlined above, the inclusion of US$1,282,196,848 in prejudgment interest is also contingent, speculative, remote, and excessive. The prejudgment interest amount calculation is also fundamentally flawed, as it applies New York's prejudgment interest rate of 9% to damages allegedly incurred in California, Delaware, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas. Putting aside the fact that there is no basis for the underlying damages figure, the relevant prejudgment interest rates are significantly lower in most of these jurisdictions.

Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance

RE: Claim Reference Number: PC-11175-1

Schedule A

INTRODUCTION

Claimant Trevor Jordet ("Claimant") brought a U.S. class action to redress Just Energy Solutions, Inc.'s and the other Just Energy Entities' ("Just Energy") deceptive, bad faith, and unfair pricing practices that have caused millions of consumers and businesses across the U.S. to pay considerably more for their electricity and natural gas than they should have paid.

Mr. Jordet's Claim is joined by and parallel to the Claims of Fira Donin and Inna Golovan and the ten other U.S. consumers represented by Ms. Donin's and Ms. Golovan's counsel (Claim Reference Number: PC-11177-1). Ms. Donin and Ms. Golovan brought a separate and similar U.S. class action that also seeks to recover for the millions of U.S. consumers and businesses harmed by Just Energy's unlawful conduct.

Regarding class actions' status, two separate U.S. federal judges concluded that Mr. Jordet and Mses. Donin and Golovan alleged valid class claims against Just Energy. Both Just Energy Notices of Revision or Disallowance (the "Notice of Disallowance") concede this fact (as they must) and both acknowledge that two different federal judges ruled that the class actions have viable contract claims, have "alleged a right to relief that is not entirely speculative," and that there are serious liability issues that "could not readily be resolved solely on the pleadings."

These federal judges' conclusions are no surprise to Claimant, Just Energy, or their respective counsel. The class action claims arise from bedrock principals of contract law and are supported by a legion of U.S. case law, regulation, and statute. The claims also represent paradigmatic class action claims that are readily certifiable (and have been certified on five separate occasions), are pleaded in tandem with increasing regulatory scrutiny (including outright bans) of the exact pricing practices Just Energy employed throughout the U.S., and follow in the footsteps of at least six regulatory actions against Just Energy.

What is more, the class claims were supported with a preliminary yet detailed report by an expert in competitive wholesale and retail energy markets. This expert advises the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Army, and the U.S. Department of Energy when they act as purchasers of electricity and natural gas from competitive retail suppliers in the same markets where Just Energy operates. This expert, who also supports U.S. state governments and agencies in energy-related formal proceedings, used the same breach of contract theories upheld by the two separate federal judges and calculated that Just Energy overcharged its U.S. customers by US$2,380,337,594. Just as the federal judges agreed, the expert's damages were calculated from the difference between the prices Just Energy was contractually bound to charge U.S. customers as compared to the prices ultimately charged. Then, because Just Energy's unlawful pricing practices spanned more than a decade, Claimants' counsel applied the pre-judgment interest rules of the class actions' forum state (New York) and calculated US$1,282,106,848 in unpaid interest. On November 1, 2021, Claimants submitted a class action claim in this proceeding for US$3,662,444,442.

The claims at issue in the class actions are as straightforward as they are strong. Just Energy targets consumers and businesses hoping to save on energy supply costs. Just Energy lures customers with a teaser or fixed rate for a limited number of months that is initially lower than its competitors' rates. Once that initial rate expires, Just Energy charges what it represents to be a "variable rate," which under Just Energy's contract must be set according to "business and market conditions." As one federal judge has already observed, "'business and market conditions' has some standard that [Just Energy] had to apply in setting [their] variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in [their] pricing."

In reality, however, Just Energy exploits its pricing discretion and the dramatic information asymmetry with its customers to artificially inflate it variable rates without regard to its contractual obligations. As a result, Just Energy's variable rates are consistently substantially higher than those otherwise available in the natural gas and electricity supply markets, and its rates do not fluctuate based on any reasonable interpretation of "business market conditions," such as wholesale market energy prices or the rates other competitive market participants (including local utilities and Just Energy's own fixed rates) charge for energy supply.

At bottom, Just Energy faces grim prospects in the class actions: The decisions of two federal judges sustaining straightforward and meritorious claims, a preliminary yet detailed analysis by a qualified expert showing billions in damages, a multitude of case law and regulatory action condemning Just Energy's very practices, five highly similar class certification decisions, and a checkered past of at least at least six regulatory actions.

Considering its slim odds on the merits, Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance predictably takes a blunderbuss approach. In fact, it presents an outline of defenses that that either this Court or the persons assigned to adjudicate Claimant's claims can evaluate (and discard) with straightforward discovery and limited testimony—just as other factfinders have done in similar cases. The Notice of Disallowance presents no case law or a shred of actual evidence to support its odd contention that the sustained claims in two U.S. class actions are "meritless." It instead offers smokescreens and paper tigers that have been rejected by courts and regulators alike. Musings of counsel as to why Just Energy may not have breached its customer contract are offered in place of facts, yet such conjecture was already rebuffed by two U.S. federal judges.

Just Energy understands its imminent risk of staggering liability. All five courts that have addressed class certification in cases involving energy supply companies based on the same liability theory Claimant proffers here certified the classes. Nearly every defendant involved in a similar energy class has that has survived a motion to dismiss—as is doubly the case here—settles due to the ease of proving liability and class certification following discovery.[1] No factfinder will look kindly on Just Energy's variable rates that are substantially higher than utility rates or its own fixed rates, even though Just Energy's costs for fixed and variable rate customers are the same. Claimant's expert will handily dispose of Just Energy's incredible and counterintuitive claims, including that variable rates are riskier to service than fixed rates and therefore its exorbitant variable rate margins are justified. Just Energy's internal pricing data and analysis will show the real basis for Just Energy's variable rate margins and the factfinder will easily conclude that Just Energy breached its contracts with its U.S. customers. For these and the other reasons below, Claimant disputes the Notice of Disallowance.

BACKGROUND

I. Procedural History

Trevor Jordet filed a class action lawsuit Jordet v. Just Energy Sols., Inc. in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on April 6, 2018. On August 30, 2018, the action was later transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York.

Jordet's complaint pleads breach of contract and, alternatively, unjust enrichment individually and on behalf of all Just Energy U.S. customers charged a variable rate for natural gas supply by Just Energy between April 6, 2012 and the present.

On December 7, 2020, Judge William M. Skretny of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York denied Just Energy's motion to dismiss the breach of contract claims, ruling that "'business and market conditions' has some standard that [Just Energy] had to apply in setting its variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in [their] pricing." Jordet v. Just Energy Sols., Inc., 505 F. Supp. 3d 214, 226-27 (W.D.N.Y. 2020). Judge Skretny distinguished Jordet from unsuccessful cases against third party energy companies on the ground that Just Energy's customer contract "provided some definition of what [Just Energy] considered business and market conditions [] from the inclusion of natural gas costs as a factor in rate setting." Id. at 225. The Court further held that "Plaintiff also plausibly alleges this breach as natural gas wholesale prices decreased while Defendant's pricing increased." Id. at 227.

Regarding the statute of limitations, Judge Skretny ruled that Claimant could pursue a class action for the period April 6, 2014 through the present. Id. On August 31, 2021, Just Energy filed notice of these bankruptcy proceedings and the attendant stay. ECF No. 53.

II. Deregulation of State Gas and Electricity Retail Supply Markets

In the 1990s and early-2000s, numerous U.S. states deregulated retail natural gas and electricity supply markets. Retail energy supply deregulation's primary goal was increased competition with an eye to achieving greater consumer choice and lower energy supply rates. The most frequently cited reason for deregulation was lower prices. As a result, in deregulated states across the U.S. consumers and businesses can choose their energy supplier. The new energy suppliers, who compete against local utilities, are known as energy service companies, or "ESCOs."[2] Regardless of the supplier consumers select, the local utility continues to deliver the commodity to consumers' homes. In almost all states, the local utility also bills customers for both the energy supply and delivery costs in a single "consolidated" bill. The only difference to the customer is whether the utility or an ESCO sets the energy supply price.

[2] The acronyms for competitive energy supply companies vary from state to state. For example, in Indiana and Illinois, independent natural gas service companies are known as alternative retail natural gas

ARGUMENT

III. Just Energy Breached its Contracts with U.S. Customers

Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance wrongly argues that liability presents a "substantial hurdle" for the classes, namely because Just Energy's customer contract "expressly provides that it does not guarantee the financial savings" and because "local utility rates are not an appropriate barometer by which to measure the rates of energy service companies[.]" As described below, these arguments miss the mark and the classes will prevail on the merits. See, e.g., Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-8706, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 (D.N.J. Nov. 15, 2016) ("[B]ecause [the local utility] is a supplier in the energy market; its prices thus serve as at least partial indications of the market rate and are relevant despite the lack of a savings guarantee clause.").

A. Default Utility Prices Are a Valid Benchmark

In what is best characterized as a "see what sticks" argument, Just Energy briefly claims (without support) that utility rates cannot serve as proper benchmarks for variable prices based on "business and market conditions." Yet courts and public service commissions throughout the U.S. have repeatedly (and resoundingly) rejected this claim.

By way of background, consumers that do not switch to an ESCO continue to receive supply from their local utility. The utilities charge supply rates consistent with market conditions in the competitive wholesale marketplace, plus other wholesale costs, namely transportation, distribution, and storage costs (i.e., the same costs ESCOs such as Just Energy incur)— without any markup or profit. Because utility supply rates do not include any profits, they are pure reflections of average wholesale market costs and associated costs over time. Additionally, because the utility is the primary supplier and competitor in virtually all utility regions, its rates by definition represent retail electricity and natural gas market pricing.

By contrast, ESCOs like Just Energy have a tactical advantage over the regulated utilities as they can purchase electricity and natural gas from any number of markets using any number of purchasing strategies, and therefore their costs for purchasing electricity and natural gas should at the very least track—if not undercut—utility prices. For example, ESCOs such as Just Energy can employ various energy acquisition strategies including: (i) owning energy production and generation facilities; (ii) purchasing energy from wholesale marketers and brokers at the price available at or near the time it is used by the consumer; (iii) and by purchasing energy ahead of time, either by purchasing energy to be used in the future or by purchasing futures contracts for the delivery at a predetermined price. Deregulation's purpose is to allow ESCOs to use these and other arbitrage opportunities to reduce costs for consumers' benefit.

suppliers or "AGS." In Pennsylvania, independent natural gas supply companies are known as natural gas suppliers or "NGS."

Additionally, because of deregulation, ESCOs like Just Energy do not need regulatory approval of their rates or the method by which they set their rates. Customers are protected in the competitive market by enforcement of the terms of their contracts. While utility supply is typically procured from the competitive wholesale market, ultimately the utility may charge no more than allowed by the regulator. ESCO customers do not have this safeguard. Consumers must rely on written agreements with the ESCOs to ensure that they receive the promised price.

Considering these realities, ESCOs should be able to offer rates competitive with, or substantially lower than, utilities, and in fact many do. Indeed, Just Energy's fixed rates are competitive with, and in fact almost always lower than, contemporaneous utility rates. Therefore, while utility rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should be commensurate. But Just Energy's variable rates are not remotely commensurate with utility rates because they are always substantially higher.

In fact, contrary to its contractual obligation, Just Energy's rates are substantially higher than its own fixed rates, other ESCOs' rates, and local utilities' rates, and are wholly disconnected from wholesale electricity and natural gas prices. Instead, Just Energy's variable rates are based on factors other than market conditions.

Further, there is no good faith justification for charging customers a variable rate that is outrageously higher than the rates Just Energy charges its fixed rate customers. Just Energy routinely predicts with reasonable accuracy the energy needs of its variable rate customers, and because it has access to multiple variable rate procurement strategies, its costs for serving variable rate customers and fixed rate customers are not substantially different. The only reason Just Energy's variable rates are so much higher than its fixed rates is that it engages in profiteering and price gouging, a stark demonstration of bad faith pricing practices.

In its Notice of Disallowance, first, Just Energy claims that local utilities are improper benchmarks because ESCOs occasionally offer tangential products or services is meritless. This is balderdash. New York's Public Service Commission (the "NYPSC") recently examined—and incisively rejected—this precise contention from Just Energy and other ESCOs, who were represented by Judge Energy's U.S. counsel at bar. With respect to value-added products, NYPSC staff found that found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[3] Similarly, the NYPSC found that the "claim that at least a portion of the significant delta between ESCO and utility charges is explained by ESCOs offering renewable energy is disingenuous at best. ESCOs may be charging a premium for green energy, but they are not actually providing a significant amount of added renewable energy to customers in New York."[4] In fact, the NYPSC found it "troubling" that even after considering reams of evidence "neither ESCOs nor any other party have shown . . . that ESCO charges above utility rates were generally – or in any specific instances – justified."[5]

Second, in its Notice of Disallowance, Just Energy claims that "[l]ocal utility commodity prices do not reflect wholesale energy prices" because utilities "are permitted to defer charges (with the approval of the regulator) to smooth price volatility." The NYPSC considered and rejected these precise contentions:

> [S]ome ESCOs complain that out-of-period adjustments made by utilities, with the Commission's approval, make it impossible for ESCOs to be competitive with the utilities, particularly in the context of variable-rate gas commodity service.[] These ESCOs do not acknowledge, however, that out-of-period adjustments by the utilities ultimately are a zero-sum game: for any downward adjustment made to a customer's bill, a corresponding out-of-period increase must be made. This process moderates fluctuations in customer bills that otherwise would result from market activity.[] Thus, out-of-period adjustments do not unfairly provide the utilities a pricing advantage when a price comparison is made on an annual basis.[6]

Third, Just Energy argues that local utilities do not compete with ESCOs because they do not face the same costs, risks, and market forces as ESCOs. To the contrary, as explained above, ESCOs have significant purchasing and pricing advantages over utilities.

Fourth, Just Energy wrongly contends that a comparison is not possible because "utility commodity prices do not include reasonable profit margins" and overhead. The NYPSC staff explained that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges" ESCOs levied on consumers.[7] The ultimate factfinder might understand that the contract's "business and market conditions" language permits Just Energy a reasonable margin. However, such profits must be consistent with others' profit margins, and that Just Energy's profiteering would not be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices.

Finally, Just Energy asserts that "[g]eneral energy market conditions affect ESCOs and local utilities differently," and that ESCOs might consider competitors' prices, customer retention, subsidizing the fixed rates, and value into consideration when setting their rates. Yet Just Energy's contract does not bear such weight, and these exact defenses have been resoundingly rejected by many courts. See, e.g., Hamlen v. Gateway Energy Servs. Corp., No. 16-3526, 2017 WL 6398729, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 8, 2017) (contract breached when ESCO considered, but did not disclose, customer retention and attrition as factors when setting variable rates).

Recently, U.S. state regulators have begun to make clear that variable rate schemes like Just Energy's are antithetical deregulation's purpose and provide no value to consumers or the market. For instance, the NYPSC recently stated:

> Because customers receive no value when they pay a premium for variable-rate commodity-only service from ESCOs, ESCOs will be prohibited from offering variable-rate, commodity-only service except where the offering includes generated savings. As has been demonstrated in these proceedings in the context of low-income customer protection, it is possible for some ESCOs to serve customers at a guaranteed savings. Saving customers money was a crucial policy goal articulated by the Commission when the retail access market was initially opened. Thus, rather than prohibit variable-rate, commodity-only offerings, such offerings will be permitted only if the ESCO guarantees to serve the customer at a price below the price charged by the utility on an annually reconciled basis.[8]

Similarly, the Connecticut Public Service Commission that "all Variable Plans for residential and business customers be eliminated, citing the recent significant increases to generation rates under these plans in support of its request.[9]

As discussed below, countless courts throughout the country likewise agree that contemporaneous utility rates serve as a proper barometer for business and market conditions and have sustained claims based on the differentials. See, e.g., Mirkin v. XOOM Energy, LLC, 931 F.3d 173, 178 n.2 (2d Cir. 2019) (holding that "[b]ecause utility companies like Con Edison participate on the wholesale energy market, their rates are another reflection of the Market Supply Cost."); see also id. (sustaining breach of contract claim where the defendant ESCO deviated from the leading public utility); Stanley v. Direct Energy Servs., LLC, 466 F. Supp. 3d 415, 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2020) ("there is a reasonable contract interpretation that 'Market' meant that Defendant's variable rate would be tethered to some degree to supply costs or to competitors' rates . . . upward variation from local utility rates may also demonstrate how Defendant's consumer rates are materially disconnected from their supply costs."); Oladapo v. Smart One Energy, LLC, No. 14-7117, 2016 WL 344976, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 27, 2016) ("the fact that [the ESCO's] rates consistently rose over time, while those set by [local utility] fluctuated, indicates that [the ESCO] was not setting its rates in response to 'changing gas market conditions'"); Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-8706, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 (D.N.J. Plaintiffs argue that rates charged . . . were not market-based and, in support, list the rates charged by [the ESCO] in comparison to [the utility] during several months from 2013 to 2014. . . . Such evidence supports the allegation that [the ESCO's] prices were untethered to those of the market at large."); Chen v. Hiko Energy, LLC, No. 14-1771, 2014 WL 7389011, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 29, 2014) ("Given the dramatic differences in pricing between defendant and [the local utility], it is plausible defendant's rates were not, in fact, reflective of the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, market-related factors, and . . . "costs, expenses and margins.").

B. Breach of Contract

To state a breach of contract claim, the classes need only satisfy three elements: "the existence of a contract, including its essential terms; breach of a duty imposed by the contract; and resultant damages." Jordet, 505 F. Supp. 3d at 222 (citations omitted). The classes allege that Just Energy breached its contract with class members, which represented that variable rates were priced based on the "business and market conditions," because Just Energy's variable rates bear no semblance to either wholesale prices or competitors' rates.

The classes will use numerous comparators to demonstrate that Just Energy's prices materially differed from metrics that could be reasonable interpretations of the use of the phrase "business and market conditions" in Just Energy's contracts.

First, the classes will use comparisons to class members' local utility rates, which countless courts have held is a proper comparator. In Mirkin v. XOOM, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit concluded that the plaintiffs could plausibly state a claim for breach of contract because the defendant ESCO deviated from the leading public utility by "up to" sixty percent. 931 F.3d at 178. The Second Circuit also plainly held that utilities are a reflection of wholesale market costs that can be used to evaluate whether an ESCOs rates are reflective of such costs. Id. at 178 n.2 ("Because utility companies like Con Edison participate on the wholesale energy market, their rates are another reflection of the Market Supply Cost."). As one federal judge held in Chen v. Hiko Energy, LLC:

> Plaintiffs' contracts provided that defendant would charge variable monthly rate reflecting the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, as well as various "market-related factors, plus all sales and other applicable taxes, fees, charges or other assessments and HIKO's costs, expenses and margins." (SAC ¶ 15). But the [complaint] alleges the electricity rate defendant charged Chen in February 2014 was nearly triple [the local utility] . . . Given the dramatic differences in pricing between defendant and [the utility], it is plausible defendant's rates were not, in fact, reflective of the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, market-related factors, and defendant's "costs, expenses and margins."

No. 14-1771, 2014 WL 7389011, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 29, 2014) (emphasis added); see also Melville, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 ("[B]ecause [the local utility] is a supplier in the energy market; its prices thus serve as at least partial indications of the market rate and are relevant despite the lack of a savings guarantee clause."); Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 427 ("'This incomplete and confusing explanation for calculating variable market-based rates could lead a reasonable consumer to believe that he or she would receive a variable market rate, i.e., once that was competitive with those charged by other ESCOs.'") (quoting Claridge v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-CV-1261 PKC, 2015 WL 5155934, *4 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015)).

Second, the classes will use wholesale prices and Just Energy's own costs to demonstrate that Just Energy's variable rate was inconsistent and significantly higher than wholesale costs. See, e.g., Landau, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 408-09 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (where "[an ESCO's] rates increased or stayed the same even when the average wholesale market price for the region decreased[,]" breach of contract claim may proceed to trial); Stanley v. Direct Energy Servs., LLC, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2020) ("[T]here is a reasonable contract interpretation that 'Market' meant that Defendant's variable rate would be tethered to some degree to supply costs or to competitors' rates . . . upward variation from local utility rates may also demonstrate how Defendant's consumer rates are materially disconnected from their supply costs."); Mirkin, 2016 WL 3661106, at *8 (breach of contract when contract provided that variable rates will be "based on wholesale market conditions" and variable rate failed to track wholesale market rates) (citing Sanborn v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 14-1731 (D. Conn.), and Steketee v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-585 (D. Conn.)); Edwards v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, 120 F. Supp. 3d 132, 42-43 (D. Conn. 2015) (sustaining contract claim where contract promised "[t]he variable rate may increase or decrease to reflect the changes in the wholesale power market" and the plaintiff alleged that "the rates [the ESCO] charged were significantly higher than the wholesale market rate and did not always increase or decrease when the wholesale market rates did."). Notably, Just Energy does not take issue with this comparator in its Notice of Disallowance, despite Claimant Jordet's use of wholesale natural gas prices as a comparator in his complaint.

Third, the classes will use comparisons to Just Energy's contemporaneous fixed rates and other ESCOs' contemporaneous rates "to support her allegation that Defendant's variable rates are untethered to wholesale market supply costs" and to show "that Defendant charges higher variable rates than other ESCOs." Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 427. Just Energy likewise does not take issue with Claimant Jordet's use of Just Energy's fixed rates and other ESCOs' rates as comparators; rather, it specifically demands the latter.

Just Energy's claim that its contracts do not guarantee savings is similarly of no moment. Indeed, the same argument has been quickly dispatched by numerous courts.

> Agway's agreement represents that the variable monthly rate "shall each month reflect the cost of electricity acquired by Agway from all sources . . . related transmission and distribution charges and other market-related factors, plus all applicable taxes, fees, charges or other assessments and Agway's costs, expenses and margins." Defendant argues that it has not been misleading because it never represented that savings were guaranteed. But this is inapposite to whether Defendant in fact charged rates to Plaintiff and putative class members that were based only upon those factors explicitly enumerated in the contract, as required by the contract. . . . Plaintiff has plausibly alleged that Agway's rates were "not in fact competitive market rates based on the wholesale cost of electricity" or the factors set forth in the agreement.

Gonzales v. Agway Energy Servs., LLC, No. 18-235, 2018 WL 5118509, at *4 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018) (emphasis added).

No factfinder will interpret "business and market conditions" to mean that Just Energy can price gouge—so much so that the rates bear no resemblance to wholesale costs and competitors' rates.

C. Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

"An implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contained in all contracts . . ., and breach of that duty is subsumed in the breach of contract claim." Jordet, 505 F. Supp. 3d at 222; cf. Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428 (all contracts contain an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing) (citing Arcadia Bioscis., Inc. v. Vilmorin & Cie, 356 F. Supp. 3d 379, 399 (S.D.N.Y. 2019)). "The implied covenant is "breached when a party acts in a manner that, although not expressly forbidden by any contractual provision, would deprive the other party of the right to receive the benefits under their agreement.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428 (quoting Skillgames, LLC v. Brody, 767 N.Y.S.2d 418, 423 (2003); citing Moran v. Erk, 11 N.Y.3d 452 (2008) ("The implied covenant . . . embraces a pledge that neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract.")). "'In order to find a breach of the implied covenant, a party's action must directly violate an obligation that may be presumed to have been intended by the parties.'" Id. at 428-29 (quoting Gaia House Mezz LLC v. State Street Bank & Tr. Co., 720 F.3d 84, 93 (2d Cir. 2013)).

Just Energy "'violated the covenant by exercising [any price-setting] discretion [it may have had] in bad faith and in a manner inconsistent with [Claimant's] reasonable expectations.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 429 (quoting Claridge, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6; citing Hamlen, 2017 WL 892399, at *5 (noting that the plaintiff had sufficiently "alleged [that the] defendant acted in bad faith by exercising its discretion to charge unreasonable rates to profiteer off its customers, who reasonably expected to pay [the] defendant competitive prices for natural gas" and that "the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing requires [the] defendant to seek a profit that is commercially reasonable")).

As explained above, the classes will be able to prove that Just Energy's variable rate profit margins are so unreasonable as to be set in bad faith. The classes will demonstrate Just Energy's bad faith by, inter alia, showing the stark disparity with Just Energy's fixed rate (which represents an actual market-based rate) profit margins and variable rate profit margins.

IV. Just Energy's Criticisms of Claimant's Expert Report are Easily Dispatched

Offering no facts and little substantive argument, Just Energy contends that Claimants' damages estimates, based on the report of their expert of Serhan Ogur, Ph.D (the "Ogur Report"), are speculative and inflated. Claimants, who have not yet completed discovery in the underlying actions, made clear that their damages estimations were just that, estimations based on the information to which they currently have access. Accordingly, Claimants have been aggressively pushing for disclosures by Just Energy so that the parties and the factfinder can have a clear and accurate understanding of the number of aggrieved U.S. consumers and the scope of their damages. These are simple facts based on data which Just Energy could easily disclose to resolve most, if not all, of its concerns regarding the scope and size of the classes. Claimants are confident that either this Court or the persons assigned to adjudicate Claimants' claims will require the disclosure of such information.

Critically, Just Energy's attacks on the Ogur Report at best represent a diminution of the size and scope of the classes and their damages; these criticisms of the Ogur Report do not justify complete claim denial. It is unclear why the Monitor would support total claim denial based on Just Energy's claim that the U.S. classes are owed less than the Claimants' expert estimated.

First, Just Energy complains that the Ogur Report addresses both electric and natural gas customers. Mr. Jordet (who represents natural gas consumers) filed a joint Claim with Ms. Donin and Ms. Golovan (who represent both electricity and natural gas customers) and the ten other consumers represented by Ms. Donin's and Ms. Golovan's counsel. All Claimants relied on the Ogur Report, which explicitly and in great detail addresses both natural gas and electric customer damages. Neither Just Energy nor the Monitor explain why a combined claim or combined report justifies denial of all Claimants' entire claims.

Second, Just Energy argues that the Ogur Report erred by using utility rates as a baseline for the rates Just Energy should have charged under the terms of its customer contract. As discussed above, this critique has no merit—after all utility rates are called the "price to compare" by utilities and regulators precisely because those rates represent the proper benchmark for customer comparisons. This attack on the Ogur Report is also a red herring, as the report's "overcharge theory is based on the difference between the electricity and natural gas rates the affected class were charged versus what they would have been charged if Just Energy's rates were based on business and market conditions." Ogur Report at 10. During the adjudication process, Claimants will not only rely on utility rates as a price to compare, but they will also show, among other measures, that Just Energy's margins are excessive based on Just Energy's actual costs and the margins it charges customers on fixed rate contracts (which carry the same if not higher costs to Just Energy as compared to its variable rate customers). Notably, the Jordet complaint compared Just Energy's rates to both the applicable utility rate and also to the applicable wholesale market rates.

Third, Just Energy complains that the Ogur Report includes commercial customers, and it asserts without support that commercial contracts are different than residential contracts. Notably, neither the Jordet nor the Donin Actions is limited to residential customers, and the Jordet contract by its own terms applies to both "Home" and "Business" customers. The same is true for the Donin and Golovan contracts. Again, this is a problem of Just Energy's own making. Producing the applicable contracts will allow the parties and the factfinder to easily determine precisely which customers are subject to which pricing terms.

Fourth, Just Energy wrongly contend that only Just Energy Solutions, Inc. customers can be included in the natural gas portion of the customer class because that is the only entity named in the Jordet Action. Even if true, this contention at best would marginally limit the portion of the class who purchased natural gas because Just Energy Solutions, Inc. is the Just Energy entity that sells all or most of the natural gas the Just Energy Entities sell in the U.S. Likewise, Just Energy is wrong to claim that the electricity portion of the customer class should be limited to customers of Just Energy New York and Just Energy Group, Inc. But a very large portion of the electricity customer class resides in New York, and Just Energy Group, Inc. owns all of the other Just Energy entities that sell electricity in the U.S. Notably, Just Energy Group, Inc. tried and failed to win its dismissal from the Donin Action.

Fifth, Just Energy posits without factual support that Dr. Ogur's assumed percentage of variable versus fixed rate customers is not accurate. This is another simple fact that Just Energy will be required to disclose as a part of the adjudication process. Just Energy also claims that a smaller percentage of customers enroll directly into variable rate contracts as opposed customers initially on fixed rate contracts who roll over to variable rates after the fixed rate expires. This is a curious contention given that both the Jordet and Donin Actions explicitly plead that they had fixed rate contracts that rolled over to variable rates. To the extent there are customers that were on variable rate contracts from the outset, pre-adjudication discovery will reveal that the operative contract language is the same.

Sixth, Just Energy complains (without support or specification) that the Ogur Report covers periods outside the statute of limitations. This is a straightforward issue that will be resolved in the adjudication process.

Seventh, Just Energy contends that the rate of damages after 2018 was less than before 2018. But this argument relies on the faulty notion, discussed above, that only straight variable rate contracts, as opposed to fixed-to-variable rate rollover contracts, are part of the classes. Again, the number of class members and their respective damages usage will be easily determined when Just Energy produces the requested data in pre-adjudication discovery.

Eighth, Just Energy complains that extrapolating damages from those suffered by the named plaintiffs in the Jordet and Donin Actions is inappropriate because the sample size is too small. But as noted in the Ogur Report, final damages calculations will be based on forthcoming pre-adjudication discovery. Relatedly, Just Energy contends that the difference between their rates and Pennsylvania and New York utility rates may not be the same as in other states. Again, this is an issue easily resolved with pre-adjudication discovery.

Finally, Just Energy quips that Claimants' prejudgment interest calculations were flawed because New York's rate is higher than those of other states. This is largely a math issue to be resolved after pre-adjudication discovery.

None of the arguments proffered in response to the estimations made in the Ogur Report justify wholesale denial of the Claimants' claim, and all concerns raised by Just Energy will all be addressed after pre-adjudication discovery and in the adjudication process.

V. The Classes will be Certified

The Notice of Disallowance curiously posits that class certification presents a "substantial hurdle." Yet the five courts that have addressed a contested motion to certify a class of ESCO customers overcharged under the terms of their customer agreements easily granted the motions. Bell v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., No. 31168/2018 (Rockland Cnty. Super. Ct. Jan. 8, 2021), NYSCEF Doc. No. 152; Claridge v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-1261, 2016 WL 7009062 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2016) (plaintiff was represented by the undersigned); Roberts v. Verde Energy, USA, Inc., No. X07HHDCV156060160S, 2017 WL 6601993 (Conn. Super. Ct. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 2019 WL 1276501 (Conn. Super. Ct. Feb. 1, 2019); and BLT Steak LLC v. Liberty Power Corp, L.L.C., No. 151293/2013 (N.Y. Cnty., Super. Ct Aug. 14, 2020), NYSCEF Doc. No. 376 (plaintiff was represented by the undersigned); Martinez v. Agway Energy Services, LLC, No. 18-00235, 2022 WL 306437 (N.D.N.Y. Feb. 2, 2022) (plaintiff represented by the undersigned). Claimant is confident that the factfinder here will follow suit.

There are few cases better suited for class certification. The classes' claims arise out of uniform misrepresentations regarding the pricing methodology for Just Energy's variable rate made in its standard customer contract. Just Energy provides its prospective natural gas customers with its standard contract prior to each contract's initiation. If the customer accepts the agreement, the it becomes the operative contract. Additionally, not only are contractual commitments concerning Just Energy's variable rate uniform, but the resultant injury to the classes is also uniform because when Just Energy sets its variable rates, it uses the same rate for all customers within each utility region, regardless of which version of the contract governs its relationship with each variable rate customer. For these and the other reasons described below, the prerequisites to class certification will be easily met.[10]

A. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(a) Factors.

Rule 23(a) requires that a plaintiff seeking class certification demonstrate that the proposed class satisfies the following four factors:

> (1) the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; (2) there are questions of law or fact common to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a); accord Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 345 (2011).

i. Numerosity

Rule 23(a)(1) requires that "the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable." "[N]umerosity is presumed where a putative class has forty or more members." Shahriar v. Smith & Wollensky Rest. Grp., 659 F.3d 234, 252 (2d Cir. 2011). Just Energy had millions of customers on variable rates during the relevant period. There is numerosity here.

[10] Claimant's analysis herein demonstrates compliance with the most exacting class certification standards, Rule 23 of the U.S. Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (the "Rules").

ii. Commonality

Rule 23(a)(2) requires a showing of "questions of law or fact common to the class." "Commonality is satisfied where a single issue of law or fact is common to the class." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 405 (quoting In re IndyMac Mort.-Backed Sec. Litig., 286 F.R.D. 226, 233 (S.D.N.Y. 2012)). "[E]ven a single common question will do." Dukes, 564 U.S. at 346 (citation, internal quotation marks, and brackets omitted).

Here, the class' claims largely turn on whether or not Just Energy set its rate based on "business and market conditions," as required in the customer contract. Because all class members were made the same promise, answering this common question will dominate this action. As one federal judge has held in certifying virtually identical claims, "[t]he claims of the proposed class turn on the 'common contention' that [Defendant] misleadingly described its method for calculating variable monthly rates, a claim that 'is capable of classwide resolution . . .' Plaintiff[] ha[s] therefore shown common questions of law and fact under Rule 23(a)(2)." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *4 (citing Dukes, 564 U.S. at 350).[11] And in any event, "[c]ommonality is not defeated because consumers interpreted arguably vague and misleading language in different ways." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *3.

iii. Typicality

Rule 23(a)(3) requires "the claims of the class representatives be typical of those of the class, and is satisfied when each class member's claim arises from the same course of events, and each class member makes similar legal arguments to prove the defendant's liability." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 405 (quoting Robinson v. Metro-North Commuter R.R., 267 F.3d 147, 155 (2d Cir. 2001)). "'Minor variations in the fact patterns underlying the individual claims do not preclude a finding of typicality' . . . [rather, the Rule] requires 'only that the disputed issues of law or fact occupy essentially the same degree of centrality to the named plaintiff's claim as to that of other members of the proposed class." In re Scotts, 304 F.R.D. at 405-06).

Here, the classes' claims arise from the same core events, and each class member would make the same legal arguments to prove Just Energy's liability. The classes were commonly bound by a sales agreement distributed to all Just Energy customers. Each contract contains the same or similar terms. Thus, all class members would proffer the same evidence and arguments in pursuing their claims against Just Energy.

iv. Adequacy Of Representation

Rule 23(a)(4) requires that requires a showing that "the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class." "Adequacy is satisfied unless plaintiff's interests are antagonistic to the interest of other members of the class." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *5 (quoting Sykes v. Mel S. Harris & Associates LLC, 780 F.3d 70, 90 (2d Cir. 2015)).

Claimant will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the classes. Since the actions' respective inceptions, Claimants have actively assisted in the cases' prosecution and nothing in the record suggests [their] interests are antagonistic to those of other class members." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 406-07.

Likewise, Claimants' counsel is qualified and experienced in prosecuting complex class actions nationwide, in both state and federal courts, including customer protection class actions against ESCOs. Indeed, no law firms in the U.S. have more experience successfully prosecuting class actions against ESCOs who overcharge their customers.

B. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(b)(2) Factors

Pursuant to Rule 23(b)(2), "[a] class action may be maintained if Rule 23(a) is satisfied and if . . . the party opposing the class has acted or refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the class as a whole[.]" Just Energy has acted on grounds that apply generally to the Class, namely by representing that its variable rates are market-based, when Just Energy's rates are in fact untethered from market conditions. Thus, final injunctive and declaratory relief is appropriate with respect to the classes.

C. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(b)(3) Factors

Rule 23(b)(3) requires that "questions of law or fact common to class members predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, and that a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy."

i. Predominance

> A court must "bear[] firmly in mind that the focus of Rule 23(b)(3) is on the predominance of common questions . . ." Amgen Inc. v. Connecticut Ret. Plans & Trust Funds, 133 S. Ct. 1184, 1194 (2013). It "does not require a plaintiff seeking class certification to prove that each element of her claim is susceptible to classwide proof," but instead to prove that "common questions predominate over any questions affecting only individual class members." Id. at 1196 (emphasis in original; alterations and quotation marks omitted); accord Sykes v. Mel S. Harris & Associates LLC, 780 F.3d 70, 87 (2d Cir. 2015) ("The mere existence of individual > issues will not be sufficient to defeat certification. Rather, the balance must tip such that these individual issues predominate.").

Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *2 (certifying class of ESCO customers).

"Predominance is satisfied if resolution of some of the legal or factual questions that qualify each class member's case as a genuine controversy can be achieved through generalized proof, and if these particular issues are more substantial than the issues subject only to individualized proof." Id. at *5 (quoting Roach v. T.L. Cannon Corp., 778 F.3d 401, 405 (2d Cir. 2015)).

a. The Nationwide Classes Will be Certified

Just Energy contends—without any support—that Claimant does not have standing to represent all of Just Energy natural gas customers on a variable rate across the U.S. Specifically, Just Energy asserts that "[s]tate specific regulations could present unique claims and defenses to the extent the Claimant's alleged class extended to Just Energy customers outside of Pennsylvania." However, Just Energy ignores the well-settled doctrine that class action plaintiffs have class standing to allege sufficiently similar injuries suffered by all potential class members. See, e.g., Stanley v. Direct Energy Servs., LLC, 466 F. Supp. 3d 415, 438 (S.D.N.Y. 2020). As Judge Karas aptly explained, Just Energy's use of materially similar representations and pricing policies is sufficient to confer Claimant's standing on behalf of the Class:

> However, Plaintiff has alleged that Defendant sent "uniform notices" to their legacy customers from NYSEG Solutions and/or Energetix that promised competitive, market-based variable rates. (Am. Compl. ¶ 2.) And Plaintiff has further alleged that Defendant engages in a uniform policy of price gouging all of its customers. (Id. ¶¶ 2, 24, 68.) The Second Circuit has explicitly instructed that "non-identical injuries of the same general character can support standing" for a class action. Langan, 897 F.3d at 94 (emphasis added) (citation omitted). And "courts in th[e Second C]ircuit have construed the payment of a premium price to be an injury in and of itself[, and] . . . where plaintiffs allege that customers paid a premium price based on a misrepresentation, those customers can have standing under Article III." Guariglia v. Procter & Gamble Co., No. 15-CV-4307, 2018 WL 1335356, at *12 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 14, 2018) (citations and quotation marks omitted). Under analogous circumstances, the Second Circuit determined that standing existed for a plaintiff who sought to represent a variety of certificate holders in connection to certain mortgage investments, despite the fact that other certificate holders were "outside the specific tranche from which the named plaintiff purchased certificates" and were subject to "different payment priorities." Langan, 897 F.3d at 94 (referring to NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., 693 F.3d 145 (2d Cir. 2012)). Similarly, here, it may be true that Energetix customers and NYSEG Solutions customers had different contracts before Defendant bought them. It may also be true that customers outside New York received slightly different terms or offers than those that Plaintiff received. But the fact that the "ultimate damages [for each member of the class may] . . . vary . . . is > not sufficient to defeat class certification under Rule 23(a), let alone class standing." NECA, 693 F.3d at 164-65 (citation and quotation marks omitted).

Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 438-39.

Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance admits that it uses uniform customer contracts with the same pricing provisions, arguing that "the applicable contract contains multiple provisions that put customers (including the Claimant) on clear notice of the variable rates that Just Energy Solutions would set and to which customers (including Claimant) will be subject[.]"

"[W]hether a plaintiff can bring a class action under the state laws of multiple states is a question of predominance under Rule 23(b)(3), not a question of standing[.]" *Rolland v. Oct. 15, 2018) ("Requiring that the claims of the class representative be in all respects identical to those of each class member in order to establish standing would 'confuse[ ] the requirements of Article III and Rule 23.'") (internal citations omitted).

Multistate breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing classes are routinely found to satisfy the predominance factor because such common law claims are generally uniform across the U.S. See, e.g., In re U.S. Foodservice Inc. Pricing Litig., 729 F.3d at 127 (no predominance issue for nationwide class asserting claims for breach of contract under the laws of multiple states); Just Film, Inc. v. Buono, 847 F.3d 1108, 1122-23 (9th Cir. 2017) (affirming certification of nationwide breach of contract class); Boyko v. Am. Intern. Group, Inc., No. 08-2214, 2012 WL 1495372, at *9 (D.N.J. Apr. 26, 2012), separate portion vacated in part on reconsideration, 2012 WL 2132390 (D.N.J. June 12, 2012) ("The Court agrees with Plaintiff that the legal elements of a breach of contract claim are substantially similar in all fifty states, such that certification of the AIG Class as to the breach of contract claim is proper."); see also Am. Airlines, Inc. v. Wolens, 513 U.S. 219, 233 n.8 (1995) ("contract law is not at its core 'diverse, nonuniform, and confusing'") (citation omitted); Flanagan v. Allstate Ins. Co., 242 F.R.D. 421, 431 (N.D. Ill. 2007) (finding that numerous states' breach of contract laws are sufficiently similar for class certification purposes).

This reflects "the obvious truth that class actions necessarily involve plaintiffs litigating injuries that they themselves would not have standing to litigate," Langan, 897 F.3d at 95, and that "[n]amed plaintiffs in a putative consumer protection class action may assert claims under laws of states where they do not reside to preserve those claims in anticipation of eventually being joined by class members who do not reside in the states for which claims have been asserted." Pisarri v. Town Sports Int'l, LLC, No. 18-1737, 2019 WL 1245485, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 4, 2019) (quotation and citation omitted). Indeed, the Second Circuit has expressly held that "any concern about whether it is proper for a class to include out-of-state, nonparty class members with claims subject to different state laws is a question of predominance under Rule 23(b)(3) not a question of adjudicatory competence under Article III." Langan, 897 F.3d at 93 (quotation marks omitted). Thus, where a plaintiff's own claims survive dismissal, Langan teaches that counts alleging violations of other jurisdictions' laws are to be addressed at class certification.

The same is true for class members that purchased energy from one of Just Energy's many affiliates. That consumers purchased from an affiliate is not a barrier to Claimant bringing claims on these consumers' behalf because "courts in this Circuit have held that, subject to further inquiry at the class certification stage, a named plaintiff has standing to bring class action claims . . . for products that he did not purchase, so long as those products . . . are 'sufficiently similar' to the products that the named plaintiff did purchase." Mosely v. Vitalize Labs, LLC, No. 13-2470, 2015 WL 5022635, at *7 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 24, 2015) (emphasis in original). This is because a class action plaintiff may sue for non-purchased products if he or she (1) suffered injury, and (2) the injurious conduct implicates the same set of concerns as the conduct alleged to have caused injury to other members of the proposed class. NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., 693 F.3d 145, 162 (2d Cir. 2012), cert. denied, 133 S. Ct. 1624 (2013); *see also In re Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc. b. The Breach of Contract Claim Will be Certified

The classes' breach of contract claims present straightforward common questions that will be answered through common proof, precluding the predominance of individual issues. "Contract claims satisfy Rule 23(b)(3) when the claims of the proposed class 'focus predominantly on common evidence[.]'" Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6 (quoting In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 125). "[C]laims arising from interpretations of a form contract appear to present the classic case for treatment as a class action, and breach of contract cases are routinely certified as such." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 411; accord Gillis v. Respond Power, LLC, 677 F. App'x 752, 756 (3d Cir. 2017) ("Because form contracts should be interpreted uniformly as to all signatories, Pennsylvania and federal courts have recognized that claims involving the interpretation of standard form contracts are particularly well-suited for class treatment.") (vacating district court's denial of class certification and remanding). Additionally, "[t]he Second Circuit has affirmed certification of a contract claim when minor variations existed in the language of the disputed contracts because the underlying claim was directed to a 'substantially similar' terms." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6 (quoting In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 124; accord In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 411 (certifying contract class where, "[a]lthough plaintiffs do not allege defendants breached a 'form contract,' the representations defendants made to each plaintiff were uniform.") (quoting Steinberg v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 224 F.R.D. 67, 74 (E.D.N.Y. 2004)); Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 333 F.3d 1248, 1261 (11th Cir. 2003), aff'd sub nom. Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc., 545 U.S. 546 (2005) (affirming certification of breach of contract class where the defendant failed to price natural gas in accordance with its uniform contractual obligations).

Moreover, proof of Claimant's claim will be common to all class members, as it will rely on Just Energy's admittedly standard contracts, as well as publicly available data, witness testimony, and business records which will demonstrate that that Just Energy did not set its variable rate in accordance with the market, as required in its customer contract.

c. The Good Faith and Fair Dealing Claim Will be Certified

The good faith and fair dealing claim is likewise well-suited for class treatment. "The implied covenant is "breached when a party acts in a manner that, although not expressly forbidden by any contractual provision, would deprive the other party of the right to receive the benefits under their agreement.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428.

Whether Just Energy acted in bad faith is common to all class members and will be evaluated with common evidence. See In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 125 (common evidence used to determine whether business practice "departs from prevailing commercial standards of fair dealing so as to constitute a breach"). As with the classes' breach of contract claim, Claimant will demonstrate that standard contracts gave rise to his and the classes' reasonable expectations concerning the variable rate, and will prove Just Energy's failure to provide a competitive, market-based rate and its bad faith profiteering through common evidence.

ii. Superiority

There are several reasons why a class action is superior to other available adjudicatory methods. First, a class action will permit an orderly and expeditious administration of class claims, foster economies of time, effort, and expense, and ensure uniformity of decisions. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) advisory committee's note. Just Energy has acted on grounds generally applicable to the classes. By prosecuting this action as a class, once Just Energy's liability has been adjudicated, the factfinder will be able to determine the claims of all class members.

Individualized actions, on the other hand, "would simply entail repeated adjudications of identical [contract] provisions." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6; cf. Roberts, 2017 WL 6601993, at *2 ("Piecemeal litigation would be less workable. Given that much of the case depends on the central common legal issues surrounding the contract class members would have little interest in separately controlling the litigation . . ."). Additionally, prosecuting separate actions would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual class members that could establish incompatible standards of conduct for Just Energy.

Second, the individual damages suffered are small relative to the expense and burden of individual litigation, such that class members are unlikely to prosecute individual actions. See Roberts, 2017 WL 6601993, at *2 ("Consumer contracts affecting thousands of people but not necessarily yielding thousands of dollars to each class member are well suited for class certification. Without the class action method most claims like this wouldn't be brought, including claims with great social utility."). Finally, this lawsuit presents no difficulties that would impede its management as a class action. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3)(D).

VI. The Increasing Regulatory Denunciation of Just Energy's Pricing Practices Further Demonstrates that Claimant's Class Action Claims are Strong

Almost all of the states in the U.S. that deregulated their energy markets did so in the mid-to-late 1990s. This wave of deregulation was pushed by then-corporate superstar Enron. For example, in December 1996 when energy deregulation was being considered in Connecticut, Enron CEO Jeffrey Skilling, dubbed "[t]he most aggressive proponent" of deregulation, said:

> Every day we delay [deregulation], we're costing consumers a lot of money . . . . It can be done quickly. The key is to get the legislation done fast.[12]

Operating under this concocted sense of urgency, the U.S. states that deregulated suffered serious consumer harm. For example, in 2001, forty-two states had begun or were considering deregulation. Today, the number of full or partially deregulated U.S. states has dwindled to only seventeen and the District of Columbia. Even within those states, several recognized the harm to everyday consumers and thus only allow large-scale consumers to purchase from ESCOs.

Responding to ESCOs' price gouging, many key deregulation supporters now regret their role. For example, reflecting on Maryland's experience, a Maryland Senator lamented that "[d]eregulation has failed. We are not going to give up on re-regulation till it is done."[13]

A Connecticut leader who joined in that state's foray into deregulation was similarly remorseful:

> Probably six out of the 187 legislators understood it at the time, because it is so incredibly complex . . . . If somebody says, no, we didn't screw up, then I don't know what world we are living in. We did.[14]

State regulators have, for years, also denounced predatory pricing practices like those challenged in the class actions. For example, in 2014 the NYPSC declared that New York's retail energy markets were plagued with "marketing behavior that creates and too often relies on customer confusion."[15] The NYPSC further noted "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[16] The NYPSC concluded as follows:

> [A]s currently structured, the retail energy commodity markets for residential and small nonresidential customers cannot be considered to be workably competitive. Although there are a large number of suppliers and buyers, and suppliers can readily enter and exit the market, the general absence of information on market conditions, particularly the price charged by competitors, is an impediment to effective competition . . . .[17]

The conduct of ESCOs like Just Energy has been devastating to consumers across the U.S. For example, "[a]ccording to the data provided by [New York's] utilities, the approximately two million New York State residential utility customers who took commodity service from an ESCO collectively paid almost $1.2 billion more than they would have paid if they purchased commodity from their distribution utility during the 36-months ending December 31, 2016."[18] "Additionally, small commercial customers paid $136 million more than they would have paid if they instead simply remained with their default utilities for commodity supply for the same 36-month period."[19] Combining these two groups, New York consumers have been "'overcharged' by over $1.3 billion dollars over this time period."[20]

Based on the flood of consumer complaints, negative media reports, and data demonstrating massive overcharges, the NYPSC announced in December 2016 an evidentiary hearing to consider primarily whether ESCOs should be "completely prohibited from serving their current products" to New York residential consumers.[21] Then, on December 16, 2016, the NYPSC permanently prohibited ESCOs from serving low-income customers, because of "the persistent ESCO failure to address (or even apparently to acknowledge) the problem of overcharges to [low income] customers . . . ."[22]

[22] CASE 12-M-0476, Order Adopting a Prohibition On Service To Low-Income Customers By Energy Services Companies, at 3 (Dec. 16, 2016).

Following the first part of the evidentiary hearing announced in December 2016, on March 30, 2018, NYPSC staff announced the following conclusions about ESCOs:

> [A]s the current retail access mass markets are structured, customers simply cannot make fully informed and fact-based choices on price . . . since the terms and pricing of the ESCO product offerings are not transparent to customers. For variable rate products this is due, in large part, to the fact that ESCOs often offer "teaser rates" to start, and after expiration of the teaser rate, the rate is changed to what is called a "market rate" that is not transparent to the customer, and the contract signed by the customer does not provide information on how that "market rate" is calculated.[23]
> ESCOs take advantage of the mass market customers' lack of knowledge and understanding of, among other issues, the electric and gas commodity markets, commodity pricing, and contract terms (which often extend to three full pages), and in particular, the ESCOs' use of teaser rates and "market based rate" mechanisms that customers are charged after the teaser rate expires. In fact, ESCOs appear to be unwilling to provide the necessary product pricing details as to how those "market based rates" are derived to mass market customers in a manner that is transparent so as to enable an open and competitive marketplace where customers can participate fairly and with the necessary knowledge to make rational and fully informed decisions on whether it is in their best interest to take commodity service from their default utility, or from a particular ESCO among competing but equally opaque choices.[24]

In response to these criticisms, the ESCOs claimed as Just Energy does here that their marketing and overhead costs explain the overcharges, but NYPSC staff found that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges."[25] Likewise, when the ESCOs claimed as Just Energy does here that their provision to consumers of so-called value-added products such as light bulbs and thermostats contributed to their excessive rates, NYPSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[26]

Instead, NYPSC staff reached the following conclusion:

> The massive $1.3 billion in overcharges is the result of higher, and more often than not, significantly higher, commodity costs imposed by the ESCOs on unsuspecting residential and other mass market customers. These overcharges are simply due to (1) the lack of transparency and greed in the market, which prevents customers from making rational economic choices based on facts rather than the promises of the ESCO representative, and (2) obvious efforts by the ESCOs to prevent, or at least limit, the transparency of the market. These obvious efforts include the lack of a definition for "market rate" in their contracts, resulting in the fattening of ESCOs' retained earnings.[27]

Following these conclusions, in December 2019 the NYPSC banned the exact same variable rate pricing practices that the class actions challenge.

The NYPSC's press release announcing the ban on variable energy rates does not mince words, stressing that it was intended to "prevent[] bad actors among ESCOs from overcharging New York consumers" and that the regulations only went forward after "the state's highest court definitively halted ESCOs' attempts to use litigation to evade and/or delay consumer-protection regulation."[28] The regulations themselves likewise condemn ESCOs' conduct and declare that "avoiding accountability" has become a "business model" in the deregulated energy market:

> Based upon the number of customer complaints that continue to be made against ESCOs, and the likely need for increased enforcement activities, the large number of ESCO customers that pay significant premiums for products with little or no apparent added benefit, . . . it appears that a material level of misleading marketing practices continues to plague the retail access market.
> The persistence of complaints related to ESCO marketing practices is indicative of some ESCOs continuing to skirt rules and attempting to avoid accountability as part of their business model.[29]

[29] December 12, 2019 Order at 88–90.

The NYPSC's variable rate ban followed a two-year investigation of ESCO practices that culminated in a 10-day evidentiary hearing to examine evidence submitted by 19 parties and to hear the testimony and cross-examination of 22 witnesses and witness panels.[30]

The NYPSC prefaced the ban with the observation that variable energy rates—like those Just Energy charged its U.S. customers—are "[t]he most commonly offered ESCO product" and that this popular product is frequently provided at "a higher price than charged by the utilities."[31]

The absurdity of consumers paying ESCOs more for the exact same energy offered by regulated utilities was not lost on the NYPSC:

> If market participants are unwilling, or unable, to provide material benefits to consumers beyond those provided by utilities in exchange for a regulated, just and reasonable rate, the market serves no proper purpose and should be ended.[32]

In fact, the NYPSC found it "troubling" that even after considering reams of evidence "neither ESCOs nor any other party have shown . . . that ESCO charges above utility rates were generally – or in any specific instances – justified."[33] This fact only highlighted the NYPSC's "long-held concern that many customers may only be taking ESCO service due to their misunderstanding of [ESCOs'] products and/or prices."[34]

Accordingly, and on this record, the NYPSC banned variable energy rates like those Just Energy charged to the Claimant Jordet and its other U.S. customers.[35] In place of these floating variable rates, the NYPSC required ESCOs to guarantee that their variable rates would save customers money compared to what the utility would have charged.[36] Under the new regulations, if the the consumer is charged more than the utility, the consumer must be refunded the difference.[37]

In Claimants' class actions, the difference between what Just Energy charged consumers for the exact same energy that class members' utilities would have charged is more than US$2 billion.

The NYPSC's regulations took effect in April 2021. Around the same time, Just Energy ceased offering service in New York and tried to spin the state's ban on its core practice as "regulatory constraints . . . requiring certain variable rate customers to be dropped to the utility."[38]

VII. Just Energy's Damning Public Dossier Further Supports the Class Actions

Just Energy has amassed a damning public dossier that includes at least six regulatory enforcement actions, reams of investigative journalism exposing Just Energy's deceptive practices, and countless negative customer reviews.

For example, on December 31, 2014, Just Energy agreed to settle claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General that are strikingly similar to those in the class actions, making various concessions related to its deceptive energy sales and billing practices in Massachusetts.[39] Just Energy agreed to refund US$4,000,000 along with several key changes to its business practices, including that Just Energy was banned for three years from enrolling Massachusetts consumers into variable rate energy products unless it complied with the following requirements:

> Within 30 days of a customer enrolling in a variable energy rate product, Just Energy must provide the customer with written notice of the date on which the introductory rate will expire.
> Any new contracts for variable rate products shall either (i) include the calculation that will be used to set monthly rates under the contract such that the customer can calculate the cost of Just Energy's residential energy, or (ii) make the rates available 60 days in advance via phone and the internet.[40]

Additionally, for three years Just Energy was banned from charging Massachusetts consumers variable electricity rates in excess of 14.25¢ per kWh.[41] The settlement further provided that:

> For current Just Energy variable rate customers, the company is required to clearly and conspicuously post its current variable rates and post subsequent variable rates with at least 45 days advance notice.[42] Just Energy is also required to mail notice to all existing Massachusetts

> variable rate customers alerting them to the fact that advance pricing information is now available via phone and on Just Energy's website, and that these customers can cancel their Just Energy contracts without paying termination fees.[43]
>
> Just Energy must at its own expense hire an independent monitor for three years to audit inter alia Just Energy's Massachusetts marketing materials, billing data, consumer communications, and direct marketing efforts.[44]
> Just Energy must distribute a copy of the Assurance of Discontinuance to current and future (for three years) principals, officers, directors, and supervisory personnel responsible for the Massachusetts market.[45] Just Energy must also secure and maintain these individuals' signed acknowledgement of receipt of the Assurance of Discontinuance.

The Massachusetts Attorney General's sweeping action was far from the first time Just Energy had been targeted by regulators. For example, in June 2003, the Toronto Star reported that Just Energy (then operating under the name Ontario Energy Savings Corp.) was fined for violating the Ontario Energy Board's code of conduct by fraudulently enrolling customers.[46]

In 2008, the Illinois Attorney General sued U.S. Energy Savings Corp. (whose name was changed to Just Energy in 2012), alleging violations of Illinois' consumer fraud laws. The May 2009 anouncement a US$1 million settlement noted that the Attorney General had "received a nearly unprecedented number of calls from consumers who were deceived by false assurances that they would receive significant savings by switching to this alternative gas supplier."[47] According to the lawsuit, among other deceptive conduct "consumers were led to believe that they would automatically save money by enrolling in the U.S. Energy Savings program."[48]

During this same period, the Citizens Utility Board (the "CUB") and AARP filed a formal complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission (the "ICC") alleging, inter alia, that Just Energy told customers they would "save money," that consumers would not see any gas price increases if they signed up, and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[49] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, issued a US$90,000 fine, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[50]

In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a US$200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[51]

In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[52]

There are also thousands of complaints about Just Energy and its affiliated entities on the internet. Over the last three years alone, Just Energy has had at least 280 complaints filed against it with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB").[53] Even though Just Energy is listed on the BBB's website as having been in business for 24 years, the BBB clearly declares that "THIS BUSINESS IS NOT BBB ACCREDITED" and displays the following "Pattern of Complaint" warning to the consuming public:

> BBB files indicate that this business has a pattern of complaints concerning door to door sales representatives who are using misleading sales tactics, misrepresenting themselves as the consumer's current energy or gas company, and not being transparent about cancellations fees which may be charged by their current provider for switching their services. Additionally, consumers allege Just Energy's representatives display poor customer service when the business is contacted to resolve billing and contract concerns.

Media reports about Just Energy are equally troubling. For example, when the confidential results of the Illinois Commerce Commission's audit referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[54] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[55]

A May 8, 2019, article in the Chicago Reporter showcased a carpenter who, over the course of 10 years, paid Just Energy over US$20,000 more than he would have paid the utility.[56] This Just Energy customer's experience was used to highlight the then-proposed Illinois Home Energy Affordability & Transparency Act ("HEAT"). On August 27, 2019, Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker signed HEAT into law. Effective January 1, 2020, HEAT requires inter alia ESCOs like Just Energy operating in Illinois to include the utility's comparison price on all marketing materials, during telephone or door-to-door solicitations, and on every consumer's utility bill so consumers can make informed price comparisons.

Here, the factfinder's informed price comparison, will demonstrate over US$2 billion in damages to Just Energy's U.S. customers.

CLAIM DOCUMENTATION

I. Relevant Background and Summary of Claim Documentation

Claimants Fira Donin, Inna Golovan, and Trevor Jordet have pending proposed class action lawsuits against the Just Energy Entities in two United States Federal District Courts. Claimants Donin's and Golovan's case is captioned Donin et al. v. Just Energy Group Inc. et al., No. 17 Civ. 5787 (WFK) (SJB) (E.D.N.Y.) (hereafter "Donin Dkt.") and Claimant Jordet's case is captioned Jordet v. Just Energy Solutions, Inc., No. 18 Civ. 953 (WMS) (W.D.N.Y.) (hereafter "Jordet Dkt"). Fira Donin, Inna Golovan, and Trevor Jordet, as well as the other individuals who have retained undersigned Class Counsel to sue the Just Energy Entities on a class-wide basis are referred to hereafter as the "Representative Plaintiffs."[1, 2]

Pursuant to the expert Affidavit of Dr. Serhan Ogur (the "Expert Report"), the Representative Plaintiffs hereby submit a general unsecured claim of US$3,662,444,442, which reflects the Just Energy Entities' liability to their U.S. customers for inter alia breaching the pricing terms of their residential and commercial contracts to supply electricity and gas. The Representative Plaintiffs' damages calculations are derived from the difference between the prices the Just Energy Entities were contractually bound to charge U.S. customers as compared to the prices ultimately charged. A true and correct copy of the Expert Report is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. In support of their calculations, the Representative Plaintiffs provide the following chart summarizing their class-wide damages calculations.

Class-Wide Damages Calculations
U.S. Residential Electric Damages	$1,144,609,092
U.S. Residential Gas Damages	$717,711,010
U.S. Commercial Electric Damages	$449,392,725
U.S. Commercial Gas Damages	$68,624,767
Total:	$2,380,337,594

In addition to damages of US$2,380,337,594, the Representative Plaintiffs calculate that US$1,282,106,848 is owed to them as pre-judgment interest, which amount has been added to their damages calculation to make up the remainder of their claim.[3]

[1] Those other individuals are: New York resident Todd Orsi; California residents Danielle Greer, Hannad Naveed, and Naveed Yamin; Michigan residents Nicholas Aldridge, Ariel Meserva, Jessica Smith Mixon, and Vernon Van Halm; and Texas residents Kadidja Fofana and Lisa Widner.

[2] Please note that while the Representative Plaintiffs are submitting proofs of claim for each of the two pending proposed class actions (Donin and Jordet), they are submitting identical claim documentation and amounts for each case.

[3] U.S. state law governs statutory pre-judgment interest. Schipani v. McLeod, 541 F.3d 158, 164 (2d Cir. 2008). The class actions challenge the Just Energy Entities' conduct in 11 jurisdictions— California,

By way of brief background, on October 3, 2017, Fira Donin and Inna Golovan filed proposed class action lawsuits on behalf of themselves and all other U.S. customers alleging inter alia that the Just Energy Entities breached their contractual obligations to base their variable gas and electricity rates on "business and market conditions," breached their contractual obligation to charge a specified energy rate, and breached the implied covenant of duty of good faith and fair dealing. See, e.g., Donin Complaint ¶¶ 26-35, attached hereto as Exhibit 2. On September 24, 2021, Judge William F. Kuntz of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York denied the Just Energy Entities' motion to dismiss all of the aforementioned class action claims on behalf of all U.S. customers, ruling inter alia that Plaintiffs Donin and Golovan had adequately alleged that the Just Energy Entities breached their contractual obligation to charge market-based rates, breached their contractual obligation to charge a specified energy rate, and breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Decision & Order at 3, 12–15, Donin Dkt. No. 111 attached hereto as Exhibit 3.

Similarly, on April 6, 2018, Trevor Jordet filed class action claims on behalf of himself and all other U.S. customers alleging inter alia that the Just Energy Entities breached their contractual obligations to base their variable gas rates on "business and market conditions." See, e.g., Jordet Complaint ¶¶ 19-37 attached hereto as Exhibit 4. On December 7, 2020, Judge William M. Skrenty of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York denied the Just Energy Entities' motion to dismiss the aforementioned class action breach of contract claim on behalf of all U.S. customers, holding that "'business and market conditions' has some standard that [the Just Energy Entities] had to apply in setting [their] variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in [their] pricing." See Decision & Order at 18, Jordet Dkt. No. 43, attached hereto as Exhibit 5.

As set forth on pp. 18-19 below, the Representative Plaintiffs' claims encompass the damages of millions of U.S. Just Energy customers. These claims are founded in well-established principals of contract, are buttressed by a legion of U.S. case law, regulation, and statue. The claims also represent paradigmatic class action claims that are readily certifiable (and have been certified on four separate occasions), are pleaded in tandem with increasing regulatory scrutiny (including outright bans) of the exact practices the Just Energy Entities employed throughout the U.S., and follow in the footsteps of at least six regulatory actions against the Just Energy Entities.

Delaware, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas. Each of these jurisdictions award pre-judgment interest as a matter of right. See generally Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 157 F. Supp. 2d 1291, 1311–12 (S.D. Fla. 2001), aff'd, 333 F.3d 1248 (11th Cir. 2003). The Representative Plaintiffs here have applied the forum state's (New York) pre-judgment interest rate (9% per annum) as well as the forum law on the date from which to calculate interest. New York courts usually pick the midpoint of the class period as the period from which to calculate pre-judgment interest, or any other reasonable date as "[t]he choice of the date from which to compute prejudgment interest is left to the discretion of the court." Chuchuca v. Creative Customs Cabinets Inc., No. 13 Civ. 2506 (RLM), 2014 WL 6674583, at *16 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 25, 2014)(collecting cases); see also Marfia v. T.C. Ziraat Bankasi, 147 F.3d 83, 91 (2d Cir. 1998) ("New York law leaves to the discretion of the court the choice of whether to calculate prejudgment interest based upon the date when damages were incurred or 'a single reasonable intermediate date,' which can be used to simplify the calculation.").

II. The Class Action Claims Are Strong and Supported by Ample Precedent

A. U.S. Courts Regularly Hold That ESCOs like Just Energy Are Liable When They Promise to Charge Market-Based Rates but Actually Charge Rates That Are Much Higher

As a result of deregulation in states across the United States, consumers and businesses can purchase natural gas and electricity through third-party suppliers while continuing to receive delivery of the energy from their existing public utilities. These third-party energy suppliers are known as energy service companies, or "ESCOs."

ESCOs like the Just Energy Entities play a middleman role: they purchase energy directly or indirectly from energy producers and then sell that energy to end-user consumers. However, ESCOs do not deliver energy to consumers. Rather, the companies that produce energy deliver it to consumers' utility companies, which in turn deliver it to the end-user. ESCOs merely buy gas and electricity and then sell that energy to end-users with a mark-up. Thus, ESCOs are essentially brokers and traders: they neither make nor deliver gas or electricity, but merely buy energy from a producer and re-sell it.

If a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer's existing utility continues to bill the customer for both the energy supply and delivery costs. The only difference to the customer is whether the customer's energy supply rate is set by the ESCO or the utility.

Numerous courts have held that consumers may recover against ESCOs like Just Energy who promise to base their rates on business and market conditions when plaintiffs show that the defendant ESCO's rate is higher than that of public utilities or where they show that rates do not otherwise change in a manner commensurate with market conditions. See, e.g., Burger v. Spark Energy Gas, LLC, 507 F. Supp. 3d 982, 990 (N.D. Ill. 2020) ("Burger[] . . . alleg[es] that the Terms of Service provided that the variable rate 'may vary based on market conditions' and that [the ESCO] exercised its discretion contrary to consumers' reasonable expectations by setting a variable rate that did not fluctuate in connection with market conditions. Therefore . . . Burger can proceed on her contract claim concerning the variable rate based on a breach of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing."); Mirkin v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-1057, 2016 WL 3661106, at *8 (D. Conn. July 5, 2016) (holding that the plaintiffs plausibly alleged breach of contract where the contract provided that variable rates will be "based on wholesale market conditions" and variable rate failed to track wholesale market rates) (citing Sanborn v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 14-1731, and Steketee v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-585); Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-8706 (RBK/JS), 2016 WL 6775635, at *3 (D.N.J. Nov. 15, 2016) ("Here, the [contract] states that the flex-rate plan uses a rate that 'may vary according to market conditions.' In both pending class actions, the Representative Plaintiffs can prove that Just Energy's rates were substantially higher than utility rates and not commensurate with market conditions. See Compl. at 44-47, Donin Dkt. No. 17 (showing Just Energy's rate was typically between 30% and 50% higher than the utility rate); Compl. at 6-8, Jordet Dkt. B. Courts Regularly Certify Classes of Consumers Against ESCOs That Charge Rates Higher Than Allowed under the ESCOs' Customer Contracts Four courts have addressed a contested motion to certify a class of customers of ESCOs like Just Energy who were overcharged under the terms of their written customer agreements, and each held that certification was appropriate. See Bell v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., No. 31168/2018 (Rockland Cnty. Super. Ct. Jan. 8, 2021), NYSCEF Doc. No. 152; BLT Steak LLC v. Liberty Power Corp, L.L.C., No. 151293/2013 (N.Y. Cnty., Super. Power & Gas, LLC*, No. 15-1261, 2016 WL 7009062 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2016) (a case in which the plaintiff was represented by FBFG); *Roberts v. [4] Numerous other courts have followed suit in the settlement context. See, e.g., Edwards v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, 2018 WL 3715273, at *6–8 (D. Conn. Aug. 3, 2018) (granting final approval of settlement class, finding the requirements for class certification satisfied); Silvis v. Ambit Energy L.P., 326 F.R.D. 419, 428–29 (E.D. Pa. 2018) (same); Hamlen v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., Case No. 16-3526, ECF

Indeed, there are few cases better suited for class certification than the instant actions. The Representative Plaintiffs' claims, like those of each Class Member, arise out of uniform misrepresentations regarding the pricing methodology for Just Energy's variable rate made in its standard customer agreements. Additionally, not only are the misrepresentations concerning Just Energy's variable rate uniform, but the resultant injury to Class Members is also uniform because when Just Energy sets its variable rates each month, it uses standardized procedures within each utility region. Thus, the proposed Class is easily amenable to certification.

III. The Increasing Regulatory Denunciation of Just Energy's Pricing Practices Strongly Supports the Class Action Claims

Almost all of the states in the U.S. that deregulated their energy markets did so in the mid-to-late 1990s. This wave of deregulation was pushed by then-corporate superstar Enron. For example, in December 1996 when energy deregulation was being considered in Connecticut, Enron CEO Jeffrey Skilling, dubbed "[t]he most aggressive proponent" of deregulation, said:

> Every day we delay [deregulation], we're costing consumers a lot of money . . . . It can be done quickly. The key is to get the legislation done fast.[5]

Operating under this concocted sense of urgency, states in the U.S. that deregulated suffered serious consumer harm. For example, in 2001, forty-two states had started the deregulation process or were considering deregulation. Today the number of full or partially deregulated U.S. states has dwindled to only seventeen and the District of Columbia. Even within those states, several have recognized deregulation's potential harm to everyday consumers and thus only allow large-scale consumers to purchase from ESCOs.

Responding to shocking energy prices, many key players that supported deregulation now regret the role they played. For example, reflecting on Maryland's deregulation experience, a Maryland Senator commented that "[d]eregulation has failed. We are not going to give up on re-regulation till it is done."[6]

A Connecticut leader who participated in that state's foray into energy deregulation was similarly regretful:

> Probably six out of the 187 legislators understood it at the time, because it is so incredibly complex . . . . If somebody says, no, we didn't screw up, then I don't know what world we are living in. We did.[7]

As a result of the widespread improper pricing practices by ESCOs like Just Energy, more than a decade ago states like New York began enacting remedial legislation meant to "establish[] important consumer safeguards in the marketing and offering of contracts for energy services to residential and small business customers."[8] As the drafters of this legislation noted, New York's ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, codified as G.B.L. Section 349-d, in 2010 sought to end the exact type of conduct that harmed the Just Energy Entities' U.S. customers:

> Over the past decade, New York has promoted a competitive retail model for the provision of electricity and natural gas. Consumers have been encouraged to switch service providers from traditional utilities to energy services companies. Unfortunately, consumer protection appears to have taken a back seat in this process.
> High-pressure and misleading sales tactics, onerous contracts with unfathomable fine print, short-term "teaser" rates followed by skyrocketing variable prices—many of the problems recently seen with subprime mortgages are being repeated in energy competition.[9]

State regulators have for years also denounced predatory pricing practices like those challenged in the class actions. For example, in 2014 the New York's Public Service Commission (the "NYPSC") declared that New York's retail energy markets were plagued with "marketing behavior that creates and too often relies on customer confusion."[10] The NYPSC further noted "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[11] The NYPSC concluded as follows:

> [A]s currently structured, the retail energy commodity markets for residential and small nonresidential customers cannot be considered > to be workably competitive. Although there are a large number of suppliers and buyers, and suppliers can readily enter and exit the market, the general absence of information on market conditions, particularly the price charged by competitors, is an impediment to effective competition . . . . [12]

The NYPSC's consumer complaint data confirms this. The number of deceptive marketing allegations against ESCOs far exceed the combined number of complaints submitted regarding all other utilities in New York, including the lightly regulated telecommunications industry.

Many NYPSC complaints concern variable rate pricing like that practiced by the Just Energy Entities. Under this pricing practice, during an initial teaser or fixed rate period, the customer's energy supply costs are more or less as advertised, but after the initial period expires, instead of switching the consumer back to the utility, the ESCO uses customer inaction to substantially increase the price without further notice or explanation as to how the new rate is determined.

The conduct of ESCOs like the Just Energy Entities has been devastating to consumers across the United States. For example, "[a]ccording to the data provided by [New York's] utilities, the approximately two million New York State residential utility customers who took commodity service from an ESCO collectively paid almost $1.2 billion more than they would have paid if they purchased commodity from their distribution utility during the 36-months ending December 31, 2016."[13] "Additionally, small commercial customers paid $136 million more than they would have paid if they instead simply remained with their default utilities for commodity supply for the same 36-month period."[14] Combining these two groups, New York consumers have been "'overcharged' by over $1.3 billion dollars over this time period."[15]

Based on the flood of consumer complaints, negative media reports, and data demonstrating massive overcharges, the NYPSC announced in December 2016 an evidentiary hearing to consider primarily whether ESCOs should be "completely prohibited from serving their current products" to New York residential consumers.[16] Then, on December 16, 2016, the NYPSC permanently prohibited ESCOs from serving low-income customers, because of "the persistent ESCO failure to address (or even apparently to acknowledge) the problem of overcharges to [low income] customers . . . ."[17]

Following the first part of the evidentiary hearing announced in December 2016, on March 30, 2018, NYPSC staff announced the following conclusions about ESCOs:

> [A]s the current retail access mass markets are structured, customers simply cannot make fully informed and fact-based choices on price . . . since the terms and pricing of the ESCO product offerings are not transparent to customers. For variable rate products this is due, in large part, to the fact that ESCOs often offer "teaser rates" to start, and after expiration of the teaser rate, the rate is changed to what is called a "market rate" that is not transparent to the customer, and the contract signed by the customer does not provide information on how that "market rate" is calculated.[18]
> ESCOs take advantage of the mass market customers' lack of knowledge and understanding of, among other issues, the electric and gas commodity markets, commodity pricing, and contract terms (which often extend to three full pages), and in particular, the ESCOs' use of teaser rates and "market based rate" mechanisms that customers are charged after the teaser rate expires. In fact, ESCOs appear to be unwilling to provide the necessary product pricing details as to how those "market based rates" are derived to mass market customers in a manner that is transparent so as to enable an open and competitive marketplace where customers can participate fairly and with the necessary knowledge to make rational and fully informed decisions on whether it is in their best interest to take commodity service from their default utility, or from a particular ESCO among competing but equally opaque choices.[19]

In response to these criticisms, the ESCOs claimed that their marketing and overhead costs explain the overcharges, but NYPSC staff found that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges."[20] Likewise, when the ESCOs claimed that their provision to consumers of so-called value-added products such as light bulbs and thermostats contributed to their excessive rates, NYPSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[21]

Similarly, the NYPSC staff found that the "claim that at least a portion of the significant delta between ESCO and utility charges is explained by ESCOs offering renewable energy is disingenuous at best. ESCOs may be charging a premium for green energy, but they are not actually providing a significant amount of added renewable energy to customers in New York."[22]

Instead, NYPSC staff reached the following conclusion:

> The massive $1.3 billion in overcharges is the result of higher, and more often than not, significantly higher, commodity costs imposed by the ESCOs on unsuspecting residential and other mass market customers. These overcharges are simply due to (1) the lack of transparency and greed in the market, which prevents customers from making rational economic choices based on facts rather than the promises of the ESCO representative, and (2) obvious efforts by the ESCOs to prevent, or at least limit, the transparency of the market. These obvious efforts include the lack of a definition for "market rate" in their contracts, resulting in the fattening of ESCOs' retained earnings.[23]

Following these conclusions, in December 2019 the NYPSC banned the exact same variable rate pricing practices the Representative Plaintiffs challenge in the class actions. The NYPSC's press release announcing the ban on variable energy rates does not mince words, stressing that it was intended to "prevent[] bad actors among ESCOs from overcharging New York consumers" and that the regulations only went forward after "the state's highest court definitively halted ESCOs' attempts to use litigation to evade and/or delay consumer-protection regulation."[24] The regulations themselves likewise condemn ESCOs' conduct and declare that "avoiding accountability" has become a "business model" in the deregulated energy market:

> Based upon the number of customer complaints that continue to be made against ESCOs, and the likely need for increased enforcement activities, the large number of ESCO customers that pay significant premiums for products with little or no apparent added benefit, . . . it appears that a material level of misleading marketing practices continues to plague the retail access market.

> The persistence of complaints related to ESCO marketing practices is indicative of some ESCOs continuing to skirt rules and attempting to avoid accountability as part of their business model.[25]

The NYPSC's variable rate ban followed a two-year investigation of ESCO practices that culminated in a 10-day evidentiary hearing to examine evidence submitted by 19 parties and to hear the testimony and cross-examination of 22 witnesses and witness panels.[26]

The NYPSC prefaced the ban with the observation that variable energy rates—like those the Just Energy Entities charged the Representative Plaintiffs and the Class—are "[t]he most commonly offered ESCO product" and that this popular product is frequently provided at "a higher price than charged by the utilities."[27] The absurdity of consumers paying ESCOs more for the exact same energy offered by regulated utilities was not lost on the NYPSC:

> If market participants are unwilling, or unable, to provide material benefits to consumers beyond those provided by utilities in exchange for a regulated, just and reasonable rate, the market serves no proper purpose and should be ended.[28]

In fact, the NYPSC found it "troubling" that even after considering reams of evidence "neither ESCOs nor any other party have shown . . . that ESCO charges above utility rates were generally – or in any specific instances – justified."[29] This fact only highlighted the NYPSC's "long-held concern that many customers may only be taking ESCO service due to their misunderstanding of [ESCOs'] products and/or prices."[30]

Accordingly, and on this record, the NYPSC banned variable energy rates like those the Just Energy Entities charged to the Representative Plaintiffs and the Class.[31] In place of these floating variable rates, the NYPSC required ESCOs to guarantee that their variable rates would save customers money compared to what the utility would have charged.[32] Under the new regulations, if the ESCO charges the consumer more than the utility, the consumer is owed a refund for the difference.[33] In the Representative Plaintiffs' class actions, the difference between what the Just Energy Entities charged consumers for the exact same energy that Class Members' utilities would have charged is more than US$2 billion. The NYPSC's regulations took effect in April 2021. Around the same time, the Just Energy Entities ceased offering service in New York and attempted to reframe the state's ban on the Just Energy Entities' core business practice as "regulatory constraints . . . requiring certain variable rate customers to be dropped to the utility."[34]

IV. Just Energy's Damning Public Dossier Further Supports the Class Actions

The Just Energy Entities have amassed a damning public dossier that includes at least six regulatory enforcement actions, reams of investigative journalism exposing Just Energy's deceptive practices, and countless negative customer reviews.

For example, on December 31, 2014, Just Energy agreed to settle claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General that are strikingly similar to those of the Representative Plaintiffs', making various concessions related to its deceptive energy sales and billing practices in Massachusetts.[35]

The Massachusetts Attorney General alleged that Just Energy made misleading, false, and unlawful representations and omissions concerning its energy, including that:

> Just Energy represented to consumers that purchasing residential gas and/or electricity from Just Energy will save customers money;
>
> Just Energy failed to disclose complete and accurate pricing information; and
> Just Energy failed to disclose to consumers that its rates following any introductory period may be higher than the rates charged by consumers' traditional utilities.[36]

In response to the Massachusetts Attorney General's allegations, Just Energy agreed to refund a total of US$4,000,000 to Massachusetts customers along with implementing several key changes to its marketing and sales practices, as follows:

> Where Just Energy quotes introductory teaser rates in its marketing material or in any verbal representation, the rate quote must be accompanied by a statement informing consumers that the quoted rate is an introductory rate and state when the rate will expire.[38]

Just Energy was banned for three years from enrolling Massachusetts consumers into variable rate energy products unless it complied with the following requirements:

> Within 30 days of a customer enrolling in a variable energy rate product, Just Energy must provide the customer with written notice of the date on which the introductory rate will expire.

> Any new contracts for variable rate products shall either (i) include the calculation that will be used to set monthly rates under the contract such that the customer can calculate the cost of Just Energy's residential energy, or (ii) make the rates available 60 days in advance via phone and the internet.[39]

Additionally, for three years Just Energy was banned from charging Massachusetts consumers variable electricity rates in excess of 14.25¢ per kWh.[40, 41] The settlement further provided that:

> For current Just Energy variable rate customers, the company is required to clearly and conspicuously post its current variable rates and post subsequent variable rates with at least 45 days advance notice.[42] Just Energy is also required to mail notice to all existing Massachusetts variable rate customers alerting them to the fact that advance pricing information is now available via phone and on Just

The Massachusetts Attorney General's sweeping action was far from the first time the Just Energy Entities had been targeted by regulators.

For example, in June 2003, the Toronto Star reported that Just Energy (then operating under the name Ontario Energy Savings Corp.) was fined for violating the Ontario Energy Board's code of conduct by fraudulently enrolling customers.[46]

In 2008, the Illinois Attorney General sued U.S. Energy Savings Corp. (whose name was changed to Just Energy in 2012), alleging violations of Illinois' consumer fraud laws. The May 2009 Press Release announcing a US$1 million settlement noted that the Illinois Attorney General had "received a nearly unprecedented number of calls from consumers who were deceived by false assurances that they would receive significant savings by switching to this alternative gas supplier."[47] According to the Attorney General's complaint, among other deceptive conduct "consumers were led to believe that they would automatically save money by enrolling in the U.S. Energy Savings program."[48]

During this same period, the Citizens Utility Board (the "CUB") and AARP filed a formal complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission (the "ICC") alleging, inter alia, that Just Energy told customers they would "save money" by signing up, that consumers would not see any gas price increases if they signed up, and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[49] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, fined the company US$90,000, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[50]

In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a US$200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[51]

In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[52] The article also mentions that some of the complaints that led to the PUCO's action "stemmed from contracts sold on behalf of Just Energy by another company, saveonenergy.com."[53]

There are also thousands of complaints about the Just Energy Entities on the internet. Over the last three years alone, Just Energy has had at least 282 complaints filed against it with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB").[54] Even though Just Energy is listed on the BBB's website as having been in business for 24 years, the BBB clearly declares that "THIS BUSINESS IS NOT BBB ACCREDITED" and displays the following "Pattern of Complaint" warning to the consuming public:

> BBB files indicate that this business has a pattern of complaints concerning door to door sales representatives who are using misleading sales tactics, misrepresenting themselves as the consumer's current energy or gas company, and not being transparent about cancellations fees which may be charged by their

> In November 2019, consumers also began filing customer reviews alleging sales representatives stationed at a local warehouse club were not being truthful about the rates for natural gas. We also received a customer review that stated the Just Energy employee was wearing a t-shirt with the warehouse club's logo.

Media reports about Just Energy equally condemn the Just Energy Entities. When the confidential results of the Illinois Commerce Commission's audit referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[55] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[56]

A 2014 exposé by Canada's Global News highlights that the "CUB, the Better Business Bureau (BBB), the Ontario Energy Board, among others, have been inundated with complaints from consumers about the sales methods employed by Just Energy. The most common grievance is Just Energy promises people savings that don't materialize."[57]

The exposé further reported that Just Energy's founder Rebecca MacDonald has "raked in an estimated $150 million from the company since she established it in the 1990s" and is facing accusations "over whether she's misled investors in her company."[58] Those accusations include that MacDonald faked her credentials and the conclusions by "two of Canada's top forensic accounting firms" that Just Energy used "an unregulated form of accounting to paint a much rosier picture of the company's financial situation," which in turn allowed Just Energy to show an "artificial profit."[59]

The Global News exposé also contains a 22-minute video entitled the "Just Energy Hustle." Below is an excerpt of a Global News journalist's videotaped interview with Just Energy's then-Co-CEO Deborah Merril. Despite having joined Just Energy in 2007, in the 2014 interview the

More than a year prior to the Global News exposé, on July 31, 2013, New York-based investment management firm Spruce Point Capital Management released an investment analysis that labeled Just Energy as "a company that U.S. consumers and investors are quickly realizing has become toxic to their wallets through deceptive energy marketing practices, and harmful to their brokerage accounts."[61] The report signaled that Just Energy's "growth appears to be the result of deceptive sales tactics, now at risk of unravelling" which is "evidenced by a large body of consumer fraud complaints."[62] The report also highlights how Just Energy uses a teaser rate to deceive consumers:[63]

As noted in the table and analysis excerpted below, Just Energy (referred to in the report as "JE") "appears" to offer the lowest price fixed contract, but there's a 'catch:'

JE's gas RateFlex prices are fixed only for three months – despite the 5-year term – and after three months, the contract reverts to a fluctuating price based on "business and market conditions." The Electric RateFlex is fixed for 2 months. JE then gives its customers the option of locking in this new, variable and unknown price. The company tries to reassure consumers that the rate won't fluctuate that much by guaranteeing that the variable rate won't increase by more than 35% per month (see: section 7). Just Energy also allows consumers to cancel their contract free within 30 days – before the misleadingly low introductory price expires – but charges a $50 "Exit Fee" if cancelled thereafter. Of course, most consumers don't bother to read the fine print, particularly if salesmen are pushing quick cash back incentives with Visa Gift Cards for registering and referring friends.

A May 8, 2019 article in the Chicago Reporter tells a similar story. The article showcased the experience of a 45-year-old carpenter who, over the course of 10 years, paid Just Energy more than US$20,000 more than he would have paid his local utility.[64] This Just Energy customer's experience was used to highlight the then-proposed Illinois Home Energy Affordability & Transparency Act ("HEAT"). On August 27, 2019, Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker signed HEAT into law. Effective January 1, 2020, HEAT requires inter alia ESCOs like Just Energy operating in Illinois to include the utility's comparison price on all marketing materials, during telephone or door-to-door solicitations, and on every consumer's utility bill so consumers can make informed price comparisons.

In addition, on May 9, 2019, CommonWealth featured the Massachusetts Attorney General's findings that Massachusetts consumers who switched to ESCOs paid US$177 million more over a two-year period than they would have if they had stayed with the local utility.[65] The CommonWealth article references the fact that the Massachusetts Attorney General brought successful lawsuits against ESCOs "including Just Energy" which actions resulted "in almost $10 million in refunds to consumers and forc[ed] the defendant companies to cease their unfair practices." Id.

V. The Class Actions Encompass Approximately 8,000,000 U.S. Just Energy Customers

Using Just Energy's public 2015 Annual Report (which covers the year ended March 31, 2015), Class Counsel calculated the approximate number of Class Members during the relevant period of 2011 to present:

A. U.S. Residential Electric Class Members – 2,481,640 RCEs[66]

C. U.S. Commercial Electric Class Members – 3,702,200 RCEs

D. U.S. Commercial Gas Class Members – 596,040 RCEs

Total U.S. Residential Class Members (Electric and Gas Combined) – 3,577,820 RCEs

Total U.S. Class Members (All Combined) – 7,876,060 RCEs

Regarding Class Counsel's methodology for calculating the U.S. class size, Just Energy's 2015 Annual Report discloses (a) the number of worldwide Just Energy gas RCEs by commodity and the number of worldwide Just Energy electric RCEs by commodity for the year ended April 1, 2014, and (b) the "additional" number of worldwide gas and worldwide electric RCEs by commodity added in the one-year period from April 1, 2014, to March 31, 2015. The 2015 Annual Report also identifies the percentage of Just Energy's customer base that takes service in the U.S. and distinguishes between commercial and residential RCEs.

Beginning with the April 1, 2014 current customer data, Class Counsel used the percentage of U.S. Just Energy customers to calculate the number of U.S. residential and commercial gas and electric customers as of April 1, 2014. Class Counsel then took the number of additional gas and electric customers added in the one-year period from April 1, 2014 to March 31, 2015 and multiplied it by the percentage of U.S. Just Energy customers to determine the number of U.S. gas and electric customers added at each service level during this one-year period. For example, Just Energy's 2015 Annual Report states that as of April 1, 2014 Just Energy had 1,198,000 RCEs and that 72% of Just Energy customer base takes service in the U.S. Class Counsel thus calculate that as of the April 1, 2015, the Just Energy Entities had approximately 862,560 U.S. residential electric customers (i.e. 1,198,00 RCEs x .72). The 2015 Annual Report also states that Just Energy added 489,000 residential RCEs in the one-year period from April 1, 2014, to March 31, 2015. Using the same percentage of U.S. based customers (72%), Class Counsel [66] According to Just Energy's 2021 Annual Report, an "RCE" means residential customer equivalent, which is a unit of measurement equivalent to a customer using 2,815 m3 (or 106 GJs or 1,000 Therms or 1,025 CCFs) of natural gas on an annual basis or 10 MWh (or 10,000 kWh) of electricity on an annual basis, which represents the approximate amount of gas and electricity, respectively, used by a typical household in Ontario, Canada.

calculates that during this one-year period Just Energy added approximately 352,080 U.S. residential electric customers (i.e. 489,000 RCEs x .72).

During each of the reporting years from 2015 to 2021, Just Energy reported figures for the number of additional residential and commercial gas and electric RCEs as well as the percentage of Just Energy's U.S. customer base. Beginning with the 2014 total customer count and using only the "additional" U.S. residential and commercial RCEs added each year, Class Counsel calculated the approximate total class size. The following chart summarizes Class Counsel's class size calculations:

Year	U.S. Residential Electric Customers Added	U.S. Residential Gas Customers Added	U.S. Commercial Electric Customers Added	U.S. Commercial Gas Customers Added
2014[67]	862,560	537,840	1,627,920	146,880
2015	352,080	133,920	503,280	48,240
2016	271,440	105,120	395,280	61,920
2017	237,850	85,200	234,300	38,340
2018	260,000	115,700	274,950	110,500
2019	226,800	87,570	291,690	88,200
2020	142,120	25,160	259,760	59,840
2021	128,790	5,670	115,020	42,120
Total	2,481,640	1,096,180	3,702,200	596,040
Total Customers Across All Four Customer Categories:				7,876,060

Please note that due to missing data from the 2011 to 2014 period, these calculations are underinclusive. With discovery, the Representative Plaintiffs' expert will be able to provide the exact class size.

[67] 2014 figures represent current U.S. Just Energy customers as of April 1, 2014.

Exhibit 1

EXPERT REPORT OF DR. SERHAN OGUR

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. Introduction and Qualifications

My name is Serhan Ogur, Ph.D., and I am a Senior Economist and Principal at Exeter Associates, Inc. ("Exeter"). Exeter is an economics consulting firm specializing in regulated energy industries (e.g., electricity and natural gas) and in competitive wholesale and retail electric power markets.

In this report, I have been asked by the Plaintiffs' counsel to offer my expert opinions on the following topics:

1. How energy service companies ("ESCOs"), such as Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy Solutions Inc., and other affiliated Just Energy entities (collectively, "Just Energy") can procure electricity and natural gas for their customers;
2. Whether ESCOs like Just Energy bear more or less risk to service fixed- or variable-rate customers; and
3. How much Just Energy variable-rate customers were overcharged from 2011 to 2020.

I have worked on electric power market issues for 20 years, including both wholesale and retail market issues. Prior to joining Exeter, I was employed by the Illinois Commerce Commission ("ICC"); PJM Interconnection, LLC ("PJM"); and Fellon-McCord & Associates, LLC ("Fellon-McCord").

At the ICC, I worked at the Federal Energy Program ("FEP") under the Energy Division. The FEP's function is to advise ICC's commissioners on all energy-related matters that fall within the jurisdiction of the federal government (e.g., the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ["FERC"], the Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. Department of Justice). The duties I performed at the FEP included reviewing federal and state rate cases, reviewing utility filings at the FERC regarding the formation of regional transmission organizations ("RTOs"), and serving as the ICC Staff's expert witness at ICC regulatory proceedings. While at the ICC, I testified in an electric utility merger case and in a case that established auction-based default service electric supply procurement and pricing mechanisms for the major investor-owned utilities ("IOUs") in Illinois.

At PJM, I was assigned to the Market Strategy and Performance Compliance departments. The duties I performed at PJM included periodic reporting to the board of managers, the senior management, and PJM's stakeholder committees on the performance of all markets and services administered by PJM.

At Fellon-McCord, I worked as the lead analyst at the Power Control Center, which was the department responsible for performing all wholesale and retail electricity market operation and compliance tasks of large customers that were their own load-serving entities ("LSEs") (rather than taking retail supply service from the incumbent utility or from a mass-market competitive supplier). My role at Fellon-McCord required me to be familiar with all wholesale and retail tasks (e.g., scheduling, forecasting, settlements, billing, risk management) related to supplying electric power to wholesale and retail end-users.

As previously noted, my current role is as a Senior Economist and Principal at Exeter Associates. The majority of Exeter's client base consists of federal and state government agencies, including the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Army, and the U.S. Department of Energy ("DOE") (as purchasers of electricity and natural gas from competitive retail suppliers in retail choice states and from the utility in bundled states); state offices of consumer advocate; state public utility commission ("PUC") staffs; and state offices of attorneys general. That work entails assisting federal government agencies (Air Force bases, Army installations, DOE national laboratories) with optimizing their utility services (electricity, natural gas, potable water, and wastewater) and minimizing their supply procurement costs, which requires in-depth knowledge of all facets of wholesale and retail electricity and natural gas markets. Exeter's work also entails supporting state governments and state agencies in energy-related formal proceedings (e.g., rate cases, default service implementation cases, utility merger and acquisition applications) before state PUCs and the FERC.

I have testified numerous times in front of the Pennsylvania PUC in default electric service design and implementation cases on behalf of the Pennsylvania Office of Consumer Advocate ("PA OCA"). I am a trusted advisor for the PA OCA in all matters related to electric utility regulation, wholesale and retail electricity markets, and electric power procurement and risk management.

I am the main consultant to the Defense Logistics Agency – Energy ("DLA Energy"), which in turn is one of the major power and natural gas procurement agencies for federal government sites (alongside the General Services Administration ["GSA"]), with competitive electricity acquisitions in some of the same markets, states, and utility service territories in which Just Energy is also active. I helped DLA Energy issue solicitations for competitive supply, evaluate the price and service offers, and draft contract terms in various markets. The states in which I helped DLA Energy procure competitive supply include Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Texas. I have extensive experience in the procurement of fixed-rate, variable-rate, and hybrid-type (arrangement with both fixed- and variable-rate elements) contracts.

I hold a doctorate degree in Economics from Northwestern University, where my studies focused on competition in deregulated wholesale electricity markets. My undergraduate degree is also in Economics from Bogazici University (Istanbul, Turkey). My resume, containing the state PUC dockets in which I have submitted written and oral testimony, is provided in Exhibit A.

II. Electricity and Natural Gas Markets

Historically, states have regulated the retail electricity and natural gas markets within their borders, including how utilities procure or supply electricity and natural gas, the retail prices charged for electricity and natural gas, and the distribution of electricity and natural gas to end-use customers.[1,2] The predominant electric utility model relied on fully vertically integrated local monopolies. These monopolies oversaw all aspects of electricity provision: generation, transmission and distribution, and the full suite of retail services.[3] Similarly, the regulated natural gas industry relied on the competitive procurement of natural gas in wholesale markets and the distribution of that gas to its retail customers.[4] States granted for-profit utilities licenses to operate these monopolies, subject to regulatory oversight. This arrangement is often referred to as the "state regulatory compact."

Under the state regulatory compact, state-regulated utilities agreed to provide safe and reliable public utility service. In return, the regulating body gave the utilities an exclusive franchise territory and allowed the utilities the opportunity to recover their reasonably and

prudently incurred costs.[5] In addition to cost recovery, the regulator provided the utilities an opportunity—but not a guarantee—to earn a fair return on their invested capital.[6]

Starting in the late 1980s and early 1990s, many states began considering the potential benefits of restructuring electricity and natural gas markets.[7] In particular, states evaluated the potential to deregulate—meaning substitute the forces of market competition for administrative control—portions of electricity and natural gas service to reduce costs and improve efficiency. Developments towards the deregulation of electricity and natural gas markets followed similar efforts in the airline, trucking, and telecommunications industries.[8]

During the late 1990s and early 2000s, several states officially unbundled their electricity and natural gas markets; that is, these states separated the functions of providing electric and natural gas service into competitive and non-competitive components.[9] Some components, such as the distribution of electricity and natural gas, both of which require significant amounts of upfront capital, were thought to be "natural" monopolies and, therefore, these functions were generally left to the traditional local monopoly providers. These non-competitive services remained subject to cost-of-service regulation and the regulatory compact. Other portions of electric and natural gas service, such as electric generation and natural gas supply procurement, were opened to market competition, in this case from independent power producers in electricity markets and independent retail natural gas suppliers in natural gas markets. Providers of these services no longer received the same guarantee of cost recovery, meaning they absorbed greater risk. They also, however, gained the ability to compete in previously closed markets and earn a market return.

In some states, policymakers went further by also opening the provision of retail services to competition. This last reform is referred to as retail deregulation, retail restructuring, or retail choice.[10] As many as 20 states have pursued electricity retail deregulation to some degree, including New York, the state in which Plaintiffs Ms. Fira Donin and Ms. Inna Golovan reside.[11] Similarly, as many as 25 states have implemented natural gas deregulation to some degree, including New York and Pennsylvania, the states in which Plaintiffs Ms. Donin and Mr. Trevor Jordet, respectively, reside. In electricity or natural gas retail choice states, customers have the option to purchase supply (i.e., unbundled service) from ESCOs under market-based rates.[12] This means that customers can "shop" among competing ESCOs for energy supply instead of relying on service from the local monopoly provider.

In retail choice states, apart from electricity supply in Texas, retail electricity and natural gas customers that either cannot switch to, or choose not to adopt service from, a competitive supplier are allowed to continue receiving service from the regulated local monopoly utility (i.e., bundled service).[13] Supply for default service is procured by the utilities (which serve as the default service providers in their respective service territories) in the competitive market. This procurement task takes various forms including default service auctions and procuring directly from wholesale markets,[14] depending on the state and the customer class.[15] The utilities rely on market-provided electric generation supply or competitively procured natural gas supply to serve their default service customers. In the case of electric power utilities, they are generally precluded from owning electric generation resources to avoid potentially anti-competitive impacts on the wholesale and retail markets.[16] Default service is provided by the utilities to default service customers without any, or with very little, markup. As a result, the supply price (or rate) associated with the energy component of default service, also known as the default service rate or the default price, reflects the costs of competitive, market-provided energy.[17]

[12] ESCOs are also referred to as alternative retail electric suppliers, third-party suppliers, retail electric providers, and retail electricity suppliers, depending on the state.

[13] Service from the local utility is also referred to as "default service" or "standard offer service."

[14] Default service auctions, also known in the industry as basic generation service auctions, are a way for the utilities to assign the responsibility or cost of serving the generation supply portion of their default service customers' loads to unregulated wholesale suppliers through a transparent procurement mechanism (auctions or requests for proposals) overseen by the PUCs.

The default service rate is also referred to as the "price to compare" ("PTC") in the energy industry. The PTC is the rate (or price) charged by the local utility to customers who are on default service for the portion of their electric and natural gas service that is open to competition. The default rate can change as frequently as monthly. Nevertheless, for residential customers in most states, the major components of default service rates change no more frequently than quarterly or semi-annually. It is typical that retail customers may leave or return to default service at any time without penalty from the default utility.

ESCOs procure electric power and natural gas on behalf of the customers they serve in a variety of ways. These include: (1) making short-term (day-ahead in the case of natural gas, and day-ahead or real-time in the case of electricity) purchases on wholesale markets established to facilitate the buying and selling of electricity and natural gas;[18] (2) purchasing electricity and natural gas in the wholesale market directly from power plants and from natural gas suppliers; (3) generating electricity from power plants owned or contracted for by the ESCO; (4) purchasing power and natural gas from wholesale brokers or marketers, including other ESCOs; and (5) any number of combinations of the above options.

In deregulated markets, the wholesale price of electricity and natural gas at any given time is determined by supply and demand conditions.[19] Supply factors include the price of fuels, the availability of generating and transmission and pipeline resources, and external conditions that could, for example, affect the availability of solar and wind generation (affecting electricity prices) or the production and transportation of natural gas. Demand is affected by weather conditions, time of day and day of week, and general economic conditions. In organized electricity and natural gas markets, the price is constantly changing, typically daily for natural gas and multiple times within each hour for electricity.

There are a variety of rate arrangements that ESCOs offer to shopping customers. Variable rates, which can change monthly, are the type of rate arrangement at issue in this case. Just

Energy offered customers service at a fixed rate for an initial period, often several months.[20] These fixed rates tended to be low or competitive relative to the PTC.[21] Thereafter, customers were automatically switched to variable-rate service. In the retail energy (electricity or natural gas) markets, the nature of the pricing arrangement between the ESCO and the end-use customer affects the way in which the energy supply can be rationally procured by the ESCO in the wholesale market.

When an ESCO acquires a fixed-rate customer, it has a strong incentive to hedge the purchase price of its projected sales to that customer for the duration of the term of the fixed-price retail supply contract at the time the contract is executed. Hedging refers to an attempt to eliminate most of or all the price risk associated with serving a customer's future consumption by entering into various transactions prior to the delivery period. Hedging to support a fixed rate for a specific contract duration allows the ESCO to try to lock in a profit by acquiring the customer's estimated future energy needs at a predetermined cost that is lower than the fixed rate at which the customer has agreed to pay the ESCO. If the ESCO does not hedge to avoid cost fluctuations for energy to serve a fixed-price contract, it incurs the risk of paying more for the customer's energy supply than the fixed rate at which the customer agreed to pay the ESCO. ESCOs typically hedge almost all of their expected fixed-rate supply contract exposure. However, if customers' actual usage is higher than expected, the ESCO faces the risk that the electricity or natural gas purchased to fill the gap between expected and actual usage will be more expensive than the hedged price or the fixed rate. Similarly, if the ESCO ends up being over-hedged due to unexpectedly low consumption or contract cancellations, the ESCO may have to sell the excess energy supply at a lower price and, as a result, incur a loss.

ESCOs have the opposite incentive for variable-rate supply contracts that are based on business and market conditions; that is, their incentive is to not hedge any of the variable-rate commitments. Hedging in this circumstance increases the ESCO's risk since the agreement between the ESCO and the variable-rate customer is such that the ESCO can pass through the market costs that the ESCO incurs to serve the customer's load, plus a reasonable profit margin. Therefore, the ESCO is assured of a profit if the ESCO serves the variable-rate customer's energy consumption through wholesale market purchases without any hedging.

III. Goals and Expectations of Electricity and Natural Gas Industry Restructuring

Energy industry restructuring consists of a variety of reforms intended to improve economic outcomes for market participants, including customers.[22] The typical reform model includes unbundling competitive market components such as electric generation, initiating new or expanded wholesale markets, and introducing competitive procurement of supply.

Retail deregulation (rather than just wholesale deregulation) is a relevant part of overall energy industry restructuring because it establishes how the benefits of wholesale restructuring can potentially be realized by retail customers.[23] Competition in retail markets should, theoretically, result in the convergence of retail and wholesale prices. ESCOs, unlike the franchised monopolies that previously supplied electricity and natural gas, are not guaranteed a customer base or the opportunity to earn a reasonable return. Thus, to be able to compete in an open market in which participants have reasonable access to relevant information, ESCOs should pass through cost savings to their customers, offer novel products and services, and better align service offerings with customer preferences. Additionally, to manage the risk inherent with serving load, ESCOs have an incentive to develop innovative procurement methods and practices.

There are two major risk categories associated with serving fixed-rate customers: volume risk and market price risk.[24] Volume risk refers to the consumption risk associated with such factors as the weather, increases and decreases in the number of customers, and general business and economic conditions. Market price risk stems from the need to balance energy requirements with purchases in the wholesale market.

Mistakes in procurement, marketing, or pricing to end-use consumers—including failure to account for the impacts of market forces—can result in economic losses to an ESCO. Success in managing these factors, meanwhile, can (but is not guaranteed to) provide economic gains.

These gains should reflect success with competing in the retail market based on the relative merit of the ESCO's competitive offerings.

The availability of default service provides a backstop to the competitive retail market. It also establishes a benchmark against which one can evaluate ESCOs' rates and the extent to which they offer a competitive rate. In other words, the PTC allows a comparison of the prices offered by ESCOs to what is available from the local monopoly utility, whose rates reflect market conditions.

An ESCO providing energy under a fixed-price arrangement will typically procure almost all of the needed supply using hedging instruments in order to lock in a price for a defined period into the future for a specified quantity of electricity.[25] The same is true for natural gas. The period of such hedges can extend out from days to several years. There is typically additional cost associated with forward-looking purchases since the wholesale supplier is being asked to absorb the market price risk, for which some degree of compensation is required. As the procurement period gets further away (i.e., the fixed-price contract extends further out), the cost of hedged energy generally becomes more expensive, holding all else equal. It is also important to note that some additional electricity and natural gas will need to be purchased to exactly match demand. Consequently, regardless of the hedging strategy, the ESCO will need to incur some degree of risk in serving its fixed-price customers. The potential benefit of a fixed-rate arrangement to the end-use customer is that rates remain stable for the duration of the contract period; that is, the market price risk is borne by the suppliers (some by the wholesale supplier(s) and some by the retail supplier).

Selling energy under a variable-rate arrangement in which the customer agreement provides that the rate may vary according to business or market conditions, as was done by Just Energy, relieves the supplier of almost all the risks applicable to fixed-price rates. If demand increases (e.g., due to weather conditions) or market prices increase, the ESCO can pass on the increased costs to its customers consistent with the contract arrangements under which the ESCO's customers agreed to receive service. In essence, the variable-rate arrangement shifts the burden of risk away from the ESCO and on to the end-use customer. The theoretical benefit of a variable-rate arrangement to the end-use customer is that the customer can expect that, on average, prices will be lower than they would be under a fixed-rate arrangement due to the difference in the incidence of risk, that is, because the ESCO bears less risk for variable-rate customers. Alternatively stated, variable-rate customers should incur a lower risk premium than fixed-price customers, which should translate into lower average prices.

IV. Calculation of Just Energy Overcharges

I am informed by the Plaintiffs' counsel that, in both the Jordet case and the Donin case, Just Energy's motions to dismiss were denied by the court and discovery will commence. In the absence of data that the Plaintiffs' counsel expects to be provided by Just Energy, I used publicly available data, as described in each relevant section below, to estimate how much the class of affected Just Energy customers were overcharged from 2011 to 2020. The affected class consists of the residential and commercial electricity and natural gas supply customers of Just Energy (and its affiliates) in the United States who purchased supply from Just Energy under variable rates between 2011 and the present day.[26] The overcharge theory is based on the difference between the electricity and natural gas rates the affected class were charged versus what they would have been charged if Just Energy's rates were based on business and market conditions.

A. Summary of Just Energy Overcharges

In the relevant sections of this report, I describe the methods by which I estimated Just Energy overcharges to the affected class by commodity (electricity and natural gas) and customer class (residential and commercial). Table 1 shows my estimates of Just Energy overcharges for residential electricity customers, commercial electricity customers, residential natural gas customers, and commercial natural gas customers, as well as the total overcharges.

[26] Just Energy also supplies electric and natural gas customers outside the U.S. Sales to those customers, and any potential overcharges related to those sales, are not included in this analysis, which is limited to only U.S. customers.

Table 1. Just Energy Overcharges by Commodity and Customer Class, 2011-2020
Commodity and Customer Class	Overcharges
Electricity – Residential	$1,144,609,092
Electricity – Commercial	$717,711,010
Natural Gas – Residential	$449,392,725
Natural Gas – Commercial	$68,624,767
Total	$2,380,337,594

I derived an estimate of Just Energy's overcharges to customers using two public sources of information: the Energy Information Administration's ("EIA's") Form 861, and Just Energy's annual reports. More specifically, I referenced the following information from each source:

- EIA Form 861: I downloaded the annual "Sales to Ultimate Customers" data from 2011-2020. The Sales to Ultimate Customers dataset, according to EIA's website, is "compiled from data collected on the Form EIA-861 and an estimate from Form EIA-861S for data by customer sector." It includes the following information: "retail revenue, sales, and customer counts by state, balancing authority, and class of service (including the transportation sector which was added in 2003) for each electric distribution utility or energy service provider."
- Just Energy Annual Reports: I downloaded the complete annual reports from Fiscal Years ("FYs") 2011-2021. In these reports, I referenced several measures of Just Energy's gross margin (i.e., net sales less the cost of goods sold) and load served. Load served is represented in terms of Residential Customer Equivalent ("RCE"). Just Energy subdivides gross margin and RCE by geographic region (e.g., U.S., Canada, United Kingdom), customer type (e.g., residential or commercial), and commodity type (e.g., natural gas or electricity). The availability of any particular cross-sectional data point (e.g., RCEs for U.S.-based residential gas customers), however, depends on the report year.

In addition to the above public sources, I also referenced utility billing data provided by the Plaintiffs' counsel (from the two complaints in Jordet and Donin). More specifically, I referenced the following four datasets:

- Mr. Jordet's natural gas supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy natural gas supply rate for service between April 15, 2016 and February 15, 2018 (22 billing periods) and the PECO Energy Corporation ("PECO") default natural gas service rate for the same period. The provided information was converted from per-hundred-cubic-feet ("CCF") to per-therm using a conversion ratio of 1 therm = 1.037 CCF.

- Ms. Donin's natural gas supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy natural gas supply rate for service between January 5, 2015 and July 5, 2016 (17 billing periods) and the National Grid USA Service Company, Inc. ("National Grid") default natural gas service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-therm.

- Ms. Donin's electricity supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy electricity supply rate for service between June 26, 2011 and July 28, 2016 (49 billing periods) and the Consolidated Edison, Inc. ("ConEd") default electricity service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-kilowatt-hour ("kWh").

- Ms. Golovan's electricity supply bills: Provided data include the Just Energy electricity supply rate for service between July 10, 2014 and May 11, 2015 (10 billing periods) and the ConEd default electricity service rate for the same period. Both rates are represented as per-kWh.

For each of the four customer class/commodity pairings (i.e., residential electric, commercial electric, residential natural gas, commercial natural gas), I estimated overcharges using two key measures: Just Energy's excess margin and the quantity of affected Just Energy load. Excess margin represents the amount by which Just Energy is estimated to have charged variable-rate customers in excess of rates that reflect market conditions. The quantity of affected load represents the estimated aggregate class size (i.e., energy usage subject to Just Energy's excess margin). The product of the excess margin and quantity of affected load is equal to the total overcharges incurred by the affected class. The assumptions used to estimate both of these factors differ by customer type (i.e., residential versus commercial) and by utility type (i.e., natural gas versus electricity) due to the nature of provided and/or available data. The following subsections discuss the applicable assumptions for the estimates provided above in Table 1.

The price a variable-rate customer should have been charged in any given month or billing period can be calculated based on a number of benchmarks, including the PTC, or Just Energy's realized cost of serving that customer during that billing period (plus a reasonable profit margin). Once discovery is conducted (and monthly customer-level sales and price data, and cost of sales data, are provided by Just Energy), overcharges can be calculated more precisely for each member of the affected class as well as for the entire class.

I summarize the caveats to my analysis and estimates in the last subsection of this section.

B. Estimated Overcharges to Residential Electricity Customers

I estimated excess margins for all residential electricity customers using the average excess electricity margin applicable to Ms. Donin between June 2012 and July 2016. For each separate billing month within this time frame, I subtracted the default supply rate (i.e., the ConEd PTC rate) from Ms. Donin's Just Energy supply rate. The difference between the Just Energy and default service rate represents the excess margin. The magnitude and direction of the excess margin varies by month. To account for this variability, I used the average excess margin for the full period of provided data.[27] Ms. Donin's average excess electricity margin over these 49 billing periods was $0.0340/kWh.

I estimated the quantity of affected residential electricity load using annual reporting (provided by Just Energy) captured in EIA Form 861. More specifically, I summed the total quantity of reported residential load served by Just Energy and each of Just Energy's affiliates for each year between 2011 and 2020. Available information includes data for Just Energy, Just Energy New York Corp., Amigo Energy, Commerce Energy, Hudson Energy Services, and Tara Energy, LLC. These entities collectively serve or served customers in the following 11 states: California, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas. EIA Form 816 data include customers served under various retail rate products, including variable- and fixed-rate plans. I account for the inclusion of non-class volumes (i.e., fixed-rate contracts) in EIA Form 861 data by scaling the total volume by half (i.e., 50%). I selected 50% as a reasonable mid-point given the absence of further information about the nature of Just Energy's customer book and the share of customers served under rates included within the Plaintiffs' proposed class.

I estimated overcharges to residential electricity customers as follows:

= 67,260,022,000 kWh x 0.5 x $0.0340/kWh
= $1,144,609,092[28]

[27] The electric billing for Ms. Donin is inclusive of the time frame during which Just Energy served another Plaintiff, Ms. Golovan. Further, Ms. Golovan also received Just Energy service in place of default supply from ConEd. I elected to exclude Ms. Golovan's electric billing data to avoid over-weighting the overlapped time period (i.e., July 2014 – May 2015). I note that including Ms. Golovan's excess margins in the excess residential electricity margin calculation would have increased the resulting excess residential electricity margin. Therefore, calculating the excess residential electricity margin based solely on Ms. Donin's billing data is a conservative assumption.

[28] The mismatch is due to independent rounding.

C. Estimated Overcharges to Commercial Electricity Customers

I estimated the excess margin for commercial electricity customers by using the excess electricity margin I calculated for residential customers (see Subsection B above) as the starting point. I adjusted the residential customer excess margin to reflect the average difference in Just Energy's gross margin for residential and commercial customers, as reported by Just Energy on an RCE basis. In general, gross margin for commercial customers is lower than gross margin for residential customers. I evaluated several data points in Just Energy's annual reports to identify the appropriate scaling ratio, and ultimately used 27.3%. This scaling factor equals the ratio of realized base gross margin per RCE for commercial electricity customers to the realized base gross margin per RCE for residential electricity customers, averaged over a two-year period (FY 2020 and FY 2021). Just Energy does not provide a similar measure of realized base gross margin per RCE (as distinguished by commodity and customer class) in its annual reports prior to 2020. However, other potential metrics yield similar average ratios despite being less precise.[29] Multiplying the excess residential electricity margin (i.e., $0.0340/kWh) by the 27.3% adjustment factor for commercial customers yields an estimated excess commercial electricity margin of $0.0093/kWh.

I estimated the quantity of affected electricity customer load using annual reporting (provided to EIA by Just Energy) captured in EIA Form 861. More specifically, I summed the total quantity of reported commercial load served by Just Energy and each of Just Energy's affiliates for each year from 2011 through 2020. The affiliates and the states are the same for commercial and residential customer segments, except for the inclusion of Tara Energy Resources for commercial customers. Similar to the assumption I employed in the residential electricity subsection, I scaled the total volume by half (i.e., 50%) to account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in EIA Form 861 data.

[29] The ratio of average gross margin per RCE (not accounting for commodity type) for commercial and residential customers ranges from 23% to 42% and averages 35% from FY 2013 through FY 2021. A calculated average base gross margin per RCE using reported electricity base gross margin and electricity end-of-fiscal year RCEs (i.e., a point-in-time total, rather than inclusive of all points in time during the period) adjusted for U.S.-only RCEs yields a ratio that ranges from 17% to 36% and averages 23% from FY 2011 through FY 2021.

I estimated overcharges to commercial electricity customers as follows:

= 154,577,982,000 kWh x 0.5 x $0.0093/kWh

D. Estimated Overcharges to Residential Natural Gas Customers

I estimated the excess margin for all residential natural gas customers using the average excess natural gas margin applicable to Plaintiffs Mr. Jordet and Ms. Donin from April 2016 to February 2018 and from January 2015 to July 2016, respectively. For each separate billing month within this time frame (for both customers), I subtracted the default supply rate (i.e., PECO or National Grid service rate) from the applicable Just Energy supply rate. To account for variability, I used the average excess margin for the full period of provided data. The average excess natural gas margin over these 22 billing periods for Mr. Jordet and 17 billing periods for Ms. Donin was $0.2478/therm.

I estimated the quantity of affected residential natural gas load using RCE data provided in Just Energy's annual reports. First, I identified the end-of-period RCE quantities by customer class and commodity type. These data points are available as far back as FY 2013. For FY 2011 and FY 2012, Just Energy's RCE reporting does not distinguish between residential and commercial customers. For these years, I apportioned the provided total RCEs between customer classes using the average ratio of residential to commercial RCEs from the FY 2013 through FY 2021 period. Second, I adjusted the provided RCE data to remove non-U.S. customers. This adjustment was made using a percentage share of RCEs attributable to U.S. customers. The best available data from Just Energy were used for each review period year when adjusting for U.S. versus non-U.S. location.[31] Third, I converted RCEs into therms using Just Energy's provided definition of 1 RCE = 1,000 therms per year for natural gas customers. Fourth, I shifted the data to a calendar year basis (versus fiscal year basis) using period weighting. The estimated RCE data in each Annual Report represent an end-of-period, point-in-time estimate as of the last day (March 31) of the applicable FY. I derived 25% of the weighted total for a calendar year from the FY report starting in the same year, and the remaining 75% portion for the FY report starting in the next year.[32] Fifth, I adjusted the RCE to better approximate actual load to account for distinctions between RCEs (an aggregate, imprecise measure) and customer usage. The scaling factor applied to this adjustment is calculated based on the observed relationship between residential electricity RCEs (converted into kWh using a similar process as Steps 1 through 4 outlined above) and EIA-reported annual residential usage. For residential customers, this scaling factor equals 86% (i.e., actual load is lower than RCE load) based on the average ratio between Just Energy RCEs and EIA Form 861 kWh load from 2011 through 2020 for residential customers. Finally, similar to the approach I followed as described in the previous subsections, I account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in Just Energy's RCE totals by scaling the total volume by half (i.e., 50%).

[30] The mismatch is due to independent rounding.

[31] From FY 2017 to FY 2021, this share is differentiated by customer type but not by commodity type. From FY 2013 to FY 2016, this share is only provided on a book-wide basis (i.e., not differentiated by customer type or by commodity type). From FY 2011 to FY 2012, this share is differentiated by commodity type but not by customer type.

I estimated overcharges to residential natural gas customers as follows:

= 3,626,720,117 therms x 0.5 x $0.2478/therm
= $449,392,725[33]

E. Estimated Overcharges to Commercial Natural Gas Customers

I estimated the excess margin for commercial natural gas customers by using the excess natural gas margin I calculated for residential customers (see above) as the starting point. I adjusted the excess natural gas margin for residential customers to reflect the average difference in Just Energy's gross margin for residential and commercial customers. I evaluated several data points in Just Energy's annual reports to identify the appropriate scaling ratio, and ultimately used 25.1%. This ratio equals the ratio of the realized base gross margin per RCE for commercial gas customers to the realized base gross margin per RCE for residential gas customers, averaged over a two-year period (FY 2020 and FY 2021). As noted above, Just Energy does not provide a similar measure of realized base gross margin per RCE (as distinguished by commodity and customer class) in its annual reports prior to 2020. Multiplying the residential excess natural gas margin (i.e., $0.2478/therm) by the 25.1% adjustment factor for commercial customers yields a commercial excess natural gas margin of $0.0622/therm.

[32] For example, the calendar year 2020 RCE total is estimated based on 25% of the FY 2020 reported RCE (i.e., as of March 31, 2020) and 75% of the FY 2021 reported RCE (i.e., as of March 2021).

[33] The mismatch is due to independent rounding.

I estimated the quantity of affected commercial natural gas load using RCE data provided in Just Energy's annual reports. The steps to convert fiscal year RCEs into calendar year therms for commercial customers are similar to those applicable to residential customers, except I used the data reported by Just Energy for commercial customers. Like the adjustment I performed for residential natural gas customers, I adjusted the RCE to better approximate actual load to account for distinctions between RCEs and customer usage. For commercial customers, this scaling factor equals 108% (i.e., actual load is higher than RCE load) based on the average ratio between Just Energy RCEs and EIA Form 861 kWh load from 2011 through 2020 for commercial customers. I scaled the total volume by half (50%) to account for the inclusion of non-class volumes in Just Energy's RCE data.

I estimated overcharges to commercial natural gas customers as follows:

= 2,204,852,190 therms x 0.5 x $0.0622/therm

F. Caveats

The overcharge estimates provided above are based on the best available information at this time. In several cases, I made assumptions regarding the volume of the affected class load and the applicable excess margin due to the absence of more detailed determinants. Plaintiffs' counsel informed me that the more detailed determinants applicable to these calculations will be available through discovery. Therefore, I reserve the right to modify my findings based upon new information. This includes updating the methodology described above to account for more precise or disaggregate determinants and measures of overcharges.

The major simplifying assumptions employed in my analysis and overcharge estimates include the following:

- The excess electricity margin for residential customers was derived using one customer's billing data. Due to this small sample size, my estimate for the residential excess electricity margin is subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess electricity margin for all of

Just Energy's residential variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess electricity margin for commercial customers was derived using my estimate for the excess electricity margin for residential customers and an adjustment factor for the difference between Just Energy's unitized gross margin for commercial and residential customers. Therefore, my estimate for the commercial excess electricity margin is also subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess electricity margin for all of Just Energy's commercial variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess natural gas margin for residential customers was derived using two customers' billing data. Due to this small sample size, my estimate for the residential excess natural gas margin is subject to potentially significant modification with the availability of additional data. The average realized excess natural gas margin for all of Just Energy's residential variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- The excess natural gas margin for commercial customers was derived using my estimate of the excess natural gas margin for residential customers and an adjustment factor for the difference between Just Energy's unitized gross margin for commercial and residential customers. Therefore, my estimate for the commercial excess natural gas margin is also subject to potentially significant modification. The average realized excess natural gas margin for all of Just Energy's commercial variable-rate customers may be higher or lower than the estimate contained in this report.

- I estimated Just Energy's (and its affiliates') total electricity sales to residential and commercial customers based on the data published annually by EIA. While I expect that the customer-level data that the Plaintiffs' counsel anticipates receiving from Just Energy as part of the discovery process will result in similar volumes, they may differ from the EIA-reported sales volume data for various reasons such as adjustments and reporting discrepancies.

- I estimated Just Energy's (and its affiliates') total natural gas sales to residential and commercial customers based on the RCE data reported by Just Energy in its annual reports and various conversion and adjustment factors to convert these RCE data into relevant units (kWh for electricity, therms for natural gas). While I expect that the customer-level data that the Plaintiffs' counsel anticipates receiving from Just Energy as part of the discovery process will result in similar volumes, they may differ from my estimates due to the assumptions I relied upon in this conversion process.

- I estimated the affected (variable-rate) volumes of loads for Just Energy's electricity and natural gas customers in the United States as a percentage of my estimates of Just Energy's total electricity and natural gas sales to residential and commercial customers. I assumed that Just Energy's sales to each customer class-commodity pairing made under variable-rate plans account for half of Just Energy's total sales for each such pairing. The true volume of Just Energy's sales customers made under variable-rate plans, which will be able to be calculated from information obtained through the discovery process, potentially can be significantly larger or significantly smaller than the estimates contained in this report.

V. Conclusion

I estimated Just Energy's overcharges to its residential and commercial electricity and natural gas customers using the small sample of customer billing data I received from the Plaintiffs' counsel and two categories of publicly available information: EIA Form 861 and Just Energy's annual reports. Based on the more precise customer-level data and Just Energy's cost-of-sales data that I anticipate receiving as part of the discovery process, I will be able to more accurately calculate Just Energy's overcharges to each class member, and thus for the entire affected class.

This concludes my expert report.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

FIRA DONIN and INNA GOLOVAN,

on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

JUST ENERGY GROUP INC. JUST ENERGY NEW YORK CORP., and JOHN DOES 1 TO 100, Defendants.

FIRST AMENDED CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Case No: 17 Civ. 5787 (WFK) (SJB)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Plaintiffs Fira Donin and Inna Golovan ("Plaintiffs"), by their attorneys Wittels Law, P.C. and Hymowitz Law Group, PLLC, bring this consumer protection action in their individual capacity, and on behalf of a Class of consumers defined below, against Defendants Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy New York Corp., and John Does 1 to 100 (hereafter collectively "Just Energy" or "Defendants" unless otherwise specified), and hereby allege the following with knowledge as to their own acts, and upon information and belief as to all other acts:

OVERVIEW OF DEFENDANTS' UNLAWFUL PRACTICES

1. This consumer class action arises from Just Energy's fraudulent, deceptive, unconscionable, bad faith, and unlawful conduct in "supplying" residential gas and electricity to consumers.

2. Traditionally, residential gas and electricity was supplied by regulated utilities like Con Edison. The rates utilities could charge were strictly controlled. In the 1990s, however, Enron's unprecedented lobbying campaign resulted in deregulation of state energy markets in New York and elsewhere such that consumers were permitted to choose from a variety of companies selling residential energy. Seizing on deregulation, independent energy service companies ("ESCOs") like Defendant Just Energy have grown rapidly.

3. Just Energy entices residential customers to sign up for its service by offering its energy at low initial "teaser rates." Yet Defendants do not alert their unsuspecting customers that when the teaser rate period expires consumers are charged exorbitant variable energy rates. Just Energy's customers are given no advance notice of these excessive variable rates. Just Energy also does not disclose to customers that its rates are consistently higher than the rates charged by consumers' existing utilities, or how variable rate customers can calculate (and avoid) Just Energy's steep variable gas and electricity charges.

4. Just Energy also breaches its customer contracts through a pricing shell game rigged in Just Energy's favor. Just Energy's customer contract explicitly incorporates the terms of Defendants' welcome emails into the contract. In April 2012 Just Energy sent Plaintiff Donin a welcome email stating that after her "intro rate" expired she would be charged an electric rate of 8¢ per kWh. Notwithstanding this contractual promise, Just Energy consistently charged Ms. Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. In fact, based on the billing data Ms. Donin has as well as the information gathered by her counsel, during a four-year period there was only one month when Just Energy charged Ms. Donin less than the 8¢ per kWh contractual rate. The same scenario occurred with Ms. Donin's Just Energy gas account. In April 2012 she received a welcome email (also explicitly incorporated into the Just Energy contract) which stated that after her "intro rate" expired she would be charged a gas rate of 63¢ per therm. The 17 months of billing data Ms. Donin has demonstrates that during all of those months Just Energy's rate was higher than 63¢ per therm.

5. Just Energy further breaches its customer contract in two additional ways. First, Just Energy's contract states that its variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle." Yet Just Energy violated this contract term when it increased Plaintiff Donin's August 2013 electricity price by more than 80% over the prior month's rate. Just Energy also increased Ms. Donin's May 2016 gas rate by more than 36% compared to the rate she paid in April 2016.

6. Second, Just Energy's customer contract states that the company's variable rates are "determined by business and market conditions," yet Defendants' variable rates are not determined by business and market conditions. Instead, when the underlying wholesale market price of gas and/or electricity that Just Energy purchases for re-sale goes up, Defendants simply pass on these costs to their customers by raising rates. However, when the market price goes down, Just Energy's rate remains at an inflated level higher than the market rate. Through this scheme, Just Energy subjects consumers to consistent and unlawful "heads I win, tails you lose" pricing.

7. Just Energy's practice of charging inflated electric and gas prices is intentionally designed to maximize revenue.

8. Plaintiffs and the Class of Defendants' gas and electric customers have been injured by Defendants' unlawful practices. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and the Class defined below seek damages, restitution, declaratory, and injunctive relief for Just Energy's fraud, violation of state consumer protection statutes, unjust enrichment, and breach of contract. Residential energy costs are a significant portion of most families' budgets. To prey on consumers as Defendants have done here is unconscionable.

9. Defendants' deceptive marketing and sales practices are unlawful in multiple ways, including:

a. Using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy;

b. Failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates;

c. Failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire;

d. Actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants will charge when the teaser rates expire;

e. Failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges;

f. Failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge; and

g. Failing to clearly and conspicuously identify in its contract and marketing materials the variable charges in Defendants' variable energy plans.

10. Defendants also breached their customer contract in at least the following three ways:

a. Charging rates higher than the rates promised in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers.

b. Violating the contract's requirement that Defendants' variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

c. Failing to comply with the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

11. Only through a class action can Just Energy's customers remedy Defendants' ongoing wrongdoing. Because the monetary damages suffered by each customer are small compared to the much higher cost a single customer would incur in trying to challenge Just Energy's unlawful practices, it makes no financial sense for an individual customer to bring his or her own lawsuit. Further, many customers don't realize they are victims of Just Energy's deceptive conduct. With this class action, Plaintiffs and the Class seek to level the playing field and make sure that companies like Just Energy engage in fair and upright business practices.

I. Defendants' Fraudulent, Deceptive, and Unlawful Conduct.

12. Price is the most important consideration for energy consumers. Given that there is no difference at all in the electricity or natural gas that Just Energy supplies as opposed to the consumer's utility, the only reason a consumer switches to an ESCO like Just Energy is for the potential savings offered in a competitive market as opposed to prices offered by a regulated utility. That is, after all, the entire point of energy deregulation.

13. Understanding this basic fact about residential energy consumers' decision-making, Just Energy uses introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of its energy. For example, Just Energy enticed consumers like Plaintiffs and the Class to switch their gas and electric accounts by showing them low introductory rates. Yet Defendants did not adequately apprise consumers that the sample energy rates were teaser rates. Defendants also did not effectively disclose that Just Energy's introductory teaser rate would expire or the date on which Just Energy's actual and much higher variable rate would kick in.

14. Defendants further defrauded and deceived Plaintiffs and the Class by actively misrepresenting the rates Just Energy charges when its teaser rates expire, and by failing to adequately disclose that Just Energy's gas and electricity rates are consistently higher than the rates charged by the customers' regulated utility.

15. Defendants are aware of the variable energy rates they intend to charge. Yet to conceal Just Energy's price gouging, Defendants do not provide customers any advance notice.

16. Just Energy's material misrepresentations and omissions concerning its energy rates violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(3), which prohibits deceptive acts and practices in the marketing of residential energy. Section 349-d(3) is part of a new law, called New York's ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, which was specifically enacted in 2010 to combat widespread consumer fraud in New York's energy markets and to protect New York's energy consumers from underhanded business tactics like those employed by Defendants.

17. Just Energy's material misrepresentations and omissions concerning its energy rates also violate New York's and other states' consumer protection statutes and common laws of fraud and unjust enrichment.

18. Plaintiffs are not the only consumers harmed by Just Energy's conduct. On December 31, 2014, Just Energy agreed to settle strikingly similar claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General, making various concessions related to its deceptive residential

energy sales and billing practices in Massachusetts.[1]

19. The Massachusetts Attorney General alleged that Just Energy made misleading, false, and unlawful representations and omissions concerning its energy, including that:

> Just Energy represented to consumers that purchasing residential gas and/or electricity from Just Energy will save customers money;
>
> Just Energy failed to disclose complete and accurate pricing information; and
> Just Energy failed to disclose to consumers that its rates following any introductory period may be higher than the rates charged by consumers' traditional utilities.[2]

20. In response to the Massachusetts Attorney General's allegations, Just Energy agreed to refund a total of $4,000,000 to Massachusetts customers along with implementing several key changes to its marketing and sales practices, as follows:

> Just Energy must cease making representations, either directly or by implication, about savings that consumers may realize by switching to Just Energy, unless Just Energy contractually obligates itself to provide such savings to consumers.[3]
> Where Just Energy quotes introductory teaser rates in its marketing material or in any verbal representation, the rate quote must be accompanied by a statement informing consumers that the quoted rate is an introductory rate and state when the rate will expire.[4]
>
> Just Energy is banned for three years from enrolling consumers into variable rate energy products unless it complies with the following requirements:
> - Within 30 days of a customer enrolling in a variable energy rate product, Just Energy must provide the customer with written notice of the date on which the introductory rate will expire.

[2] Id. ¶¶ 19(a), 20(a)–(b).

[3] Id. ¶ 26(a).

[4] Id. ¶ 26(c).

- Any new contracts for variable rate products shall either (i) include the calculation that will be used to set monthly rates under the contract such that the customer can calculate the cost of Just Energy's residential energy, or (ii) make the rates available 60 days in advance via phone and the internet.[5]

For three years Just Energy is banned from charging consumers variable electricity rates in excess of 14.25¢ per kWh.[6] [7]

For current Just Energy variable rate customers, the company is required to clearly and conspicuously post its current variable rates and post subsequent variable rates with at least 45 days advance notice.[8] Just Energy is also required to mail notice to all existing Massachusetts variable rate customers alerting them to the fact that advance pricing information is now available via phone and on Just Energy's website, and that these customers can cancel their Just Energy contracts without paying termination fees.[9]

Just Energy must at its own expense hire an independent monitor for three years to audit inter alia Just Energy's Massachusetts marketing materials, billing data, consumer communications, and direct marketing efforts.[10]

Just Energy must distribute a copy of the Assurance of Discontinuance to current and future (for three years) principals, officers, directors, and supervisory personnel responsible for the Massachusetts market.[11] Just Energy must also secure and maintain these individuals' signed acknowledgement of receipt of the Assurance of Discontinuance.

21. Notably, while as discussed below Just Energy has been fined by regulators for deceptive marketing at least six times, no other actions have to date been brought by New York's

[5] Id. ¶ 28(a)–(b), (d).

[6] Id. ¶ 30(a).

[7] Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin electricity rates higher than this very high rate for 17 months while she was a Just Energy customer. 14 of those 17 months were consecutive. For the 10 months of billing data Plaintiff Golovan possesses, Defendants charged her more than the 14.25¢ cap every single month.

or other states' enforcement authorities to recoup the millions Just Energy unlawfully extracted from consumers in New York and elsewhere. That is the purpose of this action.

II. Just Energy's Contract and Marketing Materials Also Violate New York's Mandatory ESCO Disclosure Statute.

22. Under N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7), Just Energy is required to clearly and conspicuously identify its variable charges in all consumer contracts and in all marketing materials. The purpose of this disclosure requirement is to ensure that consumers are adequately apprised of how their rates will be set.

23. Rather than complying with Section 349-d(7)'s disclosure requirements, Just Energy's marketing either does not mention its variable rates at all or fails to make the required disclosures in a clear and conspicuous manner.

24. Just Energy's contracts, which arrive when a customer can still cancel without penalty, likewise fail to meet the New York ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights' variable charge disclosure requirements.

25. Had Just Energy provided Plaintiffs with truthful, adequate, and appropriate disclosures about Just Energy's variable energy rates, they would not have switched to Just Energy.

III. Defendants' Breach of Contract.

26. Just Energy imposed on Plaintiffs and the Class a standard, non-negotiable, and uniform customer contract referred to by Defendants as the "Agreement." Defendants have advised Plaintiffs that they believe that the contract applicable to Plaintiffs is the document attached hereto as Exhibit B. Exhibit B has the following document identification code: NY_SVC_MOMENTIS_CODE_VAR_V3_Mar_27_12.

27. The Agreement Just Energy drafted is made up of various documents. Paragraph 1

of Just Energy's "General Terms and Conditions," the section entitled "Key Defined Terms," defines the Agreement to include "[c]ollectively, the Customer Agreement (the front page, the Momentis online enrollment page website, and the welcome email), these General Terms and Conditions, and any authorized attachments."

28. The welcome emails sent to Plaintiff Donin state "[w]here the words 'front page' appear in the Terms and Conditions of your Agreement, we are referring to this correspondence, the information contained herein, and the Momentis website." The welcome emails therefore constitute part of the "Customer Agreement" defined in the General Terms and Conditions, which in turn is part of the larger Agreement between Plaintiffs and Defendants.

29. "Electricity Price" is also defined in paragraph 1 of the General Terms and Conditions as "[e]ither your Intro Price or your Electricity Price, as specified on the Customer Agreement. The Intro Price will be your Electricity Price for the first 3 months of the Term of this Agreement and thereafter your Electricity Price will be the Variable Price as specified on the Customer Agreement."

30. Paragraph 1 of the General Terms and Conditions similarly define the "Natural Gas Price" as "[e]ither your Intro Price or your Natural Gas Price, as specified on the Customer Agreement. The Intro Price will be your Natural Gas Price for the first 3 months of the Term of this Agreement and thereafter your Natural Gas Price will be the Variable Price as specified in the Customer Agreement."

31. The welcome emails Defendants sent to Plaintiff Donin do not list an intro rate and instead state that the "Supply Rate after Intro period" for Plaintiff Donin's Just Energy electric account will be 8¢ per kWh. The Supply Rate after Intro period for Plaintiff Donin's gas account was set forth in Defendants' welcome email as 63¢ per therm.

32. Another part of the Agreement, the first page of Exhibit B attached hereto called the "Customer Disclosure Statement (Essential Agreement Information)," which is either "the front page" or an "authorized attachment" under the General Terms and Conditions, states that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle (see para. 7)."

33. Paragraph 7.1 of the General Terms and Conditions, entitled "Natural Gas Charge" states in relevant part that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

34. Paragraph 7.3 of the General Terms and Conditions, entitled "Electricity Charge" states in relevant part that "[c]hanges to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

35. As set forth more fully below, Defendants breached the aforementioned contract provisions by (a) charging rates higher than the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers (b) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," and (c) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

PARTIES

Plaintiff Fira Donin

36. Plaintiff Donin is a citizen of New York residing in Brooklyn, New York.

37. In the Spring of 2012, Ms. Donin was contacted by a Just Energy sales representative. Upon information and belief, the sales representative was affiliated with Just Energy Group Inc.'s Momentis network marketing program. Just Energy's representative used a written, standardized sales script and had been trained by Defendants in a way that emphasized uniformity in sales techniques. Upon information and belief, Just Energy's representatives were only permitted to use sales scripts that had been centrally approved and the content of such scripts did not meaningfully vary over time.

38. The Just Energy representative showed Ms. Donin Just Energy's rates for gas and electricity, which Plaintiff believed were representative of Just Energy's rates. The truth, however, is that the rates were teaser rates not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. It was thus fraudulent for the Just Energy representative to show Ms. Donin a teaser rate that was supposedly representative of Just Energy's rates when in fact the teaser rate was much lower than Just Energy's ordinary rates. Based on these teaser rates, Ms. Donin agreed to switch both her electric and gas account to Just Energy. As described herein Just Energy's statements about its rates were false, fraudulent, and constitute material misrepresentations. Just Energy's statements both during the initial enrollment and at all relevant times thereafter also included several material omissions about Just Energy's variable rates, as described herein.

39. Shortly after agreeing to switch her gas and electric accounts to Just Energy, Defendants sent Plaintiff Donin emails which misrepresented the rates Just Energy would charge after the introductory period. The rates in Just Energy's emails were not substantially different from Defendants' teaser rates. Just Energy's deceptive emails repeated and reinforced Defendants' misrepresentations and omissions regarding Just Energy's rates. The emails were sent from the "justenergysales@mymomens.net" email account. The following pages contain the relevant portions of the email Defendants sent to Plaintiff Donin regarding her electric account:

New York Notice of Cancellation

40. Once Ms. Donin's gas and electricity accounts were successfully transferred to Just Energy, Defendants began supplying Plaintiff's residential energy in June 2012. After Ms. Donin learned in August 2016 that she had been overcharged by Just Energy by more than $2,000 compared to what her local utilities would have charged, she notified Just Energy that she wanted to cancel her gas and electricity accounts.

Plaintiff Inna Golovan

41. Plaintiff Golovan is a citizen of New York residing in Brooklyn, New York.

42. In or around the Summer of 2012, Ms. Golovan was contacted by a Just Energy sales representative. Upon information and belief, the sales representative was affiliated with Just Energy Group Inc.'s Momentis network marketing program. Just Energy's representative used a written, standardized sales script and had been trained by Defendants in a way that emphasized uniformity in sales techniques. Upon information and belief, Just Energy's representatives were only permitted to use sales scripts that had been centrally approved and the content of such scripts did not meaningfully vary over time.

43. Defendants' representative showed Ms. Golovan Just Energy's electricity rate, which Plaintiff believed was representative of Just Energy's rates. The truth, however, is that the rate was a teaser rate not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. It was thus fraudulent for the Just Energy representative to show Ms. Donin a teaser rate that was supposedly representative of Just Energy's rates when in fact the teaser rate was much lower than Just Energy's ordinary rates. Based on this rate, Plaintiff Ms. Golovan agreed to switch her electric account to Just Energy. As described herein Just Energy's statements about its rate were false, fraudulent, and constitute material misrepresentations. Just Energy's statements both during the initial enrollment and at all relevant times thereafter also included several material omissions about Just Energy's variable rates, as described herein.

44. Once Ms. Golovan's electricity account was successfully transferred to Just Energy, Defendants began supplying Plaintiff's residential electricity in August 2012. After Ms. Golovan learned in April 2015 that Just Energy's electricity rates had been consistently high, she notified Just Energy that she wanted to cancel her electricity account.

Defendant Just Energy Group Inc.

45. Established in 1997, Defendant Just Energy Group Inc. (which refers to itself as "Just Energy"), is a publicly traded Canadian corporation incorporated under the laws of Ontario. In 2004, Just Energy made its initial expansion into the United States. Headed by Enron alums James Lewis and Deborah Merril, Just Energy is operated out of dual headquarters in Houston, Texas and Toronto, Ontario. Just Energy's operating affiliates include Defendant Just Energy New York Corp., Just Energy Illinois Corp., Just Energy Indiana Corp., Just Energy Texas L.P., Just Energy Massachusetts Corp., Just Energy Michigan Corp., Amigo Energy, Commerce Energy Inc., Green Star Energy, Hudson Energy Services, LLC, Momentis U.S. Corp., National Energy Corp., Tara Energy, Universal Energy Corporation, and Universal Gas and Electric Corporation. Just Energy and its operating affiliates market and sell natural gas and/or electricity in New York, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas.

46. Just Energy's shares are traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the New York Stock Exchange bearing the ticker symbol "JE." Just Energy is the 11th largest independent energy supplier in the United States, with over 1.8 million customers across North America. Variable rate plans are one of Just Energy's main products.

47. Just Energy has amassed a damning public dossier. The following chronology unearthed by Plaintiffs' counsel's pre-suit investigation documents Defendants' deceptive business practices.

48. In June 2003, the Toronto Star reported that Just Energy (then operating under the name Ontario Energy Savings Corp.) was fined for violating the Ontario Energy Board's code of conduct for fraudulently enrolling customers.[12]

49. In 2008, the Illinois Attorney General sued U.S. Energy Savings Corp. (whose name was changed to Just Energy in 2012), alleging violations of Illinois' consumer fraud laws. The May 2009 Press Release announcing a $1 million settlement noted that the Illinois Attorney General had "received a nearly unprecedented number of calls from consumers who were deceived by false assurances that they would receive significant savings by switching to this alternative gas supplier."[13] According to the Attorney General's complaint, among other deceptive conduct "consumers were led to believe that they would automatically save money by enrolling in the U.S. Energy Savings program."[14]

50. During this same period, the Citizens Utility Board (the "CUB") and AARP filed a formal complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission (the "ICC") alleging, inter alia, that Just Energy told customers they would "save money" by signing up, that consumers would not see any gas price increases if they signed up, and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[15] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, fined the company $90,000, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[16]

51. In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a $200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[17]

52. As previously noted, in December 2014 Just Energy agreed to settle deceptive marketing claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General.

53. In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[18] The article also mentions that some of the complaints that led to the PUCO's action "stemmed from contracts sold on behalf of Just Energy by another company, saveonenergy.com."[19]

54. There are also numerous complaints about Just Energy on the internet.

55. Over the last three years alone Just Energy has had at least 284 complaints filed with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB"). Of the customer reviews posted to the BBB's website, 93% are categorized by the BBB as "Negative Reviews."

56. Below are a few examples taken from the consumer complaint website Ripoff Report:[20]

> I have noticed over the past few months that the energy cost was getting higher and I thought it was due to the cold winter and higher energy usage. I called Duquesne Light last month and they said call your energy supplier which is JUST ENERGY. In December they had changed my fixed electrical usage rate to a nearly DOUBLE variable rate with NO NOTICE (total extra fees amounting to about $1,500.00). I called Just Energy and tried to get reimbursed, they reviewed my account and said they sent me a POST CARD in the mail when the rate change occurred (which I have never received). I have gotten no reimbursement and they offered to send me a $20.00 visa gift card which I declined. If anyone can offer any information about anything I can do to try and reclaim some money that would be great!!!!

> We signed up for Just Energy because of them of course telling us we can save more money on our gas bill. We just received a bill of $354.20 and a disconnect notice. We called Nipsco to figure out what is going on and they were able to look at what we have been paying with them which had been .38 cents per therm and now we are being charged double that! thermostat is electronically programmed to be at 65 degrees when heat is running . . . . I was also told by Nipsco that they cannot check or confirm because Just Energy is a different company, that we are now most likely stuck into a contract with these people and obligated to pay these outrageous bills. Having 4 children having our services disconnected is not an option, it's just sad . . . that instead of buying my kids Christmas presents I now have to pay this high gas bill or go without heat in the dead of winter.

For the past 7 months, I was understanding that Just Energy was a utility company that was about helping the consumer save money on their electric bills from AEP. Come to find out that they were in fact charging my account more than what I could have been paying if I stayed with AEP. I was also told that when I signed up with them that my rate would be a fixed rate of 6.5 cents but in fact it wasn't. I am completely at a loss of words at how this company has done me wrong.

I am on a very fixed income and every dollar I can save is a blessing, so when they come to my house promising that they can save me money I was all for it. Just recently I was told that I was being charged an additional fee of supplier charges that I wasn't supposed to have on my bill. I am very upset with this and I want some explanation as to why this was happening . . . as well as I want my money back. So to anyone who is thinking about signing up with this company, please do your research and think again.

Just Energy of Massachusetts Just Energy of Ontario Just energy promised me 6.9 cents, not to ever go above Nstar rates, after a month or two the rate is almost twice Nstar rate, because I use electricity for heating my bill was very high after they doubled their rates that I noticed, most people would not, they ripped me off for $1,300, only God knows how much the rip off in their final month. Please do not sign with them.

Just Energy sales representative called me promised 6.9 cents rate, that will never go above Nstar rate, that happened for a month or two, now my rate is almost twice Nstar rate, I only noticed because I use electricity for heat, my utilization is high so is my rip off, so I have to notice most people with low utilization would not, they ripped me off $1,300 in 2 months and only God knows how much is the rip off this month, the problem is by the time you realize and change they already ripped you off 3 months. Please no matter what you do, do not sign up with Just Energy.

Just Energy 100% scam. Pushy sales people lie. Company won't cancel service. Rates went way up!!!

Pushy sales people who lie. Rates went way up, not down as promised.

Company not allowing me to cancel service . . . . Upon receiving the first bill after the switch to Just Energy our cost for gas doubled, and electric went up 50%. Calls to cancel service and switch back to our local company do not go though, month after month I continue to get ripped off.

Just Energy Scummy bunch of scheisters! Avoid them at any cost. I bought their spiel, and I suffered as a result. Prices are not competitive. After I moved, they screwed me cause I wouldn't continue with the Just Energy, Scam, Untrustworthy, Avoid AVOID Just Energy. Quick talking salesmen, who will rip you off. Rates are not competitive, and they charged me $50 when I moved out of my apartment. Never deal with this company if you want a truth in advertising and a good deal.

USESC, Just Energy Scammed me I'm a 72 year old Hispanic. This man flashed a badge made me get my gas bill and promised I'd save money.

I am a 72 year old Hispanic lady, on social security and Section 8. A man showed up at my apartment. He flashed a badge and began to explain on what USESC was all about.

He talked about how high the gas rates are going and that by signing with this company I would be locked into a certain rate and that my gas bills would be lower. He made me get my current gas bill and he showed me the rate I was at and compared it to a rate he said I would be locked into.

I was made to believe that I would be saving money. When I began to look at my bills after signing I noticed that instead of saving money I have begun to pay more. On my bills I have seen a 200 dollar increase monthly and have not saved a dime on anything.

I was completely scammed into signing this contract and I believe it's because I'm a senior citizen. I now cannot afford to pay my gas bill and feed my children.

It would be best if no one else got scammed the way I did. I'm raising my grandchildren and we are barely surviving. I'm outraged that a company would purposely scam the weak and helpless

57. Just Energy's twitter feed tells a similar story, as the word "scam" appears more than 40 times in posts from 2009 to the present.

58. Media reports about Just Energy equally condemn Defendants for deceptive conduct. When the confidential results of the audit ordered by the ICC referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[21] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[22]

59. A 2014 exposé by Canada's Global News highlights that the "CUB, the Better Business Bureau (BBB), the Ontario Energy Board, among others, have been inundated with complaints from consumers about the sales methods employed by Just Energy. The most common grievance is Just Energy promises people savings that don't materialize."[23]

60. The exposé further references Just Energy's founder Rebecca MacDonald who has "raked in an estimated $150 million from the company since she established it in the 1990s" and is facing accusations "over whether she's misled investors in her company."[24] Those accusations include that MacDonald faked her credentials and the conclusions by "two of Canada's top forensic accounting firms" that Defendants used "an unregulated form of accounting to paint a much rosier picture of the company's financial situation," which in turn allowed Just Energy to show an "artificial profit."[25]

61. The Global News exposé also contains a 22-minute video entitled the "Just Energy Hustle." Below is an excerpt of a Global News Journalist's videotaped interview with Just Energy's Co-CEO Deborah Merril. Despite having joined Just Energy in 2007, in the 2014 interview the Co-CEO denies even knowing about the many criticisms leveled at Just Energy's marketing and sales practices:

> Journalist: "Critics have accused your company of underhanded sales tactics, sleazy tactics to try to get people to sign their name to a contract."
> Co-CEO Merril: "I have not heard those accusations, so, nobody said that to me, no."

JE's gas RateFlex prices are fixed only for three months – despite the 5-year term – and after three months, the contract reverts to a fluctuating price based on "business and market conditions." The Electric RateFlex is fixed for 2 months. JE then gives its customers the option of locking in this new, variable and unknown price. The company tries to reassure consumers that the rate won't fluctuate that much by guaranteeing that the variable rate won't increase by more than 35% per month (see: section 7). Just Energy also allows consumers to cancel their contract free within 30 days – before the misleadingly low introductory price expires – but charges a $50 "Exit Fee" if cancelled thereafter. Of course, most consumers don't bother to read the fine print, particularly if salesmen are pushing quick cash back incentives with Visa Gift Cards for registering and referring friends.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

I. Energy Deregulation and Resulting Wide-Spread Consumer Fraud.

82. In 1996, New York deregulated the sale of retail gas and electricity. As a result of deregulation, New York consumers can purchase natural gas and electricity through third-party suppliers while continuing to receive delivery of the energy from their existing public utilities. These third-party energy suppliers are known as energy service companies, or "ESCOs." Since New York opened its retail gas and electric markets to competition, approximately two New York consumers have switched to an ESCO.

83. ESCOs are subject to minimal regulation by New York's utility regulator, the New York State Public Service Commission (the "PSC"). ESCOs like Just Energy do not have to file their rates with the PSC, or the method by which those rates are set. The PSC also does not limit in any way the prices ESCOs charge.

84. ESCOs play a middleman role: they purchase energy directly or indirectly from companies that produce energy and sell that energy to end-user consumers. However, ESCOs do not deliver energy to consumers. Rather, the companies that produce energy deliver it to consumers' utilities, which in turn deliver it to the consumer. ESCOs merely buy gas and electricity and then sell that energy to end-users with a mark-up. Thus, ESCOs are essentially brokers and traders: they neither make nor deliver gas or electricity, but merely buy energy from a producer and re-sell it to consumers.

85. If a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer's existing utility continues to bill the customer for both the energy supply and delivery costs. The only difference to the customer is which company sets the price for the customer's energy supply.

86. After a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer's energy supply charge (based either on a customer's kilowatt hour [electricity] or therm [gas] usage) is calculated using the supply rate charged by the ESCO and not the regulated rate charged by the customer's former utility. The supply rate charged is itemized on the customer's bill as the number of kilowatt hours ("kWh") or therms multiplied by the rate. For example, if a customer uses 145 kWh at a rate of 10.0¢ per kWh, the customer will be billed $14.50 (145 x $.10) for their energy supply.

87. Almost all states that deregulated their energy markets did so in the mid to late 1990s. This wave of deregulation was frantically pushed by then-corporate superstar Enron. For example, in December 1996 when energy deregulation was being considered in Connecticut, "the most aggressive proponent" of deregulation, Enron CEO Jeffrey Skilling said:

> Every day we delay [deregulation], we're costing consumers a lot of money . . . . It can be done quickly. The key is to get the legislation done fast.[30]

88. Operating under this concocted sense of urgency, the states that deregulated suffered serious consumer harm. For example, in 2001 forty-two states had started the deregulation process or were considering deregulation. Today, the number of full or partially deregulated states has dwindled to only seventeen and the District of Columbia. Even within those states several have recognized deregulation's potential harm to everyday consumers and thus only allow large-scale consumers to shop for their energy supplier.

89. Responding to shocking energy prices, many key players that supported deregulation now regret the role they played. For example, reflecting on Maryland's failed deregulation experience, a Maryland Senator commented:

> Deregulation has failed. We are not going to give up on re-regulation till it is done.[31]

90. A Connecticut leader who participated in that state's foray into energy deregulation was similarly regretful:

> Probably six out of the 187 legislators understood it at the time, because it is so incredibly complex . . . . If somebody says, no, we didn't screw up, then I don't know what world we are living in. We did.[32]

91. One of deregulation's main unintended consequences has been the proliferation of ESCOs like Just Energy whose business model is primarily based on taking advantage of consumers. As a result of this widespread misconduct, states like New York began enacting post-deregulation remedial legislation meant to "establish [] important consumer safeguards in the marketing and offering of contracts for energy services to residential and small business customers." [33] As the sponsoring memorandum notes, the ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, codified as G.B.L. Section 349-d, in 2010 sought to end the exact type of deceptive conduct Plaintiffs challenge here:

> Over the past decade, New York has promoted a competitive retail model for the provision of electricity and natural gas. Consumers have been encouraged to switch service providers from traditional utilities to energy services companies. Unfortunately, consumer protection appears to have taken a back seat in this process.

[33] ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, New York Sponsors Memorandum, 2009 A.B. 1558, at 1 (2009) attached as Exhibit C.

* * *

> High-pressure and misleading sales tactics, onerous contracts with unfathomable fine print, short-term "teaser" rates followed by skyrocketing variable prices—many of the problems recently seen with subprime mortgages are being repeated in energy competition. Although the PSC has recently adopted a set of guidelines, its "Uniform Business Practices" are limited and omit important consumer protections in several areas. The fact is, competition in supplying energy cannot succeed without a meaningful set of standards to weed out companies whose business model is based on taking unfair advantage of consumers.

Id. at 3–4 (emphasis added).

92. New York regulators have also begun to call out the high levels of misconduct that pervade deregulated energy markets. For example, in 2014 the PSC concluded that New York's residential and small-commercial retail energy markets were plagued with "marketing behavior that creates and too often relies on customer confusion."[34] The PSC further noted "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[35] The PSC concluded as follows:

> [A]s currently structured, the retail energy commodity markets for residential and small nonresidential customers cannot be considered to be workably competitive. Although there are a large number of suppliers and buyers, and suppliers can readily enter and exit the market, the general absence of information on market conditions, particularly the price charged by competitors, is an impediment to effective competition . . . .[36]

93. The PSC's complaint data confirms its conclusions. The PSC's annual complaint statistics reports indicate that in 2012 the PSC received 1,733 ESCO related complaints of which 322 alleged deceptive marketing. The number of ESCO related complaints increased to 2,384 in 2013 with 2,001 reporting deceptive marketing practices. In 2014 there were 4,640 initial ESCO related complaints, with 2,510 claiming deceptive marketing. In 2015 the data shows there were 5,044 initial ESCO related complaints with 2,348 alleging deceptive marketing practices. In 2016 there were 2,995 initial complaints against ESCOs, with 1,375 alleging deceptive marketing practices.

[34] CASE 12-M-0476, Order Taking Actions to Improve the Residential and Small Nonresidential Retail Access Markets, at 4 (Feb. 25, 2014).

[36] Id. at 10.

94. The number of deceptive marketing allegations against ESCOs far exceed the combined number of complaints received by all other regulated utilities in New York, including the lightly regulated telecommunications industry. Further, no single ESCO or single region of New York is responsible for most of the complaints. Rather, the complaint data demonstrates that consumer fraud is part of the industry's standard operating procedures.

95. A large percentage consumer complaints to the PSC concern variable rate pricing like Defendants' where consumers' bills are more or less as advertised during the teaser or fixed rate period, but after this initial period expires, instead of switching the consumer back to the utility the ESCO uses the consumers' inaction to substantially increase the price without further notice or explanation as to how the new rate is determined.

96. Statistics from the New York Attorney General's ("NYAG") office confirm the pattern of activity this consumer class action seeks to combat. From at least the year 2000 to the present, the NYAG has investigated numerous ESCOs' deceptive and illegal business practices. These investigations have resulted in at least eight settlements providing for extensive injunctive relief and millions in restitution and penalties.

97. In the last three years, the NYAG has also directly received more than 600 complaints against ESCOs. These complaints demonstrate that the ESCO practices that were the subject of the NYAG's previous settlements continue, and that industry participants like Just Energy view regulatory enforcement actions as simply the cost of continuing their fraudulent business practices.

98. The deceptive conduct of ESCOs like Just Energy has been devastating to consumers nationwide. For example, "[a]ccording to the data provided by [New York's] utilities, the approximately two million New York State residential utility customers who took commodity service from an ESCO collectively paid almost $1.2 billion more than they would have paid if they purchased commodity from their distribution utility during the 36-months ending December 31, 2016."[37] "Additionally, small commercial customers paid $136 million more than they would have paid if they instead simply remained with their default utilities for commodity supply for the same 36-month period."[38] Combining these two groups, New York consumers have been "'overcharged' by over $1.3 billion dollars over this time period."[39]

99. New York's low-income consumers have also been hit hard. The utilities reported that low-income ESCO customers (a subset of the residential customers mentioned above) "collectively paid in excess of $146 million more than they would have paid if they took commodity supply from their utility."[40]

100. Based on the flood of consumer complaints, negative media reports, and data demonstrating massive overcharges the PSC announced in December 2016 an evidentiary hearing to consider primarily whether ESCOs should be "completely prohibited from serving their current products" to New York residential consumers.[41] In other words, to reassess whether

New York's deregulation experiment has failed everyday consumers.

101. Then, on December 16, 2016, the PSC permanently prohibited ESCOs from serving low-income customers, because of "the persistent ESCO failure to address (or even apparently to acknowledge) the problem of overcharges to [low income] customers . . . ."[42]

102. Following the first part of the evidentiary hearing announced in December 2016, on March 30, 2018, PSC staff reached the following conclusions about ESCOs in New York:

> [M]ass market ESCO customers have become the victims of a failed market structure that results in customers being fooled by advertising and marketing tricks into paying substantially more for commodity service than they had remained full utility customers, yet thinking they are getting a better deal. Rather than fierce ESCO against ESCO price competition working to protect customers from excessive charges, ESCOs have deliberately obfuscated prices and resisted market reforms such that the Commission's decision to allow ESCOs access to the utility distribution systems to sell electric and gas commodity products to mass market customers has proven to be no longer just and reasonable. [43]
>
> [T]he Commission must direct that mass market ESCO customer bills disclose a relative bill comparison showing the current bill charges and what the customer would have paid had they taken delivery and commodity from their utility.[44]
>
>
> The primary problem with the retail markets for mass market customers is the overcharging of customers for commodity due to the lack of transparency to customers on ESCO prices and products; this lack of transparency allows ESCOs to charge customers practically whatever they want without customers' understanding that they are paying substantially more than if they received full utility service. Consequently, potential commodity customers attempting to choose between the ESCO offerings

> Thus, as the current retail access mass markets are structured, customers simply cannot make fully informed and fact-based choices on price . . . since the terms and pricing of the ESCO product offerings are not transparent to customers. For variable rate products this is due, in large part, to the fact that ESCOs often offer "teaser rates" to start, and after expiration of the teaser rate, the rate is changed to what is called a "market rate" that is not transparent to the customer, and the contract signed by the customer does not provide information on how that "market rate" is calculated.[45]

> ESCOs take advantage of the mass market customers' lack of knowledge and understanding of, among other issues, the electric and gas commodity markets, commodity pricing and contract terms (which often extend to three full pages), and in particular, the ESCOs' use of teaser rates and "market based rate" mechanisms that customers are charged after the teaser rate expires. In fact, ESCOs appear to be unwilling to provide the necessary product pricing details as to how those "market based rates" are derived to mass market customers in a manner that is transparent so as to enable an open and competitive marketplace where customers can participate fairly and with the necessary knowledge to make rational and fully informed decisions on whether it is in their best interest to take commodity service from their default utility, or from a particular ESCO among competing but equally opaque choices.[46]

103. As for the ESCOs' claim that their marketing and overhead costs explain the overcharges, PSC staff found that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges" ESCOs levied on New York consumers.[47] Likewise, when the ESCOs claimed that their provision to consumers of so-called value-added products such as light bulbs and thermostats contributed to their excessive rates, PSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[48] Similarly, the PSC staff found that the "claim that at least a portion of the significant delta between ESCO and utility charges is explained by ESCOs offering renewable energy is disingenuous at best. ESCOs may be charging a premium for green energy, but they are not actually providing a significant amount of added renewable energy to customers in New York."[49]

104. Instead, PSC staff reached the following conclusion:

> The massive $1.3 billion in overcharges is the result of higher, and more often than not, significantly higher, commodity costs imposed by the ESCOs on unsuspecting residential and other mass market customers. These Overcharges are simply due to (1) the lack of transparency and greed in the market, which prevents customers from making rational economic choices based on facts rather than the promises of the ESCO representative, and (2) obvious efforts by the ESCOs to prevent, or at least limit, the transparency of the market. These obvious efforts include the lack of a definition for "market rate" in their contracts, resulting in the fattening of ESCOs' retained earnings.[50]

105. This class action, which seeks more than $100,000,000 in damages, restitution, penalties, and equitable relief is further proof that residential energy deregulation has been an abject failure.

II. Just Energy Misled Its Customers and Then Gouged Them Compared to What They Would Have Paid Had They Stayed with Their Local Utility.

106. To convince consumers to switch, Defendants represented that customers would save money on their energy costs by switching over from their current utilities.

107. As evidenced by the fact that Just Energy used to be called "U.S. Energy Savings," Defendants understand that the potential for saving money on their home energy costs is the primary, if not exclusive, reason consumers switch to Just Energy.

[48] Id. at 87.

[49] Id. at 69.

[50] Id.

108. Defendants' primary way of enticing consumers with promised savings is through Just Energy's teaser rates. Defendants make the consuming public aware of Just Energy's teaser rates through various means, including via company-controlled in-person solicitations, telemarketing calls from Defendants' call centers, internet ESCO price aggregators such as www.chooseenergy.com and www.saveonenergy.com that Defendants pay to showcase Just Energy's prices, or through state utility ESCO pricing websites such as New York's www.newyorkpowertochoose.com.

109. Just Energy's teaser rates consistently misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy because they suggest Just Energy's rates are lower than what Just Energy knows it will eventually charge consumers once the teaser period expires. Just Energy's teaser rates also misleadingly suggest to the consumer that Just Energy's rates are lower than their utility's rates. The truth is that Just Energy has a long history of charging substantially more than customers' local utilities.

110. To compound the deception, Defendants do not adequately disclose that the quoted rates are introductory teaser rates and that when Just Energy's teaser rates expire the consumer will pay a rate that is much higher than the utility's rate.

111. Defendants also do not adequately disclose when Just Energy's teaser rates expire. Instead, Just Energy enrolls consumers into variable rate plans knowing (but failing to disclose) that once the teaser rate expires Just Energy's rates will surpass the utility's rates.

112. Just Energy also actively misrepresents the rates it will charge when its teaser rates expire. For example, in April 2012 Just Energy sent Plaintiff Donin an email stating that she would be charged an electric rate of 8¢ per kWh once her "intro period" lapsed. Yet Just Energy consistently charged Ms. Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. The Just Energy billing data Ms. Donin has in her possession shows that Just Energy's charges were far in excess of 8¢ per kWh.

113. Despite having ample advance notice of the variable rates it will impose on customers, Just Energy also fails to advise consumers of the rates they will be charged.

114. Defendants' entire sales model is structured to take advantage of well-studied patterns of human decision-making. Just Energy lures consumers to switch with misleading teaser rates and then exploits consumer inertia once those rates expire to bill consumers for its high-priced residential energy.

115. It is well-established that defaults are powerful drivers of consumer behavior. There are various factors underlying this human tendency that have been discussed in the judgment and decision-making literature, such as the work about defaults and the "status quo bias,"[51] and "Nudges."[52]

116. In this case, Defendants know that once they have the consumer enrolled they can charge high energy rates and many consumers (if not most) will simply pay Defendants' exorbitant charges.

117. Defendants' cynical exploitation of consumer inertia is further exacerbated by the fact that (i) it is extremely difficult for consumers to compare Just Energy's prices with what their local utility charges, and (ii) Just Energy tacks on early termination fees as a disincentive to consumer mobility and choice.

118. Upon being shown Just Energy's teaser rate, a reasonable consumer understands—and expects—Just Energy's rates would typically be lower than the utility's rates.

119. But Just Energy's rates do no such thing. Instead, during the class period and during the time Plaintiffs were Just Energy customers, there were extended lengths of time in which Just Energy's rates were higher than the utility's rates.

120. Further, there are extended periods of time when the wholesale market price of gas or electricity declined or remained steady, yet Just Energy's prices rose. Moreover, even when market prices rise, Just Energy's rates often increase at a faster and higher rate than the market rates. But Just Energy does not disclose these material facts to its prospective or current customers.[53]

121. Just Energy misleads consumers into thinking that its rates are lower than consumers' utilities' rates. Yet when Plaintiff Donin was able to obtain comparison data in the summer of 2016 for what her electric utility would have charged from May 2015 to July 2016, Just Energy billed Ms. Donin more than the utility every single month. These overcharges total more than $375. For Plaintiff Donin's gas utility, Plaintiff Donin obtained comparison data in the summer of 2016 that showed Just Energy charged more than the utility every single month for the 31 months from December 2013 to July 2016 for which data was available to Ms. Donin. For this period Ms. Donin paid Just Energy $1,929.06 more than she would have paid her gas utility.

122. No reasonable consumer exposed to Just Energy's marketing would expect that

[53] The wholesale cost of energy is the most significant and potentially volatile component of electricity and natural gas costs that ESCOs like Just Energy incur for supplying energy. Costs associated with transmission or transportation costs or other similarly static market and business price related factors do not account for the extent to which Just Energy's prices are disassociated from changes in wholesale prices. Similarly, costs associated with Just Energy's supply of so-called "green" energy do not account for the extent to which Just Energy's prices are disassociated from changes in wholesale prices.

Just Energy would charge them more than the utility by so much money for so long.

123. The rates Just Energy actually charges in comparison to the utility rate demonstrates the deceptive nature of Just Energy's marketing. Yet it is extremely difficult for Just Energy's customers to determine what their utility would have charged as the only energy supply rate listed on their bills is Just Energy's rate and the utility's current rate is very difficult for ordinary consumers to locate or calculate.

124. Thus, Just Energy's statements with respect to the rates it will charge are materially misleading. Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher. Just Energy fails to disclose this and other material fact to its customers.

125. No reasonable consumer who knows the truth about Just Energy's exorbitant rates would choose Just Energy as an electricity or natural gas supplier.

126. Just Energy intentionally makes those misleading statements regarding its rates to induce reasonable consumers to rely upon its statements and switch their energy supply.

III. Just Energy Violates New York's Variable Rate Disclosure Law

127. Because of the New York Legislature's concerns with skyrocketing variable rates, New York adopted N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7), which requires that "[i]n every contract for energy services and in all marketing materials provided to prospective purchasers of such contracts, all variable charges shall be clearly and conspicuously identified."

128. Through their conduct, Defendants have violated both the spirit and letter of N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d, the law that is explicitly designed to allow energy consumers to make informed choices: "These provisions will go a long way toward restoring an orderly marketplace where consumers can make informed decisions on their choices for gas and electric service . . .

129. At all relevant times Defendants' marketing materials and contracts never clearly and conspicuously apprised Plaintiffs of the actual factors that make up Just Energy's variable rate.

130. The marketing materials Defendants produced that were provided to Plaintiffs and the Class violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7) by not clearly and conspicuously setting forth all of the factors actually affecting Just Energy's variable rates. Indeed, most of the marketing materials provided to Plaintiffs and the Class do not even mention that Just Energy's rates are variable, nor do they comply with the statute's requirement that the factors that comprise Just Energy's rate be clearly and conspicuously disclosed.

131. Further, as described below, the various incarnations of Just Energy's consumer contract provided to Plaintiffs and the Class also violate N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7).

132. The Just Energy sales representative who signed up Plaintiffs used Just Energy marketing material and Just Energy's published teaser rates. Among other omissions, that sales representative failed to mention that once the teaser rate expires Just Energy's prices are invariably higher than the utility's rates almost all of the time. Based on the sales representative's statements, Plaintiffs decided to switch to Just Energy.

133. The Just Energy materials the representative provided to Plaintiffs did not contain language clearly and conspicuously describing the factors that affect Just Energy's variable rates or disclose that Just Energy's rates were variable.

134. Following their agreement to switch their accounts to Just Energy, the contracts Plaintiffs received fail to make the clear and conspicuous disclosure of Just Energy's variable rates as mandated by New York's ESCO Consumers Bill of Rights, as noted above.

135. Plaintiffs would have never signed up to purchase energy from Just Energy had Defendants complied with N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7).

IV. Just Energy Breaches its Consumer Contracts.

136. In or around the Spring of 2012, Plaintiff Donin (through her husband Stan Donin) enrolled their gas and electric accounts with Just Energy. Plaintiff Donin believed she was enrolling with the entity that controls the "Just Energy" brand, to wit Just Energy Group Inc.

137. In June 2012, Plaintiff Donin's electricity and gas accounts were switched to Just Energy. Thereafter, Plaintiff Donin paid the rate that she was charged by Just Energy.

138. In or around the Summer of 2012, Plaintiff Golovan enrolled her electric account with Just Energy. Plaintiff Golovan believed she was enrolling with the entity that controls the "Just Energy" brand, to wit Just Energy Group Inc.

139. In August 2012, Plaintiff Golovan's electricity account was switched to Just Energy. Thereafter, Plaintiff Golovan paid the rate that she was charged.

140. After Plaintiffs enrolled but before Just Energy began supplying their residential energy Just Energy provided Plaintiffs with Defendants' standard and uniform Agreement, including Defendants' welcome email. Just Energy also afforded Plaintiffs a rescissionary period during which they could rescind the Agreement prior to purchasing energy from Just Energy. During that rescissionary period, the Agreement served as a solicitation in which Just Energy identified the basis upon which the promised rate would be determined.

141. The Agreement represents that (a) Defendants energy rates will be the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers, (b) Defendants rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," and (c) Defendants charge variable energy rates "determined by business and market conditions."

142. The following table identifies for Ms. Donin's electric account the billing periods for the 49 months for which Plaintiff Donin and her counsel have her Just Energy billing data, the variable rate Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin, the corresponding rate her electric utility Con Edison would have charged (which, as discussed below, is a reasonable representation of a rate based on business and market conditions), and the percent difference between Just Energy's and Con Edison's rates:

3/12/2015	4/10/2015	$0.1606	$0.0728	$0.0878	121%
4/10/2015	5/11/2015	$0.1551	$0.0828	$0.0723	87%

145. Defendants' multiple breaches of contract are demonstrated by the data in the above tables. For example, despite sending Plaintiff Donin welcome emails stating that the "Supply Rate after Intro period" for Plaintiff Donin's Just Energy account will be 8¢ per kWh (electric) and 63¢ per therm (gas), Just Energy charged Plaintiff Donin in excess of these amounts for 48 of 49 months[55] (electric) and 17 of 17 months (gas).[56]

146. The tables also show that Defendants violated their contractual undertaking that Just Energy's variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle." Just Energy violated this requirement when it increased Plaintiff Donin's electricity price for the billing period ending on August 26, 2013 by 80.27% compared to the prior month's rate. Just Energy also increased Ms. Donin's gas rate for the billing period ending on June 6, 2016 by 36.48% compared to the rate prior month's rate.

147. Finally, that Just Energy's variable rate is not in fact based on the wholesale cost of electricity is demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than Con Ed's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices.

148. Indeed, in 45 of the 49 months Plaintiff Donin was a Just Energy customer (or 91% of the time) Just Energy's rate was higher than Con Edison's rate. In fact, on average, Just Energy's rate was 40% higher than Con Edison's rate.

149. The pre-discovery billing data available for Plaintiff Donin's gas account shows that 100% of the time Just Energy's rate was higher than National Grid's rate and that on average Just Energy's rate was 26% higher than National Grid's rates.

150. The pre-discovery billing data available for Plaintiff Golovan's electric account shows that 90% of the time Just Energy's rate was higher than Con Edison's rate and that on average Just Energy's rate was 53% higher than Con Edison's rates.

[55] Where data is available to Plaintiff and her counsel.

[56] Where data is available to Plaintiff and her counsel.

151. The utility's rates serve as an appropriate indicator of business and market conditions because they are based on the wholesale energy costs and the associated market costs that are the same costs ESCOs such as Just Energy incur.

152. While the utilities and Just Energy may not purchase energy and incur associated costs in precisely the same manner, over time the wholesale costs they incur should be commensurate. In fact, Just Energy has a tactical advantage over the utility as it can purchase energy from highly competitive markets for future use, and therefore its cost for purchasing energy should at the very least reflect (if not undercut) market prices, albeit over a longer term. Therefore, while the utility's rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should correlate with the utility's rates. Instead, Just Energy's rates are wildly incongruent.

153. For example, using Plaintiff Donin's electric account data (the account with the most available pre-discovery data) when Con Edison's rate dropped 14% from $0.10008 to $0.08577 per kWh from October to November 2012, Just Energy increased its already much higher prices by 7% from $0.125955 to $0.135003 per kWh. Similarly, when Con Edison's rate slid 40% from $0.12684 to $0.07601 per kWh between February and March 2013, Just Energy's rate rose 2% from $0.132674 to $0.135002 per kWh.

154. The disparities are also evident over time. For instance, while Con Edison's rate generally declined between February 2014 and November 2014 from $0.13686 to $0.08765 per kWh (declining 36%), Just Energy's already much higher rates increased from $0.148050 to $0.15900 per kWh (increasing by 7%).

155. Just Energy's stark rate disparities with those of the local utility, wherein Just Energy's rates were higher more than 90% of the time where Plaintiffs have available billing data, considered together with the fact that Just Energy's rates do not reflect market fluctuations, demonstrate that Just Energy does not charge a rate based on business and market conditions as required by its customer contract, but rather gouges its customers by charging outrageously high rates.

156. The disconnect between Just Energy's variable rate and changes in wholesale costs is also demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined.

157. The wholesale cost of energy is the primary component of the non-overhead "market conditions" Just Energy incurs.

158. Just Energy's identification of "business" conditions as the other contractual factor used for setting rates also does not explain Just Energy's price gouging. A reasonable consumer might understand that an ESCO will attempt to make a reasonable margin on the commodity it sells to consumers. However, such a consumer would also expect that such profits would be consistent with profit margins obtained by other suppliers in the market, and also that Just Energy's profiteering at the expense of its customers would not be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices but is instead outrageously higher. That other ESCOs' rates are lower, even though they purchase energy from the wholesale market, demonstrates that Just Energy sets its profit margins in bad faith. Similarly, the utility's rate reflects a rate that Just Energy could charge (because Just Energy could purchase energy in the same way and at the same cost as the utility) plus a reasonable margin. No reasonable consumer would consider a margin that is on 26% to 53% to be fair or commercially reasonable.

159. Any potentially conceivable additional business and market are insignificant in terms of the overall costs Just Energy incurs to provide its energy, and do not fluctuate over time.

Therefore, these other cost factors cannot explain the drastic increases in Just Energy's variable rate or the reason its rates are disconnected from changes in wholesale costs.

160. Thus, Just Energy's energy pricing does not comply with its customer contract's requirement that variable prices be "determined by business and market conditions." Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher those of competitors, especially Just Energy's main competitors—the utilities, and untethered from the factors specified in the contract.

TOLLING OF THE STATUTES OF LIMITATION

I. Discovery Rule Tolling

161. Plaintiffs and the Class had no way of discovering Just Energy's unlawful conduct. Even New York's public utility regulator, the PSC, has concluded that "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[57] By contrast, Just Energy was so intent on expressly hiding the fact that consumers had been duped by Defendants' deceptive teaser rates, Defendants concocted a scheme to misrepresent the rates it would charge once the teaser rates expire. Defendants further failed to give customers advance notice of the variable rates it was going to assess, even though Defendants knew well in advance what those rates would be.

162. Within the period of any applicable statutes of limitation, Plaintiffs and the other Class Members could not have discovered Just Energy's illegal conduct through the exercise of reasonable diligence.

[57] CASE 12-M-0476, Order Taking Actions to Improve the Residential and Small Nonresidential Retail Access Markets, at 11 (Feb. 20, 2014).

163. Plaintiffs and the other Class Members did not discover and did not know of facts that would have caused a reasonable person to suspect they were victims of Just Energy's illegal conduct.

164. All applicable statutes of limitation have been tolled by operation of the discovery rule.

II. Fraudulent Concealment Tolling

165. All applicable statutes of limitation have also been tolled by Just Energy's knowing and active fraudulent concealment and denial of the facts alleged herein throughout the period relevant to this action.

166. Instead of disclosing that its quoted rates are teaser rates, when those rates will expire, that its energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing utility charges, and giving consumers advance notice of the rates Defendants will charge, Just Energy used its teaser rates to falsely represent the cost of its energy and actively misrepresented the rates Defendants would charge once the teaser rate expired.

III. Estoppel

167. Just Energy was under a continuous duty to disclose to Plaintiffs and the other Class Members the truth about its energy rates.

168. Just Energy knowingly, affirmatively, and actively concealed the true nature of its rates from consumers.

169. Just Energy was also under a continuous duty to disclose to Plaintiffs and Class Members that it was receiving thousands of complaints from customers who had been led to believe that they would save money with Just Energy compared to their incumbent utility.

170. Based on the foregoing, Just Energy is estopped from relying on any statutes of limitations in defense of this action.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

171. Plaintiffs sue on their own behalf and on behalf of a Class for damages, injunctive, and all other available relief under Rules 23(a), (b)(2), (b)(3), and (c)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

172. The Class, preliminarily defined as two subclasses ("Subclasses"), is as follows:

a. The Multistate Class, preliminarily defined as all Just Energy customers in the United States (including customers of companies Just Energy acts as a successor to) who were charged a variable rate for their energy at any time from [applicable statute of limitations period] to the date of judgment.

b. The State Classes, preliminarily defined as all Just Energy customers in the state of [e.g., New York, California, etc.] (including customers of companies Just Energy acts as a successor to) who were charged a variable rate for their energy at any time from [applicable statute of limitations period] to the date of judgment.

173. Excluded from the Subclasses (hereafter collectively the "Class" unless otherwise specified) are the officers and directors of Defendants, members of the immediate families of the officers and directors of Defendants, and their legal representatives, heirs, successors or assigns and any entity in which Defendants have or have had a controlling interest. Also excluded are all federal, state and local government entities; and any judge, justice or judicial officer presiding over this action and the members of their immediate families and judicial staff.

174. Plaintiffs reserve the right, as might be necessary or appropriate, to modify or amend the definition of the Class and/or add additional Subclasses, when Plaintiffs file their motion for class certification.

175. Plaintiffs do not know the exact size of the Class, since such information is in the exclusive control of Defendants. Plaintiffs believe, however, that based on the publicly available data concerning Just Energy's customers in the United States, the Class encompasses more than one million individuals whose identities can be readily ascertained from Defendants' records. Accordingly, the members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all such persons is impracticable.

176. The Class is ascertainable because its members can be readily identified using data and information kept by Defendants in the usual course of business and within their control. Plaintiffs anticipate providing appropriate notice to each Class Member, in compliance with all applicable federal rules.

177. Plaintiffs are adequate class representatives. Their claims are typical of the claims of the Class and do not conflict with the interests of any other members of the Class. Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class were subject to the same or similar conduct engineered by Defendants. Further, Plaintiffs and members of the Class sustained substantially the same injuries and damages arising out of Defendants' conduct.

178. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of all Class Members. Plaintiffs have retained competent and experienced class action attorneys to represent their interests and those of the Class.

179. Questions of law and fact are common to the Class and predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class Members, and a class action will generate common answers to the questions below, which are apt to drive the resolution of this action:

a. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349-d;

b. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349;

c. Whether Defendants' conduct violates various other state consumer protection statutes;

d. Whether Defendants' representations are fraudulent;

e. Whether Defendants engaged in fraudulent concealment;

f. Whether Defendants were unjustly enriched as a result of their conduct;

g. Whether Defendants breached their customer contracts;

h. Whether Defendants violated the duty of good faith and fair dealing;

i. Whether Class Members have been injured by Defendants' conduct;

j. Whether any or all applicable limitations periods are tolled by Defendants' acts;

k. Whether, and to what extent, equitable relief should be imposed on Defendants to prevent them from continuing their unlawful practices; and

l. The extent of class-wide injury and the measure of damages for those injuries.

180. A class action is superior to all other available methods for resolving this controversy because i) the prosecution of separate actions by Class Members will create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual Class Members that will, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other Class Members not parties to this action, or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests; ii) the prosecution of separate actions by Class Members will create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual Class Members, which will establish incompatible standards for Defendants' conduct; iii) Defendants have acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to all Class Members; and iv) questions of law and fact common to the Class predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class Members.

181. Further, the following issues are also appropriately resolved on a class-wide basis under FED. R. CIV. P. 23(c)(4):

a. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349-d;

b. Whether Defendants' conduct violates New York General Business Law §349;

c. Whether Defendants' conduct violates various other state consumer protection statutes;

d. Whether Defendants' representations are fraudulent;

e. Whether Defendants engaged in fraudulent concealment;

f. Whether Defendants were unjustly enriched as a result of their conduct;

g. Whether Defendants breached their customer contracts;

h. Whether Defendants violated the duty of good faith and fair dealing;

i. Whether any or all applicable limitations periods are tolled by Defendants' conduct; and

j. Whether, and to what extent, equitable relief should be imposed on Defendants to prevent them from continuing their unlawful practices.

182. Accordingly, this action satisfies the requirements set forth under FED. R. CIV. P. 23(a), 23(b), and 23(c)(4).

CAUSES OF ACTION

court finds the defendant willfully or knowingly violated this section. The court may award reasonable attorney's fees to a prevailing plaintiff."

190. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' unlawful deceptive acts and practices, Plaintiffs and the Class have suffered injury and monetary damages in an amount to be determined at the trial of this action but not less than $500 for each violation, such damages to be trebled, plus attorneys' fees.

195. The aforementioned acts are willful, unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, and contrary to the public policy of New York, which aims to protect consumers.

196. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' unlawful deceptive acts and practices, Plaintiffs and the Class have suffered injury and monetary damages in an amount to be determined at the trial of this action but not less than $50 for each violation, such damages to be trebled, plus attorneys' fees.

197. Plaintiffs and the Class Members further seek equitable relief against Defendants. Pursuant to N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349, this Court has the power to award such relief, including but not limited to, an order declaring Defendants' practices as alleged herein to be unlawful, an order enjoining Defendants from undertaking any further unlawful conduct, and an order directing Defendants to refund to Plaintiffs and the Class all amounts wrongfully assessed, collected, or withheld.

COUNT III

N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-D(7)

(ON BEHALF OF THE NEW YORK CLASS)

198. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

199. Plaintiffs bring this claim under N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7) on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the New York Class who became a Just Energy customer on or after January 10, 2011.

200. Section 349-d(7) provides that "[i]n every contract for energy services and in all marketing materials provided to prospective purchasers of such contracts, all variable charges shall be clearly and conspicuously identified." N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7).

201. The marketing materials Defendants provided to Plaintiffs fail to disclose the actual factors that contribute to Just Energy's variable rates, much less do they make the required disclosure in a clear and conspicuous manner.

202. The marketing materials Defendants provided to Plaintiffs fail to clearly and conspicuously disclose that Plaintiffs will be charged variable rates.

203. The consumer contract Defendants provided to Plaintiffs—while they still had an opportunity to cancel without penalty—likewise does not clearly and conspicuously inform consumers about the actual factors affecting Just Energy's variable rates.

204. The consumer contract Defendants provided to Plaintiffs does not clearly and conspicuously disclose that Plaintiffs will be charged variable rates.

205. The welcome emails Defendants sent Plaintiff Donin do not clearly and conspicuously disclose that Plaintiffs will be charged variable rates. The emails do not even contain the word "variable."

206. Through their conduct described above, Defendants have violated N.Y. GEN. BUS. LAW § 349-d(7) and have caused financial injury to Plaintiffs and Just Energy's other variable rate customers in New York.

207. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' conduct, Plaintiffs and the New York Class have suffered injury and monetary damages in an amount to be determined at the trial of this action but not less than $500 for each violation, such damages to be trebled, plus attorneys' fees.

COUNT IV

UNFAIR AND DECEPTIVE ACTS AND PRACTICES

(ON BEHALF OF EACH STATE CLASS OTHER THAN NEW YORK, WHICH UPON INFORMATION AND BELIEF ARE CALIFORNIA, DELAWARE, FLORIDA, GEORGIA, ILLINOIS, INDIANA, MARYLAND, MASSACHUSETTS, MICHIGAN, NEW JERSEY, OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA, AND TEXAS)

209. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

210. As described above, Plaintiffs and the Class have suffered ascertainable losses of money and have otherwise been harmed as a result of Defendants' unfair and deceptive practices, including:

a. Using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy;

b. Failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates;

c. Failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire;

d. Actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants will charge when the teaser rates expire;

e. Failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges; and

f. Failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge.

211. The aforementioned acts are willful, unfair, unconscionable, deceptive, and contrary to the public policies of California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, and any other state where Just Energy sells variable rate energy, all of which aim to protect consumers.

212. Plaintiffs and the members of each State Class are entitled to recover damages, and all other available relief for Defendants' unfair and deceptive practices under the laws of their states of residence:[58] California—CAL. BUS. & PROF CODE § 17200 et seq., and CAL. CIV. CODE § 1750 et seq., Delaware—DEL. CODE ANN. TIT. 6 SEC. 2511 et seq., Florida—FLA. STAT.§ 501.201, et seq., Georgia—GA. CODE. 213. On October 2, 2017 Plaintiffs sent a letter complying with CAL. CIV. CODE § 1782(a). Because Plaintiffs did not receive a full and satisfactory response to their letter within 30 days, they now claim relief under CAL. CIV. CODE § 1750 et seq. and seek all damages and relief to which the California Class is entitled.

214. On October 2, 2017 Plaintiffs sent a letter complying with GA. CODE ANN § 10-1-399(b). Because Plaintiffs did not receive a full and satisfactory response to their letter within 30 days, they now claim relief under GA. CODE. ANN. § 10-1-393(a) et seq. and seek all damages and relief to which the Georgia Class is entitled.

215. On October 2, 2017, Plaintiffs sent a letter complying with IND. CODE § 24-5-0.5-5(a). Because Plaintiffs did not receive a full and satisfactory response to their letter within 30 days, they now claim relief under IND. 218. On October 2, 2017, Plaintiffs sent Defendants a letter complying with TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE § 17.505(a). Because Plaintiffs did not receive a full and satisfactory response to their letter within 30 days, they now claim relief under TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE § 17.46(a) et seq. and seek all damages and relief to which the Texas Class is entitled.

219. Plaintiffs complied with TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE § 17.501. Specifically, within thirty days of filing Plaintiffs' initial Class Action Complaint, Plaintiffs provided the consumer protection division of the Texas Attorney General's office a copy of the initial Class Action Complaint.

COUNT V

COMMON LAW FRAUD

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

220. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

221. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

222. As discussed above, Defendants (i) used introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy, and (ii) actively misrepresented the rates Defendants would charge when the teaser rates expire.

223. In deciding to become and remain Just Energy customers, Plaintiffs and the Class reasonably relied on these misrepresentations to form the mistaken belief that Just Energy's teaser rates were representative of Just Energy's ordinary rates and that thus they would save money on their energy compared to what their local utility would have charged.

224. To solidify and further their fraud, Defendants committed numerous fraudulent omissions including (i) failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates, (ii) failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire, (iii) failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges, and (iv) failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge.

225. Defendants' fraudulent conduct was knowing and intentional. The misrepresentations and omissions made by Defendants were intended to induce and actually induced Plaintiffs and Class Members to become and remain Just Energy customers.

226. Defendants' fraud caused damage to Plaintiffs and the Class, who are entitled to damages and other legal and equitable relief as a result.

227. Defendants' acts were done maliciously, oppressively, deliberately, with intent to defraud, and in reckless disregard of Plaintiffs' rights and well-being to enrich Defendants. Defendants' conduct warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount sufficient to deter such conduct in the future, which amount is to be determined according to proof.

COUNT VI

FRAUD BY CONCEALMENT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

228. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

229. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

230. Defendants concealed material facts concerning their variable energy rates including (i) failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates, (ii) failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire, (iii) failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges, and (iv) failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge.

231. Defendants sold Plaintiffs energy without disclosing these material facts and took active steps to conceal them including by (i) using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy, and (ii) actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants would charge when the teaser rates expire.

232. Defendants' material omissions and misrepresentations were intentional and were committed to protect Defendants' profits, avoid damage to Defendants' image, and to save Defendants money, and Defendants did so at Plaintiffs' expense.

233. The information Defendants concealed was material because price is the most important consideration for consumers' energy purchasing decisions.

234. Defendants had a duty to disclose the material information they concealed because this information was known and accessible only to Defendants; Defendants had superior knowledge and access to the facts, and Defendants knew the facts were not known to, or reasonably discoverable by Plaintiffs. Defendants also had a duty to disclose because Just Energy made affirmative misrepresentations about its energy rates, which were misleading, deceptive, and incomplete without disclosure of the material information.

235. Just Energy still has not made full and adequate disclosures and continues to defraud Class Members and conceal material information regarding Just Energy's rates.

236. Plaintiffs were unaware of these omitted material facts and would not have become Just Energy customers if they had known these concealed and/or suppressed facts; and/or would not have continued to be Just Energy customers for as long as they were. Plaintiffs' actions were justified.

237. In deciding to become and remain Just Energy customers, Plaintiffs and the Class reasonably relied on Just Energy's misrepresentations and omissions to form the mistaken belief that Just Energy's teaser rates were representative of Just Energy's ordinary rates and that thus they would save money on their energy compared to what their local utility would have charged.

238. Defendants' fraud by concealment caused damage to Plaintiffs and the Class, who are entitled to damages and other legal and equitable relief as a result.

239. Defendants' acts were done maliciously, oppressively, deliberately, with intent to defraud, and in reckless disregard of Plaintiffs' rights and well-being to enrich Defendants. Defendants' conduct warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount sufficient to deter such conduct in the future, which amount is to be determined according to proof.

COUNT VII

UNJUST ENRICHMENT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

240. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

241. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes.

242. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

243. This claim is brought under the laws of all states where Just Energy does business that permit an independent cause of action for unjust enrichment, as there is no material difference in the law of unjust enrichment as applied to the claims and questions in this case.

244. As a result of their unjust conduct, Defendants have been unjustly enriched.

245. By reason of Defendants' wrongful conduct, Defendants have benefited from receipt of improper funds, and under principles of equity and good conscience, Defendants should not be permitted to keep this money.

246. As a result of Defendants' conduct it would be unjust and/or inequitable for Defendants to retain the benefits of their conduct without restitution to Plaintiffs and the Class. Accordingly, Defendants must account to Plaintiffs and the Class for their unjust enrichment.

COUNT VIII

BREACH OF CONTRACT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

247. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

248. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

249. Plaintiffs and the Class entered into a valid contract with Defendants for the provision of residential energy.

250. Defendants' customer contract explicitly incorporates the terms of any of Defendants' welcome emails into the contract.

251. Defendants sent Plaintiffs and the Class welcome emails that state that after the "intro rate" expired consumers would be charged a specified energy rate.

252. Defendants' customer contract states that Just Energy's variable rates "will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

253. Defendants' customer contract states that the company's variable rates are "determined by business and market conditions."

254. Pursuant to the contract, Plaintiffs and the Class paid the rates charged by Defendants.

255. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy consistently charged Plaintiffs and the Class more than the amounts specified in the welcome emails.

256. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy increased Plaintiffs and Class' prices more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle.

257. Notwithstanding Defendants' contractual promise, Just Energy variable rates are not "determined by business and market conditions."

258. Plaintiffs and the Class were damaged as a result of Defendants' breaches of contract because they were billed, and they paid energy rates that were not consistent with the rates required under Defendants' customer contract.

259. By reason of the foregoing, Defendants are jointly and severally liable to Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendants' actions, the amount of such damages to be determined at trial.

COUNT IX

BREACH OF IMPLIED COVENANT OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING

BOTH IN THE ALTERNATIVE TO BREACH OF CONTRACT AND AN ALTERNATIVE BREACH OF CONTRACT COUNT

(ON BEHALF OF A MULTISTATE CLASS UNDER NEW YORK LAW, OR, ALTERNATIVELY THE LAWS OF EACH STATE WHERE DEFENDANTS DO BUSINESS, OR, ALTERNATIVELY, ON BEHALF OF EACH OF THE INDIVIDUAL STATE CLASSES AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS)

260. Plaintiffs re-allege and incorporate by reference each and every allegation contained in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

261. Plaintiffs bring this claim on their own behalf and on behalf of each member of the Multistate Class under New York law, or, alternatively, the laws of the states where Defendants sold variable rate energy, or, alternatively, on behalf of each member of the individual State Classes under the laws of those States.

262. Every contract applicable to Plaintiffs and the Class contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in the performance and enforcement of the contract. The implied covenant is an independent duty and may be breached even if there is no breach of contract's express terms.

263. Under the Defendants' customer contract, Defendants have unilateral discretion to set the variable rates for electricity based on "business and market conditions."

264. Plaintiffs reasonably expected that Defendants' variable energy rates would reflect business and market conditions and that Defendants would refrain from price gouging. Without reasonable expectations, Plaintiffs and other Class members would not have agreed to buy energy from Defendants.

265. Defendants breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by arbitrarily and unreasonably exercising its unilateral rate-setting discretion to price gouge and frustrate Plaintiffs and other Class members' reasonable expectations that the variable rates for electricity would be "determined by business and market conditions."

266. Defendants' acted in bad faith when they made contractual promises to base its rates on "business and market conditions" knowing full well that its rates were substantially higher than rates that are actually based on these criteria.

267. As a result of Defendants' breach, Defendants are jointly and severally liable to Plaintiffs and other Class members for actual damages in an amount to be determined at trial.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court:

(a) Issue an order certifying the Classes defined above, appointing the Plaintiffs as Class Representatives, and designating the undersigned firms as Class Counsel;

(b) Find that Defendants have committed the violations of law alleged herein;

(c) Render an award of compensatory damages of at least $100,000,000, the precise amount of which is to be determined at trial;

(d) Issue an injunction or other appropriate equitable relief requiring Defendants to refrain from engaging in the deceptive practices alleged herein;

(e) Declare that Defendants have committed the violations of law alleged herein;

(f) Render an award of punitive damages;

(g) Enter judgment including interest, costs, reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses; and

(h) Grant all such other relief as the Court deems appropriate.

Exhibit 3

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

----------X

FIRA DONIN and INNA GOLOVAN, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

JUST ENERGY GROUP INC., JUST ENERGY NEW YORK CORP., and JOHN DOES 1 TO 100, Defendants.

----------X

DECISION & ORDER
17-CV-5787 (WFK)(SJB)

WILLIAM F. KUNTZ, II, United States District Judge:

On April 27, 2018, Fira Donin and Inna Golovan ("Plaintiffs") filed an Amended Putative Class Complaint ("Amended Complaint") against Just Energy Group, Inc, Just Energy New York Corp., and Johns Does 1 to 100 ("Defendants") setting forth claims for violations of the New York General Business Law, unfair deceptive acts and practices, common law fraud, fraud by concealment, unjust enrichment, breach of contract, and breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing. ECF No. 17. Defendants now move to dismiss the Amended Complaint in its entirety pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1), (2), and (6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See ECF Nos. 27–30. For the reasons that follow, Defendants' motion to dismiss is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

Fira Donin and Inna Golovan (together, "Plaintiffs") are residents of Brooklyn, New York who allege they were gas and electricity customers of Just Energy NY from June 2012 through August 2016 and August 2012 through April 2015, respectively. See Amended Complaint ("Compl.") ¶¶ 36, 40–41, 44, ECF No. 17. Just Energy Group and Just Energy New York ("JE" and "JENY," respectively, together, "Defendants"), are energy service companies ("ESCOs"), which provide a "free-market alternative" to local utility companies. See Def. Mem.

[1] These allegations are either drawn from the Amended Complaint or are properly incorporated into the Amended Complaint and are assumed to be true for the purposes of this motion.

in Support of Mot. to Dismiss ("Def. Mem.") at 2, ECF No 27-1. Just Energy NY "is the corporate entity that supplied Plaintiffs' energy." Compl. ¶ 64. Just Energy NY customers elect not to purchase energy from the local utility provider in their region, like Con Edison, and instead contract to purchase their energy supply from an ESCO. Def. Mem. at 2. Just Energy NY customers enter into a contract, by which Just Energy NY agrees to provide gas and/or electricity to the customer at agreed-upon terms. Id. The physical delivery of the gas or electricity to the customer's home, along with the reading of customer meters and determining usage amounts for billing purposes, remain the local utility's responsibility. Id. Plaintiffs allege "Defendants John Does 1 to 100 are the shell companies and affiliates similar to Just Energy New York Corp. through which Defendant Just Energy Group Inc. does business in New York and elsewhere. John Does 1 to 100 are also the Just Energy management and employees who perpetrated the unlawful acts described herein." Compl. ¶ 69.

Plaintiffs allege that Just Energy's "deceptive marketing and sales practices are unlawful in multiple ways including:

a. Using introductory teaser rates to misrepresent the cost of Defendants' energy;

b. Failing to adequately disclose that quoted rates are introductory teaser rates;

c. Failing to adequately disclose when Defendants' introductory teaser rates expire;

d. Actively misrepresenting the rates Defendants will charge when the teaser rates expire;

e. Failing to adequately disclose that Defendants' energy rates are consistently higher than the rates a customer's existing incumbent utility charges;

f. Failing to provide customers advance notice of the variable rate Defendants will charge; and

g. Failing to clearly and conspicuously identify in its contract and marketing materials the variable charges in Defendants' variable energy plans." Compl. ¶ 9; see also Compl. ¶¶ 3, 187, 194, 210, 231.

Specifically, Plaintiffs allege they were contacted by representatives associated with Just Energy in 2012, and shown "teaser rates" not reflective of Just Energy's actual rates. Compl. ¶¶ 37–38, 42–43. Plaintiff Donin alleges that after agreeing to switch her gas and electric accounts to Just Energy, she received emails from Just Energy that misrepresented Just Energy's rates. Compl. ¶ 39. Plaintiffs allege Just Energy lures consumers with a marketing campaign that touts low rates and fails to disclose that Just Energy's actual rates will not only be higher than those teaser rates, but will also be consistently and substantially higher than those charged by the utility. Id. ¶ 3.

Plaintiffs allege the "company also provides customers a set of documents, including a "welcome email" and "General Terms and Conditions," which together comprise the contract. Def. Mem. at 10. Plaintiffs allege that in this contract, Just Energy promises (1) to charge a specified energy rate, (2) not to increase customers' rates "more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," see Compl. ¶ 5, and (3) to base their variable rates on "business and market conditions," id. ¶ 6. Plaintiffs allege Defendants breach all three promises. Id. ¶¶ 4–6, 10, 31–35, 142–46, 255–56. Through these practices, Plaintiffs allege Defendants breached New York's General Business Law §§ 349, 349-D(3) and 349-D(7) (Counts I–III); engaged in unfair and deceptive acts and practices (Count IV); committed common law fraud (Count V) and fraud by concealment (Count VI); were unjustly enriched at the consumers' expense (Count VII); breached its contract (VIII); and violated the Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing (Count IX). For the reasons that follow, the Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Defendants' motion to dismiss.

LEGAL STANDARD

To survive a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), "a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.'" Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). A sufficiently pleaded complaint provides "more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation." Id. Indeed, a complaint that merely offers labels and conclusions, a formulaic recitation of the elements, or "'naked assertions' devoid of 'further factual enhancement,'" will not survive a motion to dismiss. Id. (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557). At the motion-to-dismiss stage, this Court accepts all factual allegations in the Amended Complaint as true and draws all reasonable inferences in favor of Plaintiff, the nonmovant. Harris v. Mills, 572 F.3d 66, 71 (2d Cir. 2009). But the Court need not credit "threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements." Id. at 72 (quoting Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678) (alteration omitted). Rather, legal conclusions must be supported by factual allegations. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

DISCUSSION

Defendants move to dismiss the Complaint in its entirety on the basis that: (1) this Court has no personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. or the alleged John Does; (2) Plaintiff Donin has no standing; and (3) Plaintiffs otherwise fail to state a claim for which relief can be granted. For the reasons state below, this Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. and Plaintiff Donin has standing to proceed in this case. Furthermore, Plaintiffs' claims for breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing survive Defendants' motion to dismiss. Plaintiffs' remaining claims are DISMISSED.

I. Personal Jurisdiction

Defendants argue this Court does not have personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. and John Does #1–100. This Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc., but does not have personal jurisdiction over the John Does.

a. The Court has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc.

New York's long arm statute, N.Y. C.P.L.R. 302, permits jurisdiction over a non-domiciliary "who in person or through an agent: 1. transacts any business within the state or contracts anywhere to supply goods or services in the state; or 2. commits a tortious act within the state, except as to a cause of action for defamation of character arising from the act[.]" N.Y. C.P.L.R. 302(a)(1)-(2) (McKinney 2018). Courts have emphasized that, in the personal jurisdiction context, "[w]hile a plaintiff may plead facts alleged upon information and belief where the belief is based on factual information that makes the inference of culpability plausible, such allegations must be accompanied by a statement of the facts upon which the belief is founded." Vista Food Exch., Inc. v. Champion Foodservice, L.L.C., 14-CV-804, 2014 WL 3857053, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 5, 2014) (Sweet, J.) (internal quotations omitted). Pleadings based on "information and belief" are acceptable as long as they are allegations, not conclusions. Geo Grp., Inc. v. Cmty. First Servs., Inc., 11-CV-1711, 2012 WL 1077846, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2012) (Amon, J.) ("Second Circuit has expressly held that information and belief pleading is permissible for facts 'peculiarly within the possession and control' of the defendant.") (citing Arista Records, LLC v. Doe 3, 604 F.3d 110, 121 (2d Cir. 2010))).

This Court has personal jurisdiction over Just Energy, Inc. pursuant to New York's long-arm statute. Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged JE "transacts any business within the state or contracts anywhere to supply goods or services in the state" and that the instant case arises from that transaction. Pl's Opp. to Def. Mem. ("Pl. Opp.") at 4, ECF No. ECF. Plaintiffs allege that JE itself "states that it sells [energy] in New York," see Compl. ¶ 78, "receives payment from New York utilities for it," see id. ¶ 77, "issues news releases about New York," id. ¶ 65, "sign[ed] up [New York customers] through its advertisements, sales staff, independent sales contractors and website," id. ¶¶ 65, 67, 76, its employees "drafted the customer contract at issue," id. ¶ 66, and its executives presented an overview of Group's strategies at a conference in New York, id. ¶ 75. See Amorphous v. Morais, 17-CV-631, 2018 WL 1665233, at *5, 7 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2018) (Buchwald, J.) (finding "defendants availed themselves of the privilege of doing business in the New York" when defendants filled orders to New York customers, participated in New York trade shows, and sent representatives to New York and that "not only N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 302(a)(1), but also due process's requirement of sufficient minimum contacts"). These facts directly contrast with Mr. Teixeira's declaration, see ECF No. 30-4, that JE "does not engage in any business in New York," id. ¶ 9.

Here, Plaintiffs allege specifically "that the subsidiary engaged in purposeful activities in this State, that those activities were for the benefit of and with the knowledge and consent of the defendant, and that the defendant exercised some control over the subsidiary in the matter that is the subject of the lawsuit." Jensen v Cablevision Sys. Corp., 17-CV-00100, 2017 WL 4325829, at *7 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 27, 2017) (Spatt, J.). Drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of Plaintiffs, the Court is satisfied that Plaintiff has alleged facts showing personal jurisdiction over JE is proper.

Furthermore, this Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over JE satisfies Constitutional Due Process. Defendants claim the exercise of personal jurisdiction over JE fails to comport with due process "in light of the Supreme Court's recent holding in Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. v. Superior Court of California, San Francisco County, 137 S. Ct. 1773 (2017). Defs.' Mem. at 7–8. However, unlike Bristol-Myers, where nonresident plaintiffs suffered harm out of state and tried to join their claims with those of in-state plaintiffs, here, there is a direct "connection between the forum and the specific claims at issue." Id. at 1781. Defendant JE allegedly solicited and defrauded customers in New York and supplied their energy services to New York residents in New York. This constitutes sufficient contacts for purposes of due process. Licci ex rel. Licci v. Lebanese Can. Bank, SAL, 673 F.3d 50, 62 (2d Cir. 2012) (holding a single in-state act performed by a non-domiciliary is sufficient for long-arm jurisdiction under CPLR §302(a)); Bradley v. Staubach, 03-CV-4160, 2004 WL 830066, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 13, 2004) (Scheindlin, J.) (holding "[c]ontacts sufficient to establish jurisdiction under C.P.L.R. § 302(a)(1) are sufficient to meet the minimum contacts requirements of the Due Process clause").

b. The Court does not have jurisdiction over John Does 1–100.

However, Plaintiffs have not sufficiently alleged facts to show this Court has jurisdiction over John Does 1 to 100. Plaintiffs describe John Does 1 to 100 as "shell companies and affiliates" through which Just Energy Inc. does business in and outside of New York, as well as "Just Energy management and employees who perpetrated the unlawful acts." Compl. ¶ 69. This vague and conclusory statement, without additional factual support, is insufficient to establish prima facie evidence of jurisdiction. See, e.g., Yao Wu v. BDK DSD, 14-CV-5402, 2015 WL 5664256, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 31, 2015) (Gold, Mag.) (dismissing complaint sua sponte for lack of personal jurisdiction over John Doe defendants where plaintiffs had averred no factual allegations to support a finding of personal jurisdiction), report and recommendation adopted, 14-CV-5402, 2015 WL 5664534 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 22, 2015) (Amon, J.). Accordingly, the Court hereby DISMISSES all claims against John Does 1–100 for lack of personal jurisdiction.

II. Plaintiff Donin has standing.

To demonstrate standing, the named plaintiff must have (1) suffered a direct personal injury, (2) fairly traceable to the defendant's allegedly unlawful conduct, (3) that is likely to be redressed by the requested relief. See Crist v. Commn. on Presidential Debates, 262 F.3d 193, 195 (2d Cir, 2001); see also Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992). Furthermore, "[t]here must be a direct, personal relationship between the party seeking relief, and the parties to the action for which that relief is sought." Howard v. Koch, 575 F. Supp. 1299, 1301 (E.D.N.Y. 1982) (Costantino, J.) (dismissing allegations of misconduct toward plaintiff's girlfriend for lack of standing); see also Galtieri v. Kelly, 441 F. Supp. 2d 447, 456 (E.D.N.Y.2006) (Bianco, J.) (holding the wife of a policeman lacked standing to challenge the police department's decision to comply with court order to garnish the policeman's benefits).

Defendants argue Plaintiff Fira Donin has no standing in this case because Defendants sent the emails in question to her husband Stanislav Donin, the accountholder with Just Energy, and because Plaintiff Donin is not a party to the contract at issue. Def. Mem. at 9. This Court disagrees. Plaintiff Donin was the recipient of the "welcome emails," which were sent to her by the Just Energy customer service representative who pitched to her in person. See Complaint ¶¶ 28, 39. The addressee of the emails is "fsdonin@juno.com." Pl. Mem. at 8. Furthermore, although Plaintiff Donin is not a signatory to the contract, she is a third-party beneficiary of the contract and can thus assert a claim of breach. See Logan-Baldwin v. L.S.M. Gen. Contractors, Inc., 94 A.D.3d 1466, 1468 (2012) ("Where, as here, performance is rendered directly to the third party, it is presumed that the contract was for his or her benefit."); see also Mirkin v. Viridian Energy, Inc., 15-CV-1057, 2016 WL 3661106, at *2 n.2 (D. Conn. July 5, 2016) (denying motion to dismiss breach of contract claim based on ESCO's alleged overcharges even though plaintiff "Mr. Mirkin is not a party to the agreement with Viridian"). Accordingly, Fira Donin has standing to assert her contractual claims against Defendants.

III. Fraud-Based Claims

Counts V and VI of Plaintiff's Complaint allege common law fraud and fraud by concealment. To state a claim for fraud in New York, a plaintiff must allege "(1) a misrepresentation or omission of material fact; (2) which the defendant knew to be false; (3) which the defendant made with the intention of inducing reliance; (4) upon which the plaintiff reasonably relied; and (5) which caused injury to the plaintiff." Schwartzco Enterprises LLC v. TMH Mgmt., LLC, 60 F. Supp. 3d 331, 344 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (Spatt, J.) (citing Wynn v. AC Rochester, 273 F.3d 153, 156 (2d Cir. 2001)). To survive a motion to dismiss, a plaintiff must: "(1) specify the statements that the plaintiff contends were fraudulent, (2) identify the speaker, (3) state where and when the statements were made, and (4) explain why the statements were fraudulent." Id. Plaintiff must also "allege facts that give rise to a strong inference of fraudulent intent." Id. (citing cases). "A cause of action to recover damages for fraud does not lie when . . . the only fraud charged relates to the breach of a contract[.]" Individuals Sec., Ltd. v. Am. Int'l Grp., 34 A.D.3d 643, 644 (2d Dep't 2006) (holding there was "no evidence that the defendants violated any duty extraneous to the bond thereby giving rise to an actionable tort").

Plaintiffs' fraud claims fail because they have not "allege[d] a breach of duty which is collateral or extraneous to the contract between the parties." Krantz v. Chateau Stores of Canada

Ltd., 256 A.D.2d 186, 187 (1st Dep't 1998). The relationship between Plaintiffs and Defendants exists solely from their commercial contract. See Compl. Additionally, Plaintiffs have not sufficiently alleged a duty to disclose, as is also required for fraudulent concealment. TVT Records v. Is. Def Jam Music Group, 412 F.3d 82, 91 (2d Cir. 2005). Again, Plaintiffs plead no special relationship between the parties, outside of the contract that would produce a duty to disclose. See Compl. Thus, Plaintiffs' claims for fraud and fraudulent concealment are hereby DISMISSED.

IV. Plaintiff's GBL claims are untimely.

The New York General Business Law ("GBL") has a three-year limitations period for statutory causes of action. See N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214 (McKinney 2018); Gaidon v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 750 N.E.2d 1078, 1083 (2001) (applying "the three-year period of limitations for statutory causes of action under CPLR 214 (2)" to GBL § 349 claims). An action under the GBL "accrues 'when all of the factual circumstances necessary to establish a right of action have occurred, so that the plaintiff would be entitled to relief.'" Globe Surgical Supply v. Allstate Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 3d 1227(A), 2011 WL 1884729, at *5 (Sup. Ct. Nassau Cnty. Apr. 18, 2011) (citation omitted). If an action is commenced outside the statute of limitations, "it is the plaintiff's burden to 'demonstrate that any delay was caused by fraud, misrepresentation or deception and that his reliance on the asserted misrepresentations was justifiable.'" Davidson v. Perls, 42 Misc. 3d 1205(A), 2013 WL 6797665, at *7–8 (Sup. Ct. N.Y. Cnty. Dec. 23, 2013) (collecting cases); see also Marshall v. Hyundai Motor Am., 51 F. Supp. 3d 451, 463 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) (Karas, J.) ("[T]he party seeking to invoke the doctrine bears the burden of demonstrating that it was diligent in commencing the action within a reasonable time after the facts giving rise to the estoppel have ceased to be operational." (internal quotations omitted)).

Plaintiffs' claims accrued in 2012 at the latest, when they first received their energy bills showing the rates they were charged by Defendants. This date predates the filing of the Complaint by over three years. See Heslin v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 287 A.D.2d 113, 115–16 (3d Dep't 2001) (holding that the statute of limitations for a GBL § 349 action is "three years and accrues when the owner of a 'vanishing premium' life insurance policy s first called upon to pay an additional premium"). Furthermore, an "[a]ccrual of a § 349 claim 'is not dependent upon any date when discovery of the alleged deceptive practice is said to occur.'" And so, Plaintiff's claims cannot be tolled. Statler v. Dell, Inc., 841 F. Supp. 2d 642, 648 (E.D.N.Y. 2012) (Wexler, J.). Plaintiffs' claims began accruing in 2012, either when they purportedly enrolled with Just Energy NY or when they first received their energy bills showing the rates they were charged by Just Energy NY. See Compl. ¶ 4. Under either accrual event, Plaintiffs would have had to file their Complaint long before October 2017 to state a timely claim under the controlling statute of limitations. Pike v. New York Life Ins. Co., 72 A.D.3d 1043, 1048 (2d Dep't 2010) ("Although the plaintiffs allege that they were induced to purchase unsuitable policies, and that they were unaware that they would have to pay 'substantial' premiums, they do not point to any specific wrong that occurred each time they paid a premium, other than having to pay it. Thus, any wrong accrued at the time of purchase of the policies, not at the time of payment of each premium."). Accordingly, the Court hereby DISMISSES Plaintiff's GBL claims as untimely.

V. Plaintiffs' claims for unfair and deceptive practices outside of New York are dismissed.

To assert claims on behalf of out-of-state, nonparty class members with claims subject to different state laws, the named plaintiffs' claims must not be time barred. Langan v. Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc., 897 F.3d 88, 93 (2d Cir. 2018). Because the named

Plaintiffs' claims are time barred under the GBL, they cannot assert the out-of-state claims on behalf of the out-of-state class members. Furthermore, courts in this district have held that plaintiffs lack standing to "bring claims on behalf of a class under the laws of the states where the named plaintiffs have never lived or resided." In re HSBC Bank, USA, N.A., Debit Card Overdraft Fee Litig., 1 F. Supp. 3d at 50 (holding that the plaintiffs lacked standing to "bring claims under state laws to which Plaintiff have not been subjected" and noting that, even if the plaintiff amended to add representatives from each state, "it would be difficult for the Court to adjudicate claims" under the various state laws); see also Ellinghaus v. Educ. Testing Serv., 15-CV-3442, 2016 WL 8711439, at *9 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 30, 2016) (Feuerstein, J.) (dismissing non-New York consumer protection claims on a motion to dismiss); Simington v. Lease Fin. Grp., LLC, 10-cv-6052, 2012 WL 651130, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 28, 2012) (Forrest, J.) ("Where plaintiffs themselves do not state a claim under their respective state's consumer statutes, . . . they do not have standing to bring claims under other state statutes—even where they are named plaintiffs in a purported class action."). Here, the two named Plaintiffs reside not only in the same state, but in the same borough of the city of New York, and—consistent with the holdings of numerous courts in the Second Circuit—are not entitled to bring state law claims asserting violations of consumer protection statutes outside New York. Compl. ¶¶ 36, 41. As such, these claims are DISMISSED.

VI. Plaintiffs have sufficiently stated a breach of contract claim.

To state a claim for breach of contract, a plaintiff must show "(1) the existence of a contract between [plaintiff and defendant]; (2) performance of the plaintiff's obligations under the contract; (3) breach of the contract by that defendant; and (4) damages to the plaintiff caused by that defendant's breach." Diesel Props S.r.l. v. Greystone Bus. Credit II LLC, 631 F.3d 42, 52

(2d Cir. 2011). Plaintiffs claim Defendants breached the Agreements "by (a) charging rates higher than the rates set forth in the welcome emails Defendants sent to consumers (b) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants 'will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle,' and (c) violating the contract's requirement that Defendants charge variable rates 'determined by business and market conditions.'" Compl. ¶ 35.

Defendants argue the Agreement expressly states that the rates charged are "variable," meaning they did not contract to charge Plaintiffs particular rates, and thus they did not breach the contract. However, Defendants ignore Plaintiff's allegations which specify that Defendants "made contractual promises to i) charge a specified energy rate (in Ms. Donin's case, 8¢ per kWh and 63¢ per therm), Compl. ¶ 4, ii) not to increase their rates "more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle," id. ¶ 5, and iii) base their variable rates on "business and market conditions," id. ¶ 6, and that the Defendants breached these three promises.

First, Plaintiffs have put forth facts showing that Defendant charged them over a specific energy rate. Notwithstanding the contractual promise, Plaintiffs allege Just Energy consistently charged Plaintiff Donin more than 8¢ per kWh. See Compl. ¶ 4. Plaintiffs allege they have provided billing data during a four-year period showing there was only one month when Just Energy charged Ms. Donin less than the 8¢ per kWh contractual rate. Id. Similarly, Plaintiffs maintain the same allegations regarding her gas account. Id. Plaintiff Donin alleges that during the seventeen months of billing, Just Energy's rate was higher than 63¢ per therm. Id.

Second, Plaintiffs have put forth facts showing Defendants increased their rates more than 35% from previous billing cycles. Plaintiffs maintain that in August 2013 Defendants raised Plaintiff Donin's electricity price by more than 80% over the prior month's rate. Id. ¶ 5.

Similarly, in May 2016, Plaintiffs allege Just Energy increased Ms. Donin's May 2016 gas rate by more than 36% compared to the rate she paid in April 2016. Id.

Finally, Plaintiffs have put forward facts to substantiate their claim that Defendant's failed to base their variable rates on "business and market conditions." The Complaint sets forth a month-by-month comparison of what Con Ed would have charged during each of the months for which Plaintiffs' billing data is presently available, showing both the difference and the percent difference between a rate based on "business and market conditions" and the rate Defendants charged. Compl. ¶¶ 142–44. Based on these tables, Plaintiffs show "that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than Con Ed's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices." Id. ¶ 147. The Complaint also clearly shows that "Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined," further substantiating its claim that Defendants' rates are untethered to "business and market conditions." Id. ¶¶ 153–56. This is sufficient to state a breach of contract claim for an ESCO's failure to charge contracted-for market-based rates, and thus a claim for breach of contract.

VII. Plaintiffs sufficiently allege a claim for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing.

A "claim for breach of an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing does not provide a cause of action separate from a breach of contract claim" when based on the same facts. Atlantis Info. Tech., GmbH v. CA, Inc., 485 F. Supp. 2d 224, 230 (E.D.N.Y. 2007) (Spatt, J.); Esposito v. Ocean Harbor Cas. Ins. Co., 13-CV-7073, 2013 WL 6835194, at *2 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2013) (Feuerstein, J.). In New York, "all contracts contain an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, under which neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract." Claridge

v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, 15-CV-1261, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015) (Castel, J.). "Where the contract contemplates the exercise of discretion, this pledge includes a promise not to act arbitrarily or irrationally in exercising that discretion." Dalton v Educ. Testing Serv., 663 N.E.2d 289, 291 (N.Y. 1995). Whether a defendant exercised bad faith is an issue of fact for a jury to decide. See First Niagara Bank N.A. v Mortg. Builder Software, Inc., 13-CV-592, 2016 WL 2962817, at *7 (W.D.N.Y. May 23, 2016) (Skretny, J.).

The Court finds some factual allegations overlap in Plaintiff's claims. However, because Just Energy contests the viability of the contract claim, the Court allows Plaintiffs to alternatively maintain the good faith and fair dealing claim, as is routinely allowed in federal court. See, e.g., Claridge, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6 (allowing both claims to proceed and noting that "[g]iven the ambiguous language of the Agreement, the plaintiffs plausibly allege that [defendant ESCO] could have exercised its discretion in a manner contrary to customers' expectations"); Hamlen v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., 16-CV-3526, 2017 WL 892399, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 6, 2017) (Briccetti, J.); Edwards v. N. Am. Power and Gas, LLC, 120 F. Supp 3d. 132, 147 (D. Conn. 2015) ("[I]n pleading that [defendant's] prices were arbitrarily high and unreasonable, [plaintiff] . . .sufficiently alleged a claim of breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing."). Accordingly, Plaintiffs' "claim for breach of an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing survives Defendants' motion to dismiss.

VIII. Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim is dismissed.

Unjust enrichment "may not be plead in the alternative alongside a claim that the defendant breached an enforceable contract." King's Choice Neckwear, Inc. v. Pitney Bowes, Inc., 09-CIV-3980, 2009 WL 5033960, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 23, 2009) (Cote, J.), aff'd, 396 Fed. App'x 736 (2d Cir. 2010) (summary order); see also Ainbinder v. Money Ctr. Fin. Grp., Inc., 10-

CV-5270, 2013 WL 1335997, at *8 (E.D.N.Y. Feb. 28, 2013) (Tomlinson, Mag.) (collecting cases), report and recommendation adopted, 10-CV-5270, 2013 WL 1335893 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2013) (Feuerstein, J.). Unlike Plaintiffs' claim for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, here all facts of Plaintiff's breach of contract claim overlap with their breach of unjust enrichment claims. There is no dispute as to the existence of a contract, and thus, a claim for unjust enrichment cannot survive. Accordingly, Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim is DISMISSED.

CONCLUSION

In sum, the Defendants' motion to dismiss is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part. The Court finds it has personal jurisdiction over Defendant Just Energy, Plaintiff Donin has standing, and Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged their breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing claims. All other claims are hereby DISMISSED. The Clerk of Court is respectfully directed to close the motion pending at ECF No. 27 and to remove John Does 1–100 from the caption.

SO ORDERED.

HON. WILLIAM F. KUNTZ, II
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Dated: September 24, 2021
Brooklyn, New York

Exhibit 4

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Trevor Jordet, by his attorneys, as and for his class action complaint, alleges, with personal knowledge as to his own actions, and upon information and belief as to those of others, as follows:

NATURE OF THIS CASE

1. This action seeks to redress the deceptive and bad faith pricing practices of Just Energy Solutions, Inc. ("Just Energy" or "Defendant") that has caused thousands of Pennsylvania consumers to pay considerably more for their natural gas than they should otherwise have paid.

2. Just Energy has exploited the deregulation of the retail natural gas market in Pennsylvania by luring consumers into switching natural gas suppliers using a bait-and-switch scheme designed to deceive reasonable consumers. Just Energy lures its customers into switching to its natural gas supply service by offering teaser rates that are fixed for a limited period of time and initially lower than the local utilities' rates for natural gas. Once the initial rate expires, Just Energy switches its customers over to its market variable rate, which is invariably higher than the initial teaser rate. Just Energy's market variable rate is likewise substantially higher than the competing local utilities' and independent energy companies' ("ESCOs") rates, and is disconnected from true market-based rates.

3. As a result, Pennsylvania consumers are being fleeced millions of dollars in exorbitant charges for natural gas.

4. This suit is brought pursuant to the Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law ("UTPCPL"), and Pennsylvania common law of on behalf of a class of Pennsylvania consumers who were charged a variable rate for natural gas by Just Energy from March 2012 to the present (the "Class" or "Class Members"). It seeks, inter alia, injunctive relief, actual damages and refunds, treble damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees, and the costs of this suit.

PARTIES

5. Plaintiff Trevor Jordet is a citizen of Pennsylvania residing in Norristown, Pennsylvania. Mr. Jordet was a customer of Just Energy from approximately 2012 through approximately February 2018, and as a result of Just Energy's deceptive conduct, he incurred excessive charges for natural gas.[1]

6. Defendant Just Energy was incorporated in California, and its principal place of business or corporate headquarters is in Houston, Texas.

[1] Mr. Jordet initially contracted with Commerce Energy for his natural gas services. According to a Just Energy press release, on April 1, 2017, Commerce Energy rebranded as Just Energy Solutions Inc. Press Release, JUST ENERGY GROUP INC., Commerce Energy Sheds Name to Begin Operating Under the Just Energy Brand (Apr. 3, 2017), http://www.marketwired.com/press-release/commerce-energy-sheds-name-to-begin-operating-under-the-just-energy-brand-nyse-je-2207232.htm. "The change represents a transition in name only, and does not affect the status of existing customer contracts, business licenses, or any other legal documentation." Id.

7. Upon information and belief, Just Energy provides natural gas and natural gas services to thousands of customers in Pennsylvania, and in other states including but not limited to Illinois, Michigan, and Virginia.

JURISDICTION

8. The Court has specific personal jurisdiction over Defendant Just Energy because Plaintiff's claims arise out of and relate to Defendant's conduct in Pennsylvania.

9. Subject matter jurisdiction in this civil action is authorized pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2)(A), as the amount in controversy is in excess of $5 million and Plaintiff and many class members are citizens of Pennsylvania, whereas Defendant is a citizen of California and Texas.

10. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(2).

OPERATIVE FACTS

The History Of Pennsylvania's Energy Industry

11. In 1999, Pennsylvania's state legislature made the decision to deregulate the market for retail natural gas and natural gas supply by passing the Natural Gas Choice and Competition Act, a major break with past policy. Before deregulation, retail residential consumers had to purchase both the supply and the delivery of natural gas from the local utility. The public policy motivation for allowing consumers a choice of natural gas suppliers is to enable retail customers to take advantage of competition between suppliers in the open market, as compared to the monopolistic and heavily regulated utility. The premise behind this policy is that competition would result in ESCOs being more aggressive than the monopoly utility in reducing wholesale purchasing costs and thereby lower prices and costs for retail customers.

12. ESCOs such as Just Energy have various options to buy natural gas at wholesale for resale to retail customers, including: owning natural gas production facilities; purchasing natural gas from wholesale marketers and brokers at the price available at or near the time it is used by the retail consumer; and by purchasing natural gas in advance of the time it is used by consumers, either by purchasing physical gas to be used in the future or by purchasing futures contracts for the delivery of natural gas in the future at a predetermined price. The purpose of deregulation is to allow ESCOs to use these and other innovative purchasing strategies to reduce natural gas costs, and pass those savings on to consumers.

13. Consumers who do not choose to switch to an ESCO for their energy supply continue to receive their supply from their local utility. However, if a customer switches to an ESCO, the customer will have his or her energy "supplied" by the ESCO, but still "delivered" by their existing utility. The customer's existing utility continues to bill the customer for both the energy supply and delivery costs. The only difference to the customer is which company sets the price for the customer's energy supply.

14. As part of the deregulation plan, ESCOs (like Just Energy) do not have to file or seek approval for the natural gas rates they charge with the state public services commissions or the method by which they set their rates.

15. Just Energy exploits the deregulation and the lack of regulatory oversight in the energy market by luring customers with enticing teaser rates and false promises that it will offer market-based variable rates when, in fact, Just Energy's rates are substantially higher than its own fixed rates, competing ESCOs rates, and the local utilities' rates, and are untethered from changes in wholesale rates.

Mr. Jordet's Experience

16. Just Energy solicited Mr. Jordet in or around 2012, representing that it would charge a rate lower than the local utility, PECO. Expecting to save money on his natural gas bills, Mr. Jordet expressed interest in Just Energy's offer.

17. Just Energy then provided Mr. Jordet its standard and uniform residential natural gas disclosure statement and terms of service (the "Agreement") that would govern their relationship. Just Energy also provided Mr. Jordet with a rescissionary period during which he could rescind the Agreement prior to its commencement should he not agree to its terms. During that rescissionary period, the Agreement served as a solicitation in which Just Energy identified the basis upon which the promised market-based variable rate would be determined.

18. According to the Agreement, customers are initially charged a fixed introductory rate (the "Introductory Rate") for a set number of months. Once the Introductory Rate expires, Just Energy automatically converts customers to its monthly variable rate.

19. The Agreement also represents that the variable rate, which is set by Just Energy, would be set "according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage[.]"

20. Any reasonable consumer, including Mr. Jordet, would understand based on Just Energy's representations concerning business and market conditions that its variable rate would primarily reflect the two main components of business and market conditions facing ESCOs like Just Energy, namely the wholesale cost of purchasing the natural gas it sells to its customers, and the business and market prices charged by Just Energy's competitors (i.e., the local utility and other ESCOs).

21. Mr. Jordet switched from PECO to Just Energy for his natural gas services in or around 2012, and cancelled his Agreement with Just Energy in February 2018. The following table identifies the billing periods for the past twenty-two months, the variable rate Just Energy charged Mr. Jordet, the corresponding rate PECO would have charged (which, as discussed below, is a reasonable representation of a market-based rate), and the differences between Just Energy's and PECO's contemporaneous rates:

[2] Quantities of natural gas are occasionally measured in terms of volume. A Ccf is a volumetric measure of the amount of gas contained in a space equal to one hundred cubic feet.

22. Additionally, the following table likewise identifies the billing periods for the past twenty-two months, Just Energy's variable rate, and the U.S. Energy Information Administration's ("EIA") official cost of wholesale natural gas delivered to Pennsylvania ("Citygate rate")[3]:

23. That Just Energy's variable rate is not in fact a competitive market rate based on the wholesale cost of natural gas is demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate was consistently significantly higher than PECO's rates and that the rate did not fluctuate with commodity prices.

24. Indeed, from April 2016 through February 2018 (his most recent bill), Just Energy's rate was higher than PECO's rate every single month. In fact, of the twenty-two months listed above, Just Energy's variable rate was more than double PECO's rate for ten months. In fact, on average, Just Energy's rate was 93% higher than PECO's rate.

25. PECO's rates serve as an ideal indicator of market conditions because they are based on the wholesale natural gas and the associated market costs (e.g., procurement costs, transportation, distribution, and storage -- the same costs ESCOs such as Just Energy incur). PECO and other Pennsylvania utilities can only adjust its rates quarterly based on changes in its wholesale supply costs and simply pass actual costs on to their customers -- without any markups or profit.[4] Because Pennsylvania utility rates do not include any profits, they serve as pure reflections of average market costs of wholesale natural gas, associated costs, and distribution over time.

26. While PECO and Just Energy may not purchase natural gas and associated costs in precisely the same manner, over time the wholesale costs they incur should be commensurate. In fact, Just Energy has a tactical advantage over the utility as it can purchase natural gas from a highly competitive natural gas market for future use, and therefore its cost for purchasing natural gas should at the very least reflect (if not undercut) market prices, albeit over a longer term. Therefore, while PECO's rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should be commensurate. But they are instead wildly disparate.

27. For example, when PECO's rate declined from $0.3501 to $0.2916 per Ccf (a decline of 17%) from August to September 2016, Just Energy increased its already exorbitant prices from $0.7183 to $0.744 per Ccf (an increase of 4%). Likewise, when PECO's rate declined from $0.4465 to $0.3858 per Ccf (decreasing by 14%) between August to September 2017, Just Energy's rate rose from $0.7233 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing 16%). Even when PECO's rate remained constant at $0.3501 per Ccf between June and July 2016, Just Energy's rate increased from $0.6725 to $0.7183 per Ccf (an increase of 7%).

28. The disparities are also evident over time. For instance, while PECO's rate generally declined between June 2017 and February 2018 from $0.4465 to $0.3991 per Ccf (declining 11%), Just Energy's rates increased from $0.616 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing by 36%).

29. Just Energy's stark rate disparities with those of the local utility, wherein Just Energy's rates were higher 100% of time from May 2016 through February 2018, considered together with the fact that Just Energy's rates do not reflect market fluctuations, demonstrate that Just Energy does not charge a rate based on business and market conditions as it states in its Agreement, but rather gouges its customers by charging outrageously high rates.

30. The disconnect between Just Energy's variable rate and changes in wholesale costs is also demonstrated by the fact that Just Energy's variable rate often increased while wholesale costs declined. The Citygate rate identified by the EIA is the actual wholesale price of natural gas in Pennsylvania. Between August 2017 and February 2018, the Citygate rate drastically declined from $0.730 to $0.3991 per Ccf (decreasing 45%), PECO's variable rate steadily increased from $0.7233 to $0.84 per Ccf (increasing 16%).

31. The cost of wholesale natural gas is the primary component of the non-overhead costs Just Energy incurs. Indeed, Just Energy concedes and represents as much, listing "the wholesale cost of natural gas supply" as the first factor in its list of business and market pricing components.

32. Just Energy's identification of "business" conditions among the factors it considers likewise does not justify its outrageously high rates. A reasonable consumer might understand that an ESCO will attempt to make a reasonable margin on the commodity it sells to consumers. However, such a consumer would also expect that such profits would be consistent with profit margins obtained by other suppliers of natural gas in the market, and also that Just Energy's profiteering at the expense of its customers would not be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices but is instead outrageously higher. That other ESCOs' rates are lower, even though they purchase natural gas from the wholesale market, demonstrates that Just Energy sets its profit margins in bad faith. Similarly, PECO's rate reflects a rate that Just Energy could charge (because Just Energy could purchase natural gas in the same way and at the same cost as PECO) plus a reasonable margin. No reasonable consumer would consider a margin that is on average 93% to be fair or commercially reasonable.

33. Any potentially conceivable additional business and market costs that are not explicitly disclosed in the Agreement (such as taxes, fees, and assessments) are relatively insignificant in terms of the overall costs Just Energy incurs to provide retail natural gas, and do not fluctuate over time. Therefore, these other cost factors cannot explain the drastic increases in Just Energy's variable rate or the reason its rates are disconnected from changes in wholesale costs.

34. Thus, Just Energy's statements with respect to the natural gas rates it will charge are materially misleading because consumers do not receive a price based on the specified factors like wholesale costs and competitor pricing. Instead, consumers are charged rates that are substantially higher (often more than double) those of competitors and untethered from the specified market factors. Just Energy intentionally fails to disclose this material fact to its customers because no reasonable consumer -- including Mr. Jordet -- who knows the truth about Just Energy's exorbitant rates would choose Just Energy as a natural gas supplier.

35. Just Energy's statements and omissions regarding its natural gas rates are materially misleading because the only consideration for any reasonable consumer when choosing an energy supplier is price.

36. In fact, all that Just Energy offers customers is natural gas delivered by local utilities, a commodity that has the exact same qualities as natural gas supplied by other ESCOs or local utilities. Other than potential price savings, there is nothing to differentiate Just Energy from other ESCOs or local utilities. Accordingly, the potential for price savings is the only reason any reasonable consumer would enter into a contract for natural gas supply with Just Energy.

37. Just Energy knows full well that it charges a rate that is unconscionably high, and the misrepresentations it makes with regard to the rate being market-based were made for the sole purpose of inducing consumers to sign up for Just Energy's natural gas supply so that it can reap outrageous profits to the direct detriment of its consumers without regard to the consequences high utility bills cause such consumers. As such, Just Energy's actions were actuated by actual malice or accompanied by wanton and willful disregard for consumers' well-being.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

38. Plaintiff brings this action on his own behalf and additionally, pursuant to Rules 23(b)(2) and 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, on behalf of a class of all Just

Energy customers charged a variable rate for residential natural gas services by Just Energy from April 2012 to the present (the "Class" or "Class Members").

39. Plaintiff also brings this action on behalf of a sub-class of Just Energy's Pennsylvania customers charged a variable rate for residential natural gas services by Just Energy from April 2012 to the present (the "Pennsylvania Sub-Class").

40. Excluded from the Class and Pennsylvania Sub-Class (collectively, the "Classes") are Defendant; any parent, subsidiary, or affiliate of Defendant; any entity in which Defendant has or had a controlling interest, or which Defendant otherwise controls or controlled; and any officer, director, legal representative, predecessor, successor, or assignee of Defendant.

41. This action is brought as a class action for the following reasons:

a. The Classes consist of thousands of persons and is therefore so numerous that joinder of all members, whether otherwise required or permitted, is impracticable;

b. There are questions of law or fact common to the Classes that predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, including:

i. whether Defendant violated 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201 et seq.;

ii. whether Defendant breached its contract with its consumers by charging variable rates not based on the factors specified in the customer agreements;

iii. whether Defendant breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by exercising its unilateral price-setting discretion in bad faith, i.e., to price gouge;

iv. whether Plaintiff and the Class have sustained damages and, if so, the proper measure thereof; and

v. whether Defendant should be enjoined from continuing to charge variable rates not based on market conditions;

c. The claims asserted by Plaintiff are typical of the claims of Class Members;

d. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Classes, and Plaintiff has retained attorneys experienced in class and complex litigation, including class litigation involving consumer protection and ESCOs;

e. Prosecuting separate actions by individual Class Members would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual Class Members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendant;

f. Defendant has acted on grounds that apply generally to the Classes, namely representing that its variable rates are based on market conditions, i.e., competitive and reflective of the wholesale market, when Defendant's rates are in fact substantially higher, such that final injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant from continuing its deceptive practices is appropriate with respect to the Classes as a whole;

g. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, for at least the following reasons:

i. Absent a class action, as a practical matter Class Members will be unable to obtain redress, Defendant's violations of its legal obligations will continue without remedy, additional consumers and purchasers will be harmed, and Defendant will continue to retain its ill-gotten gains;

ii. It would be a substantial hardship for most individual Class Members if they were forced to prosecute individual actions;

iii. When the liability of Defendant has been adjudicated, the Court will be able to determine the claims of all Class Members;

iv. A class action will permit an orderly and expeditious administration of class claims, foster economies of time, effort, and expense and ensure uniformity of decisions;

v. The lawsuit presents no difficulties that would impede its management by the Court as a class action; and

vi. Defendant has acted on grounds generally applicable to Class Members, making class-wide monetary and injunctive relief appropriate.

42. Defendant's violations Pennsylvania's UTPCPL and common law apply to all Class Members, and Plaintiff is entitled to have Defendant enjoined from engaging in illegal and deceptive conduct in the future.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

Violation of Pennsylvania's Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law (On Behalf of the Pennsylvania Sub-Class)

43. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

44. Defendant has engaged in, and continues to engage in, fraudulent and deceptive conduct in violation of 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-3.

45. Defendant's acts are willful, fraudulent, deceptive, unfair, unconscionable, and contrary to the public policy of Pennsylvania, which aims to protect consumers.

46. Defendant's misrepresentations and false, deceptive, and misleading statements and omissions with respect to the variable rates it charges for natural gas, as described above, constitute deceptive practices in connection with the marketing, advertising, promotion, and sale of natural gas in violation of 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-3.

47. Defendant's fraudulent and deceptive conduct was designed to and did result in misunderstandings on the part of Mr. Jordet and other reasonable consumers.

48. Defendant's false, deceptive, and misleading statements and omissions would have been material to any potential consumer's decision to purchase natural gas from Just Energy.

49. Defendant knew at the time it promised prospective customers that they will be billed a variable rate based on wholesale costs of natural gas and other business and market conditions that its promise was false because at the time of contract formation Just Energy knew that its variable rate was untethered from business and market conditions.

50. Defendant's intentional concealments were designed to deceive current and prospective variable rate customers into believing that rates will be commensurate with market conditions and the factors specified in the Agreement. By concealing its actual pricing strategy (presumably maximizing profits), Defendant benefits from reliance and deprive consumers from informed purchasing decisions and savings.

51. Defendant also baits and switches potential customers by enticing them with deceptively low Introductory Rates, only to shift them on to Just Energy's exorbitant variable rate plan shortly thereafter.

52. Defendant's practices are unconscionable and outside the norm of reasonable business practices.

53. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's unlawful deceptive acts and practices, Plaintiff and Class Members entered into agreements to purchase natural gas from Just Energy and suffered and continue to suffer an ascertainable loss of monies based on the difference in the rate they were charged versus the rate they would have been charged had Defendant charged a rate based on business and market conditions as specified in the Agreement or had they not switched to Defendant from their previous supplier. By reason of the foregoing and pursuant to 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-9.2(a), Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and the Class for trebled actual damages, attorneys' fees, and the costs of this suit.

54. Plaintiff and Class Members further seek equitable relief against Defendant. Pursuant to 73 PA. CONS. STAT. § 201-9.2(a), this Court has the power to award such relief, including but not limited to, an order declaring Defendant's practices as alleged herein to be unlawful, an Order enjoining Defendant from undertaking any further unlawful conduct, and an order directing Defendant to refund to Plaintiff and the Class all amounts wrongfully assessed, collected, or withheld.

55. Defendant knows full well that it charges an unconscionably high rate, and the misrepresentations it makes with regard to the rate being market based were made for the purpose of inducing consumers to sign up for Defendant's natural gas supply so that it can reap outrageous profits to the direct detriment of Pennsylvania consumers without regard to the consequences high utility bills cause such consumers. As such, Defendant's actions are unconscionable and actuated by bad faith, lack of fair dealing, actual malice, or accompanied by wanton and willful disregard for consumers' well-being. Defendant is therefore additionally liable for punitive damages, in an amount to be determined at trial.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
Breach of Contract and the Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing
(On Behalf of the Class)

56. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

57. Plaintiff and the Class entered into valid contracts with Defendant for the provision of natural gas.

58. Pursuant to the Agreement, Defendant agreed to charge a variable rate for natural gas based business and market conditions, such as the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution, and storage.

59. Pursuant to the Agreement, Plaintiff and the Class paid the variable rates charged by Defendant for natural gas.

60. However, Defendant failed to perform its obligations under the Agreement. Indeed, Defendant charged a variable rate for natural gas that was untethered from the pricing components set forth in the parties' contract.

61. No reasonable consumer, including Mr. Jordet, would interpret the Agreement as granting Defendant with unfettered discretion to price gouge its customers.

62. Plaintiff and the Class were injured as a result because they were billed, and they paid, a charge for natural gas that was higher than it would have been had Defendant based its rate on the agreed upon factors.

63. By reason of the foregoing, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and Class Members for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions, the amount of such damages to be determined at trial.

64. Additionally, every contract in Pennsylvania contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in the performance and enforcement of the contract. The implied covenant is an independent duty and may be breached even if there is no breach of a contract's express terms.

65. Under the contract, Defendant had unilateral discretion to set the variable rate for natural gas based on market conditions and other factors, such as the amount of profit Defendant hoped to earn from the sale of natural gas in a customer's utility area.

66. Plaintiff reasonably expected that the variable rates for natural gas would, notwithstanding Defendant's profit goals, reflect the market and wholesale prices for natural gas and that Defendant would refrain from price gouging. Without these reasonable expectations, Plaintiff and other Class Members would not have agreed to buy natural gas from Defendant.

67. Defendant breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by arbitrarily and unreasonably exercising its unilateral rate-setting discretion to price gouge and frustrate Plaintiff and other Class Members' reasonable expectations that the variable rate for natural gas would be commensurate with market conditions.

68. As a result of Defendant's breach, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and Class Members for actual damages in an amount to be determined at trial.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
Unjust Enrichment
(On Behalf of the Class)
(In the Alternative to Count II)

69. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations contained in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

70. By engaging in the conduct described above, Defendant has unjustly enriched itself and received a benefit beyond what was contemplated in the contract, at the expense of Plaintiff and the Class.

71. It would be unjust and inequitable for Defendant to retain the payments Plaintiff and the Class made for excessive natural gas charges.

72. By reason of the foregoing, Defendant is liable to Plaintiff and the other members of the Class for the damages that they have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions, the amount of which shall be determined at trial.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court should enter judgment against Defendant as follows:

1. Certifying this action as a class action, with a class and a sub-class as defined above;

2. On Plaintiff's First Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Pennsylvania Sub-Class Members have suffered, trebled, and granting appropriate equitable relief;

3. On Plaintiff's Second Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Class Members have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions;

4. On Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action, awarding against Defendant damages that Plaintiff and Class Members have suffered as a result of Defendant's actions;

5. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class punitive damages;

6. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class interest, costs, and attorneys' fees; and

7. Awarding Plaintiff and the Class such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.

DEMAND FOR TRIAL BY JURY

Pursuant to Rule 38 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Plaintiff hereby demands a trial by jury.

Attorneys for Plaintiff and the Class

Exhibit 5

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

TREVOR JORDET,

Plaintiff,

v.

DECISION AND ORDER

18-CV-953S

JUST ENERGY SOLUTIONS, INC.,

Defendant.

I. Introduction

This case alleges that Defendant imposed improper pricing for natural gas upon Plaintiff and the proposed class of Defendant's customers (Docket No. 1, Compl.). Before this Court is Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19)[1] the Complaint.

For the reasons stated herein, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss is granted in part, denied in part.

II. Background

This is a diversity jurisdiction class action under Pennsylvania common law and statute challenging terms of Defendant's utility supply contract (see Docket No. 1, Compl.). Plaintiff commenced the action in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, but it was later transferred to this District (Docket No. 23).

[1] In support of its motion to dismiss, Defendant submits its attorney's Declaration with exhibits (an example of Defendant's contract and Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission's Natural Gas Suppliers List) and Memorandum of Law, Docket No. 20. In opposition, Plaintiff submits his Memorandum of Law, Docket No. 26. Defendant filed a timely Reply Memorandum, Docket No. 32. Plaintiff moved to file a Sur-Reply, Docket No. 35, which this Court granted, Docket No. 38. He then filed the Sur-Reply, Docket No. 39.

Plaintiff then filed supplemental authorities, Docket Nos. 41 (Gonzales v. Agway Energy Servs., LLC, No. 18-235-MAD-ATB, 2018 WL 5118509 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018)), 42 (Mirkin v. XOOM Energy, LLC, 931 F.3d 173 (2d Cir. 2019)), presenting cases that denied motions to dismiss.

Plaintiff is a Pennsylvanian who was a customer of Defendant (incorporated in California with its principal place of business in Texas) from 2012 through February 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 6, 5).

Pennsylvania deregulated natural gas in 1999 (id., Compl. ¶ 11; see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 2). The purpose for deregulation was to allow energy supply companies ("ESCOs") to use their natural gas facilities, purchased gas from wholesalers and brokers or purchasing futures contracts at set prices, and other innovations to reduce natural gas costs and pass the savings to consumers (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 12).

Customers only select an ESCO for supplying natural gas while continuing to use the utility for delivery and billing (id. ¶ 13). The only difference from utility-furnished natural gas is the price of energy supply (id.). ESCOs' supply rates, including Defendant's, are not approved by the Pennsylvania public service commission (id. ¶ 14).

A. Pleadings

Plaintiff charges that Defendant entices customers with a low teaser rates and "false promises that it will offer market-based variable rates," then shifts the accounts to variable pricing that are "untethered from changes in wholesale rates" (id. ¶ 15).

In or around 2012, Defendant solicited Plaintiff to change natural gas supplier to Defendant, "representing that [Defendant] would charge a rate lower than the local utility, PECO" (id. ¶ 16). Defendant's agreement contained a rescissionary period when Plaintiff could change his mind and terminate without penalty (id. ¶ 17). Defendant charged Plaintiff a fixed, discounted introductory rate for a number of months then converted the account to a variable price (id. ¶ 18). The agreement represented that the variable price "would be set 'according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to,

Plaintiff alleges that a reasonable consumer (like him) would conclude that business and market conditions were the vendor's wholesale costs and the amounts charged by competitors (id. ¶ 20). Instead, Defendant set the variable price higher than Plaintiff's utility (PECO) and Defendant's ESCO competitors (id. ¶¶ 21, 22). Plaintiff contends that Defendant's prices were not competitive market rates; for example, these prices did not fluctuate with changes in natural gas prices (id. ¶¶ 23, 24). Instead, Plaintiff believes that PECO's rates were indicators of the market since it includes supply costs, transportation, distribution, and storage costs (id. ¶ 25). Plaintiff, however, fails to acknowledge that PECO's rates are approved by the public service commission. Even with the advantage of purchasing natural gas from a highly competitive market, Defendant's prices were higher and were not commensurate with PECO's rates (id. ¶¶ 26-30). Plaintiff characterizes these prices as "wildly disparate" (id. ¶ 26). He concedes, however, that Defendant had discretion to set variable prices (id. ¶ 65).

As for market conditions, Plaintiff states that a reasonable customer recognizes the vendor should recoup a reasonable margin on sales of gas (id. ¶ 32), which Plaintiff contends should be the same as other ESCOs and the utility. Because other ESCOs' rates are lower than Defendant's, Plaintiff claims that the profit margin sought by Defendant is in bad faith (id.). Defendant's undisclosed costs in taxes, fees, and assessments Plaintiff deems to be insignificant and not a justification for the disparity in Defendant's pricing from its competitors or PECO (id. ¶ 33). Plaintiff, however, does not state the profit or profit margin of these ESCOs or of PECO.

Plaintiff alleges three causes of action. The First Cause of Action alleges violation of Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practice and Consumer Protection Law ("UTPCPL") (id. ¶¶ 44-55), with this claim specifically addressed to a subclass of Pennsylvania residents (id.). The Second Cause of Action alleges breach of contract (including breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, not distinct causes of action under Pennsylvania law) (id. ¶¶ 57-68). The Third Cause of Action alleges unjust enrichment, as alternative to the Second Cause of Action (id. ¶¶ 70-72).

Plaintiff alleges a class of Defendant's customers who also were charged variable rates for residential natural gas services from April 2012 to the present (id. ¶ 38; see also id. ¶ 39 (subclass of Pennsylvania customers so charged)). The Second and Third Causes of Action apply to the full class, while the First Cause of Action applies to the broader class and also the subclass of Pennsylvania customers.

B. Procedural History

Plaintiff filed this action in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on April 6, 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl.).

With consent, Defendant moved to transfer venue to this District (Docket No. 17), see 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). There, Defendant argued that the interest of justice supported transfer, in part because of a similar case that then was pending in this Court (Docket No. 18, Def. Memo. at 3, 4-7), see Nieves v. Just Energy New York, No. 17CV561. The district court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania granted the transfer (Docket No. 23; see Docket No. 24 (transmitted docket)).

On the same day Defendant moved to transfer, Defendant moved to dismiss (Docket No. 19). The parties stipulated to set Plaintiff's response to the Motion to Dismiss to twenty-one days from the adopting Order (Docket No. 22), or by September 4, 2018. Following transfer to this District and upon the parties' stipulation to extend Defendant's time to reply (Docket No. 28), this Court set the deadline for Defendant's reply for October 5, 2018 (Docket No. 29). After filing a timely Reply (Docket No. 32), Sur-Reply (Docket No. 39), and supplemental authorities from Plaintiff (Docket Nos. 41, 42), the motion to dismiss was deemed submitted without oral argument.

In its Motion to Dismiss, Defendant provides an example of an unexecuted contract (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1). The definitional section there defined "Variable Price" as "the monthly rate that you will be charged per Ccf after expiration of the 12 month Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions." (Id.) In Section 5.1, Natural Gas Charges, the contract provides that

> "the Variable Price during the first billing cycle in which the Variable Price is in effect will be equal to the Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each monthly billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage, and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

(Id.; see also Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19).

III. Discussion

A. Applicable Standards

1. Motion to Dismiss

Defendant has moved to dismiss the Complaint on the grounds that it states a claim for which relief cannot be granted (Docket No. 19). Under Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court cannot dismiss a Complaint unless it appears "beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 45-46, 78 S.Ct. 99, 2 L.Ed.2d 80 (1957). As the Supreme Court held in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 554, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007), a Complaint must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) if it does not plead "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face," id. at 570 (rejecting longstanding precedent of Conley, supra, 355 U.S. at 45-46); Hicks v. Association of Am. Med. Colleges, No. 07-00123, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39163, at *4 (D.D.C. May 31, 2007). To survive a motion to dismiss, the factual allegations in the Complaint "must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level," Twombly, supra, 550 U.S. at 555; Hicks, supra, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39163, at *5. As reaffirmed by the Court in Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009),

> "To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.' [Twombly, supra, 550 U.S. at 570 . . . . A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. Id., at 556 . . . . The plausibility standard is not akin to a 'probability requirement,' but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully. Ibid. Where a complaint pleads facts that are 'merely consistent with' a defendant's liability, it 'stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of "entitlement to relief."' Id., at 557 . . . (brackets omitted)."

A Rule 12(b)(6) motion is addressed to the face of the pleading. The pleading is deemed to include any document attached to it as an exhibit, Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(c), or any document incorporated in it by reference. Goldman v. Belden, 754 F.2d 1059 (2d Cir. 1985). This Court deems incorporated here the contract since it is integral to Plaintiff's claim even if Plaintiff did not incorporate the actual document by reference, Chambers v. Time Warner, Inc., 282 F.3d 147, 152-53 (2d Cir. 2002); 5B Charles A. Wright and Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1357, at 376, 377 (Civil 3d ed. 2004). Neither party, however, produced Plaintiff's actual contract with Defendant (or any potential class member's contract). The Complaint alleges key terms of that agreement (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19), while Defendant's moving papers contains a facsimile of its Natural Gas Customer Agreement for the Natural Gas Rate Flex Pro Program (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. ¶ 1, Ex. 1). Both sides cite to an identical provision about variable prices. And, absent objection from Plaintiff, this Court will consider the Natural Gas Customer Agreement and its definition of "Variable Price" and its terms for natural gas charges (id., Secs. 1, 5.1).

In considering such a motion, the Court must accept as true all of the well pleaded facts alleged in the Complaint. Bloor v. Carro, Spanbock, Londin, Rodman & Fass, 754 F.2d 57 (2d Cir. 1985). However, conclusory allegations that merely state the general legal conclusions necessary to prevail on the merits and are unsupported by factual averments will not be accepted as true. New York State Teamsters Council Health and Hosp. Fund v. Centrus Pharmacy Solutions, 235 F. Supp. 2d 123 (N.D.N.Y. 2002).

2. Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law

Pennsylvania courts construe the Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. §§ 201-3, et seq. (the "UTPCPL"), liberally to effectuate the goal of consumer protection, Bennett v. A.T. Masterpiece Homes at Broadsprings, LLC, 40 A.3d 145, 151 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2012), citing Commonwealth by Creamer v. Monumental Properties, Inc., 459 Pa. 450, 459, 329 A.2d 812, 816 (1974) (see Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

The UTPCPL creates a cause of action for any person who purchases services primarily for personal, family, or household purposes and thereby suffers ascertainable loss of money as a result of employment by any person of a method, act, or practice declared unlawful by the Act, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-9.2 (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19). Plaintiff has to allege a deceptive act, an ascertainable loss of money or property, that resulted from the use or employment of a method, act, or practice declared unlawful by the UTPCPL, and that plaintiff justifiably relied on the deceptive conduct, Abraham v. Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 321 F.R.D. 125, 154 n.11 (E.D. Pa. 2017) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17); Landau v. Viridian Energy PA LLC, 223 F. Supp.3d 401, 418 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

Unlawful methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices include false advertising, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(v) ("Representing that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits or quantities that they do not have or that a person has a sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection that he does not have"), (vii) ("Representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another"), (ix) ("Advertising goods or services with intent not to sell them as advertised") (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; see Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19-20). To state a claim for false advertising as the unlawful method, a plaintiff has to allege that defendant's representations were false, that the representations actually deceived or tended to deceive, and the representation likely made the difference in the purchasing decision, Price v. Foremost Indus. Ins., No. CV 17-00145, 2017 WL 6596726, at *9 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 22, 2017) (citing Seldon v. Home Loan Servs., Inc., 647 F. Supp.2d 451, 466 (E.D. Pa. 2009) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18). The Third Circuit explains "Material representations must be contrasted with statements of subjective analysis or extrapolations, such as opinions, motives and intentions, or general statements of optimism, which constitutes no more than puffery," EP Medsystems, Inc. v. EchoCath, Inc., 235 F.3d 865, 872 (3d Cir. 2000). Puffery, however, is not actionable as false advertising under Pennsylvania law, Castrol, Inc. v. Pennzoil Co., 987 F.2d 939 (3d Cir. 1993); Commonwealth v. Golden Gate Nat'l Senior Care LLC, 158 A.3d 203, 215 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2017), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 648 Pa. 604, 194 A.3d 1010 (2018) (reversing dismissal of UTPCPL claims). Whether a statement is puffery is a question of fact to be resolved by a fact finder, Commonwealth v. Golden Gate Nat'l Senior Care LLC, 642 Pa. 604, 626-27, 194 A.3d 1010, 1024 (2018).

Unlawful methods also include a generic category of fraudulent and deceptive conduct. To plead this catchall provision for fraudulent or deceptive conduct, 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(xxi) ("Engaging in any other fraudulent or deceptive conduct which creates likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding"), plaintiff needs to allege a deceptive act, that is conduct likely to deceive a consumer acting reasonable under similar circumstances; justifiable reliance based on the misrepresentations or deceptive conduct; and ascertainable loss caused by justifiable reliance, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418 (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20).

3. Pennsylvania Contract Law and Unjust Enrichment

Briefly, under Pennsylvania law, a breach of contract has these elements: the existence of a contract, including its essential terms; breach of a duty imposed by the contract; and resultant damages, Gillis v. Respond Power, LLC, No. 14-3856, 2018 WL 3247636, at *4 (E.D. Pa. July 16, 2018) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8); Landau v. Viridian Energy PA LLC, 223 F.Supp.3d 401, 408 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 6) The only element at issue is allegation of breach of the agreement by Defendant.

An implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contained in all contracts under Pennsylvania law, and breach of that duty is subsumed in the breach of contract claim, Kantor v. Hiko Energy, LLC, 100 F.Supp. 3d 421, 430 (E.D. Pa. 2015) (quoting Burton v. Teleflex Inc., 707 F.3d 417, 432 (3d Cir. 2013)) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 16); see Hatchigian v. State Farm Ins. Co., No. 13-2880, 2014 WL 176585, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 16, 2014) (breach of implied covenant and breach of contract is a single cause of action under Pennsylvania law), aff'd, 574 F. App'x 103 (3d Cir. 2014) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8).

Under Pennsylvania law, unjust enrichment is inapplicable when the relationship is founded on a written agreement or express contract, Hershey Foods Corp. v. Ralph Chapek, Inc., 828 F.2d 989, 999 (3d Cir. 1987) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25 (citing Pennsylvania state decisions)). "[T]o sustain a claim of unjust enrichment, the claimant must show that the party against whom recovery is sought either wrongfully secured or passively received a benefit that would be unconscionable for that party to retain without compensating the provider," Hershey Foods, supra, 828 F.2d at 999;

Torchia on behalf of Torchia v. Torchia, 346 Pa. Super. 229, 499 A.2d 581 (1985). Unjust enrichment cannot be alleged while alleging a breach of contract unless the validity of the contract itself is actually disputed, Grudkowski v Foremost Ins. Co., 556 F. App'x 165, 170 n.8 (3d Cir. 2014) (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8).

B. Motion to Dismiss Contentions

Defendant argues that Plaintiff fails to allege plausible claims for breach of contract and his other contract claims (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 8-16). Defendant invokes Pennsylvania's statute of limitations of four years to bar claims prior to April 6, 2014 (id. at 16-17), 42 Pa. Cons. St. Ann. § 5525(a). Defendant asserts Plaintiff also failed to plead violations of the UTPCPL, namely the asserted violations in advertising and the catchall provision for fraudulent and deceptive conduct (id. at 17-18, 18-21, 21-24). Defendant also contends that Pennsylvania's gist of the action doctrine prohibits a plaintiff from recasting a contract claim as a tort, as Plaintiff did here in alleging unfair trade practice violations (id. at 23-24; see Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 7, citing Pollock v. National Football League, 171 A.3d 773, 77 n.2 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2017)). Defendant concludes that Plaintiff cannot invoke unjust enrichment while an express contract exists (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25; see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8).

Plaintiff contends that he plausibly alleged his three claims (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5-25). The breach of contract here was the manner in which Defendant set variable pricing. Plaintiff responds that Defendant is "hang[ing] its hat on the implausible assertion that the phrase 'business and market conditions' could mean something other than wholesale costs, competitor pricing, or charges Just Energy incurs to supply natural gas (like transmission costs, which are minimal and steady)" (id. at 3). Plaintiff argues that Pennsylvania law requires Defendant, as an ESCO, to disclose to Plaintiff the conditions of variability in its variable pricing, 52 Pa. Code § 62.75(c)(2)(i) (id. at 7). That provision requires the disclosure of the "conditions of variability (state on what basis prices will vary) including the [ESCO's] specific prescribed variable pricing methodology," id. Plaintiff counters that the gist of the action doctrine was not applicable, allowing his UTPCPL claim as distinct from his contract claim (id. at 23, citing Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 408-19 (E.D. Pa. 2016)).

Plaintiff presents a table comparing Defendant's variable prices to the average Pennsylvania ESCO's billing rate from April 2016-February 2018, with Defendant's variable prices exceeding the competitor's average rates (from U.S. Energy Information Administration table) in a range between 7% (in March-April 2017) to 102% (in August-September 2017) (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 7).

Defendant replies that Plaintiff concedes that Defendant did not promise to set rates based upon any single factor and that "business and market conditions" included a variety of nonexclusive factors (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 1), that Plaintiff alleged facts only for one factor in a multiple factor process (id. at 2-3). Plaintiff fails to plead in particularity (id. at 3 & n.2). Defendant points out that the Complaint failed to allege competitor ESCO rates (id. at 1, 4-5). Defendant denies that the difference between its rates and PECO's rates creates claims, thus Plaintiff failed to allege a benchmark for market prices (id. at 1-2).

Next, Defendant argues that Plaintiff has not established a violation of the catchall provision for the UTPCPL (id. at 6-7). Defendant asserts that Plaintiff's UTPCPL claim violates the gist of the action doctrine (id.; see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 23-24).

Finally, Defendant distinguishes the motion to dismiss cases cited by Plaintiff (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8-10 & nn.9-13).

The Sur-Reply argues that U.S. Energy Information Administration data includes pricing data from Pennsylvania for its ESCOs' rates (Docket No. 39). This, however, does not address the contention that the Complaint does not allege ESCO data was collected in Pennsylvania, Docket No. 32, Def. Reply at 1. As a motion to dismiss it rests solely on the four corners of pleadings where additional materials not integral to Plaintiff's claims were not incorporated by reference, cf. 5B Federal Practice and Procedure, supra, § 1357, at 376.

Plaintiff supplemented with two other cases in which motions to dismiss were denied in what he claims were similar circumstances (Docket Nos. 41, 42). In Gonzalez v. Agway Energy Services, LLC, No. 18-235-MAD-ATB, 2018 WL 5118509 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018) (Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Gonzalez]), the plaintiff alleged that Agway Energy misled by representing its variable rates for electricity were based on the cost of acquisition of electricity, transmission and distribution charges, market-related factors, plus applicable taxes, fees, charges, or other assessments, and Agway Energy's costs, expenses, and margins, at *1 (Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. at 1-2). In Mirkin v. XOOM Energy, LLC, 931 F.3d 173 (2d Cir. 2019) (Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Mirkin]), the Second Circuit reversed the grant of a motion to dismiss. Plaintiffs alleged that XOOM set its variable rate based on XOOM's "actual and estimated supply costs which may include but not be limited to prior period adjustments, inventory and balancing costs," id. at 175 (Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. at 1). They alleged XOOM breached the contract by charging a variable rate that did not reflect the factors in the contract (id. at 2).

After discussing the contract provision at issue here, this Court will consider (out of order) the common law causes of action of breach of contract and unjust enrichment and conclude with Plaintiff's First Cause of Action under the UTPCPL.

C. Variable Price Provision

Each of the three causes of action required Defendant to breach the standard of business and market conditions for imposing variable pricing. The key clause is Section 5.1, Natural Gas Charges of the Terms and Conditions of the contract, specifically declaring that

> "the Variable Price during the first billing cycle in which the Variable Price is in effect will be equal to the Intro Price. The Variable Price will not change more than once each monthly billing cycle. Changes to the Variable Price will be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions, including but not limited to, the wholesale cost of natural gas supply, transportation, distribution and storage, and will not increase more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle."

(Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1). The contract stated in the definition section that changes in "Variable Price" would "be determined by Just Energy according to business and market conditions" (id.).

This case, like Nieves v. Just Energy New York, No. 17CV561, 2020 WL 6803056 (W.D.N.Y. Nov. 19, 2020) (Skretny, J.), and its variable rate provision, turns on the meaning of the phrase "business and market conditions." In Nieves, this Court relied upon the Second Circuit's decision in Richards v. Direct Energy Services, 915 F.3d 88 (2d Cir. 2019), and its definition of the terms "business and market conditions," recognizing that these terms (absent restriction or definition) was broad enough to cover the supplier's discretion in setting variable rates or prices, Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056 at *5. This Court distinguished Jordet's contract from Nieves because it provided some definition of what Defendant considered business and market conditions, id. at *6, from the inclusion of natural gas costs as a factor in rate setting.

D. Breach of Contract and Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith (Second Cause of Action)

As a breach of implied covenant of good faith, Plaintiff concedes that Defendant had unilateral discretion in setting the variable rate (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 65). As one noted commentator found, "there can be no breach of the implied promise or covenant of good faith and fair dealing where the contract expressly permits the actions being challenged, and the defendant acts in accordance with the express terms of the contract," 23 Williston on Contracts § 63:22 (4th ed. 2018); see Richards v. Direct Energy Services, supra,, 915 F.3d at 99.

As a breach of contract, the terms refer to Defendant setting variable prices based upon business and market conditions, defined (in part) to include wholesale natural gas supply costs, transportation, distribution, and storage. Plaintiff reads this as the extent of what are business and market conditions. The cost of natural gas was a factor in business and market conditions (see id. ¶ 19; Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex 1, Sec. 5.1), but not the exclusive factor. While Defendant has some discretion in setting variable rates, the contract gives some direction in that action.

Pennsylvania law, however, requires a natural gas supplier charging a variable rate to disclose the conditions for variation, 52 Pa. Code § 62.75(c)(2)(i). "Conditions of variability (state on what basis prices will vary) including the [natural gas supplier's] specific prescribed variable pricing methodology," id. This provision is part of natural gas supply regulation that mandates "all natural gas providers enable customers to make informed choices regarding the purchase of all natural gas services offered by providing adequate and accurate customer information," provided in "an understandable format that enables customers to compare prices and services on a uniform basis," 52 Pa. Code § 62.71(a). Marketing materials advertising variable pricing has to "factor in all costs associated with the rate charged to the customer for supply service," 52 Pa. Code § 62.77(b)(2).

Plaintiff alleges a breach of contract where Defendant's only stated basis for variable pricing is its natural gas acquisition costs and does not specifically include the other, undisclosed factors Defendant used to set the variable prices.

As in Nieves, Jordet cites to cases in other courts that deny motions to dismiss on similar contract provisions (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5 & n.2, 8; Docket No. 41, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Gonzales]; Docket No. 42, Pl. Supp'al Auth. [Mirkin]). Again, these cases have limited precedential value because each is fact specific, resting upon different contract terms and governing law, see Claridge v. North Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-1261, 2015 WL 5155934, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015) (denying dismissal); Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056, at *6 (see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8-10). Plaintiff cites (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 5 n.2) cases analogous to the "business and market conditions" provision for Defendant's variable prices where the provisions in these cases specified wholesale costs as part of the calculation, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 406; Steketee v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-585 (D. Conn. Apr. 14, 2016) (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl., Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 2-3); Sanborn v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 14-1731 (D. Conn. Apr. 1, 2015) (id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3); Fritz v. North Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 14-634 (D. Conn. Jan. 29, 2015) (id., Ex. 4, Fritz Tr. at 2). In Landau, plaintiff Steven Landau alleged that associates from defendant represented that he would enjoy lower rates than offered by utility PECO and that he would never have to worry about defendant suddenly increasing rates, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 406. The variable rates may fluctuate based upon "wholesale market conditions applicable to the [defendant electric distribution company's] service territory," id. In Steketee, plaintiff amended the Complaint to allege that the variable rate was based on wholesale market conditions and added that a representative of defendant explained to plaintiff that defendant's variable rate would be based on wholesale market conditions (id., Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 2-3). In Fritz, defendant's variable market-based rate plan "may increase or decrease to reflect price changes in the wholesale power market" (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 4, Fritz Tr. at 2).

In Sanborn, the court noted two statements at issue (id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr.). The first statement contained in the contract's terms and conditions provision stated that price may fluctuate from month-to-month "based on wholesale market conditions applicable" to defendant's service area. The second statement is a Massachusetts required disclosure statement that variable rates comes from a variety of factors including the wholesale market. (Id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3-4.)

Although noting that these cases do not present the actual contract texts, Defendant's contract here is like those supply agreements in these cited cases (see id., Ex. 3, Sanborn Tr. at 3-4). In all these contracts the variable rates were set by a combination of operating costs, the costs of purchasing fuel, and a "catch-all of other factors" (id., Sanborn Tr. at 3). As Defendant characterized Sanborn and similar cases, the courts found that the agreements there did not contain specific factors on which the variable rates would be set (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 10 & n.13). The factors stated in each of these cases provided a basis for those plaintiffs to allege breaches when the defendants set rates at variance with those standards or consistent with objective supply costs. Plaintiff plausibly states a claim where "business and market conditions" has some standard that Defendant had to apply in setting its variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in its pricing. Plaintiff also plausibly alleges this breach as natural gas wholesale prices decreased while Defendant's pricing increased (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 8). Plaintiff also claims Defendant made representations of savings as compared with utility prices for natural gas (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16) as was alleged in other cases, Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp.3d at 406; Steketee, supra, (Docket No. 27, Pl. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1, Steketee Tr. at 3). In general, Plaintiff plausibly alleges a breach of contract claim.

E. Statutes of Limitations

Under Pennsylvania law, an action upon a contract "must be commenced within four years," 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 5525(a)(1). For an action for breach of contract, this limitations period begins to run from the time of breach, Baird v. Marley Co., 537 F. Supp. 156, 157 (E.D. Pa. 1982) (citing cases). With the filing of the Complaint here in April 6, 2018 (Docket No. 1, Compl.), breach of contract claims prior to April 6, 2014, are time barred. Plaintiff did not argue the timeliness of the April 2012 to April 6, 2014, breach of contract claims (either his or the purported class members).

Plaintiff alleged that he signed with Defendant as his natural gas supplier in 2012 (id. ¶ 21). Plaintiff cites PECO and Defendant's rates from April 2016 to February 2018 (id. ¶¶ 21-22). Plaintiff complains the rates charged by Defendant from that period were higher than PECO's prices (id. ¶¶ 21-22, 24). Plaintiff also alleges a class of similar consumers of Defendant from April 2012 to the present (id. ¶¶ 38-39).

Under Defendant's contract, Defendant charged Plaintiff a fixed introductory rate for a number of months (id. ¶ 18). According to the model gas supply contract Defendant produced in its motion (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1), that introductory rate lasted twelve months (id., Definition "Variable Price"). Thus, Plaintiff had claims from variable pricing (the alleged breach of contract) from 2013. Under § 5525, Plaintiff's claims prior to April 6, 2014, are time barred; similarly, the purported class's claims prior to that date also are barred. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) these untimely claims is granted.

Therefore, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss the Second Cause of Action for breach of contract is granted in part, denied in part. The motion is granted for untimely breach of contract claims but denied as to the timely claims.

An action under the UTPCPL has a six-year statute of limitations, 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. Ann. § 5527(b); Morse v. Fisher Asset Mgmt., LLC, 206 A.3d 521, 526 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2019). Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action (and class claims) thus is timely. This Court below address the substance of Plaintiff's statutory claim.

F. Unjust Enrichment (Third Cause of Action)

Under Pennsylvania law, a plaintiff cannot allege an unjust enrichment where there is an existing contract, Hersey Foods, supra, 828 F.3d at 999; Umbelina v. Adams, 34 A.3d 151, 162 n.4 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2011) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 24-25 (citing cases); see also Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8 & n.8 (citing case)). Plaintiff counters that she is alleging this cause of action in the alternative under Federal

Rule 8(d)(2) (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 25). Defendant replies that, under Third Circuit precedent, where an express contract governs, a plaintiff may not plead unjust enrichment, even in the alternative, unless 'the validity of the contract itself is actually disputed'" (Docket No. 32, Def. Reply Memo. at 8, quoting Grudkowski v. Foremost Ins. Co., 556 F. App'x 165, 170 n.8 (3d Cir. 2014)). Plaintiff expressly alleged that he entered into a valid contract (id., citing Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 57).

Rule 8 allows for alternative pleading; the Second Circuit differs from the Third Circuit in this respect, cf. Kaufman v. Sirius XM Radio, Inc., 474 F. App'x 5, 9 (2d Cir. 2012); U.S. ex rel. Kester v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., No. 11 Civ. 8196 (CM), 2014 WL 4401275, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 4, 2014). Under the Erie doctrine, this Court applies Pennsylvania substantive law but federal (here Second Circuit) procedures. The question thus is whether Plaintiff alleges an unjust enrichment claim separate from his contract claim.

Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim, however, cannot be separated from the contract. Plaintiff alleges in the Third Cause of Action (after repeating and realleging prior allegations acknowledging an express contract, Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 69, 57)), that "by engaging in the conduct described above, Defendant has unjustly enriched itself and received a benefit beyond what was contemplated in the contract, at the expense of Plaintiff and the Class" (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 70, emphasis supplied). His unjust enrichment claim measures from what Defendant should have been entitled to under the contract. Since he has (and purported class members had) an express contract with Defendant, Plaintiff cannot also allege an unjust enrichment claim. Plaintiff has not alleged that Defendant had a legal duty independent of that contract in setting its variable rates.

Thus, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action is granted.

G. Pennsylvania Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law (First Cause of Action)

Finally, this Court considers dismissal of the First Cause of Action under the Pennsylvania UTPCPL.

As for the element of alleging a deceptive act, Plaintiff alleges deception from the offer made during the initial rescission period, arguing that this offer was a solicitation in which Defendant represented that variable prices would be determined in accordance with business and market conditions (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21; Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 19). He also asserts that the deception was the setting of variable prices untethered to wholesale prices or competitively to other ESCOs (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 21-22).

By alleging paying higher rates than were charged for natural gas by his former utility or other ESCOs, Plaintiff has alleged a loss of money (see Docket No. 1, ¶¶ 53, 50), either the difference he paid Defendant under the variable price from what Defendant ought to have charged had it applied business and market conditions or the difference from what he paid from his utility's rates (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 22-23). Plaintiff has not specified either the ESCOs' rates or what Defendant charged from 2013 (after the introductory rate expired) through March 2016 under variable pricing (cf. Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 21-22) to establish that defendant charged Plaintiff higher rates.

As for Plaintiff's justifiable reliance on Defendant's representation, he alleges deceptive conduct that, but for Defendant's representation about the variable pricing, he would not have contracted with Defendant (id. at 22; Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶¶ 47-53, 66).

As for use of or employment of an illegal method, act or practice, Plaintiff does not allege specific violations of the UTPCPL(see Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17). Both sides now agree Plaintiff alleges wrongful methods of false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21) and fraudulent and deceitful conduct, falling under the Act's catchall provision, 42 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4) (xxi) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17; Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 19-20, 21-22). He claims this deceptive activity refers to false advertising or solicitation and the catchall of prohibited fraudulent or deceptive conduct. Defendant refutes two theories of deception contending that there is no allegation of false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18-21) or fraudulent conduct to meet the catchall provision (id. at 21-23).

1. False Advertising

a. Oral Representation

Plaintiff states that Defendant made a representation that, if he joined Defendant, his natural gas rates would be less than PECO's rates (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). After agreeing, Plaintiff argues that he was given a three-day rescission period before the contract went into effect, thus deeming this to be a solicitation regulated by the UTPCPL (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20-21). Plaintiff believed that the offer of the proposed agreement represented that Defendant's variable prices would be competitive with other ESCOs, but the actual rates were not (id. at 21).

Defendant argues that Plaintiff fails to allege violation for false advertising (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 17). Defendant claims that the Complaint does not allege a misrepresentation, deception or fraudulent conduct (id.) or make promises regarding the variable pricing (id. at 5-6). The Complaint, however, alleges that Defendant represented to Plaintiff that Defendant would charge lower rates than PECO, his natural gas utility (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). Defendant counters that this allegation is parol evidence that is barred pursuant to Pennsylvania law (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 6, 20, 22), see Scardino v. American Int'l Ins. Co., No. CIV.A.07-282, 2007 WL 3243753, at *7-8 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 2, 2007). Defendant denies any representation that under the agreement Defendant would beat utility prices or guarantee financial savings (id.; see Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl., Ex. 1, model contract, at 1, Customer Disclosure Statement).

To allege false advertising as the unlawful method under the Act, Plaintiff has to allege that Defendant's representations were false. Defendant raises threshold objections that the oral representation is barred by Pennsylvania's parol evidence rule and that the agreement is not an advertisement. Courts in Pennsylvania have granted motions to dismiss because of the parol evidence rule, Bernardine v. Weiner, 198 F. Supp. 3d 439, 441, 443-44 (E.D. Pa. 2016). Pennsylvania law bars parol evidence and fraud in the inducement claim based on parol evidence, id. Here, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant represented that its rates would be less than PECO, inducing Plaintiff to sign up. This is parol evidence and fails to state a claim. Even if this oral representation remains, Plaintiff has not alleged that variable pricing after the introductory price expired.

Furthermore, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania held that representations by individual employees or agents of a defendant are not advertisements under the UTPCPL and cannot constitute a violation of that act, Seldon, supra, 647 F. Supp. 2d at 466; see Thompson v. The Glenmede Trust Co., No. 04428, 2003 WL 1848011, at *1 (Pa. Ct. Com. Pl. Feb. 18, 2003). The court also noted that 73 Pa. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(ix) false advertising requires allegation of intent, Seldon, supra, 647 F. Supp.2d at 466; Karlsson v. FDIC, 942 F. Supp. 1022, 1023 (E.D. Pa. 1996), aff'd, 107 F.3d 862 (3d Cir. 1997). Plaintiff here, however, has not alleged that Defendant intentionally engaged in false advertising; the Complaint merely alleges that Defendant intentionally concealed its pricing strategy while representing that it would base variable prices on business and market conditions (cf. Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 50).

Finally, Plaintiff's alleged representation is threadbare, merely alleging that Defendant's unnamed representative solicited Plaintiff representing lower rate than PECO (Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 16). This is similar to the allegations rejected by the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania in Corsale v. Sperian Energy Corp., 412 F. Supp. 3d 556, 563 (W.D. Pa. 2019). In Corsale, plaintiffs alleged that Sperian Energy Corp. advertised that it offered "competitive" rates; the Western District of Pennsylvania held this was threadbare and the vague claim of competitive rates was nonactionable puffery, id. Therefore, Defendant's motion to dismiss the First Cause of Action for claims under Complaint ¶ 16 is granted.

b. Cancellation Provision Making Contract an Advertisement

The second representation or solicitation alleged is the offered agreement during a recessionary period (see Docket No. 1, Compl. ¶ 17). Plaintiff argues that its terms was an advertisement until it came into effect when Plaintiff did not reject the agreement. According to the model Natural Gas Customer Agreement furnished by Defendant, the customer could cancel that agreement up to three business days after receipt of the agreement without penalty (Docket No. 20, Def. Atty. Decl. Ex. 1, at 1). The agreement repeats in all capital letters "THE CUSTOMER MAY RESCIND THIS AGREEMENT AT ANY TIME PRIOR TO MIDNIGHT OF THE THIRD BUSINESS DAY AFTER RECEIPT OF THIS AGREEMENT WITHOUT PENALTY" (id. (emphasis in original)).

Plaintiff argues that there was thus no contract for that three-day period because of his ability to rescind without penalty, concluding that the document he received was a solicitation or advertisement until those three days passed (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 21). Plaintiff cites for example In re Estate of Rosser, 821 A.2d 615, 623 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2003), where whether a contract had consideration or mutuality of obligation was necessary to determine if a decedent's conveyance could be voided by the survivors. To the contrary, Plaintiff and Defendant had mutuality of obligations even during the three-day rescissionary period. Plaintiff had to act to cancel the contract within those three days to terminate the agreement without penalty while Defendant still had to supply natural gas. Plaintiff has not cited other cases where the UTPCPL applied to the recessionary period of a contract by deeming that to be a solicitation or advertisement. He also has not cited authorities that render an agreement like the one in this case illusory merely because a party can opt out after a brief initial period. Pennsylvania law recognizes binding contracts that contain cancellation provisions, e.g., Samuel Williston, Williston on Contracts § 7:13 (2020), recognizing valid agreement with provision that one party may cancel provided the method to do so is limited. Reservation, for example, of right to cancel upon written notice or after a definite period after giving notice, "there is consideration for the promisor's promise, despite the fact that the promisor may in fact be able to avoid its obligation," id.; see also Philadelphia Ball Club v. Lajoie, 202 Pa. 210, 51 A. 973 (1902). That an agreement contains this initial cancellation provision does not invalidate it as a contract and render it into a mere offer.

This Court has not found precedent under the UTPCPL that considered an agreement as an advertisement. This Court agrees with the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in Price, supra, 2018 WL 1993378, at *5 (see also Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 21), that "to the extent Plaintiffs rely on the sales agreement itself for their claim, that claim is duplicative of the breach of contract claim." The distinction Plaintiff argues from the lack of a recessionary period makes little difference; as discussed above, Plaintiff entered the contract with a recessionary period. A claim that this agreement is also advertising merely alleges a duplicative claim under common law and the UTPCPL.

Thus, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) so much of the Complaint alleging the contract was advertising in violation of the UTPCPL is granted.

2. UTPCPL's Catchall for Fraudulent and Deceptive Practices and Federal Rule 9 Pleading Requirements

Defendant argues that Plaintiff has not alleged fraud and deception under the UTPCPL with specificity as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b) (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 22-23). The parties dispute whether Plaintiff alleged fraud and thus under Rule 9(b) needed to plead fraud with particularity. Defendant argues that violation of the UTPCPL needs to be alleged with particularity (Docket No. 20, Def. Memo. at 18 n.4, citing, e.g., Dolan v. PHI Variable Ins. Co., No. 3:15-CV-01987, 2016 WL 6879622, at *5 (M.D. Pa. Nov. 22, 2016) (Rule 9(b) heightened specificity extends to all claims that sound in fraud, citations to District of New Jersey case omitted). The court in

Dolan held that Rule 9(b) applied to state fraud claims including alleged violations of the UTPCPL, id.

Plaintiff counters that under Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418, pleading under the UTPCPL need not be particularized (Docket No. 26, Pl. Memo. at 20 n.8). The court in Landau considered the amendment to the catchall provision adding deceptive conduct and the court held that pleading deceptive conduct only required Rule 8(a) normal pleading and not the heightened fraud pleading of Rule 9(b), 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418.

An Erie doctrine issue arises whether Pennsylvania law (here, as construed by federal courts in that Commonwealth) applies or does this Court's (or the Second Circuit's) procedural caselaw applies on the particularity issue. Both sides here cite federal decisions from Pennsylvania. Under the Erie doctrine, while state law governs the substantive issues, procedural law in diversity cases is federal procedures, e.g., Loreley Financing (Jersey) No. 3 Ltd. v. Wells Fargo Sec., LLC, 797 F.3d 160, 182 n.14 (2d Cir. 2015); NCC Sunday Inserts, Inc. v. World Color Press, Inc., 692 F. Supp. 327, 330 (S.D.N.Y. 1988) (applying Rule 9(b) to Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act claim, "while state law governs substantive issues of state law raised in federal court, it is federal law which governs procedural issues of state law raised in federal court, and Rule 9(b) is a procedural rule"). Where this Court or the Second Circuit has ruled on a procedure, this Court is bound to apply it. Absent that precedent, this Court reviews the decisions of other districts and may adopt its rationale.

As of 2016, the Second Circuit has not held that Rule 9(b) applies to similar state unfair trade practices laws, see L.S. v. Webloyalty.com, Inc., 673 F. App'x 100, 105 (2d Cir. 2016) (summary Order), where the court noted that Connecticut law did not require a plaintiff to allege or prove fraud for violations of the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act (or "CUTPA"), see Willow Springs Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Seventh BRT Dev. Corp., 245 Conn. 1, 43, 717 A.2d 77, 100 (1998). Acknowledging there that a CUTPA violation may overlap with common law claims, the Second Circuit and Connecticut courts recognize that "to the extent that they diverge, dismissal of a plaintiff's CUTPA claim is not warranted unless the facts as alleged do not independently support a CUTPA claim," L.S., supra, 673 F. App'x at 105. The Second Circuit then stated "we are doubtful, even assuming Rule 9(b) applies to certain CUTPA claims, Rule 9(b)'s particularity requirement would apply to a CUTPA claim premised" on the facts alleged, id., concluding that those alleged facts nevertheless would satisfy Rule 9(b) pleading requirements, id.

Magistrate Judge Hugh Scott of this District once found that an allegation under the New York General Business Law was not pled, Navitas LLC v. Health Matters Am., Inc., No. 16CV699, 2018 WL 1317348, at *19-20 (W.D.N.Y. Mar. 14, 2018) (Report & Rec), but did not require that pleading with particularity under Rule 9(b). There, co-defendant Bio Essentials asserted crossclaims for fraud and presumably for violation of New York General Business Law § 349 against defendant Health Matters America but not expressing alleging the claim under that statute, id. at *19, 3. Health Matters then moved to dismiss some of the crossclaims, including those alleging fraud and unfair business practices, id. at *4, 14-15. In two crossclaims, Bio Essentials alleged Health Matters false statements damaged Bio Essentials either as unfair trade practices or as fraudulent statements, id. at *14-15. Given Bio Essentials' relatively vague pleading, Health Matters argued that the fraud and unfair trade practice crossclaims violated Rule 9(b), id. at *15-16. Bio Essentials argued that only its fraud crossclaim required

pleading under Rule 9(b), id. at *17. Magistrate Judge Scott then applied Rule 9(b) to the fraud crossclaim while recommending dismissal of the unfair practices crossclaims for failure to allege the elements of General Business Law § 349 claims, id. at *17-19, quoting Oswego Laborers' Local 214 Pension Fund v. Marine Midland Bank, 85 N.Y.2d 20,24-25, 623 N.Y.S.2d 529, 532 (1995).

Both L.S. and Navitas skirt applying Rule 9(b) particularity for state unfair trade practices actions, recognizing that they are distinct from common law fraud claims that would require particular pleading. Deceptive acts under the UTPCPL's catchall provision has been held not to be fraud and could be plead under Rule 8(a), Landau, supra, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 418. But the UTPCPL catchall refers to "engaging in fraudulent or deceptive conduct," 73 Penn. Cons. Stat. § 201-2(4)(xxi), which includes fraud. Therefore, so much of Plaintiff's catchall claim that alleges fraudulent conduct requires particular allegation under Rule 9(b), see 5A Charles A. Wright, Arthur R. Miller & A. Benjamin Spencer, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1297, at 63-64 (Civil 2018).

Even if Rule 9(b) is not required for allegations under the UTPCPL, Twombly and Iqbal require pleading details to allege a plausible claim, see Price v. Foremost Indus., Inc., Civil Action No.17-00145, 2018 WL 1993378, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 26, 2018) (plaintiffs' alleging UTPCPL violations stated misrepresentations that were "devoid of the details that Twombly and Iqbal require").

The allegations here, however, do not meet the plausibility standard of Twombly and Iqbal without regard to Rule 9(b) particularization, id. It is not clear what the deceptive act is here. The agreement ultimately gave Defendant discretion to set its variable pricing with one stated factor but allowing discretion to set it based upon "business and market conditions". Plaintiff alleges his understanding of what "business and market conditions" is (or ought to have been) but he does not allege that Defendant represented that this understanding was what it meant.

Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) the First Cause of Action under the UTPCPL is granted.

H. How This Case Differs from Nieves v. Just Energy New York Corp.

Since Plaintiff's counsel in this case also represented Malta Nieves and the same defense counsel represent the Just Energy Defendants in both cases, a comparison of the result here and in Nieves is in order. Defendant moved to transfer this case to the Western District of New York because of the then-pending Nieves action was before this Court. Factually, the cases are distinguishable. First, the language of the variable terms differs between this case and Nieves. In Nieves, Just Energy New York ("Just Energy") set the variable electricity rate solely based on "business and market conditions" without that phrase being defined or giving specific examples of those conditions. This Court held that Just Energy had unfettered discretion in setting these rates without reference to wholesale electricity rates or competitors' charges, Nieves, supra, 2020 WL 6803056, at *4. Malta Nieves did not allege representations by Just Energy that she would pay less than the electrical utility; Nieves merely claimed that Just Energy represented that she would save money, id., at *2.

Second, Nieves arose in New York and argued breach of contract and other claims under New York law. Pennsylvania law expressly required natural gas suppliers to specify the basis for variable pricing while New York law does not. Third, the energy supplied differed, with Nieves involving electricity. There was no express breakdown of the cost of electrical supply, transmission, or storage as was in Defendant's gas supply contract with Jordet in this case. Fourth, both cases involve different corporate Defendants that might be affiliates but each Defendant was incorporated and had principal place of business in different jurisdictions.

The crucial difference between Nieves and this case is the variable terms in the supply contracts. Defendant here listed some (but not all) elements toward establishing business and market conditions in variable pricing, whereas Just Energy in Nieves has more open concept of that phrase "business and market conditions."

IV. Conclusion

Plaintiff's understanding of what a reasonable customer might expect is not the terms of the contract he signed with Defendant. That agreement gave Defendant some discretion to set variable rates, but expressly included natural gas costs as factors for business or market conditions. As summarized in wholesale gas costs (as Plaintiff argues), this is an element of Defendant's pricing but not necessarily the entirety of the business and market conditions.

Deregulation of natural gas supply rates moved the marketplace from regulated monopoly (rates set by PECO, for example, as approved by the Pennsylvania regulators) to those set in the marketplace. Defendant, as an ESCO, did not have its rates set by a public agency or by its competitors (including utilities like PECO). But Pennsylvania law in establishing deregulation required natural gas suppliers to furnish information for the basis of their pricing to have informed consumers.

Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) is granted in part, denied in part. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss the First Cause of Action for violation of the Pennsylvania

Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law is granted for both the advertising and fraudulent and deceptive conduct violations. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (id.) the Second Cause of Action for breach of contract is denied. Its Motion to Dismiss (id.) the Third Cause of Action for unjust enrichment is granted. Defendant shall answer the surviving Second Cause of Action within fourteen (14) days after entry of this Decision and Order. This Court then will refer this case to a Magistrate Judge for conducting pretrial proceedings.

V. Orders

IT HEREBY IS ORDERED, that Defendant's Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 19) is GRANTED in part, DENIED in part. Defendant shall answer the surviving Causes of Action within fourteen (14) days after entry of this Decision and Order. This Court will refer this case to a Magistrate Judge for pretrial proceedings.

SO ORDERED.

SCHEDULE A

The Claimants advance a claim against the "Just Energy Entities" in the amount of US$3,662,444,442.00 based on a proposed and uncertified class action filed in the US District Court in the Western District of New York (the "New York Court") on April 27, 2018, titled Fira Donin and Inna Golovan v. Just Energy Group Inc. et al., Case No. 1:17-cv-05787-WFK-SJB (the "Donin Action").

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the claim in its entirety.

Status of Litigation

The Donin Action was brought against Just Energy Group Inc. ("JEGI") and Just Energy New York Corp. ("Just Energy NY") on behalf of a putative class of "all Just Energy customers in the United States […] who were charged a variable rate for their energy at any time from [applicable statute of limitations period] to the date of judgment". The Claimants alleged, among other things, that the defendants engaged in fraudulent conduct, violated New York statutes by engaging in deceptive acts and practices, breached contractual provisions to consider "business and market conditions",[2] and breached the implied covenant of good faith when it charged rates that were more than the local utility rate for natural gas and electricity in New York.

Following a motion to dismiss, the New York Court dismissed all the Claimants' claims except for the breach of contract and implied covenant of good faith claims. The survival of a claim on a motion to dismiss is not an assessment of its merits but only a determination that, accepting as true all of the allegations in the complaint as required on that motion, the plaintiff has alleged a right to relief that is not entirely speculative.[3] The Court did not find that Just Energy NY had improperly exercised its contractually agreed discretion to set rates, or even that Just Energy NY did not consider the many different business and market conditions in setting its rates. These were all matters which could not be resolved solely on the pleadings.

The New York Court also found that it did not have jurisdiction over John Does 1-100, which the Claimants alleged were "shell companies and affiliates" through which JEGI did business in New York and elsewhere, as well as "Just Energy management and employees who perpetrated the [2] The Claimants also allege that the defendants breached the agreement by (i) charging rates higher than the rates set forth in the welcome email sent to consumers and (ii) increasing the variable rate by more than 35% over the rate from the previous billing cycle. With respect to the first allegation, the language of the agreement between the parties made it clear that Just Energy NY would charge the Claimants variable rates and that Just Energy NY did not contract to charge the Claimants particular rates. The second allegation applies to only one of the two proposed representative plaintiffs, and any damages would be limited to the overpayment due to the difference between the actual increase and a 35% increase for the particular months in question. These claims are not amenable to certification and are secondary to the Claimants' main argument that the defendants breached the contract's requirement to charge variable rates "determined by business and market conditions". The Claimants have made no effort to quantify any damages that might arise from these alleged breaches.

[3] Donin et al v. Just Energy Group Inc. et al, Decision and Order 17-CV-5787(WFK)(SJB) regarding Motion to Dismiss dated September 24, 2021, Dkt. 111, at 4.

unlawful acts." All claims against these defendants were dismissed, which effectively limits the Donin class, should it be certified, to New York customers.

On January 10, 2020, over the Claimants' objection, the New York Court ordered that factual discovery in this matter was closed and that all pending discovery requests and disputes before that Court were terminated. This ruling came after years of discovery, including the production of documents by the defendants in response to numerous requests by the Claimants. That discovery was also limited to the defendants' New York business, consistent with the limited scope of the claim that remains.

Improper Expansion of Claim

Four years after the commencement of the litigation, the Claimants now purport to advance a claim against all "Just Energy Entities" on behalf of the proposed class, notwithstanding the fact that the only named parties in the Donin Action are JEGI and Just Energy NY. Even if the underlying litigation had any merit (it does not), the Claimants cannot use these CCAA Proceedings to improperly expand the scope of their April 2018 claim to now add new defendants who were never included in the Donin Action. The Claimants' attempt to do so is particularly inappropriate given the New York Court's dismissal of all claims against JEGI's affiliates other than Just Energy NY.

Claim Is Meritless

The claim is contingent, uncertified, speculative, and remote. The Claimants will have to overcome substantial hurdles to be entitled to any recovery, including:

- dispositive motion practice (i.e. motion for summary judgment), which would involve the disclosure of expert reports and supporting evidence from fact witnesses, depositions, potential preliminary motions, written briefs, and oral argument. In particular, the defendants would seek to have the claim dismissed as against JEGI, as it is a holding company that does not contract to provide natural gas or electricity to any customers;

- a contested class certification process, which would include written briefing, presentation of supporting evidence from fact and expert witnesses, and oral argument;

- a trial on the issue of liability, including pretrial submissions and motion practice to resolve evidentiary issues, voir dire, direct testimony and cross-examination of fact and expert witnesses, and legal argument from counsel; and

- resolution of damages of the plaintiffs or certified class(es), which may require bifurcation from the trial on liability (especially if the Claimants continue to allege damages on behalf of a national class, which the defendants argue is impermissible).

A loss by the Claimants at any one of these phases would either entirely eliminate, or severely restrict, the Claimants' potential damages (and those of any other members of any certified class).

The claim is devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including the fact that the applicable contract puts customers (including the Claimants) on clear notice of the variable rates that Just Energy NY would set and to which customers (including the Claimant) will be subject. The language in the operative agreements provides that "This Agreement does not guarantee financial savings" and that the Claimants were paying a variable rate that "may change every month."[4] In complaining that their local utility's rates ended up being lower for a portion of the Claimants' contract term, the Claimants simply ignore away the operative agreement. There was no obligation under the agreement for Just Energy NY's rates to match or track those charged by the local utility.

Critically, the Claimants' allegation that the defendants breached the parties' contract by failing to set rates "according to business and market conditions" is premised on the erroneous assumption that local public utilities are the main competitors of Just Energy NY, and as such the defendants overcharged when their rates were higher than that of the local utility.[5] In reality, local utility rates are not an appropriate barometer by which to measure the rates of energy service companies ("ESCOs") like Just Energy NY (let alone an appropriate proxy for the long list of business and market conditions Just Energy NY was permitted to consider in exercising its discretion to set its rates) for several reasons, including because:

- Local utilities and ESCOs do not offer the same products and services. For instance, ESCOs offer 100% green products, fixed-rate products, energy conservation bundled services and products, dedicated customer service, and affinity rebates or refunds that many consumers prefer. ESCO retail commodity prices are part of a bundle of product and service offerings ESCOs provide their customers, in which products and services interact with each other; comparing the prices charged for those products and services with local utility commodity prices results in erroneous, misleading and distorted conclusions.

- Local utility commodity prices do not reflect wholesale energy prices. Local utilities are permitted to defer charges (with the approval of the regulator) to smooth price volatility during periods with particularly high wholesale gas and electricity costs (e.g., 2014 polar vortex price spikes). Such utility regulated deferral activity renders the local utility rates a particularly inappropriate proxy for actual wholesale rates and the actual business and market conditions for the given period and makes an accurate comparison between default service prices and ESCO prices for a particular period impossible. ESCOs do not have the ability to shift the costs of energy service over time, nor can they take advantage of regulated rates that ensure full cost recovery to the provider.

- Local utilities and ESCOs do not have the same business model. Just Energy NY must compete with other ESCOs to sell energy commodities to consumers. In contrast, local utilities are "default" providers of energy commodities and provide delivery service (gas and electric distribution) regardless of whether the consumer purchases energy commodities from the utility or an ESCO. As a result, local utilities do not face the same costs, risks and market forces that ESCOs face.

- Local utility commodity prices do not include reasonable profit margins. Unlike ESCOs, local utility commodity prices are designed to be a pass-through of wholesale costs (sometimes from different periods of time) and not a profit-generating business activity. Moreover, utilities are incentivised to allocate all possible commodity and employee/technology costs to a customer's delivery bill, since that is where the utility has a monopoly and is permitted to receive a return on investment. As a result, no accurate comparison is possible between utility commodity prices and ESCO commodity prices.

[4] "Essential Agreement Information" which is provided in the "Customer Disclosure Statement," which is incorporated into the Claimant's agreement with the defendant.

[5] The allegation that the defendant breached the covenant of good faith by failing to act reasonably in exercising its discretion to set rates is based on the same erroneous assumption.

- General energy market conditions affect ESCOs and local utilities differently. ESCOs incur costs well beyond the costs of energy procurement, which are reflected in their prices. In addition to the costs of the product or service bundled with the commodity cost, ESCO prices may also include consideration of competitors' prices, profit margins, and customer retention policies in addition to overhead costs and marketing efforts. ESCOs account for the costs and values associated with their enhanced products and services, including renewables, and need to structure their businesses to successfully offer fixed-rate guarantees to customers who purchase such products. ESCOs face the business conditions of a competitive market—not at all like the business conditions faced by a regulated utility.

The Claimants' expert has failed to even consider the variable rates charged by other ESCOs during the relevant period in calculating the alleged damages.

Not only is the Donin Action devoid of merit, it is not amenable to Rule 23 certification pursuant to the relevant US law, including because:

- Claimants will need to show that the language in the various contracts falling within the class definition are sufficiently similar to present common issues of law, and that those issues predominate over individual issues that different class members face.

- Claimants will need to establish that the proposed representative plaintiffs' claims are representative of the experience other customers may have had. The one-size-fits-all approach taken in the Claimants' damages model does not account for the different products and services offered by Just Energy NY to its customers and the different providers individual customers had prior to contracting to purchase energy services from Just Energy NY, and those differences may be considered at class certification.

- The differences between various contracts and products would be even more pronounced and problematic for purposes of a motion for class certification to the extent the Claimants continue to take the position that they will be seeking to include in the proposed class consumers who are not customers of Just Energy NY whose contracts for variable rate energy fit within Claimants' class definition. Although such an expansion is impermissible for the reasons described above, the proposed class's failure to satisfy the strict requirements of Rule 23 would be exponentially more pronounced where the proposed class includes customers who contracted with different entities, using different contracts, subject to different regulatory regimes, and for different product offerings.

- The Court will also need to find that the proposed representative plaintiffs or other subsets of the proposed class are not subject to unique defenses that would impair the fair and efficient resolution of the action. State specific regulations could present unique claims and defenses to the extent the Claimants' alleged class extended to Just Energy customers outside of New York.

Expert Report

The Claimants have submitted a report, that purports to be an expert report, in support of their proof of claim, however the Claimants have missed the relevant deadlines set by the New York Court to submit expert reports in the underlying litigation. Given the New York Court's order that discovery is closed in the Donin Action, the Claimants should not be allowed, as part of this proceeding, to cure defects of their own making in the litigation that existed prior to the CCAA Proceedings, in order to attempt to obtain monies to which they are not otherwise entitled.

The quantum of damages set out in the Claimants' expert report is speculative and highly inflated, as it is, among other things, based on several flawed assumptions. For example:

- The report assumes the correct "comparable" to determine "business and market conditions" is that of the local utility, instead of considering the rates charged by other ESCOs. As noted above, this assumption is deeply flawed. This approach fails for a number of reasons, including by failing to account for any ESCO reasonable profit margin on commodity prices, as local utility commodity prices are not designed to generate any profit.

- The report incorrectly includes commercial customers, whose contracts were materially different from (and subject to different regulatory regimes than) those of residential customers. Moreover, very few of Just Energy Entities' commercial customers are contractual counterparties of the named defendants. Commercial customers currently account for approximately 50% of the Just Energy Entities' customers' electricity and gas usage.

- Calculation of damages for residential and commercial gas customers is derived from a calculation that includes the residential gas load served by all Just Energy Entities. However, only Just Energy NY and JEGI are named defendants in the Donin Action, and any damages must be limited to customers who were contractual counterparties with those defendants. This effectively limits the claim to New York customers since JEGI does not contract directly with customers.

- Calculation of damages for residential and commercial electricity customers is derived from a calculation that includes the residential electricity load served by "Just Energy", Just Energy New York Corp., Amigo Energy, Commerce Energy, Hudson Energy Services, and Tara Energy, LLC (and Tara Energy Resources for commercial customers). However:

    - Only Just Energy NY and JEGI are named defendants in the action, and any damages must be limited to customers who were contractual counterparties with those defendants;

    - Including entities like Amigo Energy and Tara Energy, LLC, which only operate in Texas, makes no sense, given that the comparison to local utility rates is the basis of the Claimants' claim for damages and customers in Texas cannot obtain power directly from a local utility (they must obtain power from a retailer). The Just Energy Entities' Texas customers currently account for approximately 85% of non-commercial electricity usage, and approximately 52% of non-commercial electricity usage that is being charged out based on variable rates.

- The report assumes that 50% of residential and commercial electricity and natural gas usage of the Just Energy Entities' customer base is attributable to customers that are parties to variable rate contracts that would be included in the proposed class. This assumption is incorrect.

    - Currently, only approximately 34.9% of the Just Energy Entities' non-commercial customers' natural gas usage and approximately 6.9% of the Just Energy Entities' non-commercial customers' electricity usage is being charged out based on variable rates. Of that, only 2.1% and 0.04%, respectively, of natural gas and electricity usage is attributable to customers who are parties to variable rate contracts with the Just Energy Entities – the rest being customers who are parties to fixed-rate contracts with Just Energy Entities in certain jurisdictions that rolled over to variable rates when they did not renew their fixed rate contracts.[6] This latter subset of customers would not be properly included in the proposed class.

- The damages calculation includes time-barred claims. Pursuant to the 6-year limitation period applicable under New York law, all breach of contract claims with respect to alleged overcharges prior to October 3, 2011, are time-barred, consistent with other court decisions addressing this issue, including Judge Skretny's decision in the Jordet action.

- The expert report erroneously assumes the same rate of damages applies for the period between 2018 and 2020 as applied to the period before 2018. Given that the Just Energy Entities ceased to market variable-rate contracts to new customers by the end of 2017, the quantum of damages, if any, would have continued to decline materially following 2017 as no new variable rate customers were added to the customer pool.[7]

- The damages in the expert report are based on the calculated excess natural gas margin for residential customers, which was derived using two customers' billing data. The Claimants' expert himself acknowledges that the excess natural gas margin "is subject to potentially significant modification". This miniscule sample size means that the estimate of damages is effectively useless in accurately estimating any alleged damages. The same issue also applies with respect to the calculation of the excess electricity margin, which was derived using only one customer's data.

[6] In certain jurisdictions, the Just Energy Entities are required by the relevant regulations to roll over fixed rate customers to variable rates where they do not affirmatively renew their fixed term contract.

[7] As noted above, customers who are parties to fixed rate contracts with the Just Energy Entities in certain jurisdictions that rolled over to variable rates when they did not renew their fixed rate contracts would not be properly included in the class.

- The report assumes, without any evidence, that the differences between the variable rates the Claimants were charged and the local utility rates in New York are the same as that in other states.

- The Claimants' expert acknowledges that he can only calculate overcharges "more precisely for each member of the affected class as well as for the entire class" once additional discovery is conducted, including Just Energy NY's provision of monthly customer level sales and price data and cost of sales data. However, the New York Court ruled that the Claimants are not entitled to additional discovery in the Donin Action.

The speculative nature of the Claimants' damages calculations is further exacerbated to the extent they continue to seek to include in the proposed class consumers who are not customers of Just Energy NY whose contracts for variable rate energy fit within the Claimants' class definition. Although such an expansion is impermissible for the reasons described above, the assumptions underlying the Claimants' proffered damages analysis are even more speculative where different utility rates and regulatory regimes apply in different jurisdictions, with different product offerings and rate structures. These variables are not accounted for at all in the Claimants' rudimentary damages analysis.

Inflated Claim of Prejudgment Interest

For all the reasons outlined above, the inclusion of US$1,282,196,848 in prejudgment interest is also contingent, speculative, remote, and excessive. The prejudgment interest amount calculation is also fundamentally flawed, as it applies New York's prejudgment interest rate of 9% to damages allegedly incurred in California, Delaware, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas. Putting aside the fact that there is no basis for the underlying damages figure, the relevant prejudgment interest rates are significantly lower in most of these jurisdictions.

Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance

RE: Claim Reference Number: PC-11177-1

INTRODUCTION

Claimants Fira Donin and Inna Golovan (the "Claimants") brought a U.S. class action to redress Just Energy Group Inc. et al. and the other Just Energy Entities' ("Just Energy") deceptive, bad faith, and unfair pricing practices that have caused millions of consumers and businesses across the U.S. to pay considerably more for their electricity and natural gas than they should have paid.

Ms. Donin and Ms. Golovan's claims are joined by and parallel to those of Trevor Jordet (Claim Reference Number: PC-11175-1). Mr. Jordet brought a separate and similar U.S. class action that also seeks to recover for the millions of U.S. consumers and businesses harmed by Just Energy's unlawful conduct.

Regarding the class actions' status, two separate U.S. federal judges have concluded that Mses. Donin and Golovan, and Mr. Jordet alleged valid class claims against the Just Energy Entities. Both of Just Energy's Notices of Revision or Disallowance (the "Notice of Disallowance") concede this fact; both acknowledge that two different federal judges ruled that the class actions have viable contract claims and have "alleged a right to relief that is not entirely speculative," and that each presents serious liability issues that "could not readily be resolved solely on the pleadings."

These federal judges' conclusions are no surprise to Claimants, Just Energy, or their respective counsel. The class action claims arise from bedrock principals of contract law and are supported by a legion of U.S. case law, regulations, and statutes. The claims also represent paradigmatic class action claims that are readily certifiable (and have been certified on five separate occasions), are pleaded in tandem with increasing regulatory scrutiny (including outright bans) of the exact pricing practices Just Energy employed throughout the U.S., and follow in the footsteps of at least six regulatory actions against Just Energy.

What is more, the class claims were supported with a preliminary yet detailed report by an expert in competitive wholesale and retail energy markets. This expert advises the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Army, and the U.S. Department of Energy when they act as purchasers of electricity and natural gas from competitive retail suppliers in the same markets where Just Energy operates. This expert, who also supports U.S. state governments and agencies in energy-related formal proceedings, used the same breach of contract theories upheld by the two separate federal judges and calculated that Just Energy overcharged its U.S. customers by US$2,380,337,594. Just as the federal judges agreed, the expert calculated damages from the difference between the prices Just Energy was contractually bound to charge U.S. customers as compared to the prices ultimately charged. Then, because Just Energy's unlawful pricing practices spanned more than a decade, Claimants' counsel applied the pre-judgment interest rules of the class actions' forum state (New York) and calculated US$1,282,106,848 in unpaid interest. On November 1, 2021, Claimants submitted a class action claim in this proceeding for US$3,662,444,442.

The class action claims are as straightforward as they are strong. Just Energy targets consumers and businesses hoping to save on energy supply costs. Just Energy lures customers with a teaser or fixed rate for a limited period that is initially below its competitors' rates. Once that initial rate expires, Just Energy charges what it represents to be a "variable rate," which under Just Energy's contract must be set according to "business and market conditions." As one federal judge has already observed, "'business and market conditions' has some standard that [Just Energy] had to apply in setting [their] variable pricing but apparently failed to adhere to in [their] pricing."

In reality, however, Just Energy exploits its pricing discretion and the dramatic information asymmetry with its customers to artificially inflate its variable rates without regard to its contractual obligations. As a result, Just Energy's variable rates are consistently substantially higher than those otherwise available in the natural gas and electricity supply markets, and its rates do not fluctuate based on any reasonable interpretation of "business market conditions," such as wholesale market energy prices or the rates other competitive market participants (including local utilities and Just Energy's own fixed rates) charge for energy supply.

At bottom, Just Energy faces grim prospects in the class actions: The decisions of two federal judges sustaining straightforward and meritorious claims, a preliminary yet detailed analysis by a qualified expert showing billions in damages, a multitude of case law and regulatory action condemning Just Energy's very practices, five highly similar class certification decisions, and a checkered past of at least at least six regulatory actions.

Considering its slim odds on the merits, Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance predictably takes a blunderbuss approach. In fact, the Notice of Disallowance is essentially an outline of defenses that either this Court or the persons assigned to adjudicate Claimants' claims can evaluate (and discard) with straightforward discovery and limited testimony—just as other factfinders have done in previous similar cases. The Notice of Disallowance also presents no case law or a shred of actual evidence to support its odd contention that the sustained claims in two U.S. class actions are "meritless." It instead offers smokescreens and paper tigers that have been rejected by courts and regulators alike. Musings of counsel as to why Just Energy may not have breached its customer contracts are offered in place of facts, yet such conjecture was already rebuffed by two U.S. federal judges.

Just Energy understands its imminent risk of staggering liability. All five courts that have addressed class certification in cases involving energy supply companies based on the same liability theory Claimants proffer here certified the classes. Nearly every defendant involved in a similar energy class action that has survived a motion to dismiss—as is doubly the case here—settles due to the ease of proving liability and class certification following discovery. No factfinder will look kindly on variable rates that are substantially higher than utility rates and Just Energy's own fixed rates, even though Just Energy's costs for fixed and variable rate customers are the same. Claimants' expert will handily dispose of Just Energy's incredible and counterintuitive claims, including that variable rates are riskier to service than fixed rates and therefore its exorbitant variable rate margins are justified. Just Energy's internal pricing data and analysis will show the real basis for Just Energy's variable rate margins and the factfinder will easily conclude that Just Energy breached its contracts with its U.S. customers. For these and the other reasons below, Claimants dispute the Notice of Disallowance.

BACKGROUND

I. Procedural History

On October 3, 2017, Claimants Donin and Golovan filed their proposed class action lawsuit Donin et al. v. Just Energy Group Inc. et al., No. 17-cv-5787-WFK-SJB (E.D.N.Y.) in the United States Federal District Court for the Eastern District of New York. (Claimants' counsel also represent ten other Just Energy customers.) Claimants' complaint alleges the Just Energy Entities breached the following: their contractual obligations to base their variable gas and electricity rates on "business and market conditions"; their contractual obligation to charge a specified energy rate; and the implied covenant of duty of good faith and fair dealing. See, e.g., Donin Complaint ¶¶ 26-35. Claimants brought their claims on behalf of all Just Energy Entities' U.S. customers that were charged a variable rate for electricity and natural gas supply.

On September 24, 2021, Judge William F. Kuntz of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York denied the Just Energy Entities' motion to dismiss Claimants' contract claims on behalf of all U.S. customers, ruling inter alia that Claimants had adequately alleged that the Just Energy Entities breached their contractual obligation to charge market-based rates, breached their contractual obligation to charge a specified energy rate, and breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Decision & Order at 3, 12–15, Donin Dkt. No. 111.

That Just Energy Group Inc. was not dismissed from Donin, of course exposes the falsity of Just Energy's claim that Donin is limited "should it be certified, to New York customers." Further, and as set forth below, the relevant law is clear that Mses. Donin and Golovan can represent Just Energy customers from states other than New York. Indeed, the Donin/Golovan claim was also submitted on behalf of ten other U.S. consumers represented by the undersigned. Those consumers are from California, Michigan, Texas, and New York.

Regarding the status of discovery in the Donin action, Just Energy's claims are demonstrably false. For example, Just Energy oddly posits that "Claimants have missed the relevant deadline set by the New York Court to submit expert reports in the underlying litigation" when the Donin docket plainly shows expert discovery was stayed as of May 8, 2019 pending the dismissal ruling. May 8, 2019, Minute Order; see also ECF No. 51 at 14:14–17 (THE COURT: "[S]hould the case survive summary -- excuse me, motion to dismiss, we will discuss a timely schedule for conducting expert discovery. Until then, expert discovery is stayed."). Likewise, Just Energy falsely claims that fact discovery closed right before the COVID-19 pandemic. Yet the record is clear that discovery in Donin was simply stayed pending the dismissal ruling, which because of the pandemic was not issued until September 24, 2021. See e.g., ECF No. 60 at 12:8–13:2. Just Energy similarly ignores the fact that the Donin/Golovan claim here was also submitted on behalf of ten other U.S. consumers whose class action claims are not pending in Donin.

II. Deregulation of State Gas and Electricity Retail Supply Markets

In the 1990s and early 2000s, numerous U.S. states deregulated retail natural gas and electricity supply markets. Retail energy supply deregulation's primary goal was increased competition with an eye to achieving greater consumer choice and lower energy supply rates. The most frequently cited reason for deregulation was lower prices. As a result, in deregulated states across the U.S. consumers and businesses can choose their energy supplier. The new energy suppliers, who compete against local utilities, are known as energy service companies, or "ESCOs."[1] Regardless of the supplier consumers select, the local utility continues to deliver the commodity to consumers' homes. In almost all states, the local utility also bills customers for both the energy supply and delivery costs in a single "consolidated" bill. The only difference to the customer is whether the utility or an ESCO sets the energy supply price.

ARGUMENT

III. Just Energy Breached Its Contracts with U.S. Customers

Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance wrongly argues that liability presents a "substantial hurdle" for the classes, namely because Just Energy's customer contract "expressly provides that it does not guarantee the financial savings" and because "local utility rates are not an appropriate barometer by which to measure the rates of energy service companies[.]" As described below, these arguments miss the mark and the classes will prevail on the merits. See, e.g., Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-8706, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 (D.N.J. Nov. 15, 2016) ("[B]ecause [the local utility] is a supplier in the energy market; its prices thus serve as at least partial indications of the market rate and are relevant despite the lack of a savings guarantee clause.").

A. Default Utility Prices Are a Valid Benchmark

In what is best characterized as a "see what sticks" argument, Just Energy briefly claims (without support) that utility rates cannot serve as proper benchmarks for variable prices based on "business and market conditions." Yet courts and public service commissions throughout the U.S. have repeatedly (and resoundingly) rejected this claim.

By way of background, consumers that do not switch to an ESCO continue to receive supply from their local utility. The utilities charge supply rates consistent with market conditions in the competitive wholesale market, plus other wholesale costs, namely transmission, capacity, ancillary, congestion, and storage costs (for electric) and transportation and distribution costs (for gas)—without any markup or profit. Because utility supply rates do not include any profits, they are pure reflections of wholesale market costs and associated costs over time. Additionally, because the utility is the primary supplier and competitor in virtually all utility regions, its rates by definition represent retail electricity and natural gas market pricing.

By contrast, ESCOs like Just Energy have a tactical advantage over the regulated utilities as they can purchase electricity and natural gas from any number of markets using any number of strategies, and therefore their costs for purchasing electricity and natural gas should at the very least track—if not undercut—utility prices. For example, ESCOs such as Just Energy can employ various energy acquisition strategies including: (i) owning energy production and generation facilities; (ii) purchasing energy from wholesale marketers and brokers at the price available at or near the time it is used by the consumer; (iii) and purchasing energy ahead of time, either by purchasing energy to be used in the future or by purchasing futures contracts for the delivery at a predetermined price. Deregulation's purpose is to allow ESCOs to use these and other arbitrage opportunities to benefit consumers.

Additionally, because of deregulation, ESCOs like Just Energy do not need regulatory approval of their rates or the method by which they set their rates. Customers are protected in the competitive market by enforcement of the terms of their contracts. While utility supply is typically procured from the competitive wholesale market, ultimately the utility may charge no more than allowed by the regulator. ESCO customers do not have this safeguard. Consumers must rely on their contracts with the ESCOs to ensure that they receive the promised price.

Considering these realities, ESCOs should be able to offer rates competitive with, or substantially lower than, utilities, and in fact many do. Indeed, Just Energy's fixed rates are competitive with, and in fact almost always lower than, contemporaneous utility rates. Therefore, while utility rates may not precisely match Just Energy's rates, they should be commensurate. But Just Energy's variable rates are not remotely commensurate with utility rates because they are always substantially higher.

In fact, contrary to its contractual obligation, Just Energy's rates are substantially higher than its own fixed rates, other ESCOs' rates, and local utilities' rates, and are wholly disconnected from wholesale electricity and natural gas prices. Instead, Just Energy's variable rates are based on factors other than market conditions.

Further, there is no good faith justification for charging customers a variable rate that is outrageously higher than the rates Just Energy charges its fixed rate customers. Just Energy routinely predicts with reasonable accuracy the energy needs of its variable rate customers, and because it has access to multiple variable rate procurement strategies, its costs for serving variable rate customers and fixed rate customers are not substantially different. The only reason Just Energy's variable rates are so much higher than its fixed rates is that it engages in profiteering and price gouging, a stark demonstration of bad faith pricing practices.

In its Notice of Disallowance, Just Energy first claims that local utilities are improper benchmarks because ESCOs occasionally offer tangential products or services. This is balderdash. New York's Public Service Commission (the "NYPSC") recently examined—and forcefully rejected—this precise contention from Just Energy and other ESCOs, who were represented by Just Energy's U.S. counsel at bar.

With respect to value-added products, NYPSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[2] Similarly, the NYPSC found that the "claim that at least a portion of the significant delta between ESCO and utility charges is explained by ESCOs offering renewable energy is disingenuous at best. ESCOs may be charging a premium for green energy, but they are not actually providing a significant amount of added renewable energy to customers in New York."[3] In fact, the NYPSC found it "troubling" that even after considering reams of evidence "neither ESCOs nor any other party have shown . . . that ESCO charges above utility rates were generally – or in any specific instances – justified."[4]

Second, in its Notice of Disallowance, Just Energy claims that "[l]ocal utility commodity prices do not reflect wholesale energy prices" because utilities "are permitted to defer charges (with the approval of the regulator) to smooth price volatility." The NYPSC rejected this claim as well:

> [S]ome ESCOs complain that out-of-period adjustments made by utilities, with the Commission's approval, make it impossible for ESCOs to be competitive with the utilities, particularly in the context of variable-rate gas commodity service.[] These ESCOs do not acknowledge, however, that out-of-period adjustments by the utilities ultimately are a zero-sum game: for any downward adjustment made to a customer's bill, a corresponding out-of-period increase must be made. This process moderates fluctuations in customer bills that otherwise would result from market activity.[] Thus, out-of-period adjustments do not unfairly provide the utilities a pricing advantage when a price comparison is made on an annual basis.[5]

Third, Just Energy argues that local utilities do not compete with ESCOs because they do not face the same costs, risks, and market forces as ESCOs. To the contrary, as explained above, ESCOs have significant purchasing and pricing advantages over utilities.

Fourth, Just Energy wrongly contends that a comparison is not possible because "utility commodity prices do not include reasonable profit margins" and overhead. The NYPSC staff explained that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges" ESCOs levied on consumers.[6] The ultimate factfinder might understand that the contract's "business and market conditions" language permits Just Energy a reasonable margin. However, such profits must be consistent with others' profit margins, and Just Energy's profiteering cannot be so extreme that its rate bears no relation to market prices.

Finally, Just Energy asserts that "[g]eneral energy market conditions affect ESCOs and local utilities differently," and that ESCOs might consider competitors' prices, customer retention, subsidizing the fixed rates, and value into consideration when setting their rates. Yet Just Energy's contract does not bear such weight, and these exact defenses have been resoundingly rejected by many courts. See, e.g., Hamlen v. Gateway Energy Servs. Corp., No. 16-3526, 2017 WL 6398729, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 8, 2017) (contract breached when ESCO considered, but did not disclose, customer retention and attrition as factors when setting variable rates).

Recently, U.S. state regulators have begun to make clear that variable rate schemes like Just Energy's are antithetical to deregulation's purpose and provide no value to consumers or the market. For instance, the NYPSC recently concluded:

> Because customers receive no value when they pay a premium for variable-rate commodity-only service from ESCOs, ESCOs will be prohibited from offering variable-rate, commodity-only service except where the offering includes generated savings. As has been demonstrated in these proceedings in the context of low-income customer protection, it is possible for some ESCOs to serve customers at a guaranteed savings. Saving customers money was a crucial policy goal articulated by the Commission when the retail access market was initially opened. Thus, rather than prohibit variable-rate, commodity-only offerings, such offerings will be permitted only if the ESCO guarantees to serve the customer at a price below the price charged by the utility on an annually reconciled basis.[7]

Similarly, the Connecticut Public Service Commission requested that "all Variable Plans for residential and business customers" be eliminated, citing the recent significant increases to generation rates under these plans in support of its request.[8] rates . . . upward variation from local utility rates may also demonstrate how Defendant's consumer rates are materially disconnected from their supply costs."); Oladapo v. Smart One Energy, LLC, No. 14-cv-7117, 2016 WL 344976, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 27, 2016) ("the fact that [the ESCO's] rates consistently rose over time, while those set by [local utility] fluctuated, indicates that [the ESCO] was not setting its rates in response to 'changing gas market conditions'"); Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-cv-8706, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 (D.N.J. Nov. 15, 2016) ("because [local utility] is a supplier in the energy market; its prices thus serve as at least partial indications of the market rate and are relevant despite the lack of a savings guarantee clause."); Landau v. Viridian Energy PA LLC, 223 F. Supp. 3d 401, 410 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (finding breach of contract where rates were higher than the local utility's rates); Melville v. Spark Energy, Inc., No. 15-cv-8706, 2016 WL 6775635, at *3 (D.N.J. Nov. 15, 2016) ("Here, the [contract] states that the flex-rate plan uses a rate that 'may vary according to market conditions.' Plaintiffs argue that rates charged . . . were not market-based and, in support, list the rates charged by [the ESCO] in comparison to [the utility] during several months from 2013 to 2014. . . . Such evidence supports the allegation that [the ESCO's] prices were untethered to those of the market at large."); Chen v. Hiko Energy, LLC, No. 14-cv-1771, 2014 WL 7389011, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 29, 2014) ("Given the dramatic differences in pricing between defendant and [the local utility], it is plausible defendant's rates were not, in fact, reflective of the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, market-related factors, and . . . "costs, expenses and margins.").

B. Breach of Contract

To state a breach of contract claim, the classes need only satisfy three elements: "the existence of a contract, including its essential terms; breach of a duty imposed by the contract; and resultant damages." Jordet, 505 F. Supp. 3d at 222 (citations omitted). The classes allege that Just Energy breached its contract with class members, which represented that variable rates were priced based on the "business and market conditions," because Just Energy's variable rates bear no semblance to either wholesale prices or competitors' rates.

The classes will use numerous comparators to demonstrate that Just Energy's prices materially differed from metrics that could be reasonable interpretations of the use of the phrase "business and market conditions" in Just Energy's contracts.

First, the classes will use comparisons to class members' local utility rates, which countless courts have held is a proper comparator. In Mirkin v. XOOM, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit concluded that consumers could plausibly state a claim for breach of contract because the defendant ESCO deviated from the leading public utility by "up to" sixty percent. 931 F.3d at 178. The Second Circuit also plainly held that utilities are a reflection of wholesale market costs that can be used to evaluate whether an ESCOs rates are reflective of such costs. Id. at 178 n.2 ("Because utility companies like Con Edison participate on the wholesale energy market, their rates are another reflection of the Market Supply Cost."). As one federal judge held in Chen v. Hiko Energy, LLC:

> Plaintiffs' contracts provided that defendant would charge variable monthly rate reflecting the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, as well as various "market-related > factors, plus all sales and other applicable taxes, fees, charges or other assessments and HIKO's costs, expenses and margins." . . . But the [complaint] alleges the electricity rate defendant charged Chen in February 2014 was nearly triple [the local utility] . . . Given the dramatic differences in pricing between defendant and [the utility], it is plausible defendant's rates were not, in fact, reflective of the wholesale cost of electricity or gas, market-related factors, and defendant's "costs, expenses and margins."

No. 14-cv-1771, 2014 WL 7389011, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 29, 2014) (emphasis added); see also Melville, 2016 WL 6775635, at *5 ("[B]ecause [the local utility] is a supplier in the energy market, its prices thus serve as at least partial indications of the market rate and are relevant despite the lack of a savings guarantee clause."); Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 427 ("'This incomplete and confusing explanation for calculating variable market-based rates could lead a reasonable consumer to believe that he or she would receive a variable market rate, i.e., one that was competitive with those charged by other ESCOs.'") (quoting Claridge v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-cv-1261, 2015 WL 5155934, *4 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 2, 2015)).

Second, the classes will use wholesale prices and Just Energy's own costs to demonstrate that Just Energy's variable rate was inconsistent and significantly higher than wholesale costs. See, e.g., Landau, 223 F. Supp. 3d at 408-09 (E.D. Pa. 2016) (where "[an ESCO's] rates increased or stayed the same even when the average wholesale market price for the region decreased[,]" breach of contract claim may proceed to trial); Stanley v. Direct Energy Servs., LLC, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2020) ("[T]here is a reasonable contract interpretation that 'Market' meant that Defendant's variable rate would be tethered to some degree to supply costs or to competitors' rates . . . upward variation from local utility rates may also demonstrate how Defendant's consumer rates are materially disconnected from their supply costs."); Mirkin, 2016 WL 3661106, at *8 (breach of contract when contract provided that variable rates will be "based on wholesale market conditions" and variable rate failed to track wholesale market rates) (citing Sanborn v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 14-cv-1731 (D. Conn.), and Steketee v. Viridian Energy, Inc., No. 15-cv-585 (D. Conn.)); Edwards v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, 120 F. Supp. 3d 132, 42-43 (D. Conn. 2015) (sustaining contract claim where contract promised "[t]he variable rate may increase or decrease to reflect the changes in the wholesale power market" and the plaintiff alleged that "the rates [the ESCO] charged were significantly higher than the wholesale market rate and did not always increase or decrease when the wholesale market rates did.").[9]

Third, the classes will use comparisons to Just Energy's contemporaneous fixed rates and other ESCOs' contemporaneous rates "to support her allegation that Defendant's variable rates are untethered to wholesale market supply costs" and to show "that Defendant charges higher variable rates than other ESCOs." Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 427. Just Energy likewise does not take issue with Claimants' use of Just Energy's fixed rates and other ESCOs' rates as comparators; rather, it specifically demands the latter.

[9] This of course easily defeats the Notice of Disallowance's claim that utility rates cannot serve as a yardstick for Texas wholesale rates because "customers in Texas cannot obtain power directly from a local utility (they must obtain power from a retailer)." That Just Energy's rates were consistently and substantially higher than wholesale costs and Just Energy's own costs will show breach even though Texas customers must purchase from a retailer.

Just Energy's claim that its contracts do not guarantee savings is similarly of no moment. Indeed, the same argument has been quickly dispatched by numerous courts.

> Agway's agreement represents that the variable monthly rate "shall each month reflect the cost of electricity acquired by Agway from all sources . . . related transmission and distribution charges and other market-related factors, plus all applicable taxes, fees, charges or other assessments and Agway's costs, expenses and margins." Defendant argues that it has not been misleading because it never represented that savings were guaranteed. But this is inapposite to whether Defendant in fact charged rates to Plaintiff and putative class members that were based only upon those factors explicitly enumerated in the contract, as required by the contract. . . . Plaintiff has plausibly alleged that Agway's rates were "not in fact competitive market rates based on the wholesale cost of electricity" or the factors set forth in the agreement.

Gonzales v. Agway Energy Servs., LLC, No. 18-cv-235, 2018 WL 5118509, at *4 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 22, 2018) (emphasis added).

No factfinder will interpret "business and market conditions" to mean that Just Energy can price gouge—so much so that the rates bear no resemblance to wholesale costs and competitors' rates.

C. Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

"An implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contained in all contracts . . . , and breach of that duty is subsumed in the breach of contract claim." Jordet, 505 F. Supp. 3d at 222; cf. Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428 (all contracts contain an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing) (citing Arcadia Bioscis., Inc. v. Vilmorin & Cie, 356 F. Supp. 3d 379, 399 (S.D.N.Y. 2019)). "The implied covenant is 'breached when a party acts in a manner that, although not expressly forbidden by any contractual provision, would deprive the other party of the right to receive the benefits under their agreement.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428 (quoting Skillgames, LLC v. Brody, 767 N.Y.S.2d 418, 423 (2003); citing Moran v. Erk, 11 N.Y.3d 452 (2008) ("The implied covenant . . . embraces a pledge that neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract.")). "'In order to find a breach of the implied covenant, a party's action must directly violate an obligation that may be presumed to have been intended by the parties.'" Id. at 428-29 (quoting Gaia House Mezz LLC v. State Street Bank & Tr. Co., 720 F.3d 84, 93 (2d Cir. 2013)).

Just Energy "'violated the covenant by exercising [any price-setting] discretion [it may have had] in bad faith and in a manner inconsistent with [Claimants'] reasonable expectations.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 429 (quoting Claridge, 2015 WL 5155934, at *6; citing Hamlen, 2017 WL 892399, at *5 (noting that the plaintiff had sufficiently "alleged [that the] defendant acted in bad faith by exercising its discretion to charge unreasonable rates to profiteer off its customers, who reasonably expected to pay [the] defendant competitive prices for natural gas" and that "the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing requires [the] defendant to seek a profit that is commercially reasonable")).

As explained above, the classes will be able to prove that Just Energy's variable rate profit margins are so unreasonable as to be set in bad faith. The classes will demonstrate Just Energy's bad faith by, inter alia, showing the stark disparity with Just Energy's fixed rate (which represents an actual market-based rate) profit margins and variable rate profit margins.

IV. Just Energy's Criticisms of Claimants' Expert Report Are Easily Dispatched

Offering no facts and little substantive argument, Just Energy contends that Claimants' damages estimates, based on the report of their expert Serhan Ogur, Ph.D (the "Ogur Report"), are speculative and inflated. Claimants, who have not yet completed discovery in the underlying actions, made clear that their damages estimations were just that, estimations based on the information to which they currently have access. Accordingly, Claimants have been aggressively pushing for disclosures by Just Energy so that the parties and the factfinder can have a clear and accurate understanding of the number of aggrieved U.S. consumers and the scope of their damages. These are simple facts based on data which Just Energy could easily disclose to resolve most, if not all, of its concerns regarding the scope and size of the classes. Claimants are confident that either this Court or the persons assigned to adjudicate Claimants' claims will require the disclosure of such information.

Critically, Just Energy's attacks on the Ogur Report at best represent a diminution of the size and scope of the classes and their damages; these criticisms of the Ogur Report do not justify complete claim denial. It is unclear why the Monitor would support total claim denial based on Just Energy's claim that the U.S. classes are owed less than the Claimants' expert estimated.

Indeed, none of the criticisms raised by Just Energy justifies denial of the Claimants' claims.

First, Just Energy argues that the Ogur Report erred by using utility rates as a baseline for the rates Just Energy should have charged under the terms of its customer contract. As discussed above, this critique has no merit—after all utility rates are called the "price to compare" by utilities and regulators precisely because those rates represent the proper benchmark for customer comparisons. This attack on the Ogur Report is also a red herring, as the report's "overcharge theory is based on the difference between the electricity and natural gas rates the affected class were charged versus what they would have been charged if Just Energy's rates were based on business and market conditions." Ogur Report at 10. During the adjudication process, Claimants will not only rely on utility rates as a price to compare, but they will also show, among other measures, that Just Energy's margins are excessive based on Just Energy's actual costs and the margins it charges customers on fixed rate contracts (which carry the same if not higher costs to Just Energy as compared to its variable rate customers).

Second, Just Energy complains that the Ogur Report includes commercial customers, and it asserts without support that commercial contracts are different than residential contracts. Notably, neither the Donin/Golovan nor the Jordet Actions is limited to residential customers, and the Donin and Golovan contracts by their own terms apply to both "Home" and "Business" customers. The same is true for the Jordet contract. Again, this is a problem of Just Energy's own making. Producing the applicable contracts will allow the parties and the factfinder to easily determine precisely which customers are subject to which pricing terms.

Third, while conceding that the breach of contract claims against Just Energy Group, Inc. were sustained, Just Energy wrongly argues that "any damages must be limited to customers who were contractual counterparties with those defendants." Just Energy Group, Inc. is the parent company of all U.S. Just Energy entities that contract with U.S. consumers and lost its motion to dismiss the Donin breach of contract claims that were brought directly against Just Energy Group, Inc. Just like for New York, Just Energy Group, Inc. is responsible for the damages to customers across the U.S. Moreover, a very large portion of the gas and electricity customer class resides in New York.

Fourth, Just Energy curiously claims that Texas customers are somehow not included in the sustained class action breach of contract claims. Yet as discussed above, the undersigned represents consumers from Texas, and the Donin dismissal opinion dis not limit the nationwide scope of the classes' claims in any way.

Fifth, Just Energy posits without factual support that Dr. Ogur's assumed percentage of variable versus fixed rate customers is not accurate. This is another simple fact that Just Energy will be required to disclose as a part of the adjudication process. Just Energy also claims that a smaller percentage of customers enroll directly into variable rate contracts as opposed to customers initially on fixed rate contracts who roll over to variable rates after the fixed rate expires. This is a curious contention given that both the Donin/Golovan and Jordet Actions explicitly plead that they had fixed rate contracts that rolled over to variable rates. To the extent there are customers that were on variable rate contracts from the outset, pre-adjudication discovery will reveal that the operative contract language is the same.

Sixth, Just Energy complains (without support or specification) that the Ogur Report covers periods outside the statute of limitations. This is a straightforward issue that will be resolved in the adjudication process.

Seventh, Just Energy contends that the rate of damages after 2018 was less than before 2018. But this argument relies on the faulty notion, discussed above, that only straight variable rate contracts, as opposed to fixed-to-variable rate rollover contracts, are part of the classes. Again, the number of class members and their respective damages and usage will be easily determined when Just Energy produces the requested data in pre-adjudication discovery.

Eighth, Just Energy complains that extrapolating damages from those suffered by the named plaintiffs in the Donin/Golovan and Jordet Actions is inappropriate because the sample size is too small. But as noted in the Ogur Report, final damages calculations will be based on forthcoming pre-adjudication discovery. Relatedly, Just Energy contends that the difference between their rates and Pennsylvania and New York utility rates may not be the same as in other states. Again, this is an issue easily resolved with pre-adjudication discovery.

Ninth, Just Energy claims that Dr. Ogur is somehow barred from the straightforward data that can be used to calculate class-wide damages without disclosing that expert discovery in Donin was stayed pending the dismissal ruling. See ECF No. 51 at 14:14–17 (THE COURT: "[S]hould the case survive summary -- excuse me, motion to dismiss, we will discuss a timely schedule for conducting expert discovery. Until then, expert discovery is stayed.").

Finally, Just Energy quips that Claimants' prejudgment interest calculations were flawed because New York's rate is higher than those of other states. This is largely a math issue to be resolved after pre-adjudication discovery.

None of the arguments proffered in response to the estimations made in the Ogur Report justify wholesale denial of Claimants' claims, and all concerns raised by Just Energy will all be addressed after pre-adjudication discovery and in the adjudication process.

V. The Classes Will Be Certified

The Notice of Disallowance curiously posits that class certification presents a "substantial hurdle." Yet the five courts that have addressed a contested motion to certify a class of ESCO customers overcharged under the terms of their customer agreements easily granted the motions. Bell v. Gateway Energy Services Corp., No. 31168/2018 (Rockland Cnty. Super. Ct. Jan. 8, 2021), NYSCEF Doc. No. 152; Claridge v. N. Am. Power & Gas, LLC, No. 15-cv-1261, 2016 WL 7009062 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2016) (plaintiff was represented by co-counsel Roberts v. Verde Energy, USA, Inc., No. X07HHDCV156060160S, 2017 WL 6601993 (Conn. Super. Ct. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 2019 WL 1276501 (Conn. Super. Ct. Feb. 1, 2019); and BLT Steak LLC v. Liberty Power Corp, L.L.C., No. 151293/2013 (N.Y. Cnty., Super. Ct Aug. 14, 2020), NYSCEF Doc. No. 376 (plaintiff was represented by co-counsel); Martinez v. Agway Energy Services, LLC, No. 18-cv-00235, 2022 WL 306437 (N.D.N.Y. Feb. 2, 2022) (plaintiff represented by co-counsel). Claimants are confident that the factfinder here will follow suit.

There are few cases better suited for class certification. The classes' claims arise out of uniform misrepresentations regarding the pricing methodology for Just Energy's variable rate made in its standard customer contract. Just Energy provides its prospective electricity and natural gas customers with its standard contract prior to each contract's initiation. If the customer accepts the agreement, the it becomes the operative contract. Additionally, not only are the contractual commitments concerning Just Energy's variable rate uniform, but the resultant injury to the classes is also uniform because when Just Energy sets its variable rates, it uses the same rate for all customers within each utility region, regardless of which version of the contract governs its relationship with each variable rate customer. For these and the other reasons described below, the prerequisites to class certification will be easily met.[10]

A. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(a) Factors.

Rule 23(a) requires that a plaintiff seeking class certification demonstrate that the proposed class satisfies the following four factors:

> (1) the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; (2) there are questions of law or fact common to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a); accord Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 345 (2011).

i. Numerosity

Rule 23(a)(1) requires that "the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable." "[N]umerosity is presumed where a putative class has forty or more members." Shahriar v. Smith & Wollensky Rest. Grp., 659 F.3d 234, 252 (2d Cir. 2011). Just Energy had millions of customers on variable rates during the relevant period. There is numerosity here.

ii. Commonality

Rule 23(a)(2) requires a showing of "questions of law or fact common to the class." "Commonality is satisfied where a single issue of law or fact is common to the class." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 405 (quoting In re IndyMac Mort.-Backed Sec. Litig., 286 F.R.D. 226, 233 (S.D.N.Y. 2012)). "[E]ven a single common question will do." Dukes, 564 U.S. at 346 (citation, internal quotation marks, and brackets omitted).

Here, the class' claims largely turn on whether or not Just Energy set its rate based on "business and market conditions," as required in the customer contract. Because all class members were made the same promise, answering this common question will dominate this action. As one federal judge has held in certifying virtually identical claims, "[t]he claims of the proposed class turn on the 'common contention' that [Defendant] misleadingly described its method for calculating variable monthly rates, a claim that 'is capable of classwide resolution . . .' Plaintiff[] ha[s] therefore shown common questions of law and fact under Rule 23(a)(2)." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *4 (citing Dukes, 564 U.S. at 350).[11] And in any event, "[c]ommonality is not defeated because consumers interpreted arguably vague and misleading language in different ways." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *3.

iii. Typicality

Rule 23(a)(3) requires "the claims of the class representatives be typical of those of the class, and is satisfied when each class member's claim arises from the same course of events, and each class member makes similar legal arguments to prove the defendant's liability." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 405 (quoting Robinson v. Metro-North Commuter R.R., 267 F.3d 147, 155 (2d Cir. 2001)). "'Minor variations in the fact patterns underlying the individual claims do not preclude a finding of typicality' . . . [rather, the Rule] requires 'only that the disputed issues of law or fact occupy essentially the same degree of centrality to the named plaintiff's claim as to that of other members of the proposed class." In re Scotts, 304 F.R.D. at 405-06.

[11] Just Energy half-heartedly argues that individual damages claims arising out of Just Energy's various tangential products and services will predominate over common issues. However, it is well established that differences in individual damages do not preclude class certification. See, e.g., Mullins v. Direct Digital, LLC, 795 F.3d 654, 671 (7th Cir. 2015) ("It has long been recognized that the need for individual damages determinations at this later stage of the litigation does not itself justify the denial of certification.") (collecting cases). Moreover, the classes are limited to variable rate customers and do not include other products or services. To the extent that Just Energy is referring to non-energy-related value-added services, as the NYPSC explained at length, such products have no value and do not justify charging rates more than the default service providers. Thus, the classes can use a common set of proof to show each class member's damages, namely, Just Energy's records showing the rates charged, costs incurred, and margin realized combined with publicly available wholesale cost data and utility rates.

Here, the classes' claims arise from the same core events, and each class member would make the same legal arguments to prove Just Energy's liability. The classes were commonly bound by a sales agreement distributed to all Just Energy customers. Each contract contains the same or similar terms. Thus, all class members would proffer the same evidence and arguments in pursuing their claims against Just Energy.

iv. Adequacy Of Representation

Rule 23(a)(4) requires a showing that "the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class." "Adequacy is satisfied unless plaintiff's interests are antagonistic to the interest of other members of the class." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *5 (quoting Sykes v. Mel S. Harris & Associates LLC, 780 F.3d 70, 90 (2d Cir. 2015)).

Claimants will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the classes. Since the Actions' respective inceptions, Claimants have "actively assisted in the cases' prosecution and nothing in the record suggests [their] interests are antagonistic to those of other class members." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 406-07.

Likewise, Claimants' counsel is qualified and experienced in prosecuting complex class actions nationwide, in both state and federal courts, including customer protection class actions against ESCOs. Indeed, no law firms in the U.S. have more experience successfully prosecuting class actions against ESCOs who overcharge their customers.

B. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(b)(2) Factors

Pursuant to Rule 23(b)(2), "[a] class action may be maintained if Rule 23(a) is satisfied and if . . . the party opposing the class has acted or refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the class as a whole[.]" Just Energy has acted on grounds that apply generally to the classes, namely by representing that its variable rates are market based, when Just Energy's rates are in fact untethered from market conditions. Thus, final injunctive and declaratory relief is appropriate with respect to the classes.

C. The Proposed Class Satisfies the Rule 23(b)(3) Factors

Rule 23(b)(3) requires that "questions of law or fact common to class members predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, and that a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy."

i. Predominance

> A court must "bear[] firmly in mind that the focus of Rule 23(b)(3) is on the predominance of common questions . . ." Amgen Inc. v. Connecticut Ret. Plans & Trust Funds, 133 S. Ct. 1184, 1194 (2013). It "does not require a plaintiff seeking class certification to prove that each element of her claim is susceptible to classwide proof," but instead to prove that "common questions predominate over any questions affecting only individual class members." Id. at 1196 (emphasis in original; alterations and quotation marks omitted); accord Sykes v. Mel S. Harris & Associates LLC, 780 F.3d 70, 87 (2d Cir. 2015) ("The mere existence of individual issues will not be sufficient to defeat certification. Rather, the balance must tip such that these individual issues predominate.").

Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *2 (certifying class of ESCO customers).

"Predominance is satisfied if resolution of some of the legal or factual questions that qualify each class member's case as a genuine controversy can be achieved through generalized proof, and if these particular issues are more substantial than the issues subject only to individualized proof." Id. at *5 (quoting Roach v. T.L. Cannon Corp., 778 F.3d 401, 405 (2d Cir. 2015)).

a. The Nationwide Classes Will be Certified

Just Energy contends—without any support—that Claimant does not have standing to represent all of Just Energy natural gas customers on a variable rate across the U.S. However, Just Energy ignores the well-settled doctrine that class action plaintiffs have class standing to allege sufficiently similar injuries suffered by all potential class members. See, e.g., Stanley v. Direct Energy Servs., LLC, 466 F. Supp. 3d 415, 438 (S.D.N.Y. 2020). As Judge Karas aptly explained, Just Energy's use of materially similar representations and pricing policies is sufficient to confer Claimants' standing on behalf of the class:

> However, Plaintiff has alleged that Defendant sent "uniform notices" to their legacy customers from NYSEG Solutions and/or Energetix that promised competitive, market-based variable rates. (Am. Compl. ¶ 2.) And Plaintiff has further alleged that Defendant engages in a uniform policy of price gouging all of its customers. (Id. ¶¶ 2, 24, 68.) The Second Circuit has explicitly instructed that "non-identical injuries of the same general character can support standing" for a class action. Langan, 897 F.3d at 94 (emphasis added) (citation omitted). And "courts in th[e Second C]ircuit have construed the payment of a premium price to be an injury in and of itself[, and] . . . where plaintiffs allege that customers paid a premium price based on a misrepresentation, those customers can have standing under Article III." Guariglia v. Procter & Gamble Co., No. 15-CV-4307, 2018 WL 1335356, at *12 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 14, 2018) (citations and quotation marks omitted). Under analogous circumstances, the Second Circuit determined that standing existed for a plaintiff who sought to represent a variety of certificate holders in connection to certain mortgage investments, despite the fact that other certificate holders were "outside the specific tranche from which the named plaintiff > purchased certificates" and were subject to "different payment priorities." Langan, 897 F.3d at 94 (referring to NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., 693 F.3d 145 (2d Cir. 2012)). Similarly, here, it may be true that Energetix customers and NYSEG Solutions customers had different contracts before Defendant bought them. It may also be true that customers outside New York received slightly different terms or offers than those that Plaintiff received. But the fact that the "ultimate damages [for each member of the class may] . . . vary . . . is not sufficient to defeat class certification under Rule 23(a), let alone class standing." NECA, 693 F.3d at 164-65 (citation and quotation marks omitted).

Just Energy's Notice of Disallowance admits that it uses uniform customer contracts with the same pricing provisions, arguing that "the applicable contract puts customers (including the Claimants) on clear notice of the variable rates that Just Energy NY ould set and to which customers (including the Claimant) will be subject."

"[W]hether a plaintiff can bring a class action under the state laws of multiple states is a question of predominance under Rule 23(b)(3), not a question of standing[.]" Rolland v. Spark Energy, LLC, No. 17-cv-2680, 2019 WL 1903990, at *5 n.6 (D.N.J. Apr. 29, 2019) ("find[ing] Defendant's standing argument unpersuasive") (quoting *Langan v. Mar. 18, 2009) ("Defendants' argument appears to conflate the issue of whether the named Plaintiffs have standing to bring their individual claims with the secondary issue of whether they can meet the requirements to certify a class under Rule 23"); In re Asacol Antitrust Litig., No. 18-cv-1065, 2018 WL 4958856, at *4 (1st Cir. Oct. 15, 2018) ("Requiring that the claims of the class representative be in all respects identical to those of each class member in order to establish standing would 'confuse[ ] the requirements of Article III and Rule 23.'") (internal citations omitted).

Multistate breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing classes are routinely found to satisfy the predominance factor because such common law claims are generally uniform across the U.S. See, e.g., In re U.S. Foodservice Inc. Pricing Litig., 729 F.3d at 127 (no predominance issue for nationwide class asserting claims for breach of contract under the laws of multiple states); Just Film, Inc. v. Buono, 847 F.3d 1108, 1122-23 (9th Cir. 2017) (affirming certification of nationwide breach of contract class); Boyko v. Am. Intern. Group, Inc., No. 08-cv-2214, 2012 WL 1495372, at *9 (D.N.J. Apr. 26, 2012), separate portion vacated in part on reconsideration, 2012 WL 2132390 (D.N.J. June 12, 2012) ("The Court agrees with Plaintiff that the legal elements of a breach of contract claim are substantially similar in all fifty states, such that certification of the AIG Class as to the breach of contract claim is proper."); see also Am. Airlines, Inc. v. Wolens, 513 U.S. 219, 233 n.8 (1995) ("contract law is not at its core 'diverse, nonuniform, and confusing'") (citation omitted); Flanagan v. Allstate Ins. Co., 242 F.R.D. 421, 431 (N.D. Ill. 2007) (finding that numerous states' breach of contract laws are sufficiently similar for class certification purposes).

This reflects "the obvious truth that class actions necessarily involve plaintiffs litigating injuries that they themselves would not have standing to litigate," Langan, 897 F.3d at 95, and that "[n]amed plaintiffs in a putative consumer protection class action may assert claims under laws of states where they do not reside to preserve those claims in anticipation of eventually being joined by class members who do not reside in the states for which claims have been asserted." Pisarri v. Town Sports Int'l, LLC, No. 18-1737, 2019 WL 1245485, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 4, 2019) (quotation and citation omitted). Indeed, the Second Circuit has expressly held that "any concern about whether it is proper for a class to include out-of-state, nonparty class members with claims subject to different state laws is a question of predominance under Rule 23(b)(3) not a question of adjudicatory competence under Article III." Langan, 897 F.3d at 93 (quotation marks omitted). Thus, where a plaintiff's own claims survive dismissal, Langan teaches that counts alleging violations of other jurisdictions' laws are to be addressed at class certification.

The same is true for class members that purchased energy from one of Just Energy's many affiliates. That consumers purchased from an affiliate is not a barrier to Claimants bringing claims on these consumers' behalf because "courts in this Circuit have held that, subject to further inquiry at the class certification stage, a named plaintiff has standing to bring class action claims . . . for products that he did not purchase, so long as those products . . . are 'sufficiently similar' to the products that the named plaintiff did purchase." Mosely v. Vitalize Labs, LLC, No. 13-2470, 2015 WL 5022635, at *7 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 24, 2015) (emphasis in original). This is because a class action plaintiff may sue for non-purchased products if he or she (1) suffered injury, and (2) the injurious conduct implicates the same set of concerns as the conduct alleged to have caused injury to other members of the proposed class. *NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Mar. 23, 2020) (NECA-IBEW's "same set of concerns" requirement satisfied for thirty-two devices, even though plaintiff only purchased three).

b. The Breach of Contract Claim Will Be Certified

The classes' breach of contract claims present straightforward common questions that will be answered through common proof, precluding the predominance of individual issues. "Contract claims satisfy Rule 23(b)(3) when the claims of the proposed class 'focus predominantly on common evidence[.]'" Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6 (quoting In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 125). "[C]laims arising from interpretations of a form contract appear to present the classic case for treatment as a class action, and breach of contract cases are routinely certified as such." In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 411; accord Gillis v. Respond Power, LLC, 677 F. App'x 752, 756 (3d Cir. 2017) ("Because form contracts should be interpreted uniformly as to all signatories, Pennsylvania and federal courts have recognized that claims involving the interpretation of standard form contracts are particularly well-suited for class treatment.") (vacating district court's denial of class certification and remanding). Additionally, "[t]he Second Circuit has affirmed certification of a contract claim when minor variations existed in the language of the disputed contracts because the underlying claim was directed to a 'substantially similar' terms." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6 (quoting In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 124; accord In re Scotts EZ Seed Litig., 304 F.R.D. at 411 (certifying contract class where, "[a]lthough plaintiffs do not allege defendants breached a 'form contract,' the representations defendants made to each plaintiff were uniform.") (quoting Steinberg v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 224 F.R.D. 67, 74 (E.D.N.Y. 2004)); Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 333 F.3d 1248, 1261 (11th Cir. 2003), aff'd sub nom. Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc., 545 U.S. 546 (2005) (affirming certification of breach of contract class where the defendant failed to price natural gas in accordance with its uniform contractual obligations).

Moreover, proof of Claimants' claims will be common to all class members, as it will rely on Just Energy's admittedly standard contracts, as well as publicly available data, witness testimony, and business records which will demonstrate that Just Energy did not set its variable rate in accordance with the market, as required in its customer contract.

c. The Good Faith and Fair Dealing Claim Will Be Certified

The good faith and fair dealing claim is likewise well suited for class treatment. "The implied covenant is "breached when a party acts in a manner that, although not expressly forbidden by any contractual provision, would deprive the other party of the right to receive the benefits under their agreement.'" Stanley, 466 F. Supp. 3d at 428.

Whether Just Energy acted in bad faith is common to all class members and will be evaluated with common evidence. See In re U.S. Foodservice Inc., 729 F.3d at 125 (common evidence used to determine whether business practice "departs from prevailing commercial standards of fair dealing so as to constitute a breach"). As with the classes' breach of contract claim, Claimants will demonstrate that standard contracts gave rise to their and the classes' reasonable expectations concerning the variable rate, and will prove Just Energy's failure to provide a competitive, market-based rate and its bad faith profiteering through common evidence.

ii. Superiority

There are several reasons why a class action is superior to other available adjudicatory methods. First, a class action will permit an orderly and expeditious administration of class claims, foster economies of time, effort, and expense, and ensure uniformity of decisions. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) advisory committee's note. Just Energy has acted on grounds generally applicable to the classes. By prosecuting this action as a class, once Just Energy's liability has been adjudicated, the factfinder will be able to determine the claims of all class members.

Individualized actions, on the other hand, "would simply entail repeated adjudications of identical [contract] provisions." Claridge, 2016 WL 7009062, at *6; cf. Roberts, 2017 WL 6601993, at *2 ("Piecemeal litigation would be less workable. Given that much of the case depends on the central common legal issues surrounding the contract class members would have little interest in separately controlling the litigation . . ."). Additionally, prosecuting separate actions would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual class members that could establish incompatible standards of conduct for Just Energy.

Second, the individual damages suffered are small relative to the expense and burden of individual litigation, such that class members are unlikely to prosecute individual actions. See Roberts, 2017 WL 6601993, at *2 ("Consumer contracts affecting thousands of people but not necessarily yielding thousands of dollars to each class member are well suited for class certification. Without the class action method most claims like this wouldn't be brought, including claims with great social utility.").

Finally, this lawsuit presents no difficulties that would impede its management as a class action. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3)(D).

VI. The Increasing Regulatory Denunciation of Just Energy's Pricing Practices Further Demonstrates that Claimants' Class Action Claims Are Strong

Almost all of the states in the U.S. that deregulated their energy markets did so in the mid-to-late 1990s. This wave of deregulation was pushed by then-corporate superstar Enron. For example, in December 1996 when energy deregulation was being considered in Connecticut, Enron CEO Jeffrey Skilling, dubbed "[t]he most aggressive proponent" of deregulation, said:

> Every day we delay [deregulation], we're costing consumers a lot of money . . . . It can be done quickly. The key is to get the legislation done fast.[12]

Operating under this concocted sense of urgency, the U.S. states that deregulated suffered serious consumer harm. For example, in 2001, forty-two states had begun or were considering deregulation. Today, the number of full or partially deregulated U.S. states has dwindled to only seventeen and the District of Columbia. Even within those states, several recognized the harm to everyday consumers and thus only allow large-scale consumers to purchase from ESCOs.

Responding to ESCOs' price gouging, many key deregulation supporters now regret their role. For example, reflecting on Maryland's experience, a Maryland Senator lamented that "[d]eregulation has failed. We are not going to give up on re-regulation till it is done."[13]

A Connecticut leader who joined in that state's foray into deregulation was similarly remorseful:

> Probably six out of the 187 legislators understood it at the time, because it is so incredibly complex . . . . If somebody says, no, we > didn't screw up, then I don't know what world we are living in. We did.[14]

State regulators have, for years, also denounced predatory pricing practices like those challenged in the class actions. For example, in 2014 the NYPSC declared that New York's retail energy markets were plagued with "marketing behavior that creates and too often relies on customer confusion."[15] The NYPSC further noted "it is extremely difficult for mass market retail energy customers to access pricing information relevant to their decision to commence, continue or terminate service through an ESCO."[16] The NYPSC concluded as follows:

> [A]s currently structured, the retail energy commodity markets for residential and small nonresidential customers cannot be considered to be workably competitive. Although there are a large number of suppliers and buyers, and suppliers can readily enter and exit the market, the general absence of information on market conditions, particularly the price charged by competitors, is an impediment to effective competition. . . . [17]

The conduct of ESCOs like Just Energy has been devastating to consumers across the U.S. For example, "[a]ccording to the data provided by [New York's] utilities, the approximately two million New York State residential utility customers who took commodity service from an ESCO collectively paid almost $1.2 billion more than they would have paid if they purchased commodity from their distribution utility during the 36-months ending December 31, 2016."[18] "Additionally, small commercial customers paid $136 million more than they would have paid if they instead simply remained with their default utilities for commodity supply for the same 36-month period."[19] Combining these two groups, New York consumers have been "'overcharged' by over $1.3 billion dollars over this time period."[20]

Based on the flood of consumer complaints, negative media reports, and data demonstrating massive overcharges, the NYPSC announced in December 2016 an evidentiary hearing to consider primarily whether ESCOs should be "completely prohibited from serving their current

products" to New York residential consumers.[21] Then, on December 16, 2016, the NYPSC permanently prohibited ESCOs from serving low-income customers, because of "the persistent ESCO failure to address (or even apparently to acknowledge) the problem of overcharges to [low income] customers . . . ."[22]

Following the first part of the evidentiary hearing announced in December 2016, on March 30, 2018, NYPSC staff announced the following conclusions about ESCOs:

> [A]s the current retail access mass markets are structured, customers simply cannot make fully informed and fact-based choices on price . . . since the terms and pricing of the ESCO product offerings are not transparent to customers. For variable rate products this is due, in large part, to the fact that ESCOs often offer "teaser rates" to start, and after expiration of the teaser rate, the rate is changed to what is called a "market rate" that is not transparent to the customer, and the contract signed by the customer does not provide information on how that "market rate" is calculated.[23]
> ESCOs take advantage of the mass market customers' lack of knowledge and understanding of, among other issues, the electric and gas commodity markets, commodity pricing, and contract terms (which often extend to three full pages), and in particular, the ESCOs' use of teaser rates and "market based rate" mechanisms that customers are charged after the teaser rate expires. In fact, ESCOs appear to be unwilling to provide the necessary product pricing details as to how those "market based rates" are derived to mass market customers in a manner that is transparent so as to enable an open and competitive marketplace where customers can participate fairly and with the necessary knowledge to make rational and fully informed decisions on whether it is in their best interest to take commodity service from their default utility, or from a particular ESCO among competing but equally opaque choices.[24]

In response to these criticisms, the ESCOs claimed as Just Energy does here that their marketing and overhead costs explain the overcharges, but NYPSC staff found that these costs do "not justify the significant overcharges."[25] Likewise, when the ESCOs claimed as Just Energy does here that their provision to consumers of so-called value-added products such as light bulbs and thermostats contributed to their excessive rates, NYPSC staff found that "these sorts of value-added products is at best de minimis and does not explain away the significantly higher commodity costs charged by so many ESCOs."[26]

Instead, NYPSC staff reached the following conclusion:

> The massive $1.3 billion in overcharges is the result of higher, and more often than not, significantly higher, commodity costs imposed by the ESCOs on unsuspecting residential and other mass market customers. These overcharges are simply due to (1) the lack of transparency and greed in the market, which prevents customers from making rational economic choices based on facts rather than the promises of the ESCO representative, and (2) obvious efforts by the ESCOs to prevent, or at least limit, the transparency of the market. These obvious efforts include the lack of a definition for "market rate" in their contracts, resulting in the fattening of ESCOs' retained earnings.[27]

Following these conclusions, in December 2019 the NYPSC banned the exact same variable rate pricing practices that the class actions challenge.

The NYPSC's press release announcing the ban on variable energy rates does not mince words, stressing that it was intended to "prevent[] bad actors among ESCOs from overcharging New York consumers" and that the regulations only went forward after "the state's highest court definitively halted ESCOs' attempts to use litigation to evade and/or delay consumer-protection regulation."[28] The regulations themselves likewise condemn ESCOs' conduct and declare that "avoiding accountability" has become a "business model" in the deregulated energy market:

> Based upon the number of customer complaints that continue to be made against ESCOs, and the likely need for increased enforcement activities, the large number of ESCO customers that pay significant premiums for products with little or no apparent added benefit, . . .

> The persistence of complaints related to ESCO marketing practices is indicative of some ESCOs continuing to skirt rules and attempting to avoid accountability as part of their business model.[29]

The NYPSC's variable rate ban followed a two-year investigation of ESCO practices that culminated in a 10-day evidentiary hearing to examine evidence submitted by 19 parties and to hear the testimony and cross-examination of 22 witnesses and witness panels.[30]

The NYPSC prefaced the ban with the observation that variable energy rates—like those Just Energy charged its U.S. customers—are "[t]he most commonly offered ESCO product" and that this popular product is frequently provided at "a higher price than charged by the utilities."[31]

The absurdity of consumers paying ESCOs more for the exact same energy offered by regulated utilities was not lost on the NYPSC:

> If market participants are unwilling, or unable, to provide material benefits to consumers beyond those provided by utilities in exchange for a regulated, just and reasonable rate, the market serves no proper purpose and should be ended.[32]

In fact, the NYPSC found it "troubling" that even after considering reams of evidence "neither ESCOs nor any other party have shown . . . that ESCO charges above utility rates were generally – or in any specific instances – justified."[33] This fact only highlighted the NYPSC's "long-held concern that many customers may only be taking ESCO service due to their misunderstanding of [ESCOs'] products and/or prices."[34]

Accordingly, and on this record, the NYPSC banned variable energy rates like those Just Energy charged to the Claimants and its other U.S. customers.[35] In place of these floating variable rates, the NYPSC required ESCOs to guarantee that their variable rates would save customers money compared to what the utility would have charged.[36] Under the new regulations, if the consumer is charged more than the utility, the consumer must be refunded the difference.[37]

In Claimants' class actions, the difference between what Just Energy charged consumers for the exact same energy that class members' utilities would have charged is more than US$2 billion. The NYPSC's regulations took effect in April 2021. Around the same time, Just Energy ceased offering service in New York and tried to spin the state's ban on its core practice as "regulatory constraints . . . requiring certain variable rate customers to be dropped to the utility."[38]

VII. Just Energy's Damning Public Dossier Further Supports the Class Actions

Just Energy has amassed a damning public dossier that includes at least six regulatory enforcement actions, reams of investigative journalism exposing Just Energy's deceptive practices, and countless negative customer reviews.

For example, on December 31, 2014, Just Energy agreed to settle claims brought by the Massachusetts Attorney General that are strikingly similar to those in the class actions, making various concessions related to its deceptive energy sales and billing practices in Massachusetts.[39] Just Energy agreed to refund US$4,000,000 along with several key changes to its business practices, including that Just Energy was banned for three years from enrolling Massachusetts consumers into variable rate energy products unless it complied with the following requirements:

> Within 30 days of a customer enrolling in a variable energy rate product, Just Energy must provide the customer with written notice of the date on which the introductory rate will expire.
> Any new contracts for variable rate products shall either (i) include the calculation that will be used to set monthly rates under the contract such that the customer can calculate the cost of Just Energy's residential energy, or (ii) make the rates available 60 days in advance via phone and the internet.[40]

Additionally, for three years Just Energy was banned from charging Massachusetts consumers variable electricity rates in excess of 14.25¢ per kWh.[41] The settlement further provided that:

> For current Just Energy variable rate customers, the company is required to clearly and conspicuously post its current variable rates and post subsequent variable rates with at least 45 days advance notice.[42] Just Energy is also required to mail notice to all existing Massachusetts variable rate customers alerting them to the fact that advance pricing information is now available via phone and on Just Energy's website, and that these customers can cancel their Just Energy contracts without paying termination fees.[43]
>
> Just Energy must at its own expense hire an independent monitor for three years to audit inter alia Just Energy's Massachusetts marketing materials, billing data, consumer communications, and direct marketing efforts.[44]
> Just Energy must distribute a copy of the Assurance of Discontinuance to current and future (for three years) principals, officers, directors, and supervisory personnel responsible for the Massachusetts market.[45] Just Energy must also secure and maintain these individuals' signed acknowledgement of receipt of the Assurance of Discontinuance.

The Massachusetts Attorney General's sweeping action was far from the first time Just Energy had been targeted by regulators. For example, in June 2003, the Toronto Star reported that Just Energy (then operating under the name Ontario Energy Savings Corp.) was fined for violating the Ontario Energy Board's code of conduct by fraudulently enrolling customers.[46]

In 2008, the Illinois Attorney General sued U.S. Energy Savings Corp. (whose name was changed to Just Energy in 2012), alleging violations of Illinois' consumer fraud laws. The May 2009 anouncement a US$1 million settlement noted that the Attorney General had "received a nearly unprecedented number of calls from consumers who were deceived by false assurances that they would receive significant savings by switching to this alternative gas supplier."[47]

According to the lawsuit, among other deceptive conduct "consumers were led to believe that they would automatically save money by enrolling in the U.S. Energy Savings program."[48]

During this same period, the Citizens Utility Board (the "CUB") and AARP filed a formal complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission (the "ICC") alleging, inter alia, that Just Energy told customers they would "save money," and that consumers would not see any gas price increases if they signed up; and that Just Energy presented false and misleading information about its prices.[49] In April 2010, the ICC found that Just Energy's sales and marketing practices were deceptive, issued a US$90,000 fine, and ordered an independent audit of its practices.[50]

In July 2008, New York's Attorney General announced a US$200,000 settlement with Just Energy (then named U.S. Energy Savings) and noted that the Attorney General's "office received hundreds of consumer complaints that sales contractors promised immediate savings on utility bills, but the price of gas was actually more than the price charged by the local utility because the price was locked in for a multi-year period."[51]

In November 2016, Ohio's Public Utilities Commission (the "PUCO") fined Just Energy for a second time for misleading marketing practices. An article in the Columbus Dispatch notes that Just Energy is an "energy company with a track record of misleading marketing," that it was fined by the PUCO in 2010 for deceptive marketing, and that it "sells energy contracts that often cost more than customers would pay if they received the standard service price."[52]

There are also thousands of complaints about Just Energy and its affiliated entities on the internet. Over the last three years alone, Just Energy has had at least 280 complaints filed against it with the Better Business Bureau (the "BBB").[53] Even though Just Energy is listed on the BBB's website as having been in business for 24 years, the BBB clearly declares that "THIS BUSINESS IS NOT BBB ACCREDITED" and displays the following "Pattern of Complaint" warning to the consuming public:

Media reports about Just Energy are equally troubling. For example, when the confidential results of the Illinois Commerce Commission's audit referenced above were made public, Chicago's CBS affiliate reported that between 2010 and 2011 Just Energy received over 29,729 customer complaints.[54] "There were so many complaints over so many years with so little company oversight on how they were handled that the audit said, '[a]n adequate compliance culture at the top levels of the organization is not evident.'"[55]

A May 8, 2019, article in the Chicago Reporter showcased a carpenter who, over the course of 10 years, paid Just Energy over US$20,000 more than he would have paid the utility.[56] This Just Energy customer's experience was used to highlight the then-proposed Illinois Home Energy Affordability & Transparency Act ("HEAT"). On August 27, 2019, Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker signed HEAT into law. Effective January 1, 2020, HEAT requires inter alia ESCOs like Just Energy operating in Illinois to include the utility's comparison price on all marketing materials, during telephone or door-to-door solicitations, and on every consumer's utility bill so consumers can make informed price comparisons.

Here, the factfinder's informed price comparison, will demonstrate over US$2 billion in damages to Just Energy's U.S. customers.

SCHEDULE A

The firm of Robins Cloud LLP has filed purported claims (the "Claims") on behalf of 104 alleged claimants whom they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). The Claimants are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

All of the Claims were brought as against Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy Corp., Just Energy Texas I Corp, Just Energy Texas LP, with certain of the Claims also naming the following additional Just Energy Entities:

Number of Claims	Additional Entities Named in Claims
25	Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC and Fulcrum Retail Holdings LLC
7	Fulcrum Retail Holdings LLC and Tara Energy LLC
1	Just Solar Holdings Corp.
1	Hudson Energy Services, LLC, Hudson Energy Corp., and Hudson Parent Holdings LLC

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety. The Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and are devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including those set out below.

Claims Were Brought Improperly

As a threshold issue, a search of the Just Energy Entities' records has confirmed that 40 of the 104 alleged Claimants were not Just Energy customers during the relevant time period (February 13-20, 2021). Only 46 of the Claimants' names and addresses match those found in Just Energy's customer records for that time period, with a further 18 instances where the customer name at the address provided by the Claimant does not match the Claimant's name. The inclusion of more than 50% Claims of non-customers indicates that these Claims were filed improperly, without conducting adequate due diligence. These non-customer Claims are therefore rejected outright. This improper filing necessarily casts considerable doubt and skepticism on the remainder of the Claims filed. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these non-customer Claims.

The Relevant Just Energy Entities, Like All Retail Electric Providers in Texas, Are Not Responsible for Generation or Delivery of Electricity

In any event, the Claimants have not adduced any evidence to establish that any of the Just Energy Entities are liable for their Claims, and retail electric providers in Texas are not legally responsible for the transmission and distribution of energy. No Claimant has provided any evidence whatsoever to refute that fact and on that basis alone all of the Claims are rejected.

The Texas Public Utility Regulatory Act ("PURA") required that, no later than January 1, 2002, all utilities operating in Texas separate their business activities into three distinct units:

- Power Generation Companies ("PGCs"), which own and operate electric generation facilities and sell their power to REPs (defined below) at wholesale;

- Transmission and Distribution Utilities ("TDUs"), which own and operate the facilities necessary to transmit and distribute energy; and

- Retail Electric Providers ("REPs"), which buy electricity wholesale and sell such electricity to retail customers.

Under PURA, REPs are prohibited from owning the generation and transmission assets necessary to physically generate electricity and deliver electricity to customers. REPs buy electricity from PGCs. The electricity they purchase from PGCs is transmitted over the transmission and distribution facilities owned by TDUs, and delivered to the REPs' customers by the TDUs.

The relevant Just Energy Entities – Just Energy Texas LP ("JE Texas"), Tara Energy LLC ("Tara Energy"), and Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", and collectively with JE Texas and Tara Energy, the "Texas Entities") – are REPs in the state of Texas certified by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT"). Their business consists of securing wholesale energy products from the ERCOT[2] market and re-selling such energy to their customers. The Texas Entities own no generation, transmission or distribution facilities, and have no control whatsoever over the actual generation or transmission of electricity, or the delivery of such electricity to their customers.

Transmission, distribution, and delivery of electricity in Texas is controlled by the TDUs. Each TDU in Texas is required to file with the PUCT a tariff to govern its retail delivery service to REPs (such as the Texas Entities) using the pro forma tariff codified at 16 Tex. Admin. Code § 25.214(d). The regulations provide that the provisions of the tariff "are requirements that shall be complied with and offered to all REPs and Retail Customers unless otherwise specified." The tariff provides that:

- The REP has no ownership, right of control, or duty to a retail customer, or third party, regarding the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's Delivery System.

- The REP will not be liable to any person or entity for any damages, direct, indirect, or consequential, including, but without limitation, loss of business, loss of profits or revenue, or loss of production capacity, occasioned by any fluctuations or interruptions of delivery caused, in whole or in part, by the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's delivery system.

During any outage event, customers are directed to contact their local TDU (such as Oncor or CenterPoint) for outage notification and repairs. In fact, monthly invoices sent to the Texas Entities' customers set forth the contact information for their local TDU explicitly in case of emergencies and power outages.

[2] Electric Reliability Council of Texas, Inc.

The Texas Entities simply procure energy on the market, resell it to their customers, keep track of how much electricity is used, and charge their customers accordingly. The Texas Entities had (and have) no control over, or relationship to, the actual delivery of electricity to customers' homes or businesses, during winter storm Uri, or otherwise. If the Claimants experienced a disruption in their electricity service on account of the storm, and such disruption caused any damages, it was entirely outside of the Texas Entities' control, power or legal responsibility.

There is no causal relationship between the unproven damages alleged in these Claims and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

Contractual Provisions Exclude Liability

The Claimants' contracts[3] are consistent with the regulatory structure outlined above, as the Texas Entities did not contract with the Claimants to provide power or guarantee uninterrupted supply of power. Contracts with JE Texas provide that:

- Customer "understands that Just Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[4]

- Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility."[5] (emphasis added)

Similarly, contracts with Tara Energy and Amigo Energy provide that:

- Customer "understands that [Amigo/Tara] Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[6]

- "[Amigo/Tara] Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). [Amigo/Tara] Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that [Amigo/Tara] Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). […]"[7]

- CUSTOMER ACKNOWLEDGES AND AGREES THAT [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY DOES NOT PRODUCE, TRANSMIT OR DISTRIBUTE POWER AND, AS A

RESULT, [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY CANNOT WARRANT, AND DOES NOT WARRANT IN ANY MANNER, THE ELECTRICITY PROVIDED […] [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY MAKES NO REPRESENTATION AS TO THE SUFFICIENCY, QUALITY OR CONTINUATION OF THE SERVICES PROVIDED HEREIN.[8]

- THE REMEDY IN ANY CLAIM OR SUIT BY YOU AGAINST [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY WILL BE LIMITED TO DIRECT ACTUAL DAMAGES. BY ENTERING INTO THIS AGREEMENT, YOU WAIVE ANY RIGHT TO ANY OTHER REMEDY. IN NO EVENT WILL EITHER TARA ENERGY OR YOU BE LIABLE FOR CONSEQUENTIAL, INCIDENTAL OR PUNITIVE DAMAGES. THESE LIMITATIONS APPLY WITHOUT REGARD TO THE CAUSE OF ANY LIABILITY OR DAMAGES.[9]

These provisions clearly informed the Claimants that the Texas Entities would not be liable for any interruption of power as a result of acts or omissions of a customer's TDU or otherwise.

In addition to the above, the relevant contracts contain provisions that excuse the Texas Entities from performance of the contracts for the duration of any force majeure event:

- JE Texas: "You accept that certain events beyond our control, including "force majeure" events declared by our direct or indirect suppliers, may affect our ability to supply electricity or JustGreen at your Energy Charge or JustGreen Charge. If this happens, we may, without liability: (a) temporarily supply them to you at the market price available to us; or (b) suspend this Agreement until as soon as we are reasonably able to resume performance. This Agreement will otherwise remain in full effect."

- Amigo Energy and Tara Energy: If an event occurs which makes it impossible for [Amigo/Tara] Energy to perform under this Agreement (a "Force Majeure Event"), including but not limited to (i) a failure of any wholesale supplier and/or TDSP to perform any contract with [Amigo/Tara] Energy, (ii) force majeure or similar event as declared by our wholesale supplier(s) and/or the TDSP(s), (iii) act of God, (iv) extraordinary weather occurrence, (v) fire or explosion, (vi) any governmental action, prohibition or regulation, or (vii) war, civil disturbance or other national emergency, our performance under this Agreement shall be excused for the duration of such event. [Amigo/Tara] Energy shall promptly notify Customer of the Force Majeure Event, any resulting contingency, and the contemplated effect thereof on the provision of service. Upon elimination or cessation of the Force Majeure Event and any contingency, the obligations herein of [Amigo/Tara] Energy to provide service to Customer shall be reinstated. [Amigo/Tara] Energy reserves the right to terminate this Agreement should the event or the need for contingency not be eliminated within forty-five (45) days after the occurrence.[10]

Amounts Claimed not Specified or Supported

In any event, none of the Claims specify the amount being claimed and there is insufficient supporting documentation in support of the Claims from either a quantum or liability perspective. That is a further basis to disallow all of the Claims outright. Where there is any documentation provided at all, it is usually only a very basic "individual statement" with a few sentences about the alleged losses. In the few instances where Claimants have provided some evidence of damages, it is generally very limited.[11]

The Just Energy Entities reserve all rights to assert additional legal or factual defences and waive none.

[11] As an accommodation granted by the Just Energy Entities, the Claimants were not required to file medical documentation with their Proofs of Claim. Even if those Claimants who may be asserting a personal injury claim were to submit medical documentation in support of their Claims, they have failed to submit any documentation or information to support a causal relationship between the alleged damages and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

You request that we initiate service for each ESIID or transfer service from your current REP to Just Energy, as applicable. You agree, now and throughout the Term, that you: (a) are not, and will not be, bound by an agreement for your ESIID with a REP other than Just Energy; and (b) will not cancel or modify our appointment as your exclusive agent.

3. Enrollment. Your ability to enter this Agreement depends on whether you meet certain requirements: (a) your Utility accepts our request to enroll you in accordance with the Utility's enrollment rules; (b) we can verify your information by recorded phone call (or other means acceptable to us); (c) you are credit worthy; and (d) you are not already enrolled with us (existing customers can only enter into this Agreement if it is a "re-contract", as reflected by a capital letter "R" in the upper right corner of the Customer Agreement). If you are "self-selected meter read" Customer, your Start Date will be as close as reasonably possible to the switch date you select. You understand that the Start Date may be delayed (for reasons such as the Agreement being improperly completed, not submitted to Just Energy, not implemented by your Utility, etc.), at our discretion. End Date: our last day of electricity supply to your ESIID under this Agreement, plus any time required to obtain a final meter read. A new Term will begin if you enter into a re-contract or if this Agreement is renewed.

5. Renewal. Subject to Governing Law (see www.puc.state.tx.us), we can renew this Agreement with new or revised terms. For term contracts, notice of contract expiration and renewal offer will be sent no less than 30 days before the expiration of the Agreement Term. If you do not renew your Agreement, choose another Just Energy product, or switch to another REP by the specified date, you will revert to our Default Rate Product (see para. 12.1) in accordance with the notice and Governing Law.

6. JustGreen. For JustGreen, we will purchase renewable energy certificates or attributes up to 50% or 100% of our energy usage. If JustGreen is an option on your plan, then you may request to discontinue the use of JustGreen at any time so long as you are not in breach of this Agreement. If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then there is not a separate flat fee each month, and JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this Agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price per month is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset up to 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

7. Charges under this Agreement. We will supply you with electricity and JustGreen, as applicable. You agree to pay the following: (a) the Energy Charge multiplied by your usage; (b) the JustGreen Charge; either included in the plan or as an additional flat monthly fee (c) Utility Pass-Through Charges (unless included in your Energy Charge); (d) the Base Charge and/or Minimum Usage Credit/Fee per ESIID, if applicable; (e) an Advanced Metering Charge, if applicable; (f) any Special Service Fees and (g) Taxes. Any additional non-recurring charges or fees that we are required to pay by your Utility, including, but not limited to, disconnection and reconnection fees, metering and installation charges, and move-in or switching fees. Special Service Fees also include any non-recurring charges or fees identified in this Agreement including, but not limited to, late payment penalties, charges for disconnection and reconnection and insufficient funds charges. We will charge: a) a Disconnection Notice fee (DNP Notice Fee) as set forth on your EFL for each instance in which we send a letter notifying you of possible disconnection for non-payment; b) a $25 Disconnection Fee (DNP Fee) if your service is disconnected; c) a Late Payment Penalty equal to 5% of your late bill's past due amount if you are late making a payment; and d) a $25 Insufficient Funds Charge (NSF Charge) for returned payments. Additional product-specific fees and charges will be disclosed to you on the EFL provided for the product you select.

9. Taxes. You will pay lawful taxes and surcharges that may apply to the charges. This may include, but is not limited to, gross receipts surcharges imposed on us by the State of Texas and/or local municipalities and the PUCT assessment fee that we pass through to you.

10. Credit Requirements. We may require you to demonstrate and maintain satisfactory credit as a condition of providing service under this Agreement, and you authorize us to access and use information about you to review your credit history. You will be deemed to have satisfactory credit if you (i) are 65 years of age or older and are not currently delinquent in payment of any electric service account; or (ii) provide a certification letter developed by the Texas Council on Family Violence evidencing that you are determined to be a victim of family violence.

11. Deposits. If you are unable to meet the Credit Requirements, we may require a deposit prior to implementing this Agreement. We may also require a deposit from you during the Term if during the previous 12 months of service under this Agreement you (a) were late in paying a bill more than once; or (b) had your service disconnected for nonpayment. We may require you to pay an additional deposit if within the previous 12 months (i) your average bills are at least twice the amount of the original estimated annual billing; and (ii) a disconnection notice has been issued to you. The total of all deposits will not exceed the greater of (A) the sum of the next two months estimated billings; or (B) 1/5th of estimated annual billings. Estimated annual billings may be based on an estimate of average usage for your customer class.

After 12 months of service, you may request that the deposit amount be recalculated based on your actual usage. You must pay any deposit requested within 10 days of our request, which may be combined with a disconnection notice. We will refund your deposit by a bill credit when you have paid bills for 12 consecutive months with no late payments. You will receive interest on any deposit held longer than 30 days at the annual PUCT rate. Upon request, payment of accrued interest will be made to you once a year. If you qualify for the rate reduction program under the Rules, the PUCT Substantive Rules Applicable to REPs and ERCOT protocols, you may pay any deposit that exceeds $50 in two equal installments.

For Customers on a prepaid contract, we will not require a security deposit. Acceptance of prepayment amounts is solely for your convenience and will not be considered a deposit. We will not pay interest on any Current Balance.

12. Type of Products. We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this paragraph 12 that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract. Fixed Rate Products.

Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. Provided that your peak demand does not exceed fifty (50) kW during the term of this Agreement, the price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a pre-defined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. the price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, hanges to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Just Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

12.1 Default Rate Product. Unless you are on a variable price or other month-to-month product, you may be transferred to our Default Rate Product at the end of your term if you do not respond to our renewal notice. The Energy Charge for the Default Rate Product at the end of your term if you do not respond to our renewal notice. The Energy Charge for the Default Rate Product will vary from month to month as determined by Just Energy. If these Terms of Service are included with a contract expiration notice and you take no action, you will be transferred to our Default Rate Product. Unless otherwise noted in the Contract Expiration Notice, these Terms of Service will apply to the Default Rate Product with the exception of paragraphs 3, 5, 15 and the definition of Energy Charge in paragraph 1. The Electricity Facts Label for our Default Rate Product will be enclosed with your contract expiration notice. If you are transferred to our Default Rate Product at contract expiration, you can cancel service under the Default Rate Product at any time without paying Exit Fees. If you are transferred to a Default Rate Product, we will continue to purchase and retire the number of renewable energy credits represented by the level of JustGreen participation that you select at the time of your initial enrollment (and you will continue to pay for same at the price set forth in your notice of renewal offer).

13. Billing, Payment. Unless you are a Customer on a prepaid contract, we will bill you monthly, within thirty (30) days of when the TDU provides us with your ESIID usage information, unless validation of the data is required resulting in a delay. If your Utility does not furnish us with the necessary billing information, we may bill you based on estimates and any difference between your estimated bill amount and the actual amount will be reconciled upon Just Energy receiving the actual consumption amount from your Utility. If you agree to pay us by credit card or bank debit, your authorized signature on the Application of Service will be your authorized signature for such transactions and we will debit the full amount of each monthly bill, including late payment charges and Exit Fees from your credit card or bank account. If you fail to pay us as a result of insufficient funds on your credit card or in your bank account, you will be charged the greater of (i) $25; or (ii) the amount we are charged by our bank for such failure. If you fail to pay any amount due under this Agreement, you will be responsible for all reasonable fees and expenses (including attorney's fees) incurred by us in collecting the amount due and we may notify credit agencies of any failure to pay.

Note – Just Energy reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required

If you are a Customer on a prepaid contract, instead of receiving a monthly bill, we (or an authorized payment center) will provide you a purchase receipt or confirmation number that will show you the amount of money added to your account email or SMS text message. Confirmation of your payment will be made through an Account Update. If you are tax exempt, you must provide Just Energy with your tax exemption certificate. We may bill you for previous under billed amounts due to billing errors or omissions where (a) the under billing is a result of meter error or meter tampering by you; or (b) we bill you within 180 days from the date of issuance of the bill in which the under billing occurred. Unless the under billing is a result of theft of service, you may qualify for a deferred payment plan of the under billed amount (contact us for further details). Interest will not be charged on any under billed amounts unless the under billed amounts are attributable to theft of service, in which case interest shall be compounded monthly at the annual rate set by the PUCT. Such interest will accrue from the date that you are found to have first tampered with the meter. On occasion, we may credit your account at our sole discretion, which will reduce your monthly bill or charges, as a result of the balancing adjustment, but we will not debit your account for balancing adjustments.

14. Ending this Agreement Early, Breach. If this Agreement ends early, for any reason, you must still pay all amounts charged to you up to the early end date.

14.1 Your Right to Cancel: If you are switching to Just Energy from another REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. You may cancel by phone by calling 1.866.587.8674 or by completing and delivering to us the Notice of Cancellation.

You may also end this Agreement without having to pay the Exit Fee if (a) you move and provide supporting documentation of your move; or (b) you receive a notice from Just Energy of a material change in the context of this Agreement and you notify Just Energy of your request for cancellation within 14 days of the date the notice is sent to you.

14.2 Our Right to Cancel: We can end this Agreement, at no cost to us, if: (i) required/allowed by law; (ii) the Utility is unable to service your ESIID or electricity has not flowed in a reasonable time frame; (iii) a legislative or regulatory change materially alters our ability to profitably perform this Agreement; (iv) you move; (v) you commit a "Breach" (vi) or Just Energy receives notice or information evidencing that your load profile classification does not qualify for residential service. You will be given 14 calendar days prior notice if we end the Agreement. You will be in Breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your Utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the Term. By enrolling with Just Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

15. Exit Fee. If you end this Agreement for reasons other than those specified in paragraph 14.1 (Your Right to Cancel) herein, then, unless you are on a variable price or other month-to-month product, you may be charged an Exit Fee as set forth in your EFL. You agree that these Exit Fees are genuine pre-estimates of the damages Just Energy would suffer and not a penalty or other type of charge. You will remain responsible for all other amounts due, including Utility disconnection and reconnection fees.

16. Disconnection of Utility Service for Non-Prepaid Customers (Prepaid Customers Refer to Paragraph 36). If you fail to pay all amounts when due, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, we may order disconnection of service in accordance with Governing Law. You will be given 10 calendar days (21 days for Critical and Chronic Care) prior notice. We may re-enroll you upon payment of outstanding amounts owed to us. In addition to any charges or fees assessed by your Utility, we will assess a $25 DNP fee if your service is disconnected. If payments for past due amounts are paid via ACH draft or Check, we will process reconnection upon verification of funds. We reserve the right to proceed with disconnection of services for failure to satisfy your past due/disconnect amounts. Disconnection of service does not waive your responsibility to pay any outstanding account balance or Exit Fees.

16.1 Disconnect Without Notice. The TDU/TDSP may disconnect your services without prior notification if a life threatening or dangerous condition exists or where there is evidence of meter tampering, where unauthorized service reconnection exists after disconnect or where there is evidence of theft of service.

17. Level/Average Payment Plan. You may be eligible for our level payment plan based on a 12 month period. Under this plan you will receive an estimated bill that is the same amount each month during the period (subject to periodic adjustments). At the end of each period, we will reconcile the amount you have paid against the amount you would have paid based on actual usage and, if you remain on the plan, the difference will be divided by 12 and the resulting amount will be added to (or subtracted from) each bill in the next 12 month period. If you do not remain on the plan, the entire difference will be added to (or subtracted from) your next bill. We may require a deposit to participate in the plan. LITE-UP customers are eligible for average or level payment plans.

18. Customer Information, Credit Review. You authorize s to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your Utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates. We will disclose any of your information where required by law. Contact a Customer Service Representative for written information on our policies and practices regarding use of your personal information.

19. Limitation of Liability. Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility.

20. Dispute or Complaints. Binding Arbitration. If you have any concerns or comments related to this Agreement, you may contact us using the contact information provided above. You agree to promptly notify us of any disputed charge on your bill. You must pay the undisputed portion of your bill while a billing dispute is being resolved. We may request that you set out your billing dispute in writing. We request that you give us the opportunity to resolve any issue. If we are unable to resolve the issue, you have the ability to present an informal complaint to the Public Utility Commission of Texas. If you have an unresolved dispute or claim between you and us, including our subsidiaries, affiliates, and/or any of their respective members, officers, directors and employees, you agree that you have the choice of bringing your claim individually to small claims court or to pursue binding arbitration. You waive any right to bring or to participate in a class action against us. If you choose arbitration, any dispute will be handled under the this agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act. Any such arbitration will be administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA") and conducted before a single arbitrator pursuant to its rules, including, without limitation, the AAA's Consumer-Arbitration Rules, available at https://www.adr.org/consumer. The arbitrator will apply and be bound by this Agreement, apply applicable laws and the facts, and issue a reasoned award, if appropriate.

Please refer to "Your Rights as a Customer" for more information.

21. Bill Payment or Other Assistance. You may contact us if you anticipate having trouble paying a bill, as you may be eligible for payment assistance or a deferred payment plan. A deferred payment plan is an agreement between the REP and a customer that allows a customer to pay an outstanding balance in installments that extend beyond the due date of the current bill. An assistance program is available to customers who have severe financial hardships and temporarily may be unable to pay their bills. The program is funded in part by contributions from Just Energy customers. By accepting a "Deferred Payment Plan", we will place a switch-hold on your account. Please call us for additional information. For Customers on a prepaid contract, please see separate provisions for deferred payment plans in paragraph 37.

22. Critical Care Designation. If an interruption or suspension of electric service will create a dangerous or life-threatening condition for you, you may qualify for designation as a Critical Care Residential Customer – A residential customer who has a person permanently residing in his or her home who has been diagnosed by a physician as being dependent upon an electric-powered medical device to sustain life. The designation or re-designation is effective for two years under this section.

23. Chronic Condition Residential Customer. A residential customer who has a person permanently residing in his or her home who has been diagnosed by a physician as having a serious medical condition that requires an electric-powered medical device or electric heating or cooling to prevent the impairment of a major life function through a significant deterioration or exacerbation of the person's medical condition. If the serious medical condition is diagnosed or rediagnosed by a physician as a life-long condition, the designation is effective in this section for the shorter or one year or until such time as the person with the medical condition no longer resides in the home. Otherwise, the designation or re-designation is effective for 90 days. To apply, your physician must execute and deliver the required forms to your respective utility, which will be submitted by us to your Utility. You may request the form(s) by calling 1.866.587.8674, or the PUCT or your utility. This designation does not relieve you of any obligations under this Agreement, including your obligation to pay any account balance associated with this contract.

24. Demand Response. When regional grid operators or utilities anticipate blackouts or brownouts due to high electricity demand (a "Demand Response Event"), they notify participating customers of the scheduled time and duration of the Demand Response Event. At the appointed, participating customers agree to curtail their consumption by, for example, dimming lights, adjusting HVAC set points, or shutting down non-critical equipment. If you purchase a load controlling device (such as a smart thermostat, etc.) from Just Energy or one of its affiliates, then you agree that at any time, Just Energy can change your comfort settings and limit your thermostat consumption and/or adjust your HVAC system (heating, ventilating, and air conditioning) by 4 degrees Fahrenheit on average. You understand and agree that Just Energy shall have no obligation to notify you in advance of any Demand Response Event adjustments.

25. Amendment, Assignment. We may amend this Agreement by sending you written notice. Unless required by Governing Law, you will have 30 days to reject the amendment, in writing. If the amendment is a material change in the Agreement, we will provide you with at least 14 calendar days advance written notice and the change will become effective on the date stated in the notice unless you terminate this Agreement within 14 days of the date the notice is sent to you. We may assign any part of our interest in the Agreement, including to another energy services company, without your consent. You cannot assign your rights or obligations without our consent.

26. No Discrimination. We will not discriminate, deny service or require a prepayment or deposit for service based on your race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, marital status, lawful source of income, level of income, disability, familial status location in an economically distressed geographic area, or qualification for low income or energy efficiency services. We wil not use a credit score, credit history, or utility payment data as the basis for determining the price for electric service for a product with a contract term of 12 months or less.

27. Inability to Perform. You accept that certain events beyond our control, including "forcemajeure" events declared by our direct or indirect suppliers, may affect our ability to supply electricity or JustGreen at your Energy Charge or JustGreen Charge. If this happens, we may, without liability: (a) temporarily supply them to you at the market price available to us; or (b) suspend this Agreement until as soon as we are reasonably able to resume performance. This Agreement will otherwise remain in full effect.

28. Notice. If we are required to give you written notice, we will send it to your billing address or e-mail address. When providing us with written notice, you must send it to our address on the CustomerAgreement.You will be required to give proof of delivery. If a change in Governing Law necessitates that we provide a group of our customers with a general notice, we reserve the discretion to do so by posting it on our website at justenergy.com (you agree to visit it periodically to stay informed). Just Energy is not responsible if you do not receive Notice due to incorrect or outdated information provided at time of enrollment or failure to update. Customer consents to receive SMS text messages from Just Energy, its affiliates, and/or business partners regarding information about customer's account, new products, specials, promotions, and/or Demand Response Events. Standard message and data rates will apply to SMS messages. Customer may opt-out of text messaging anytime by texting "STOP" to [JE TEXT SHORT CODE].

29. Governing Law. The laws of the State of Texas govern this Agreement.

30. Miscellaneous. This Agreement is the entire contract between you and us. It can only be amended if agreed to by our head office in a written notice to, or recorded telephone call with you. If a part of this Agreement is deemed unenforceable, for any reason, we can make the minimal changes for it to be legal and enforceable. No delay by us to exercise our rights under this Agreement will constitute a waiver of such rights. No waiver of a Breach by you shall be interpreted as a waiver of any other Breach. This Agreement ensures to the benefit of and binds the parties and their respective successors and assigns. We will maintain an updated "Your Rights as a Customer" on our website and you agree to review it annuall

31. Emergency. In an emergency, call your Utility or appropriate emergency personnel.

Paragraphs 32-37 apply only to Customers on prepaid contract:

32. Account Update. We will communicate with you through an Account Update process. At the time of your enrollment with us, you must select the method we provide your Account Update to you, either my email or SMS text message. The Account Update contains account information which may include: your Current Balance, recent electricity payments, the most recent available energy consumption information as provided by the TDU (which may contain delayed information), updated electricity price, estimated time and/or days of electricity service remaining, confirmation of prepaid credit purchases, and/or other notices. We have no obligation to resend Account Updates to you, even if the message could not be delivered for any reason. You are solely responsible for contacting Customer Service to provide us with updated and correct contact information if: (1) the information for your chosen method of Account Updates contact has changed; (2) your chosen method of Account Updates is not functioning properly; (3) your chosen method of Account Updates is invalid; (4) at any time after you have begun receiving prepaid electricity service from us, 48 hours pass in which you do not receive an Account Update; (5) or you have not received an Account Update from us within 24 hours of any payment to your account. We may assess an Account Update Fee (up to $2.50) to you if you request an update through our Customer Service Department.

33. Summary of Usage and Payment (SUP): You can request a SUP (summary of electric charges), which will be provided to you via email or through the US Postal Service (USPS). We can charge you up to $2.95 SUP Fee for each SUP requested via USPS

34. Account Balance Refund Policy. Any account balance you maintain will not be refunded while you are a customer of Just Energy. Should you terminate electricity service with us (either by moving out or switching your service to another REP), or if we terminate electricity service with you, you are entitled to a refund of your outstanding Current Balance, minus any deficit balance accrued, any amounts owed under a Deferred Payment Plan (DPP) and/or fees assessed until the date your electricity service with Just Energy ends. Just Energy refers to this amount as the "Closeout Balance (COB)". If you are moving to a new location, you are responsible for contacting Customer Service and requesting that we close out your account, including recording the COB at the time your service officially ends. If you are switching to another REP, your COB will be determined by us on the last day of your service with Just Energy. If your COB is equal to or greater than $5.00, we will refund any unexpected funds to you within ten (10) days of receipt of your final meter reading. If your COB is less than $5.00, and you do not request a refund within 30 days of the last day of your service with us, you agree to allow Just Energy to donate this amount to an energy assistance agency. Any unexpected funds donated by an agency assistance agency will be refunded to that agency as per the timeline specified above.

35. Warning Message Prior to Disconnection. We will send a warning message to you via an Account Update 1-7 days before your Current Balance is estimated to fall below the Disconnection Balance. If you continue to receive electricity, for any reason, when your Current Balance is equal to or less than $0.00, your account will accumulate a deficit balance.

36. Disconnection of Service for Prepaid Customers. You must prepay for electricity consumption and maintain a positive Current Balance on your account except as otherwise authorized in this Agreement. We may contact the TDU to interrupt your electricity service if your Current Balance falls below the Disconnection Balance. Your deficit balance, if any, must be paid in full as well as an amount sufficient to satisfy the Connection Balance before we can initiate reconnection of service. Reconnection may result in re-enrollment. Upon reconnection your Current Balance may be subject to any charges or fees assessed by your Utility. It is our recommendation that you have a Current Balance of at least $20.00 in your account each day to avoid disconnection.

37. Deferred Payment Plan (DPP) Provisions for Prepaid Customers: A DPP is an agreement between Just Energy and a Customer that allows a Customer to pay an outstanding balance in installments over an extended period. If at any time your account has a deficit balance of $50.00 or more, you may be eligible for a DPP, or if your Current Balance has been exhausted due to an extreme weather emergency, under billing, or disaster declaration you are eligible to enroll in DPP. To determine eligibility, you must contact our Customer Service department and request enrollment in a DPP. Just Energy may transfer up to 50% of all of your future payments to your DPP balance until it is fully paid. As a condition of accepting the DPP, you may be asked if we may place your account on a switch hold until you satisfy the terms of the DPP. A switch hold means that you will not be able to buy electricity from other companies while the switch hold is in place. If you fail to adhere to the terms in your DPP, your entire outstanding DPP balance will become immediately due and included in your Current Balance. If this causes your Current Balance to fall below the Disconnection Balance, Just Energy may request that your utility interrupt your service after one day's notice of disconnection. Please contact Just Energy for details.

Paragraphs 38-45 apply only to Customers on a contract that includes a free Thermostat:

38. Access to Your Premises. Customer agrees to allow Just Energy and its agents the right, when necessary or requested, to enter at reasonable times and on reasonable notice, customer's property upon which the Services and/ or Equipment will be provided (the "Premises"), for purposes of installing, configuring, maintaining, inspecting, upgrading, replacing and removing the Services and/or Equipment used with any of the Services. Customer warrants that it is the owner of the Premises. Customer acknowledges that it has authority to enter into this Agreement because Customer owns the Premises.

39. Installation. Customer understands that a Just Energy subcontractor, duly-licensed in the State of Texas, shall install the Equipment in the Premises on a date that is mutually agreed upon by Customer and Just Energy. The date on which the Equipment is installed shall be the "Installation Date".

40. Usage. Just Energy has no responsibility for the operation or support, maintenance or repair of any Equipment after it is installed on the Installation Date. Customer agrees to use the Equipment as specified by the Equipment's manufacturer. To use the Equipment, Customer will need the Equipment and, if required for the selected thermostat, a Gateway/Router that meets the Equipment manufacturer's specifications. Just Energy has no responsibility for the operation or support, maintenance or repair of any equipment, software or services that Customer elects to use in connection with the Equipment (the "Customer Equipment").

41. Demand Response Participation. Just Energy will notify Customer of any Demand Response Event. The customer may participate in the Demand Response Event or opt-out of the Demand Response Event that may affect Customer's electric service. Customer may permanently opt out of participation in Demand Response Events by calling Just Energy's customer service department. If Customer participates in the Demand Response Event, Customer will be eligible to receive a benefit that reflects a portion of cost savings that result directly from Customer's participation in the Demand Response Event. Just Energy, at its sole discretion, will determine cost savings, if any, and the benefit that the customer is entitled to receive associated with the Demand Response Event. Just Energy may, when applicable and at its sole discretion, distribute any benefit related to a Demand Response Event to Customer. Just Energy will distribute any accrued but undistributed benefit to Customer upon termination of this contract. Just Energy may distribute any benefit in any form including by issuing a check for such benefit or by applying such benefit to any outstanding balance due and owing from Customer to Just Energy.

42. Removal. Customer may have the Equipment removed at any time after installation. Customer may either remove the Equipment at its own expense or Customer may request that Just Energy remove the Equipment from its home. Just Energy will remove the equipment and charge $125/hour for removal.

43. Moves. Customer will give Just Energy 45 days prior written notice if Customer plans to move from the Premises (each, a "move"). When the Customer moves, Customer will have 3 options: (1) Just Energy will move the Equipment to Customer's new location at no cost to you as long as (a) Customer remains a Just Energy Electricity Customer (b) and Customer owns the new location; (2) Customer can terminate this Agreement, and pay the termination charges outlined in Section 15 above; or (3) Customer can remove the equipment as provided for in Section 43 above.

44. Limited Warranty, Liability & Indemnity. THE EQUIPMENT IS PROVIDED "AS IS," WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EITHER EXPRESS OR IMPLIED. ALL REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO ANY WARRANTIES OF PERFORMANCE, NONINFRINGEMENT, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE OR MERCHANTABILITY, ARE HEREBY DISCLAIMED AND EXCLUDED UNLESS OTHERWISE PROHIBITED OR RESTRICTED BY GOVERNING LAW. CUSTOMER EQUIPMENT MAY BE DAMAGED OR SUFFER SERVICE OUTAGES AS A RESULT OF THE INSTALLATION, SELF-INSTALLATION, USE, INSPECTION, MAINTENANCE, REPAIR, AND REMOVAL OF EQUIPMENT. YOU UNDERSTAND THAT YOUR COMPUTER OR OTHER DEVICES MAY NEED TO BE OPENED, ACCESSED OR USED EITHER BY YOU OR BY US OR OUR AGENTS, IN CONNECTION WITH THE INSTALLATION OF THE EQUIPMENT. JUST ENERGY WILL NOT BE LIABLE FOR ANY LOSS, DAMAGE OR INJURY OF ANY TYPE ARISING OUT OF OR RELATED TO THIS AGREEMENT OR CAUSED OR CONTRIBUTED TO IN ANY WAY BY THE USE AND OPERATION OF THE EQUIPMENT, OR ANY INDIRECT, INCIDENTAL, SPECIAL OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES, EVEN IF REASONABLY FORESEEABLE. YOU AGREE TO INDEMNIFY, DEFEND AND HOLD HARMLESS JUST ENERGY AND ITS AFFILIATES, DIRECTORS, OFFICERS, EMPLOYEES, SUPPLIERS, AND AGENTS AGAINST ALL CLAIMS AND

EXPENSES (INCLUDING REASONABLE ATTORNEY FEES) ARISING OUT OF THE USE OF THE EQUIPMENT AND/OR THE CUSTOMER EQUIPMENT, OR THE BREACH OF THIS AGREEMENT BY YOU OR ANY OTHER USER.

45. Cancellation Fee Reimbursement. If applicable and as disclosed during your enrollment, we will reimburse up to $150 of your cancellation fee that your previous electric provider charges you. TERMS OF SERVICE

This document ("Agreement") sets out the Terms of Service for the purchase of electricity between Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", "we" and "us") and you, the customer ("you", "your" and "Customer"). Customer and Amigo Energy may be referred to individually as a "Party" or collectively as "Parties" herein. Your electricity requirements at the service location or ESI ID designated by you on your Enrollment or Renewal Form will be served under this Agreement. This Agreement shall not be applicable to Customers who have a time of use meter.

Amigo Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). Amigo Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that Amigo Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). The PUCT reviews and approves the rates that the TDSP can charge to transport and distribute electricity to your service location. These charges are passed on by Amigo Energy to you, the Customer, along with certain charges and fees assessed by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas ("ERCOT").

Types of Products

We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this “Product Types” section that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract.

Fixed Rate Products. Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. The price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity cadministrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Amigo Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

Length of Service

Your service under this Agreement will begin on your next meter reading date according to applicable rules. In the event that your TDSP is unable to perform the switch as scheduled, you will continue to receive electricity service from your current provider and will not receive a bill from Amigo Energy until the actual switch occurs. This date will appear on your first bill. Your initial length of service is indicated on your Enrollment or Renewal Form.

For term products, a contract expiration notice will be sent at least 14 days prior to the end of the initial contract term. If you fail to renew your contract with Amigo Energy or switch to another REP, your service will automatically continue on a month-to-month basis after the expiration of your initial contract on the Default Renewal Product, which is a variable price product whose price will be determined by current market conditions until cancelled by either you or Amigo Energy.

Option to Blend-and-Extend

The Customer may request Amigo Energy to structure a new "blend-and-extend" contract that allows the Customer to benefit from the lower market rates in exchange for lengthening its term of contract with Amigo Energy. Following such request, at Amigo Energy’s option, Amigo Energy will structure and offer such contract to Customer, who may then choose to accept such contract. In the event that the Customer chooses not to accept the offered contract, Customer will continue to be served under its existing contract with Amigo Energy.

Right to Rescission

If you are switching to Amigo Energy from a different REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. PUCT rules permit Amigo Energy to assume that you will receive this Agreement three (3) federal business days after we mail it to you. You may call us or write to us to rescind this Agreement at (888) 469-2644 and P.O. Box 3607, Houston, Texas 77253-3607.

Right to Cancel

Amigo Energy may cancel your Agreement if you do not pay your bills in full and on time. We may also cancel this Agreement if we are no longer a REP in your areas or for any other lawful reason, including in response to changing market conditions. Amigo Energy will provide you with written notice at least fourteen (14) days prior to cancellation.

Customer may cancel this Agreement without penalty in the event Amigo Energy can no longer provide service. Customer may also cancel this Agreement without penalty by giving notice of a move to a different premise and providing reasonable proof of such move, including but not limited to a forwarding address. In the absence of such proof, Amigo Energy will charge an Early Termination Fee as stated in your EFL. Amounts owed by you to Amigo Energy shall become immediately due and payable.

Billing & Payment
Following the switch to Amigo Energy from your current provider, you may receive a bill for less than one month's service. After the initial bill, you will receive a new bill from Amigo Energy each month for each ESI ID for which you are receiving service pursuant to this Agreement. Should you switch providers before the end of your billing cycle you will receive a bill for a partial month of service for the last month's service. Additionally, Amigo Energy will bill you on behalf of your TDSP for the services the TDSP provides. All bills are due and payable 16 days from the date on the bill for service to all ESI IDs.

If actual charges are not available to Amigo Energy at the time of preparation of your invoice, Amigo Energy reserves the right to bill you on good faith estimates of charges for the month. If estimated charges are included on your invoice, they shall be identified as such and shall be reconciled against actual charges once Amigo Energy has received such actual charges.

Breach
You will be in breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the term. By enrolling with Amigo Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

JustGreen Product
Renewable energy certificates or attributes equivalent up to 50% or 100% of your electricity usage for a flat fee each month. If JustGreen is an option on your plan, then you may request to discontinue the use of JustGreen at any time, so long as you are not in breach of this Agreement. If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price per month is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

Additional Charges & Fees
Amigo Energy will charge a one-time late payment penalty of 5% for each delinquent month's charges that remain unpaid after the bill due date. Additionally, Amigo Energy will charge 1) a $25 fee for any returned check, electronic fund transfer or credit card transaction not processed due to insufficient funds or credit availability, 2) a $22 disconnection notice fee for issuance of an electric service disconnection notice (this fee will be assessed regardless of whether your electric service is actually disconnected), 3) a $20 reconnection fee in the event that Amigo Energy processes a reconnection transaction on your account. Such fees are in addition to any disconnect/reconnect fees that may be assessed by your TDSP. and 4) For plan specific fees please refer to that plan's EFL.

Acceptance by us of any partial payment from you will not relieve you of your obligation to pay the full amount owed. You will be responsible for any non-recurring fees assessed by the TDSP and/or Amigo Energy associated with requests for move-in or switch, self selected switches, disconnection and reconnection fees, previous billing errors, meter tampering or meter read errors, or other errors or omissions.

Note – Amigo Energy reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required.

Cancellation Fee Reimbursement
If applicable and as disclosed during your enrollment, we will reimburse up to $150 of your cancellation fee that your previous electric provider charges you. Once approved, the reimbursement will be applied to your electricity account with Amigo Energy. Please note that if you switch away from Amigo Energy within 12 months of the Start Date of your Agreement, the cancellation fee must be repaid to Amigo Energy, and will be included on your final bill. Please send a copy of the previous electric provider's bill in one of the following ways
Email – customersupport@amigoenergy.com Mail – C/O Cancellation Fee Reimbursement Program, 5251 Westheimer Road, Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056 Fax – 888.548.7690

Payment & Discount Programs
In certain circumstances for which Customer must qualify, you may have the right to establish a payment arrangement or deferred payment plan with Amigo Energy. A payment plan allows you to pay your bill after the due date, but before the next bill is due. A deferred payment plan is an arrangement between Amigo Energy and a Customer that permits the Customer to pay an outstanding bill in installments that extend beyond the due date of the next bill. Amigo Energy will confirm all deferred payment plans in writing.

Amigo Energy offers an Average Billing Plan to give you the convenience of having a predictable monthly bill amount. To qualify for the Average Billing Plan, (i) a Customer must not be currently delinquent. Delinquent Customers should contact Amigo Energy to determine if they qualify for the average billing plan. The average energy charge is calculated by using up to your last twelve (12) months' kWh usage multiplied by your current price per kWh, divided by twelve (12) months. This amount is added to your estimated monthly TDSP charges, your base monthly charge, and any applicable regulatory charges, assessments and taxes. Additionally, you remain responsible for any non-recurring charges from your TDSP. Periodically, but not less than once each year, Amigo Energy will review your account and calculate a new average bill amount accordingly; any overpayment will be credited to your account or refunded to you, and any underpayment will be collected from you in equal installments over the next reconciliation period. You may opt-out of the Average Billing Plan at any time by paying your full balance due and providing written notice of your desire to be removed from the Average Billing Plan to Amigo Energy. The Average Billing Plan does not affect your obligation to pay for all actual usage and other associated charges, taxes and fees. Failure to pay your monthly bill on or before the stated due date may result in Amigo Energy proceeding with normal collection activities including the assessment of late fees, disconnection for non-pay, etc.

Amigo Energy offers each Customer the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to a bill payment assistance program for qualified residential Customers. You may find more information about Amigo Energy's bill payment assistance program on your billing statement.

Additional information regarding any of the aforementioned programs may be obtained by contacting a Amigo Energy customer service representative at (888) 469-2644.

Default & Disconnection of Service for Nonpayment

If you fail to remit payment as specified above in Billing and Payment, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, Amigo Energy may order the TDSP to disconnect electric service to the premise(s) served under this Agreement. You will be liable to Amigo Energy for all billed amounts and any charges associated with disconnection of service for nonpayment and reconnection. We reserve the right to pursue all legal remedies available to us to collect any amounts lawfully owed. In the event you fail to pay your bill in accordance with this Agreement, you agree to pay reasonable collection costs and expenses (including attorney's fees and third party collection fees) we incur as a result of our attempt to collect any amounts you owe. In the event that you have more than one agreement with Amigo Energy for service to ESI IDs not receiving service under this Agreement, any failure to pay under another agreement with Amigo Energy will constitute a default under this Agreement and shall give Amigo Energy the right to terminate this Agreement and seek any other remedy available to Amigo Energy at law or in equity.

Credit Eligibility & Deposits

You authorize us to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates By applying for service, you agree that Amigo Energy may check your personal credit. Failure to demonstrate satisfactory credit, will allow Amigo Energy to require a deposit prior to receiving service. You will not be required to pay an initial deposit, if you are at least 65 years of age and you do not have a current delinquent balance with your current REP, or if you have been a victim of family violence and can provide a certification letter pursuant to PUCT Substantive Rule §25.478(a)(3)(D) http://www.puc.texas.gov/agency/rulesnlaws/subrules/electric/25.478/25.478.pdf Customers who provide sufficient information to demonstrate that they qualify for the low-income rate reduction program may pay a required deposit that exceeds $50.00 in two equal installments.

Additionally, you may be required to pay a deposit once service has begun if you have paid late twice or been disconnected during the previous twelve (12) months. The total amount of all deposits required shall not exceed an amount equivalent to the greater of onefifth of the estimated annual billing for electric service or the sum of the estimated billings for electric service for the next two (2) months. The estimated billing for initial deposits is based on a reasonable estimate of the average usage for the applicable customer class. The deposit shall earn and be paid interest as per PUCT guidelines at the stated PUCT rate. Upon termination of the contract or twelve (12) consecutive on-time payments, the deposit, less any money owed, will be returned to the Customer.

Special Features of Amigo Energy's EZ Access Program.

Amigo Energy offers an EZ Access Program for customers whose credit profile warrants a deposit, but who may not be able to afford to pay the full amount of the deposit up front. This access to electric service is achieved by allowing customers to pay a portion of their required deposit over time. Failure to make full on-time payments that satisfy both your electric usage and deposit installment obligations is considered a failure to comply with the terms under which this Easy Access Program service has been extended. Amigo Energy's offering to allow a portion of the required deposit to be paid over time should in no way be construed as an indication that Amigo Energy applies relaxed standards to payment due dates, termination, or disconnection policies. This program utilizes historical information to forecast bill usage amounts that are reconciled in the following bill.

Changes in Laws or Regulations

In the event that there is a Change in Law (as defined below), Amigo Energy reserves the right to modify this Terms of Service. Amigo Energy will provide you with fourteen (14) calendar days' advance written notice of any modification, either in your bill or in a separate mailing. The modifications will become effective on the date stated in the notice unless you cancel your Agreement in writing. You may cancel your Agreement without penalty no later than the effective date of the modification. Notice is not required for a modification that benefits you. Change in Law means any change in federal, state or local law or any legislative or regulatory action that imposes new or modified fees or costs on Amigo Energy that are beyond Amigo Energy's control.

Dispute Procedures

We request that you give us the opportunity to resolve any issue. If we are unable to resolve the issue, you have the ability to present an informal complaint to the Public Utility Commission of Texas. If you have an unresolved dispute or claim between you and us, including our subsidiaries, affiliates, and/or any of their respective members, officers, directors and employees, you agree that you have the choice of bringing your claim individually to small claims court or to pursue binding arbitration. You waive any right to bring or to participate in a class action against us. If you choose arbitration, any dispute will be handled under the this agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act. Any such arbitration will be administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA") and conducted before a single arbitrator pursuant to its rules, including, without limitation, the AAA's Consumer-Arbitration Rules, available at https://www.adr.org/consumer. The arbitrator will apply and be bound by this Agreement, apply applicable laws and the facts, and issue a reasoned award, if appropriate. See "Your Rights as a Customer" for further information on customer disputes. Box 3607, Houston, Texas 77253-3607. Any dispute with respect to a bill is deemed to be waived unless Amigo Energy is notified in writing within sixty (60) days of the bill date.

TERMS OF SERVICE

This document ("Agreement") sets out the Terms of Service for the purchase of electricity between Tara Energy, LLC ("Tara Energy", "we" and "us") and you, the customer ("you", "your" and "Customer"). Customer and Tara Energy may be referred to individually as a "Party" or collectively as "Parties" herein. Your electricity requirements at the service location or ESI ID designated by you on your Enrollment or Renewal Form will be served under this Agreement. This Agreement shall not be applicable to Customers who have a time of use meter.

Tara Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). Tara Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that Tara Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). The PUCT reviews and approves the rates that the TDSP can charge to transport and distribute electricity to your service location. These charges are passed on by Tara Energy to you, the Customer, along with certain charges and fees assessed by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas ("ERCOT").

Types of Products
We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this “Product Types” section that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract.

Fixed Rate Products. Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. The price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a pre-defined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Tara Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

Associations Members (If Applicable)
Tara Energy may be paying a management fee to your Association to help administer this benefit on behalf of membership. All questions regarding this management fee should be addressed to your Association.

Length of Service
Your service under this Agreement will begin on your next meter reading date according to applicable rules. In the event that your TDSP is unable to perform the switch as scheduled, you will continue to receive electricity service from your current provider and will not receive a bill from Tara Energy until the actual switch occurs. This date will appear on your first bill. Your initial length of service is indicated on your Enrollment or Renewal Form.

For term products, a contract expiration notice will be sent at least 14 days prior to the end of the initial contract term. If you fail to renew your contract with Tara Energy or switch to another REP, your service will automatically continue on a month-to-month basis after the expiration of your initial contract on the Default Renewal Product, which is a variable price product whose price will be determined by current market conditions until cancelled by either you or Tara Energy.

Option to Blend-and-Extend
The Customer may request Tara Energy to structure a new "blend-and-extend" contract that allows the Customer to benefit from the lower market rates in exchange for lengthening its term of contract with Tara Energy. Following such request, at Tara Energy’s option, Tara Energy will structure and offer such contract to Customer, who may then choose to accept such contract. In the event that the Customer chooses not to accept the offered contract, Customer will continue to be served under its existing contract with Tara Energy.

Right to Rescission
If you are switching to Tara Energy from a different REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. PUCT rules permit Tara Energy to assume that you will receive this Agreement three (3) federal business days after we mail it to you. You may call us or write to us to rescind this Agreement at 713-830-1019 or toll-free (866)-438-8272 and 5251 Westheimer Rd. Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056.

Right to Cancel
Tara Energy may cancel your Agreement if you do not pay your bills in full and on time. We may also cancel this Agreement if we are no longer a REP in your areas or for any other lawful reason, including in response to changing market conditions. Tara Energy will provide you with written notice at least fourteen (14) days prior to cancellation.

Customer may cancel this Agreement without penalty in the event Tara Energy can no longer provide service. Customer may also cancel this Agreement without penalty by giving notice of a move to a different premise and providing reasonable proof of such move, including but not limited to a forwarding address. In the absence of such proof, Tara Energy will charge an Early Termination Fee as stated in your EFL.

Amounts owed by you to Tara Energy shall become immediately due and payable.

Billing & Payment
Following the switch to Tara Energy from your current provider, you may receive a bill for less than one month's service. After the initial bill, you will receive a new bill from Tara Energy each month for each ESI ID for which you are receiving service pursuant to this Agreement. Should you switch providers before the end of your billing cycle you will receive a bill for a partial month of service for the last month's service. Additionally, Tara Energy will bill you on behalf of your TDSP for the services the TDSP provides. All bills are due and payable 16 days from the date on the bill for service to all ESI IDs.

If actual charges are not available to Tara Energy at the time of preparation of your invoice, Tara Energy reserves the right to bill you on good faith estimates of charges for the month. If estimated charges are included on your invoice, they shall be identified as such and shall be reconciled against actual charges once Tara Energy has received such actual charges.

Breach
You will be in breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the term. By enrolling with Tara Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

JustGreen Product
Renewable energy certificates or attributes equivalent up to 50% or 100% of your electricity usage for a flat fee each month. If JustGreen is an option on your plan, then you may request to discontinue the use of JustGreen at any time, so long as you are not in breach of this Agreement. If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset up to 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

Additional Charges & Fees
Tara Energy will charge a one-time late payment penalty of 5% for each delinquent month's charges that remain unpaid after the bill due date. Additionally, Tara Energy will charge 1) a $30 fee for any returned check, electronic fund transfer or credit card transaction not processed due to insufficient funds or credit availability, 2) a $22 disconnection notice fee for issuance of an electric service disconnection notice (this fee will be assessed regardless of whether your electric service is actually disconnected), 3) a $20 reconnection fee in the event that Tara Energy processes a reconnection transaction on your account. Such fees are in addition to any disconnect/reconnect fees that may be assessed by your TDSP. and 4) For plan specific fees please refer to that plan's EFL.

Acceptance by us of any partial payment from you will not relieve you of your obligation to pay the full amount owed. You will be responsible for any non-recurring fees assessed by the TDSP and/or Tara Energy associated with requests for move-in or switch, self selected switches, disconnection and reconnection fees, previous billing errors, meter tampering or meter read errors, or other errors or omissions.

Note - Tara reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required.

Cancellation Fee Reimbursement

If applicable and as disclosed during your enrollment, we will reimburse up to $150 of your cancellation fee that your previous electric provider charges you. Once approved, the reimbursement will be applied to your electricity account with Tara Energy. Please note that if you switch away from Tara Energy within 12 months of the Start Date of your Agreement, the cancellation fee must be repaid to Tara Energy, and will be included on your final bill. Please send a copy of the previous electric provider's bill in one of the following ways:

Payment & Discount Programs
In certain circumstances for which Customer must qualify, you may have the right to establish a payment arrangement or deferred payment plan with Tara Energy. A payment plan allows you to pay your bill after the due date, but before the next bill is due. A deferred payment plan is an arrangement between Tara Energy and a Customer that permits the Customer to pay an outstanding bill in installments that extend beyond the due date of the next bill. Tara Energy will confirm all deferred payment plans in writing.

Tara Energy offers an Average Billing Plan to give you the convenience of having a predictable monthly bill amount. To qualify for the Average Billing Plan, (i) a Customer must not be currently delinquent. Delinquent Customers should contact Tara Energy to determine if they qualify for the average billing plan. The average energy charge is calculated by using up to your last twelve (12) months' kWh usage multiplied by your current price per kWh, divided by twelve (12) months. This amount is added to your estimated monthly TDSP charges, your base monthly charge, and any applicable regulatory charges, assessments and taxes. Additionally, you remain responsible for any non-recurring charges from your TDSP. Periodically, but not less than once each year, Tara Energy will review your account and calculate a new average bill amount accordingly; any overpayment will be credited to your account or refunded to you, and any underpayment will be collected from you in equal installments over the next reconciliation period. You may opt-out of the Average Billing Plan at any time by paying your full balance due and providing written notice of your desire to be removed from the Average Billing Plan to Tara Energy. The Average Billing Plan does not affect your obligation to pay for all actual usage and other associated charges, taxes and fees. Failure to pay your monthly bill on or before the stated due date may result in Tara Energy proceeding with normal collection activities including the assessment of late fees, disconnection for non-pay, etc.

Additionally, if you need help paying your bill, you may qualify for additional low-income energy assistance programs in your community.

Tara Energy offers each Customer the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to a bill payment assistance program for qualified residential Customers. You may find more information about Tara Energy's bill payment assistance program on your billing statement.

Additional information regarding any of the aforementioned programs may be obtained by contacting a Tara Energy customer service representative at 713-830-1019 (or (866)-438-8272).

Default & Disconnection of Service for Nonpayment
If you fail to remit payment as specified above in Billing and Payment, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, Tara Energy may order the TDSP to disconnect electric service to the premise(s) served under this Agreement. You will be liable to Tara Energy for all billed amounts and any charges associated with disconnection of service for nonpayment and reconnection. We reserve the right to pursue all legal remedies available to us to collect any amounts lawfully owed. In the event you fail to pay your bill in accordance with this Agreement, you agree to pay reasonable collection costs and expenses (including attorney's fees and third party collection fees) we incur as a result of our attempt to collect any amounts you owe.

In the event that you have more than one agreement with Tara Energy for service to ESI IDs not receiving service under this Agreement, any failure to pay under another agreement with Tara Energy will constitute a default under this Agreement and shall give Tara Energy the right to terminate this Agreement and seek any other remedy available to Tara Energy at law or in equity.

Credit Eligibility & Deposits
You authorize us to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates. By applying for service, you agree that Tara Energy may check your personal credit. Failure to demonstrate satisfactory credit, will allow Tara Energy to require a deposit prior to receiving service. You will not be required to pay an initial deposit, if you are at least 65 years of age and you do not have a current delinquent balance with your current REP, or if you have been a victim of family violence and can provide a certification letter pursuant to PUCT Substantive Rule §25.478(a)(3)(D) http://www.puc.texas.gov/agency/rulesnlaws/subrules/electric/25.478/25.478.pdf. Customers who provide sufficient information to demonstrate that they qualify for the low-income rate reduction program may pay a required deposit that exceeds $50.00 in two equal installments.

Additionally, you may be required to pay a deposit once service has begun if you have paid late twice or been disconnected during the previous twelve (12) months. The total amount of all deposits required shall not exceed an amount equivalent to the greater of one-fifth of the estimated annual billing for electric service or the sum of the estimated billings for electric service for the next two (2) months. The estimated billing for initial deposits is based on a reasonable estimate of the average usage for the applicable customer class. The deposit shall earn and be paid interest as per PUCT guidelines at the stated PUCT rate. Upon termination of the contract or twelve (12) consecutive on-time payments, the deposit, less any money owed, will be returned to the Customer.

Changes in Laws or Regulations
In the event that there is a Change in Law (as defined below), Tara Energy reserves the right to modify this Terms of Service. Tara Energy will provide you with fourteen (14) calendar days' advance written notice of any modification, either in your bill or in a separate mailing. The modifications will become effective on the date stated in the notice unless you cancel your Agreement in writing. You may cancel your Agreement without penalty no later than the effective date of the modification. Notice is not required for a modification that benefits you. Change in Law means any change in federal, state or local law or any legislative or regulatory action that imposes new or modified fees or costs on Tara Energy that are beyond Tara Energy's control.

Dispute Procedures
We request that you give us the opportunity to resolve any issue. If we are unable to resolve the issue, you have the ability to present an informal complaint to the Public Utility Commission of Texas. If you have an unresolved dispute or claim between you and us, including our subsidiaries, affiliates, and/or any of their respective members, officers, directors and employees, you agree that you have the choice of bringing your claim individually to small claims court or to pursue binding arbitration. You waive any right to bring or to participate in a class action against us. If you choose arbitration, any dispute will be handled under the this agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act. Any such arbitration will be administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA") and conducted before a single arbitrator pursuant to its rules, including, without limitation, the AAA's Consumer-Arbitration Rules, available at <https://www.adr.org/consumer>. The arbitrator will apply and be bound by this Agreement, apply applicable laws and the facts, and issue a reasoned award, if appropriate. See "Your Rights as a Customer" for further information on customer disputes. Any communications concerning disputed debts, including an instrument tendered as full satisfaction of a debt, are to be sent to the attention of the "Legal Department" at Tara Energy, LLC 5251 Westheimer Rd. Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056. Any dispute with respect to a bill is deemed to be waived unless Tara Energy is notified in writing within sixty (60) days of the bill date.

SCHEDULE A

The firm of Robins Cloud LLP has filed claims against certain directors and officers [2] of the Just Energy Entities (the "Claims") on behalf of 37 claimants who they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). The Claimants are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety.

Firstly, the Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and devoid of merit for all of the reasons set out in the Notice of Disallowance with respect to the underlying claims brought against the Just Energy Entities, attached at Schedule C.

Additionally, based on the information provided, these Claims are insufficiently articulated and insufficiently particularized against any of the individual officers and directors of the relevant Just Energy Entities at the relevant time. There is no legal basis under Canadian or U.S. law for imposing personal liability on directors and officers for these contractual or tort Claims. In particular, the Claims fail to allege any independent acts taken by any of the individual directors and officers at any relevant time for which they may be personally liable at law.

The inclusion of these meritless Claims with no basis in law confirms that these Claims have been brought improperly and without conducting sufficient (or any) due diligence. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these Claims.

SCHEDULE A

The firm of Robins Cloud LLP has filed purported claims (the "Claims") on behalf of 104 alleged claimants whom they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). The Claimants are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

All of the Claims were brought as against Just Energy Group Inc., Just Energy Corp., Just Energy Texas I Corp, Just Energy Texas LP, with certain of the Claims also naming the following additional Just Energy Entities:

Number of Claims	Additional Entities Named in Claims
25	Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC and Fulcrum Retail Holdings LLC
7	Fulcrum Retail Holdings LLC and Tara Energy LLC
1	Just Solar Holdings Corp.
1	Hudson Energy Services, LLC, Hudson Energy Corp., and Hudson Parent Holdings LLC

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety. The Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and are devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including those set out below.

Claims Were Brought Improperly

As a threshold issue, a search of the Just Energy Entities' records has confirmed that 40 of the 104 alleged Claimants were not Just Energy customers during the relevant time period (February 13-20, 2021). Only 46 of the Claimants' names and addresses match those found in Just Energy's customer records for that time period, with a further 18 instances where the customer name at the address provided by the Claimant does not match the Claimant's name. The inclusion of more than 50% Claims of non-customers indicates that these Claims were filed improperly, without conducting adequate due diligence. These non-customer Claims are therefore rejected outright. This improper filing necessarily casts considerable doubt and skepticism on the remainder of the Claims filed. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these non-customer Claims.

The Relevant Just Energy Entities, Like All Retail Electric Providers in Texas, Are Not Responsible for Generation or Delivery of Electricity

In any event, the Claimants have not adduced any evidence to establish that any of the Just Energy Entities are liable for their Claims, and retail electric providers in Texas are not legally responsible for the transmission and distribution of energy. No Claimant has provided any evidence whatsoever to refute that fact and on that basis alone all of the Claims are rejected.

The Texas Public Utility Regulatory Act ("PURA") required that, no later than January 1, 2002, all utilities operating in Texas separate their business activities into three distinct units:

- Power Generation Companies ("PGCs"), which own and operate electric generation facilities and sell their power to REPs (defined below) at wholesale;

- Transmission and Distribution Utilities ("TDUs"), which own and operate the facilities necessary to transmit and distribute energy; and

- Retail Electric Providers ("REPs"), which buy electricity wholesale and sell such electricity to retail customers.

Under PURA, REPs are prohibited from owning the generation and transmission assets necessary to physically generate electricity and deliver electricity to customers. REPs buy electricity from PGCs. The electricity they purchase from PGCs is transmitted over the transmission and distribution facilities owned by TDUs, and delivered to the REPs' customers by the TDUs.

The relevant Just Energy Entities – Just Energy Texas LP ("JE Texas"), Tara Energy LLC ("Tara Energy"), and Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", and collectively with JE Texas and Tara Energy, the "Texas Entities") – are REPs in the state of Texas certified by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT"). Their business consists of securing wholesale energy products from the ERCOT[2] market and re-selling such energy to their customers. The Texas Entities own no generation, transmission or distribution facilities, and have no control whatsoever over the actual generation or transmission of electricity, or the delivery of such electricity to their customers.

Transmission, distribution, and delivery of electricity in Texas is controlled by the TDUs. Each TDU in Texas is required to file with the PUCT a tariff to govern its retail delivery service to REPs (such as the Texas Entities) using the pro forma tariff codified at 16 Tex. Admin. Code § 25.214(d). The regulations provide that the provisions of the tariff "are requirements that shall be complied with and offered to all REPs and Retail Customers unless otherwise specified." The tariff provides that:

- The REP has no ownership, right of control, or duty to a retail customer, or third party, regarding the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's Delivery System.

- The REP will not be liable to any person or entity for any damages, direct, indirect, or consequential, including, but without limitation, loss of business, loss of profits or revenue, or loss of production capacity, occasioned by any fluctuations or interruptions of delivery caused, in whole or in part, by the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's delivery system.

During any outage event, customers are directed to contact their local TDU (such as Oncor or CenterPoint) for outage notification and repairs. In fact, monthly invoices sent to the Texas Entities' customers set forth the contact information for their local TDU explicitly in case of emergencies and power outages.

[2] Electric Reliability Council of Texas, Inc.

The Texas Entities simply procure energy on the market, resell it to their customers, keep track of how much electricity is used, and charge their customers accordingly. The Texas Entities had (and have) no control over, or relationship to, the actual delivery of electricity to customers' homes or businesses, during winter storm Uri, or otherwise. If the Claimants experienced a disruption in their electricity service on account of the storm, and such disruption caused any damages, it was entirely outside of the Texas Entities' control, power or legal responsibility.

There is no causal relationship between the unproven damages alleged in these Claims and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

Contractual Provisions Exclude Liability

The Claimants' contracts[3] are consistent with the regulatory structure outlined above, as the Texas Entities did not contract with the Claimants to provide power or guarantee uninterrupted supply of power. Contracts with JE Texas provide that:

- Customer "understands that Just Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[4]

- Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility."[5] (emphasis added)

Similarly, contracts with Tara Energy and Amigo Energy provide that:

- Customer "understands that [Amigo/Tara] Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[6]

- "[Amigo/Tara] Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). [Amigo/Tara] Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that [Amigo/Tara] Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). - CUSTOMER ACKNOWLEDGES AND AGREES THAT [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY DOES NOT PRODUCE, TRANSMIT OR DISTRIBUTE POWER AND, AS A

IN NO EVENT WILL EITHER TARA ENERGY OR YOU BE LIABLE FOR CONSEQUENTIAL, INCIDENTAL OR PUNITIVE DAMAGES. THESE LIMITATIONS APPLY WITHOUT REGARD TO THE CAUSE OF ANY LIABILITY OR DAMAGES.[9]

These provisions clearly informed the Claimants that the Texas Entities would not be liable for any interruption of power as a result of acts or omissions of a customer's TDU or otherwise.

In addition to the above, the relevant contracts contain provisions that excuse the Texas Entities from performance of the contracts for the duration of any force majeure event:

- JE Texas: "You accept that certain events beyond our control, including "force majeure" events declared by our direct or indirect suppliers, may affect our ability to supply electricity or JustGreen at your Energy Charge or JustGreen Charge. If this happens, we may, without liability: (a) temporarily supply them to you at the market price available to us; or (b) suspend this Agreement until as soon as we are reasonably able to resume performance. This Agreement will otherwise remain in full effect."

- Amigo Energy and Tara Energy: If an event occurs which makes it impossible for [Amigo/Tara] Energy to perform under this Agreement (a "Force Majeure Event"), including but not limited to (i) a failure of any wholesale supplier and/or TDSP to perform any contract with [Amigo/Tara] Energy, (ii) force majeure or similar event as declared by our wholesale supplier(s) and/or the TDSP(s), (iii) act of God, (iv) extraordinary weather occurrence, (v) fire or explosion, (vi) any governmental action, prohibition or regulation, or (vii) war, civil disturbance or other national emergency, our performance under this Agreement shall be excused for the duration of such event. [Amigo/Tara] Energy shall promptly notify Customer of the Force Majeure Event, any resulting contingency, and the contemplated effect thereof on the provision of service. Upon elimination or cessation of the Force Majeure Event and any contingency, the obligations herein of [Amigo/Tara] Energy to provide service to Customer shall be reinstated. [Amigo/Tara] Energy reserves the right to terminate this Agreement should

the event or the need for contingency not be eliminated within forty-five (45) days after the occurrence.[10]

Amounts Claimed not Specified or Supported

In any event, none of the Claims specify the amount being claimed and there is insufficient supporting documentation in support of the Claims from either a quantum or liability perspective. That is a further basis to disallow all of the Claims outright. Where there is any documentation provided at all, it is usually only a very basic "individual statement" with a few sentences about the alleged losses. In the few instances where Claimants have provided some evidence of damages, it is generally very limited.[11]

The Just Energy Entities reserve all rights to assert additional legal or factual defences and waive none.

[11] As an accommodation granted by the Just Energy Entities, the Claimants were not required to file medical documentation with their Proofs of Claim. Even if those Claimants who may be asserting a personal injury claim were to submit medical documentation in support of their Claims, they have failed to submit any documentation or information to support a causal relationship between the alleged damages and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

SCHEDULE A

The law firms of Fears Nachawati PLLC, Watts Guerra LLP and Parker Waichman LLP have collectively filed purported claims (the "Claims") on behalf of 260 alleged claimants whom they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). While no particulars were submitted with respect to these Claims, and in certain instances even the nature of individual Claims is listed as "undetermined", it appears they are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

It is unclear which of the Just Energy Entities are being claimed against by the Claimants. All of the Claims were brought as against "Just Energy", with certain of them also naming the following additional entities:

Number of Claims	Additional Entities Named in Claims
97	Just Energy Texas
41	Amigo Energy
6	Tara Energy
2	Hudson Energy

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety. The Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and are devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including those set out below.

Claims Were Brought Improperly

As a threshold issue, a search of the Just Energy Entities' records has confirmed that 106 of the 260 alleged Claimants were not Just Energy customers during the relevant time period (February 13-20, 2021). Only 126 of the Claimants' names and addresses match those found in Just Energy's customer records for that time period, with a further 28 instances where the customer name at the address provided by the Claimant does not match the Claimant's name. The inclusion of more than 50% Claims of non-customers indicates that these Claims were filed improperly, without conducting adequate due diligence. These non-customer Claims are therefore rejected outright. This improper filing necessarily casts considerable doubt and skepticism on the remainder of the Claims filed. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these non-customer Claims.

The Relevant Just Energy Entities, Like All Retail Electric Providers in Texas, Are Not Responsible for Generation or Delivery of Electricity

In any event, the Claimants have not adduced any evidence to establish that any of the Just Energy Entities are liable for their Claims, and retail electric providers in Texas are not legally responsible for the transmission and distribution of energy. No Claimant has provided any evidence whatsoever to refute that fact and on that basis alone all of the Claims are rejected.

The Texas Public Utility Regulatory Act ("PURA") required that, no later than January 1, 2002, all utilities operating in Texas separate their business activities into three distinct units:

- Power Generation Companies ("PGCs"), which own and operate electric generation facilities and sell their power to REPs (defined below) at wholesale;

- Transmission and Distribution Utilities ("TDUs"), which own and operate the facilities necessary to transmit and distribute energy; and

- Retail Electric Providers ("REPs"), which buy electricity wholesale and sell such electricity to retail customers.

Under PURA, REPs are prohibited from owning the generation and transmission assets necessary to physically generate electricity and deliver electricity to customers. REPs buy electricity from PGCs. The electricity they purchase from PGCs is transmitted over the transmission and distribution facilities owned by TDUs, and delivered to the REPs' customers by the TDUs.

The relevant Just Energy Entities – Just Energy Texas LP ("JE Texas"), Tara Energy LLC ("Tara Energy"), and Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", and collectively with JE Texas and Tara Energy, the "Texas Entities") – are REPs in the state of Texas certified by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT"). Their business consists of securing wholesale energy products from the ERCOT[2] market and re-selling such energy to their customers. The Texas Entities own no generation, transmission or distribution facilities, and have no control whatsoever over the actual generation or transmission of electricity, or the delivery of such electricity to their customers.

Transmission, distribution, and delivery of electricity in Texas is controlled by the TDUs. Each TDU in Texas is required to file with the PUCT a tariff to govern its retail delivery service to REPs (such as the Texas Entities) using the pro forma tariff codified at 16 Tex. Admin. Code § 25.214(d). The regulations provide that the provisions of the tariff "are requirements that shall be complied with and offered to all REPs and Retail Customers unless otherwise specified." The tariff provides that:

- The REP has no ownership, right of control, or duty to a retail customer, or third party, regarding the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's Delivery System.

- The REP will not be liable to any person or entity for any damages, direct, indirect, or consequential, including, but without limitation, loss of business, loss of profits or revenue, or loss of production capacity, occasioned by any fluctuations or interruptions of delivery caused, in whole or in part, by the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's delivery system.

During any outage event, customers are directed to contact their local TDU (such as Oncor or CenterPoint) for outage notification and repairs. In fact, monthly invoices sent to the Texas Entities' customers set forth the contact information for their local TDU explicitly in case of emergencies and power outages.

The Texas Entities simply procure energy on the market, resell it to their customers, keep track of how much electricity is used, and charge their customers accordingly. The Texas Entities had (and have) no control over, or relationship to, the actual delivery of electricity to customers' homes or businesses, during winter storm Uri, or otherwise. If the Claimants experienced a disruption in their electricity service on account of the storm, and such disruption caused any damages, it was entirely outside of the Texas Entities' control, power or legal responsibility.

There is no causal relationship between the unproven damages alleged in these Claims and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

Contractual Provisions Exclude Liability

The Claimants' contracts[3] are consistent with the regulatory structure outlined above, as the Texas Entities did not contract with the Claimants to provide power or guarantee uninterrupted supply of power. Contracts with JE Texas provide that:

- Customer "understands that Just Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[4]

- Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility."[5] (emphasis added)

Similarly, contracts with Tara Energy and Amigo Energy provide that:

- "[Amigo/Tara] Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). [Amigo/Tara] Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. IN NO EVENT WILL EITHER TARA ENERGY OR YOU BE LIABLE FOR CONSEQUENTIAL, INCIDENTAL OR PUNITIVE DAMAGES. THESE LIMITATIONS APPLY WITHOUT REGARD TO THE CAUSE OF ANY LIABILITY OR DAMAGES.[9]

These provisions clearly informed the Claimants that the Texas Entities would not be liable for any interruption of power as a result of acts or omissions of a customer's TDU or otherwise.

In addition to the above, the relevant contracts contain provisions that excuse the Texas Entities from performance of the contracts for the duration of any force majeure event:

- Amigo Energy and Tara Energy: If an event occurs which makes it impossible for [Amigo/Tara] Energy to perform under this Agreement (a "Force Majeure Event"), including but not limited to (i) a failure of any wholesale supplier and/or TDSP to perform any contract with [Amigo/Tara] Energy, (ii) force majeure or similar event as declared by our wholesale supplier(s) and/or the TDSP(s), (iii) act of God, (iv) extraordinary weather occurrence, (v) fire or explosion, (vi) any governmental action, prohibition or regulation, or (vii) war, civil disturbance or other national emergency, our performance under this Agreement shall be excused for the duration of such event. Amounts Claimed not Specified or Supported

Only 100 of the 260 Claimants have specified the amounts of their Claims. However, none of the Claimants have provided any documentation whatsoever in support of their Claims.[11] This is a further basis to disallow all of the Claims outright.

The Just Energy Entities reserve all rights to assert additional legal or factual defences and waive none.

If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then there is not a separate flat fee each month, and JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this Agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price per month is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset up to 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

7. Charges under this Agreement. We will supply you with electricity and JustGreen, as applicable. You agree to pay the following: (a) the Energy Charge multiplied by your usage; (b) the JustGreen Charge; either included in the plan or as an additional flat monthly fee (c) Utility Pass-Through Charges (unless included in your Energy Charge); (d) the Base Charge and/or Minimum Usage Credit/Fee per ESIID, if applicable; (e) an Advanced Metering Charge, if applicable; (f) any Special Service Fees and (g) Taxes. Charges and fees are as specified on your EFL or otherwise in this Agreement.

8. Special Service Fees. Any additional non-recurring charges or fees that we are required to pay by your Utility, including, but not limited to, disconnection and reconnection fees, metering and installation charges, and move-in or switching fees. Special Service Fees also include any non-recurring charges or fees identified in this Agreement including, but not limited to, late payment penalties, charges for disconnection and reconnection and insufficient funds charges. We will charge: a) a Disconnection Notice fee (DNP Notice Fee) as set forth on your EFL for each instance in which we send a letter notifying you of possible disconnection for non-payment; b) a $25 Disconnection Fee (DNP Fee) if your service is disconnected; c) a Late Payment Penalty equal to 5% of your late bill's past due amount if you are late making a payment; and d) a $25 Insufficient Funds Charge (NSF Charge) for returned payments. Additional product-specific fees and charges will be disclosed to you on the EFL provided for the product you select.

9. Taxes. You will pay lawful taxes and surcharges that may apply to the charges. This may include, but is not limited to, gross receipts surcharges imposed on us by the State of Texas and/or local municipalities and the PUCT assessment fee that we pass through to you.

10. Credit Requirements. We may require you to demonstrate and maintain satisfactory credit as a condition of providing service under this Agreement, and you authorize us to access and use information about you to review your credit history. You will be deemed to have satisfactory credit if you (i) are 65 years of age or older and are not currently delinquent in payment of any electric service account; or (ii) provide a certification letter developed by the Texas Council on Family Violence evidencing that you are determined to be a victim of family violence.

11. Deposits. If you are unable to meet the Credit Requirements, we may require a deposit prior to implementing this Agreement. We may also require a deposit from you during the Term if during the previous 12 months of service under this Agreement you (a) were late in paying a bill more than once; or (b) had your service disconnected for nonpayment. We may require you to pay an additional deposit if within the previous 12 months (i) your average bills are at least twice the amount of the original estimated annual billing; and (ii) a disconnection notice has been issued to you. The total of all deposits will not exceed the greater of (A) the sum of the next two months estimated billings; or (B) 1/5th of estimated annual billings. Estimated annual billings may be based on an estimate of average usage for your customer class.

After 12 months of service, you may request that the deposit amount be recalculated based on your actual usage. You must pay any deposit requested within 10 days of our request, which may be combined with a disconnection notice. We will refund your deposit by a bill credit when you have paid bills for 12 consecutive months with no late payments. You will receive interest on any deposit held longer than 30 days at the annual PUCT rate. Upon request, payment of accrued interest will be made to you once a year. If you qualify for the rate reduction program under the Rules, the PUCT Substantive Rules Applicable to REPs and ERCOT protocols, you may pay any deposit that exceeds $50 in two equal installments.

For Customers on a prepaid contract, we will not require a security deposit. Acceptance of prepayment amounts is solely for your convenience and will not be considered a deposit. We will not pay interest on any Current Balance.

12. Type of Products. We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this paragraph 12 that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract. Fixed Rate Products.

Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. Provided that your peak demand does not exceed fifty (50) kW during the term of this Agreement, the price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a pre-defined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. the price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, hanges to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Just Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

12.1 Default Rate Product. Unless you are on a variable price or other month-to-month product, you may be transferred to our Default Rate Product at the end of your term if you do not respond to our renewal notice. The Energy Charge for the Default Rate Product at the end of your term if you do not respond to our renewal notice. The Energy Charge for the Default Rate Product will vary from month to month as determined by Just Energy. If these Terms of Service are included with a contract expiration notice and you take no action, you will be transferred to our Default Rate Product. Unless otherwise noted in the Contract Expiration Notice, these Terms of Service will apply to the Default Rate Product with the exception of paragraphs 3, 5, 15 and the definition of Energy Charge in paragraph 1. The Electricity Facts Label for our Default Rate Product will be enclosed with your contract expiration notice. If you are transferred to our Default Rate Product at contract expiration, you can cancel service under the Default Rate Product at any time without paying Exit Fees. If you are transferred to a Default Rate Product, we will continue to purchase and retire the number of renewable energy credits represented by the level of JustGreen participation that you select at the time of your initial enrollment (and you will continue to pay for same at the price set forth in your notice of renewal offer).

13. Billing, Payment. Unless you are a Customer on a prepaid contract, we will bill you monthly, within thirty (30) days of when the TDU provides us with your ESIID usage information, unless validation of the data is required resulting in a delay. If your Utility does not furnish us with the necessary billing information, we may bill you based on estimates and any difference between your estimated bill amount and the actual amount will be reconciled upon Just Energy receiving the actual consumption amount from your Utility. If you agree to pay us by credit card or bank debit, your authorized signature on the Application of Service will be your authorized signature for such transactions and we will debit the full amount of each monthly bill, including late payment charges and Exit Fees from your credit card or bank account. If you fail to pay us as a result of insufficient funds on your credit card or in your bank account, you will be charged the greater of (i) $25; or (ii) the amount we are charged by our bank for such failure. If you fail to pay any amount due under this Agreement, you will be responsible for all reasonable fees and expenses (including attorney's fees) incurred by us in collecting the amount due and we may notify credit agencies of any failure to pay.

Note – Just Energy reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required

If you are a Customer on a prepaid contract, instead of receiving a monthly bill, we (or an authorized payment center) will provide you a purchase receipt or confirmation number that will show you the amount of money added to your account email or SMS text message. Confirmation of your payment will be made through an Account Update. If you are tax exempt, you must provide Just Energy with your tax exemption certificate. We may bill you for previous under billed amounts due to billing errors or omissions where (a) the under billing is a result of meter error or meter tampering by you; or (b) we bill you within 180 days from the date of issuance of the bill in which the under billing occurred. Unless the under billing is a result of theft of service, you may qualify for a deferred payment plan of the under billed amount (contact us for further details). Interest will not be charged on any under billed amounts unless the under billed amounts are attributable to theft of service, in which case interest shall be compounded monthly at the annual rate set by the PUCT. Such interest will accrue from the date that you are found to have first tampered with the meter. On occasion, we may credit your account at our sole discretion, which will reduce your monthly bill or charges, as a result of the balancing adjustment, but we will not debit your account for balancing adjustments.

14. Ending this Agreement Early, Breach. If this Agreement ends early, for any reason, you must still pay all amounts charged to you up to the early end date.

14.1 Your Right to Cancel: If you are switching to Just Energy from another REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. You may cancel by phone by calling 1.866.587.8674 or by completing and delivering to us the Notice of Cancellation.

You may also end this Agreement without having to pay the Exit Fee if (a) you move and provide supporting documentation of your move; or (b) you receive a notice from Just Energy of a material change in the context of this Agreement and you notify Just Energy of your request for cancellation within 14 days of the date the notice is sent to you.

14.2 Our Right to Cancel: We can end this Agreement, at no cost to us, if: (i) required/allowed by law; (ii) the Utility is unable to service your ESIID or electricity has not flowed in a reasonable time frame; (iii) a legislative or regulatory change materially alters our ability to profitably perform this Agreement; (iv) you move; (v) you commit a "Breach" (vi) or Just Energy receives notice or information evidencing that your load profile classification does not qualify for residential service. You will be given 14 calendar days prior notice if we end the Agreement. You will be in Breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your Utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the Term. By enrolling with Just Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

15. Exit Fee. If you end this Agreement for reasons other than those specified in paragraph 14.1 (Your Right to Cancel) herein, then, unless you are on a variable price or other month-to-month product, you may be charged an Exit Fee as set forth in your EFL. You agree that these Exit Fees are genuine pre-estimates of the damages Just Energy would suffer and not a penalty or other type of charge. You will remain responsible for all other amounts due, including Utility disconnection and reconnection fees.

16. Disconnection of Utility Service for Non-Prepaid Customers (Prepaid Customers Refer to Paragraph 36). If you fail to pay all amounts when due, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, we may order disconnection of service in accordance with Governing Law. You will be given 10 calendar days (21 days for Critical and Chronic Care) prior notice. We may re-enroll you upon payment of outstanding amounts owed to us. In addition to any charges or fees assessed by your Utility, we will assess a $25 DNP fee if your service is disconnected. If payments for past due amounts are paid via ACH draft or Check, we will process reconnection upon verification of funds. We reserve the right to proceed with disconnection of services for failure to satisfy your past due/disconnect amounts. Disconnection of service does not waive your responsibility to pay any outstanding account balance or Exit Fees.

16.1 Disconnect Without Notice. The TDU/TDSP may disconnect your services without prior notification if a life threatening or dangerous condition exists or where there is evidence of meter tampering, where unauthorized service reconnection exists after disconnect or where there is evidence of theft of service.

17. Level/Average Payment Plan. You may be eligible for our level payment plan based on a 12 month period. Under this plan you will receive an estimated bill that is the same amount each month during the period (subject to periodic adjustments). At the end of each period, we will reconcile the amount you have paid against the amount you would have paid based on actual usage and, if you remain on the plan, the difference will be divided by 12 and the resulting amount will be added to (or subtracted from) each bill in the next 12 month period. If you do not remain on the plan, the entire difference will be added to (or subtracted from) your next bill. We may require a deposit to participate in the plan. LITE-UP customers are eligible for average or level payment plans.

18. Customer Information, Credit Review. You authorize s to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your Utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates. We will disclose any of your information where required by law. Contact a Customer Service Representative for written information on our policies and practices regarding use of your personal information.

19. Limitation of Liability. Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility.

20. Dispute or Complaints. Binding Arbitration. If you have any concerns or comments related to this Agreement, you may contact us using the contact information provided above. You agree to promptly notify us of any disputed charge on your bill. You must pay the undisputed portion of your bill while a billing dispute is being resolved. We may request that you set out your billing dispute in writing. We request that you give us the opportunity to resolve any issue. If we are unable to resolve the issue, you have the ability to present an informal complaint to the Public Utility Commission of Texas. If you have an unresolved dispute or claim between you and us, including our subsidiaries, affiliates, and/or any of their respective members, officers, directors and employees, you agree that you have the choice of bringing your claim individually to small claims court or to pursue binding arbitration. You waive any right to bring or to participate in a class action against us. If you choose arbitration, any dispute will be handled under the this agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act. Any such arbitration will be administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA") and conducted before a single arbitrator pursuant to its rules, including, without limitation, the AAA's Consumer-Arbitration Rules, available at https://www.adr.org/consumer. The arbitrator will apply and be bound by this Agreement, apply applicable laws and the facts, and issue a reasoned award, if appropriate.

Please refer to "Your Rights as a Customer" for more information.

21. Bill Payment or Other Assistance. You may contact us if you anticipate having trouble paying a bill, as you may be eligible for payment assistance or a deferred payment plan. A deferred payment plan is an agreement between the REP and a customer that allows a customer to pay an outstanding balance in installments that extend beyond the due date of the current bill. An assistance program is available to customers who have severe financial hardships and temporarily may be unable to pay their bills. The program is funded in part by contributions from Just Energy customers. By accepting a "Deferred Payment Plan", we will place a switch-hold on your account. Please call us for additional information. For Customers on a prepaid contract, please see separate provisions for deferred payment plans in paragraph 37.

22. Critical Care Designation. If an interruption or suspension of electric service will create a dangerous or life-threatening condition for you, you may qualify for designation as a Critical Care Residential Customer – A residential customer who has a person permanently residing in his or her home who has been diagnosed by a physician as being dependent upon an electric-powered medical device to sustain life. The designation or re-designation is effective for two years under this section.

23. Chronic Condition Residential Customer. A residential customer who has a person permanently residing in his or her home who has been diagnosed by a physician as having a serious medical condition that requires an electric-powered medical device or electric heating or cooling to prevent the impairment of a major life function through a significant deterioration or exacerbation of the person's medical condition. If the serious medical condition is diagnosed or rediagnosed by a physician as a life-long condition, the designation is effective in this section for the shorter or one year or until such time as the person with the medical condition no longer resides in the home. Otherwise, the designation or re-designation is effective for 90 days. To apply, your physician must execute and deliver the required forms to your respective utility, which will be submitted by us to your Utility. You may request the form(s) by calling 1.866.587.8674, or the PUCT or your utility. This designation does not relieve you of any obligations under this Agreement, including your obligation to pay any account balance associated with this contract.

24. Demand Response. When regional grid operators or utilities anticipate blackouts or brownouts due to high electricity demand (a "Demand Response Event"), they notify participating customers of the scheduled time and duration of the Demand Response Event. At the appointed, participating customers agree to curtail their consumption by, for example, dimming lights, adjusting HVAC set points, or shutting down non-critical equipment. If you purchase a load controlling device (such as a smart thermostat, etc.) from Just Energy or one of its affiliates, then you agree that at any time, Just Energy can change your comfort settings and limit your thermostat consumption and/or adjust your HVAC system (heating, ventilating, and air conditioning) by 4 degrees Fahrenheit on average. You understand and agree that Just Energy shall have no obligation to notify you in advance of any Demand Response Event adjustments.

25. Amendment, Assignment. We may amend this Agreement by sending you written notice. Unless required by Governing Law, you will have 30 days to reject the amendment, in writing. If the amendment is a material change in the Agreement, we will provide you with at least 14 calendar days advance written notice and the change will become effective on the date stated in the notice unless you terminate this Agreement within 14 days of the date the notice is sent to you. We may assign any part of our interest in the Agreement, including to another energy services company, without your consent. You cannot assign your rights or obligations without our consent.

26. No Discrimination. We will not discriminate, deny service or require a prepayment or deposit for service based on your race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, marital status, lawful source of income, level of income, disability, familial status location in an economically distressed geographic area, or qualification for low income or energy efficiency services. We wil not use a credit score, credit history, or utility payment data as the basis for determining the price for electric service for a product with a contract term of 12 months or less.

27. Inability to Perform. You accept that certain events beyond our control, including "forcemajeure" events declared by our direct or indirect suppliers, may affect our ability to supply electricity or JustGreen at your Energy Charge or JustGreen Charge. If this happens, we may, without liability: (a) temporarily supply them to you at the market price available to us; or (b) suspend this Agreement until as soon as we are reasonably able to resume performance. This Agreement will otherwise remain in full effect.

28. Notice. If we are required to give you written notice, we will send it to your billing address or e-mail address. When providing us with written notice, you must send it to our address on the CustomerAgreement.You will be required to give proof of delivery. If a change in Governing Law necessitates that we provide a group of our customers with a general notice, we reserve the discretion to do so by posting it on our website at justenergy.com (you agree to visit it periodically to stay informed). Just Energy is not responsible if you do not receive Notice due to incorrect or outdated information provided at time of enrollment or failure to update. Customer consents to receive SMS text messages from Just Energy, its affiliates, and/or business partners regarding information about customer's account, new products, specials, promotions, and/or Demand Response Events. Standard message and data rates will apply to SMS messages. Customer may opt-out of text messaging anytime by texting "STOP" to [JE TEXT SHORT CODE].

29. Governing Law. The laws of the State of Texas govern this Agreement.

30. Miscellaneous. This Agreement is the entire contract between you and us. It can only be amended if agreed to by our head office in a written notice to, or recorded telephone call with you. If a part of this Agreement is deemed unenforceable, for any reason, we can make the minimal changes for it to be legal and enforceable. No delay by us to exercise our rights under this Agreement will constitute a waiver of such rights. No waiver of a Breach by you shall be interpreted as a waiver of any other Breach. This Agreement ensures to the benefit of and binds the parties and their respective successors and assigns. We will maintain an updated "Your Rights as a Customer" on our website and you agree to review it annuall

31. Emergency. In an emergency, call your Utility or appropriate emergency personnel.

Paragraphs 32-37 apply only to Customers on prepaid contract:

32. Account Update. We will communicate with you through an Account Update process. At the time of your enrollment with us, you must select the method we provide your Account Update to you, either my email or SMS text message. The Account Update contains account information which may include: your Current Balance, recent electricity payments, the most recent available energy consumption information as provided by the TDU (which may contain delayed information), updated electricity price, estimated time and/or days of electricity service remaining, confirmation of prepaid credit purchases, and/or other notices. We have no obligation to resend Account Updates to you, even if the message could not be delivered for any reason. You are solely responsible for contacting Customer Service to provide us with updated and correct contact information if: (1) the information for your chosen method of Account Updates contact has changed; (2) your chosen method of Account Updates is not functioning properly; (3) your chosen method of Account Updates is invalid; (4) at any time after you have begun receiving prepaid electricity service from us, 48 hours pass in which you do not receive an Account Update; (5) or you have not received an Account Update from us within 24 hours of any payment to your account. We may assess an Account Update Fee (up to $2.50) to you if you request an update through our Customer Service Department.

33. Summary of Usage and Payment (SUP): You can request a SUP (summary of electric charges), which will be provided to you via email or through the US Postal Service (USPS). We can charge you up to $2.95 SUP Fee for each SUP requested via USPS

34. Account Balance Refund Policy. Any account balance you maintain will not be refunded while you are a customer of Just Energy. Should you terminate electricity service with us (either by moving out or switching your service to another REP), or if we terminate electricity service with you, you are entitled to a refund of your outstanding Current Balance, minus any deficit balance accrued, any amounts owed under a Deferred Payment Plan (DPP) and/or fees assessed until the date your electricity service with Just Energy ends. Just Energy refers to this amount as the "Closeout Balance (COB)". If you are moving to a new location, you are responsible for contacting Customer Service and requesting that we close out your account, including recording the COB at the time your service officially ends. If you are switching to another REP, your COB will be determined by us on the last day of your service with Just Energy. If your COB is equal to or greater than $5.00, we will refund any unexpected funds to you within ten (10) days of receipt of your final meter reading. If your COB is less than $5.00, and you do not request a refund within 30 days of the last day of your service with us, you agree to allow Just Energy to donate this amount to an energy assistance agency. Any unexpected funds donated by an agency assistance agency will be refunded to that agency as per the timeline specified above.

35. Warning Message Prior to Disconnection. We will send a warning message to you via an Account Update 1-7 days before your Current Balance is estimated to fall below the Disconnection Balance. If you continue to receive electricity, for any reason, when your Current Balance is equal to or less than $0.00, your account will accumulate a deficit balance.

36. Disconnection of Service for Prepaid Customers. You must prepay for electricity consumption and maintain a positive Current Balance on your account except as otherwise authorized in this Agreement. We may contact the TDU to interrupt your electricity service if your Current Balance falls below the Disconnection Balance. Your deficit balance, if any, must be paid in full as well as an amount sufficient to satisfy the Connection Balance before we can initiate reconnection of service. Reconnection may result in re-enrollment. Upon reconnection your Current Balance may be subject to any charges or fees assessed by your Utility. It is our recommendation that you have a Current Balance of at least $20.00 in your account each day to avoid disconnection.

37. Deferred Payment Plan (DPP) Provisions for Prepaid Customers: A DPP is an agreement between Just Energy and a Customer that allows a Customer to pay an outstanding balance in installments over an extended period. If at any time your account has a deficit balance of $50.00 or more, you may be eligible for a DPP, or if your Current Balance has been exhausted due to an extreme weather emergency, under billing, or disaster declaration you are eligible to enroll in DPP. To determine eligibility, you must contact our Customer Service department and request enrollment in a DPP. Just Energy may transfer up to 50% of all of your future payments to your DPP balance until it is fully paid. As a condition of accepting the DPP, you may be asked if we may place your account on a switch hold until you satisfy the terms of the DPP. A switch hold means that you will not be able to buy electricity from other companies while the switch hold is in place. If you fail to adhere to the terms in your DPP, your entire outstanding DPP balance will become immediately due and included in your Current Balance. If this causes your Current Balance to fall below the Disconnection Balance, Just Energy may request that your utility interrupt your service after one day's notice of disconnection. Please contact Just Energy for details.

Just Energy, at its sole discretion, will determine cost savings, if any, and the benefit that the customer is entitled to receive associated with the Demand Response Event. Just Energy may, when applicable and at its sole discretion, distribute any benefit related to a Demand Response Event to Customer. Just Energy will distribute any accrued but undistributed benefit to Customer upon termination of this contract. TERMS OF SERVICE

This document ("Agreement") sets out the Terms of Service for the purchase of electricity between Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", "we" and "us") and you, the customer ("you", "your" and "Customer"). Customer and Amigo Energy may be referred to individually as a "Party" or collectively as "Parties" herein. Your electricity requirements at the service location or ESI ID designated by you on your Enrollment or Renewal Form will be served under this Agreement. This Agreement shall not be applicable to Customers who have a time of use meter.

Amigo Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). Amigo Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that Amigo Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). The PUCT reviews and approves the rates that the TDSP can charge to transport and distribute electricity to your service location. These charges are passed on by Amigo Energy to you, the Customer, along with certain charges and fees assessed by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas ("ERCOT").

Types of Products

We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this “Product Types” section that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract.

Fixed Rate Products. Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. The price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity cadministrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Amigo Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

Length of Service

Your service under this Agreement will begin on your next meter reading date according to applicable rules. In the event that your TDSP is unable to perform the switch as scheduled, you will continue to receive electricity service from your current provider and will not receive a bill from Amigo Energy until the actual switch occurs. This date will appear on your first bill. Your initial length of service is indicated on your Enrollment or Renewal Form.

For term products, a contract expiration notice will be sent at least 14 days prior to the end of the initial contract term. If you fail to renew your contract with Amigo Energy or switch to another REP, your service will automatically continue on a month-to-month basis after the expiration of your initial contract on the Default Renewal Product, which is a variable price product whose price will be determined by current market conditions until cancelled by either you or Amigo Energy.

Option to Blend-and-Extend

The Customer may request Amigo Energy to structure a new "blend-and-extend" contract that allows the Customer to benefit from the lower market rates in exchange for lengthening its term of contract with Amigo Energy. Following such request, at Amigo Energy’s option, Amigo Energy will structure and offer such contract to Customer, who may then choose to accept such contract. In the event that the Customer chooses not to accept the offered contract, Customer will continue to be served under its existing contract with Amigo Energy.

Right to Rescission

If you are switching to Amigo Energy from a different REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. PUCT rules permit Amigo Energy to assume that you will receive this Agreement three (3) federal business days after we mail it to you. You may call us or write to us to rescind this Agreement at (888) 469-2644 and P.O. Box 3607, Houston, Texas 77253-3607.

Right to Cancel

Amigo Energy may cancel your Agreement if you do not pay your bills in full and on time. We may also cancel this Agreement if we are no longer a REP in your areas or for any other lawful reason, including in response to changing market conditions. Amigo Energy will provide you with written notice at least fourteen (14) days prior to cancellation.

Customer may cancel this Agreement without penalty in the event Amigo Energy can no longer provide service. Customer may also cancel this Agreement without penalty by giving notice of a move to a different premise and providing reasonable proof of such move, including but not limited to a forwarding address. In the absence of such proof, Amigo Energy will charge an Early Termination Fee as stated in your EFL. Amounts owed by you to Amigo Energy shall become immediately due and payable.

Billing & Payment
Following the switch to Amigo Energy from your current provider, you may receive a bill for less than one month's service. After the initial bill, you will receive a new bill from Amigo Energy each month for each ESI ID for which you are receiving service pursuant to this Agreement. Should you switch providers before the end of your billing cycle you will receive a bill for a partial month of service for the last month's service. Additionally, Amigo Energy will bill you on behalf of your TDSP for the services the TDSP provides. All bills are due and payable 16 days from the date on the bill for service to all ESI IDs.

If actual charges are not available to Amigo Energy at the time of preparation of your invoice, Amigo Energy reserves the right to bill you on good faith estimates of charges for the month. If estimated charges are included on your invoice, they shall be identified as such and shall be reconciled against actual charges once Amigo Energy has received such actual charges.

Breach
You will be in breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the term. By enrolling with Amigo Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

JustGreen Product
Renewable energy certificates or attributes equivalent up to 50% or 100% of your electricity usage for a flat fee each month. If JustGreen is an option on your plan, then you may request to discontinue the use of JustGreen at any time, so long as you are not in breach of this Agreement. If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price per month is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

Additional Charges & Fees
Amigo Energy will charge a one-time late payment penalty of 5% for each delinquent month's charges that remain unpaid after the bill due date. Additionally, Amigo Energy will charge 1) a $25 fee for any returned check, electronic fund transfer or credit card transaction not processed due to insufficient funds or credit availability, 2) a $22 disconnection notice fee for issuance of an electric service disconnection notice (this fee will be assessed regardless of whether your electric service is actually disconnected), 3) a $20 reconnection fee in the event that Amigo Energy processes a reconnection transaction on your account. Such fees are in addition to any disconnect/reconnect fees that may be assessed by your TDSP. and 4) For plan specific fees please refer to that plan's EFL.

Acceptance by us of any partial payment from you will not relieve you of your obligation to pay the full amount owed. You will be responsible for any non-recurring fees assessed by the TDSP and/or Amigo Energy associated with requests for move-in or switch, self selected switches, disconnection and reconnection fees, previous billing errors, meter tampering or meter read errors, or other errors or omissions.

Note – Amigo Energy reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required.

Cancellation Fee Reimbursement
If applicable and as disclosed during your enrollment, we will reimburse up to $150 of your cancellation fee that your previous electric provider charges you. Once approved, the reimbursement will be applied to your electricity account with Amigo Energy. Please note that if you switch away from Amigo Energy within 12 months of the Start Date of your Agreement, the cancellation fee must be repaid to Amigo Energy, and will be included on your final bill. Please send a copy of the previous electric provider's bill in one of the following ways
Email – customersupport@amigoenergy.com Mail – C/O Cancellation Fee Reimbursement Program, 5251 Westheimer Road, Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056 Fax – 888.548.7690

Payment & Discount Programs
In certain circumstances for which Customer must qualify, you may have the right to establish a payment arrangement or deferred payment plan with Amigo Energy. A payment plan allows you to pay your bill after the due date, but before the next bill is due. A deferred payment plan is an arrangement between Amigo Energy and a Customer that permits the Customer to pay an outstanding bill in installments that extend beyond the due date of the next bill. Amigo Energy will confirm all deferred payment plans in writing.

Amigo Energy offers an Average Billing Plan to give you the convenience of having a predictable monthly bill amount. To qualify for the Average Billing Plan, (i) a Customer must not be currently delinquent. Delinquent Customers should contact Amigo Energy to determine if they qualify for the average billing plan. The average energy charge is calculated by using up to your last twelve (12) months' kWh usage multiplied by your current price per kWh, divided by twelve (12) months. This amount is added to your estimated monthly TDSP charges, your base monthly charge, and any applicable regulatory charges, assessments and taxes. Additionally, you remain responsible for any non-recurring charges from your TDSP. Periodically, but not less than once each year, Amigo Energy will review your account and calculate a new average bill amount accordingly; any overpayment will be credited to your account or refunded to you, and any underpayment will be collected from you in equal installments over the next reconciliation period. You may opt-out of the Average Billing Plan at any time by paying your full balance due and providing written notice of your desire to be removed from the Average Billing Plan to Amigo Energy. The Average Billing Plan does not affect your obligation to pay for all actual usage and other associated charges, taxes and fees. Failure to pay your monthly bill on or before the stated due date may result in Amigo Energy proceeding with normal collection activities including the assessment of late fees, disconnection for non-pay, etc.

Amigo Energy offers each Customer the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to a bill payment assistance program for qualified residential Customers. You may find more information about Amigo Energy's bill payment assistance program on your billing statement.

Additional information regarding any of the aforementioned programs may be obtained by contacting a Amigo Energy customer service representative at (888) 469-2644.

Default & Disconnection of Service for Nonpayment
If you fail to remit payment as specified above in Billing and Payment, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, Amigo Energy may order the TDSP to disconnect electric service to the premise(s) served under this Agreement. You will be liable to Amigo Energy for all billed amounts and any charges associated with disconnection of service for nonpayment and reconnection. We reserve the right to pursue all legal remedies available to us to collect any amounts lawfully owed. In the event you fail to pay your bill in accordance with this Agreement, you agree to pay reasonable collection costs and expenses (including attorney's fees and third party collection fees) we incur as a result of our attempt to collect any amounts you owe. In the event that you have more than one agreement with Amigo Energy for service to ESI IDs not receiving service under this Agreement, any failure to pay under another agreement with Amigo Energy will constitute a default under this Agreement and shall give Amigo Energy the right to terminate this Agreement and seek any other remedy available to Amigo Energy at law or in equity.

Credit Eligibility & Deposits

You authorize us to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates By applying for service, you agree that Amigo Energy may check your personal credit. Failure to demonstrate satisfactory credit, will allow Amigo Energy to require a deposit prior to receiving service. You will not be required to pay an initial deposit, if you are at least 65 years of age and you do not have a current delinquent balance with your current REP, or if you have been a victim of family violence and can provide a certification letter pursuant to PUCT Substantive Rule §25.478(a)(3)(D) http://www.puc.texas.gov/agency/rulesnlaws/subrules/electric/25.478/25.478.pdf Customers who provide sufficient information to demonstrate that they qualify for the low-income rate reduction program may pay a required deposit that exceeds $50.00 in two equal installments.

Additionally, you may be required to pay a deposit once service has begun if you have paid late twice or been disconnected during the previous twelve (12) months. The total amount of all deposits required shall not exceed an amount equivalent to the greater of onefifth of the estimated annual billing for electric service or the sum of the estimated billings for electric service for the next two (2) months. The estimated billing for initial deposits is based on a reasonable estimate of the average usage for the applicable customer class. The deposit shall earn and be paid interest as per PUCT guidelines at the stated PUCT rate. Upon termination of the contract or twelve (12) consecutive on-time payments, the deposit, less any money owed, will be returned to the Customer.

Special Features of Amigo Energy's EZ Access Program.
Amigo Energy offers an EZ Access Program for customers whose credit profile warrants a deposit, but who may not be able to afford to pay the full amount of the deposit up front. This access to electric service is achieved by allowing customers to pay a portion of their required deposit over time. Failure to make full on-time payments that satisfy both your electric usage and deposit installment obligations is considered a failure to comply with the terms under which this Easy Access Program service has been extended. Amigo Energy's offering to allow a portion of the required deposit to be paid over time should in no way be construed as an indication that Amigo Energy applies relaxed standards to payment due dates, termination, or disconnection policies. This program utilizes historical information to forecast bill usage amounts that are reconciled in the following bill.

Changes in Laws or Regulations
In the event that there is a Change in Law (as defined below), Amigo Energy reserves the right to modify this Terms of Service. Amigo Energy will provide you with fourteen (14) calendar days' advance written notice of any modification, either in your bill or in a separate mailing. The modifications will become effective on the date stated in the notice unless you cancel your Agreement in writing. You may cancel your Agreement without penalty no later than the effective date of the modification. Notice is not required for a modification that benefits you. Change in Law means any change in federal, state or local law or any legislative or regulatory action that imposes new or modified fees or costs on Amigo Energy that are beyond Amigo Energy's control.

Dispute Procedures
We request that you give us the opportunity to resolve any issue. If we are unable to resolve the issue, you have the ability to present an informal complaint to the Public Utility Commission of Texas. If you have an unresolved dispute or claim between you and us, including our subsidiaries, affiliates, and/or any of their respective members, officers, directors and employees, you agree that you have the choice of bringing your claim individually to small claims court or to pursue binding arbitration. You waive any right to bring or to participate in a class action against us. If you choose arbitration, any dispute will be handled under the this agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act. Any such arbitration will be administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA") and conducted before a single arbitrator pursuant to its rules, including, without limitation, the AAA's Consumer-Arbitration Rules, available at https://www.adr.org/consumer. The arbitrator will apply and be bound by this Agreement, apply applicable laws and the facts, and issue a reasoned award, if appropriate. See "Your Rights as a Customer" for further information on customer disputes. Any communications concerning disputed debts, including an instrument tendered as full satisfaction of a debt, are to be sent to the attention of the "Legal Department" at Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy P.O. Box 3607, Houston, Texas 77253-3607. Any dispute with respect to a bill is deemed to be waived unless Amigo Energy is notified in writing within sixty (60) days of the bill date.

TERMS OF SERVICE

This document ("Agreement") sets out the Terms of Service for the purchase of electricity between Tara Energy, LLC ("Tara Energy", "we" and "us") and you, the customer ("you", "your" and "Customer"). Customer and Tara Energy may be referred to individually as a "Party" or collectively as "Parties" herein. Your electricity requirements at the service location or ESI ID designated by you on your Enrollment or Renewal Form will be served under this Agreement. This Agreement shall not be applicable to Customers who have a time of use meter.

Tara Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). Tara Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that Tara Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). The PUCT reviews and approves the rates that the TDSP can charge to transport and distribute electricity to your service location. These charges are passed on by Tara Energy to you, the Customer, along with certain charges and fees assessed by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas ("ERCOT").

Types of Products
We provide electricity under three different product types: fixed rate, indexed and variable price. Your EFL specifies the product type and the term that applies to your contract. Please note that only those parts of this “Product Types” section that describe your specific product type will apply to your contract.

Fixed Rate Products. Fixed Rate Products have a contract term of at least three months. The price of a fixed rate product may only change during a contract term to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control. Price changes resulting from these limited circumstances do not require us to provide you with advance notice, however, each bill issued for your remaining contract term will notify you that a price change has been made.

Term Indexed Products. Term indexed products have a contract term of at least three months and a price that changes according to a predefined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for term indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges; changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads; or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Month-to-Month Indexed Products. Month-to-Month indexed products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that changes according to a pre-defined pricing formula that is based on publicly available indices or information. The price for month-to-month indexed products may also change without advance notice to reflect actual changes in TDSP charges, changes to the ERCOT or Texas Regional Entity administrative fees charged to loads, or changes resulting from federal, state or local laws or regulatory actions that impose new or modified fees or costs on us that are beyond our control.

Variable Price Products. The price of a variable product can change, without notice to you, after your first billing cycle at the sole discretion of Tara Energy. Variable price products have a contract term of thirty-one (31) days or less and a price that varies according to the method disclosed on your EFL.

Associations Members (If Applicable)
Tara Energy may be paying a management fee to your Association to help administer this benefit on behalf of membership. All questions regarding this management fee should be addressed to your Association.

Length of Service
Your service under this Agreement will begin on your next meter reading date according to applicable rules. In the event that your TDSP is unable to perform the switch as scheduled, you will continue to receive electricity service from your current provider and will not receive a bill from Tara Energy until the actual switch occurs. This date will appear on your first bill. Your initial length of service is indicated on your Enrollment or Renewal Form.

For term products, a contract expiration notice will be sent at least 14 days prior to the end of the initial contract term. If you fail to renew your contract with Tara Energy or switch to another REP, your service will automatically continue on a month-to-month basis after the expiration of your initial contract on the Default Renewal Product, which is a variable price product whose price will be determined by current market conditions until cancelled by either you or Tara Energy.

Option to Blend-and-Extend
The Customer may request Tara Energy to structure a new "blend-and-extend" contract that allows the Customer to benefit from the lower market rates in exchange for lengthening its term of contract with Tara Energy. Following such request, at Tara Energy’s option, Tara Energy will structure and offer such contract to Customer, who may then choose to accept such contract. In the event that the Customer chooses not to accept the offered contract, Customer will continue to be served under its existing contract with Tara Energy.

Right to Rescission
If you are switching to Tara Energy from a different REP, you may rescind this Agreement without penalty at any time before midnight of the third federal business day after receiving this Agreement. PUCT rules permit Tara Energy to assume that you will receive this Agreement three (3) federal business days after we mail it to you. You may call us or write to us to rescind this Agreement at 713-830-1019 or toll-free (866)-438-8272 and 5251 Westheimer Rd. Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056.

Right to Cancel
Tara Energy may cancel your Agreement if you do not pay your bills in full and on time. We may also cancel this Agreement if we are no longer a REP in your areas or for any other lawful reason, including in response to changing market conditions. Tara Energy will provide you with written notice at least fourteen (14) days prior to cancellation.

Customer may cancel this Agreement without penalty in the event Tara Energy can no longer provide service. Customer may also cancel this Agreement without penalty by giving notice of a move to a different premise and providing reasonable proof of such move, including but not limited to a forwarding address. In the absence of such proof, Tara Energy will charge an Early Termination Fee as stated in your EFL.

Amounts owed by you to Tara Energy shall become immediately due and payable.

Billing & Payment
Following the switch to Tara Energy from your current provider, you may receive a bill for less than one month's service. After the initial bill, you will receive a new bill from Tara Energy each month for each ESI ID for which you are receiving service pursuant to this Agreement. Should you switch providers before the end of your billing cycle you will receive a bill for a partial month of service for the last month's service. Additionally, Tara Energy will bill you on behalf of your TDSP for the services the TDSP provides. All bills are due and payable 16 days from the date on the bill for service to all ESI IDs.

If actual charges are not available to Tara Energy at the time of preparation of your invoice, Tara Energy reserves the right to bill you on good faith estimates of charges for the month. If estimated charges are included on your invoice, they shall be identified as such and shall be reconciled against actual charges once Tara Energy has received such actual charges.

Breach
You will be in breach if you (a) violate a term of this Agreement or your utility's rules; or (b) switch to another REP during the term. By enrolling with Tara Energy, you are affirming to us that you provided your correct and complete name, address and contact information and you do not have any outstanding balance with us or our affiliated providers. If there is any evidence that any of these statements are or is found to be untrue or you otherwise provide fraudulent or misrepresented information, we may terminate this Agreement and your service.

JustGreen Product
Renewable energy certificates or attributes equivalent up to 50% or 100% of your electricity usage for a flat fee each month. If JustGreen is an option on your plan, then you may request to discontinue the use of JustGreen at any time, so long as you are not in breach of this Agreement. If the commodity plan automatically includes JustGreen, then JustGreen cannot be discontinued without switching plans. JustGreen may be suspended or discontinued by us at any time, in which case you would then stop paying for it, but the rest of this agreement will remain in effect. The JustGreen price is $4.99 per month to offset 50% or $9.99 per month to offset up to 100% of your energy usage with renewable energy if JustGreen is not automatically included in your plan.

Additional Charges & Fees
Tara Energy will charge a one-time late payment penalty of 5% for each delinquent month's charges that remain unpaid after the bill due date. Additionally, Tara Energy will charge 1) a $30 fee for any returned check, electronic fund transfer or credit card transaction not processed due to insufficient funds or credit availability, 2) a $22 disconnection notice fee for issuance of an electric service disconnection notice (this fee will be assessed regardless of whether your electric service is actually disconnected), 3) a $20 reconnection fee in the event that Tara Energy processes a reconnection transaction on your account. Such fees are in addition to any disconnect/reconnect fees that may be assessed by your TDSP. and 4) For plan specific fees please refer to that plan's EFL.

Acceptance by us of any partial payment from you will not relieve you of your obligation to pay the full amount owed. You will be responsible for any non-recurring fees assessed by the TDSP and/or Tara Energy associated with requests for move-in or switch, self selected switches, disconnection and reconnection fees, previous billing errors, meter tampering or meter read errors, or other errors or omissions.

Note - Tara reserves the right to refuse credit card and/or debit card or bank account payment methods if there are two or more returned, cancelled, and/or reversed payments by your financial institution(s) in a rolling 12-month period. If two or more instances have occurred within the past 12 months, cash, cashier's check or money order are required.

Cancellation Fee Reimbursement

If applicable and as disclosed during your enrollment, we will reimburse up to $150 of your cancellation fee that your previous electric provider charges you. Once approved, the reimbursement will be applied to your electricity account with Tara Energy. Please note that if you switch away from Tara Energy within 12 months of the Start Date of your Agreement, the cancellation fee must be repaid to Tara Energy, and will be included on your final bill. Please send a copy of the previous electric provider's bill in one of the following ways:

Email – customersupport@taraenergy.com Mail – C/O Cancellation Fee Reimbursement Program, 5251 Westheimer Road, Suite 1000, Houston, TX 77056 Fax – 888.548.7690.

Payment & Discount Programs
In certain circumstances for which Customer must qualify, you may have the right to establish a payment arrangement or deferred payment plan with Tara Energy. A payment plan allows you to pay your bill after the due date, but before the next bill is due. A deferred payment plan is an arrangement between Tara Energy and a Customer that permits the Customer to pay an outstanding bill in installments that extend beyond the due date of the next bill. Tara Energy will confirm all deferred payment plans in writing.

Tara Energy offers an Average Billing Plan to give you the convenience of having a predictable monthly bill amount. To qualify for the Average Billing Plan, (i) a Customer must not be currently delinquent. Delinquent Customers should contact Tara Energy to determine if they qualify for the average billing plan. The average energy charge is calculated by using up to your last twelve (12) months' kWh usage multiplied by your current price per kWh, divided by twelve (12) months. This amount is added to your estimated monthly TDSP charges, your base monthly charge, and any applicable regulatory charges, assessments and taxes. Additionally, you remain responsible for any non-recurring charges from your TDSP. Periodically, but not less than once each year, Tara Energy will review your account and calculate a new average bill amount accordingly; any overpayment will be credited to your account or refunded to you, and any underpayment will be collected from you in equal installments over the next reconciliation period. You may opt-out of the Average Billing Plan at any time by paying your full balance due and providing written notice of your desire to be removed from the Average Billing Plan to Tara Energy. The Average Billing Plan does not affect your obligation to pay for all actual usage and other associated charges, taxes and fees. Failure to pay your monthly bill on or before the stated due date may result in Tara Energy proceeding with normal collection activities including the assessment of late fees, disconnection for non-pay, etc.

Additionally, if you need help paying your bill, you may qualify for additional low-income energy assistance programs in your community.

Tara Energy offers each Customer the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to a bill payment assistance program for qualified residential Customers. You may find more information about Tara Energy's bill payment assistance program on your billing statement.

Additional information regarding any of the aforementioned programs may be obtained by contacting a Tara Energy customer service representative at 713-830-1019 (or (866)-438-8272).

Default & Disconnection of Service for Nonpayment
If you fail to remit payment as specified above in Billing and Payment, excluding any charges that are not for electric service, Tara Energy may order the TDSP to disconnect electric service to the premise(s) served under this Agreement. You will be liable to Tara Energy for all billed amounts and any charges associated with disconnection of service for nonpayment and reconnection. We reserve the right to pursue all legal remedies available to us to collect any amounts lawfully owed. In the event you fail to pay your bill in accordance with this Agreement, you agree to pay reasonable collection costs and expenses (including attorney's fees and third party collection fees) we incur as a result of our attempt to collect any amounts you owe.

In the event that you have more than one agreement with Tara Energy for service to ESI IDs not receiving service under this Agreement, any failure to pay under another agreement with Tara Energy will constitute a default under this Agreement and shall give Tara Energy the right to terminate this Agreement and seek any other remedy available to Tara Energy at law or in equity.

Credit Eligibility & Deposits
You authorize us to request, access, use, hold, transfer and update personal information about you (including contact, billing, credit history, and consumption information) and to obtain it from and provide it to your utility, our affiliates, business partners and service providers that may be in Canada or the USA, and to communicate with you about other products and services offered by us and our affiliates. By applying for service, you agree that Tara Energy may check your personal credit. Failure to demonstrate satisfactory credit, will allow Tara Energy to require a deposit prior to receiving service. You will not be required to pay an initial deposit, if you are at least 65 years of age and you do not have a current delinquent balance with your current REP, or if you have been a victim of family violence and can provide a certification letter pursuant to PUCT Substantive Rule §25.478(a)(3)(D) http://www.puc.texas.gov/agency/rulesnlaws/subrules/electric/25.478/25.478.pdf. Customers who provide sufficient information to demonstrate that they qualify for the low-income rate reduction program may pay a required deposit that exceeds $50.00 in two equal installments.

Additionally, you may be required to pay a deposit once service has begun if you have paid late twice or been disconnected during the previous twelve (12) months. The total amount of all deposits required shall not exceed an amount equivalent to the greater of one-fifth of the estimated annual billing for electric service or the sum of the estimated billings for electric service for the next two (2) months. The estimated billing for initial deposits is based on a reasonable estimate of the average usage for the applicable customer class. The deposit shall earn and be paid interest as per PUCT guidelines at the stated PUCT rate. Upon termination of the contract or twelve (12) consecutive on-time payments, the deposit, less any money owed, will be returned to the Customer.

Changes in Laws or Regulations
In the event that there is a Change in Law (as defined below), Tara Energy reserves the right to modify this Terms of Service. Tara Energy will provide you with fourteen (14) calendar days' advance written notice of any modification, either in your bill or in a separate mailing. SCHEDULE A

The law firms of Fears Nachawati PLLC, Watts Guerra LLP and Parker Waichman LLP have collectively filed claims against the directors and officers of the Just Energy Entities (the "Claims") on behalf of 260 claimants who they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). The Claimants have not specified the names any of the officers and directors against whom they are directing these claims.

While no particulars were submitted with respect to these Claims, and at times even the nature of individual Claims is listed as "undetermined", we understand they are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety.

Firstly, the Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and devoid of merit for all of the reasons set out in the Notice of Disallowance with respect to the underlying claims brought against the Just Energy Entities, attached at Schedule C.

Additionally, based on the information provided, these Claims are insufficiently articulated and insufficiently particularized against any of the individual officers and directors of the relevant Just Energy Entities at the relevant time. There is no legal basis under Canadian or U.S. law for imposing personal liability on directors and officers for these contractual or tort Claims. In particular, the Claims fail to allege any independent acts taken by any of the individual directors and officers at any relevant time for which they may be personally liable at law.

The inclusion of these meritless Claims with no basis in law confirms that these Claims have been brought improperly and without conducting sufficient (or any) due diligence. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these Claims.

SCHEDULE A

The law firms of Fears Nachawati PLLC, Watts Guerra LLP and Parker Waichman LLP have collectively filed purported claims (the "Claims") on behalf of 260 alleged claimants whom they represent and who authorized them to do so (the "Claimants"). While no particulars were submitted with respect to these Claims, and in certain instances even the nature of individual Claims is listed as "undetermined", it appears they are alleging a broad variety of personal injury, property damage, and business interruption claims arising from power outages that occurred in Texas due to winter storm Uri in February 2021.

It is unclear which of the Just Energy Entities are being claimed against by the Claimants. All of the Claims were brought as against "Just Energy", with certain of them also naming the following additional entities:

Number of Claims	Additional Entities Named in Claims
97	Just Energy Texas
41	Amigo Energy
6	Tara Energy
2	Hudson Energy

The Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disallow the Claims in their entirety. The Claims are contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated and are devoid of merit for numerous reasons, including those set out below.

Claims Were Brought Improperly

As a threshold issue, a search of the Just Energy Entities' records has confirmed that 106 of the 260 alleged Claimants were not Just Energy customers during the relevant time period (February 13-20, 2021). Only 126 of the Claimants' names and addresses match those found in Just Energy's customer records for that time period, with a further 28 instances where the customer name at the address provided by the Claimant does not match the Claimant's name. The inclusion of more than 50% Claims of non-customers indicates that these Claims were filed improperly, without conducting adequate due diligence. These non-customer Claims are therefore rejected outright. This improper filing necessarily casts considerable doubt and skepticism on the remainder of the Claims filed. The Just Energy Entities reserve the right to claim costs against these alleged Claimants and their advisors with respect to the filing of these non-customer Claims.

The Relevant Just Energy Entities, Like All Retail Electric Providers in Texas, Are Not Responsible for Generation or Delivery of Electricity

In any event, the Claimants have not adduced any evidence to establish that any of the Just Energy Entities are liable for their Claims, and retail electric providers in Texas are not legally responsible for the transmission and distribution of energy. No Claimant has provided any evidence whatsoever to refute that fact and on that basis alone all of the Claims are rejected.

The Texas Public Utility Regulatory Act ("PURA") required that, no later than January 1, 2002, all utilities operating in Texas separate their business activities into three distinct units:

- Power Generation Companies ("PGCs"), which own and operate electric generation facilities and sell their power to REPs (defined below) at wholesale;

- Transmission and Distribution Utilities ("TDUs"), which own and operate the facilities necessary to transmit and distribute energy; and

- Retail Electric Providers ("REPs"), which buy electricity wholesale and sell such electricity to retail customers.

Under PURA, REPs are prohibited from owning the generation and transmission assets necessary to physically generate electricity and deliver electricity to customers. REPs buy electricity from PGCs. The electricity they purchase from PGCs is transmitted over the transmission and distribution facilities owned by TDUs, and delivered to the REPs' customers by the TDUs.

The relevant Just Energy Entities – Just Energy Texas LP ("JE Texas"), Tara Energy LLC ("Tara Energy"), and Fulcrum Retail Energy LLC d/b/a Amigo Energy ("Amigo Energy", and collectively with JE Texas and Tara Energy, the "Texas Entities") – are REPs in the state of Texas certified by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT"). Their business consists of securing wholesale energy products from the ERCOT[2] market and re-selling such energy to their customers. The Texas Entities own no generation, transmission or distribution facilities, and have no control whatsoever over the actual generation or transmission of electricity, or the delivery of such electricity to their customers.

Transmission, distribution, and delivery of electricity in Texas is controlled by the TDUs. Each TDU in Texas is required to file with the PUCT a tariff to govern its retail delivery service to REPs (such as the Texas Entities) using the pro forma tariff codified at 16 Tex. Admin. Code § 25.214(d). The regulations provide that the provisions of the tariff "are requirements that shall be complied with and offered to all REPs and Retail Customers unless otherwise specified." The tariff provides that:

- The REP has no ownership, right of control, or duty to a retail customer, or third party, regarding the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's Delivery System.

- The REP will not be liable to any person or entity for any damages, direct, indirect, or consequential, including, but without limitation, loss of business, loss of profits or revenue, or loss of production capacity, occasioned by any fluctuations or interruptions of delivery caused, in whole or in part, by the design, construction, or operation of the TDU's delivery system.

During any outage event, customers are directed to contact their local TDU (such as Oncor or CenterPoint) for outage notification and repairs. In fact, monthly invoices sent to the Texas Entities' customers set forth the contact information for their local TDU explicitly in case of emergencies and power outages.

[2] Electric Reliability Council of Texas, Inc.

The Texas Entities simply procure energy on the market, resell it to their customers, keep track of how much electricity is used, and charge their customers accordingly. The Texas Entities had (and have) no control over, or relationship to, the actual delivery of electricity to customers' homes or businesses, during winter storm Uri, or otherwise. If the Claimants experienced a disruption in their electricity service on account of the storm, and such disruption caused any damages, it was entirely outside of the Texas Entities' control, power or legal responsibility.

There is no causal relationship between the unproven damages alleged in these Claims and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

Contractual Provisions Exclude Liability

The Claimants' contracts[3] are consistent with the regulatory structure outlined above, as the Texas Entities did not contract with the Claimants to provide power or guarantee uninterrupted supply of power. Contracts with JE Texas provide that:

- Customer "understands that Just Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[4]

- Our liability under this Agreement is limited to direct actual damages. We are not liable for incidental, consequential, punitive, or indirect damages, lost profits or lost business or for any act or omission of your Utility."[5] (emphasis added)

Similarly, contracts with Tara Energy and Amigo Energy provide that:

- Customer "understands that [Amigo/Tara] Energy is not a transmission or distribution utility or any other retail electric provider."[6]

- "[Amigo/Tara] Energy is your Retail Electric Provider ("REP"). [Amigo/Tara] Energy sets the charges you pay for retail electric service. The electricity that [Amigo/Tara] Energy sells to you must be transported to your service location over transmission and distribution systems which will continue to be regulated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") and owned by a Transmission and Distribution Service Provider ("TDSP"). […]"[7]

3 Contracts were in place only with Claimants that were in fact customers of a Just Energy Entity during the relevant time period.

4 JE Texas Electricity Plan Agreement, "Appointment & Authority" (attached).

5 JE Texas Terms of Service, p. 3, para 19, "Limitation of Liability" (attached).

6 Amigo Energy Electricity Plan Agreement, "Appointment & Authority" (attached); Tara Energy Electricity Plan Agreement, "Appointment & Authority" (attached).

7 Tara Energy Terms of Service, p. 1, para 2 (attached); Amigo Energy Terms of Service, p. 1, para 2 (attached).

- CUSTOMER ACKNOWLEDGES AND AGREES THAT [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY DOES NOT PRODUCE, TRANSMIT OR DISTRIBUTE POWER AND, AS A RESULT, [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY CANNOT WARRANT, AND DOES NOT WARRANT IN ANY MANNER, THE ELECTRICITY PROVIDED […] [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY MAKES NO REPRESENTATION AS TO THE SUFFICIENCY, QUALITY OR CONTINUATION OF THE SERVICES PROVIDED HEREIN.[8]

- THE REMEDY IN ANY CLAIM OR SUIT BY YOU AGAINST [AMIGO/TARA] ENERGY WILL BE LIMITED TO DIRECT ACTUAL DAMAGES. BY ENTERING INTO THIS AGREEMENT, YOU WAIVE ANY RIGHT TO ANY OTHER REMEDY. IN NO EVENT WILL EITHER TARA ENERGY OR YOU BE LIABLE FOR CONSEQUENTIAL, INCIDENTAL OR PUNITIVE DAMAGES. THESE LIMITATIONS APPLY WITHOUT REGARD TO THE CAUSE OF ANY LIABILITY OR DAMAGES.[9]

These provisions clearly informed the Claimants that the Texas Entities would not be liable for any interruption of power as a result of acts or omissions of a customer's TDU or otherwise.

In addition to the above, the relevant contracts contain provisions that excuse the Texas Entities from performance of the contracts for the duration of any force majeure event:

- JE Texas: "You accept that certain events beyond our control, including "force majeure" events declared by our direct or indirect suppliers, may affect our ability to supply electricity or JustGreen at your Energy Charge or JustGreen Charge. If this happens, we may, without liability: (a) temporarily supply them to you at the market price available to us; or (b) suspend this Agreement until as soon as we are reasonably able to resume performance. This Agreement will otherwise remain in full effect."

- Amigo Energy and Tara Energy: If an event occurs which makes it impossible for [Amigo/Tara] Energy to perform under this Agreement (a "Force Majeure Event"), including but not limited to (i) a failure of any wholesale supplier and/or TDSP to perform any contract with [Amigo/Tara] Energy, (ii) force majeure or similar event as declared by our wholesale supplier(s) and/or the TDSP(s), (iii) act of God, (iv) extraordinary weather occurrence, (v) fire or explosion, (vi) any governmental action, prohibition or regulation, or (vii) war, civil disturbance or other national emergency, our performance under this Agreement shall be excused for the duration of such event. [Amigo/Tara] Energy shall promptly notify Customer of the Force Majeure Event, any resulting contingency, and the contemplated effect thereof on the provision of service. Upon elimination or cessation of the Force Majeure Event and any contingency, the obligations herein of [Amigo/Tara] Energy to provide service to Customer shall be reinstated. [Amigo/Tara] Energy reserves the right to terminate this Agreement should

the event or the need for contingency not be eliminated within forty-five (45) days after the occurrence.[10]

Amounts Claimed not Specified or Supported

Only 100 of the 260 Claimants have specified the amounts of their Claims. However, none of the Claimants have provided any documentation whatsoever in support of their Claims.[11] This is a further basis to disallow all of the Claims outright.

The Just Energy Entities reserve all rights to assert additional legal or factual defences and waive none.

[11] As an accommodation granted by the Just Energy Entities, the Claimants were not required to file medical documentation with their Proofs of Claim. Even if those Claimants who may be asserting a personal injury claim were to submit medical documentation in support of their Claims, they have failed to submit any documentation or information to support a causal relationship between the alleged damages and the Texas Entities' activities and business model.

SCHEDULE A

On November 1, 2021, the law firms of Fears Nachawati PLLC, Watts Guerra LLP and Parker Waichman LLP collectively and timely filed claims on behalf of 260 claimants against the Just Energy Entities. In addition, the law firm of Robins Cloud LLP filed claims on behalf of 104 claimants. These claims and claimants are referred to herein as the "Claims" and "Claimants", respectively. All of these Claims arise out of loss of business, property damage and/or personal injuries suffered by Claimants due to the loss of power during winter storm Uri in February 2021.

In their Notices of Revision or Disallowance for Persons who have asserted Claims against the Just Energy Entities (the "Disallowance Notices"), which were submitted on January 18, 2022, the Just Energy Entities stated that they would "disallow the Claims in their entirety" because they "are devoid of merit for numerous reasons . . . ." Disallowance Notice at Schedule A, p. 1. More specifically, the Just Energy Entities asserted in their Notice that Claimants' Claims should be disallowed on the grounds that: (1) Claims were asserted by non-customers; (2) "amounts claimed [by Claimants were] not specified or supported"; (3) "the relevant Just Energy Entities . . . are not responsible for generation or delivery of electricity"; and (4) certain "contractual provisions exclude liability." Id. at 4, 6, 8. Each of these arguments is addressed below.

1. Claimants' New List of Claimants Reflects Newly-Obtained Customer Information.

In the state of Texas, "control of the state's entire electricity delivery [rests with] a market-based patchwork of private generators, transmission companies and energy retailers." Clifford Krauss, et al., How Texas' Drive for Energy Independence Set It Up for Disaster, N.Y. Times, Feb. 21, 2021, at https://www.nytimes.com/2021/02/21/us/texas-electricity-ercot-blackouts.html (emphasis added). Due to this "patchwork" approach, it is not always clear to Texans who their electricity provider is. With this in mind, and out of abundance of caution for the protection of the rights of Claimants, some claims were filed against Just Energy Entities on behalf of Claimants who were uncertain about their provider on the bar date for the submission of claims in this bankruptcy.

On February 15, 2022, the Just Energy Entities provided for the first time a list of Claimants that they maintain were non-customers during the relevant dates. A revised and current list of Claimants is attached to this submission as Schedule B, which takes this new information, as well as additional information provided by Claimants, into account.

2. Claimants Are Providing Additional Information and Documentation to Support Their Claims.

In response to the Just Energy Entities' Notice, Claimants are providing additional information about their Claims in Schedule B and supporting documentation at the following links:

(a) https://fearsnachawati.box.com/s/gp9f7zs8iuvfhnpg3l1w45hbvivtscqt
(b) https://spaces.hightail.com/space/v1fLhH9L92

3. The Responsibility of Texas Retail Providers Has Not Been Adjudicated and Should be Determined by the Texas MDL.

FT Consulting Canada Inc. (the "Monitor") has raised several arguments that hinge on uninterpreted Texas laws. Specifically, the Monitor makes the sweeping, unsupported claim that the Just Energy Entities are not liable for Claims related to outages occurring during Winter Storm Uri. Further, the Monitor contends that "retail electric providers are not legally responsible for the transmission and distribution of energy," and because "[n]o claimant has provided any evidence whatsoever to refute that fact and on that basis alone all of the claims are rejected." Disallowance Notice at Schedule A, p. 4. The Monitor also claims that the Just Energy Entities phrased their contracts such that they cannot be held liable for any interruption of power.

As a threshold matter, in the normal course, the proper venue for evaluation of the merits of these arguments based in Texas law is a Texas court. Texas law permits claims against an out-of-state business in Texas under the long-arm statute, which allows Texas courts to exercise jurisdiction over any nonresident defendant including, but not limited to, a corporation, partnership, or limited liability company (LLC) that "does business" in the state. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code Ann. § 17.042. In other words, nonresident defendants, including the Just Energy Entities, are subject to personal jurisdiction in Texas where, as here, the contract was to be performed entirely in Texas and defendant's activities were purposefully directed at Texas residents. Therefore, Texas courts have specific jurisdiction over the Just Energy Entities for, and Texas law applies to, the Claims because Texas is where the contracts were entered into, where the contracts were to be performed, and where the harms caused by the Just Energy Entities occurred. The Just Energy Entities consented to jurisdiction in Texas by entering into contracts with Texans for services provided in Texas.

The Texas Judicial system has already established the proper venue for the resolution of the arguments raised by The Monitor:

> In an Order dated June 10, 2021, the Panel on Multi-District Litigation (the "Panel") granted a motion to transfer to establish an MDL court for cases alleging that wrongful conduct of ERCOT and other defendants caused power shortages and electrical outages during Winter Storm URI and damaged the plaintiffs. See MDL No. 21-0313. On June 30, 2021, pursuant to Administrative Rule 13.6(a), Chief Justice Nathan L. Hecht of The Supreme Court of Texas authorized the Honorable Sylvia A. Matthews, former district judge, to serve as a pretrial judge upon assignment by the Panel. By Order dated July 7, 2021, the Panel designated the 281st District Court of Harris County, Texas as the Pretrial Court and assigned the Honorable Sylvia A. Matthews to serve as the Pretrial Judge.

See Order dated Jul 13, 2021, attached hereto as Attachment 1.

Additionally, under Texas law, venue is proper, inter alia, in the county in which all or a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred. As several claimants resided in Harris County during winter storm Uri, the location of the current Multi-District Litigation Court ("MDL Court") was assigned to the Winter Storm Uri cases.

Despite the commencement of the CCAA proceedings and the concurrent Chapter 15 proceedings, it is appropriate for the adjudication of the Claim to be referred to the MDL Court, with the results of such decision to be used to finalize the Claimants' right to a distribution in the CCAA/Chapter 15 proceedings.

As noted below, the adjudication of the Claims will require a comprehensive review and consideration of the energy regulatory regime in Texas as well as the intersection of that regulatory regime with the Texas civil law. This will require the adjudicator to understand not only the complex regulatory regime and the breadth of Texas regulatory and civil law, but also consider these issues in the context of matters of first impression. This complexity is far beyond what can reasonably and efficiently be dealt with by the CCAA Court or claims officer through the use of expert evidence to prove, as fact, matters of foreign law.

Although the Claims are claims provable in bankruptcy, they raise the types of foreign law issues that Canadian courts typically refuse to consider. For example, although the revenue rule does not apply to the Claims (since the Claims are made by an individual against a private company), the adjudication of the Claims will require the adjudicator to consider the State of Texas's regime for electricity regulation and to adjudge whether regulators and other actors were liable for damages suffered in the Winter Storm Uri. These are the types of inquiries into the affairs of foreign states that the revenue rule provides should not be undertaken. (See: United States v. Harden, 1963 CanLII 42 (SCC), [1963] SCR 366; Pro Swing Inc. v. Elta Golf Inc., 2006 SCC 52; and Prince et al. v. ACE Aviation Holdings Inc. et al., 2014 ONCA 285). Accordingly, given that the international restructuring regime under the CCAA and Chapter 15 are about coordination and not subordination, it is appropriate for the MDL Court to hear and determine the value of the claims. (See Holt Cargo Systems v. ABC Containerline, 2001 SCC 90).

Furthermore, many of the arguments raised by the Monitor are matters of first impression in the specific context of energy providers – in other words, no court has previously ruled on these issues. As such, the Canadian adjudicator will not have the benefit of Texas law to be guided by in making findings of fact as to what is the law of Texas, and it is therefore appropriate for the designated Texas court to hear and rule on these important matters of first impression raised under Texas law.

Finally, allowing the Texas MDL Court to exercise jurisdiction over these matters also comports with the principles of forum non conveniens as they are typically applied. The Supreme Court of Canada has held that a party must show that an alternative forum is clearly more appropriate for a court to decline to exercise jurisdiction. See Van Breda v. Village Resorts Ltd., 2012 Carswell Ont 4268 (S.C.C.). This is to ensure that the parties are treated fairly and that the process for resolving their litigation is efficient. Factors to be considered in determining whether to stay a proceeding vary from case to case but can include:

- The locations of parties and witnesses;
- The cost of transferring the case to another jurisdiction or of declining the stay;
- The impact of a transfer on the conduct of the litigation or on related or parallel proceedings;
- The possibility of conflicting judgments;
- Problems related to the recognition and enforcement of judgments;
- The relative strengths of the connections of the two parties; and

- Ultimately, it is an exercise of discretion entitled to deference.

In this case, the above factors weigh in the favor of permitting the Texas MDL Court to exercise jurisdiction:

- the claimants and witnesses to the power outages are all from Texas;
- the outages themselves occurred in Texas;
- the President/CEO/Director, Chief Operating Officer, and multiple Senior Vice Presidents of Just Energy (US) Corp. are based out of Houston, Texas, in Harris County;[1]
- The issues raised in this litigation are matters of first impression, properly resolved in the first instance by Texas courts; and
- a Canadian court's ruling on the instant matters would impede the previously established Texas MDL Court's proceedings.

For these reasons, these Claims should be referred to the MDL Court for adjudication, and if necessary, the stay lifted for the limited purpose of allowing the claims to be adjudicated by the MDL Court, and then such decision can be used for the purposes of the CCAA proceedings.

4. The Relevant Just Energy Entities Are Liable for Failing to Meet Their Obligations in their Provision of Electricity

The Monitor argues in conclusory fashion that by "simply procur[ing] energy on the market, resell[ing] it to their customers, keep[ing] track of how much electricity is used, and charg[ing] their customers accordingly," the Just Energy Entities have no liability for the injuries of any of their customers caused by the Just Energy Entities failure to provide power as agreed upon. In making this argument, the Monitor cites to tariffs it claims are required to be filed by Transmission and Distribution Utilities without actually identifying which, if any, such tariffs apply to Just Energy by its specific TDUs. Furthermore, the Monitor's argument directly conflicts with established Texas law that electricity is a product that can be subject to common law, regulatory duties, and strict liability and negligence law, therefore, as the seller of that product, the Just Energy Entities may be held liable.

i. Just Energy Entities' Common Law and Regulatory Duties

The Just Energy Entities' duties and obligations arise from its sale of a product and service, by common law, Restatement, and the Texas Utility Code. As a seller the Just Energy Entities had several tort duties, which they violated.

ii. Products Liability / Negligent Failure to Warn

Under Texas law, electricity is a "product" for strict liability purposes because it is a commodity that can be manufactured, transported, marketed, and sold like other goods. Houston Light & Power Co. v. Reynolds, 765 SW2d 784, 785 (Tex. 1988). Under Texas law, a product, such as electricity, may be defective: (1) in its manufacture; (2) in its design; or (3) there may be a defect because of a failure to provide adequate warnings or instructions relative to that product. Am. Tobacco Co. v. Grinnell, 951 SW2d 420, 426 (Tex. 1997).

While the Just Energy Entities may argue that the electricity to be provided was not in and of itself defective, Texas law recognizes that a lack of adequate warnings and/or instructions can render an otherwise adequate product unreasonably dangerous and defective. Caterpillar, Inc., v. Shears, 911 SW2d 379, 382 (Tex. 1995); Hanus v. Texas Utilities Co., 71 SW3d 874, 878-879 (Tex. App. – Ft. Worth, 2002).

As relevant to the facts and circumstances of the issues now before this Court, Subparts 4 and 5 of Section 82.003 of the Texas Civil Practices and Remedies Code sets out the elements of a cause of action against a "seller" of the product (electricity), such as the Just Energy Entities, for failing to issue adequate warnings about the electricity which was being provided under its agreement with its customers:

> Sec. 82.003. LIABILITY OF NONMANUFACTURING SELLERS. (a) A seller that did not manufacture a product is not liable for harm caused to the claimant by that product unless the claimant proves:
> . . . .
>
> (4) that:
>
> (A) the seller exercised substantial control over the content of a warning or instruction that accompanied the product;
>
> (B) the warning or instruction was inadequate; and
>
> (C) the claimant's harm resulted from the inadequacy of the warning or instruction;
>
> (5) that:
>
> (A) the seller made an express factual representation about an aspect of the product;
>
> (B) the representation was incorrect;
>
> (C) the claimant relied on the representation in obtaining or using the product; and
> (D) if the aspect of the product had been as represented, the claimant would not have been harmed by the product or would not have suffered the same degree of harm; . . . .

In addition to the elements of the causes of action defined in Tex. Civ. Pract & Rem. Code, Section 82.003, it is also the law of the State of Texas that, where an entity such as the Just Energy Entities voluntarily undertakes to perform services for another, through actions such as:

> mandating that it be provided contact information for its customers so that it could issue "disconnection warnings" or warning its customers of potential rolling blackouts and service interruption, that entity must provide those services and provide them in a reasonable and prudent manner.

The Claimants, who sustained physical injuries, property damage, and injuries to their businesses, have filed and will continue to pursue, in good faith, their Claims including claims that: (1) Just Energy Entities voluntarily undertook to perform services (providing information and warnings about their electric service) that the Just Energy Entities knew or should have known were necessary for their protection; (2) Just Energy Entities failed to exercise reasonable care in performing those services; and either (a) these customers relied upon the Just Energy Entities performance or (b) Just Energy Entities' performance increased the plaintiff's risk of harm. See Torrington Co., v. Stutzman, 46 S.W.3d 829, at 837-838 (Tex. 2000); Torres v. FCA US, LLC, 2020 WL 1809835 (SD Tex., 2020).

The Claimants reserve their rights to file further, additional and supplementary evidence. Furthermore, the Claimants rely upon the evidence of the Just Energy Entities' breach of duty that is solely within the power, possession and control of the Just Energy Entities.

5. Contractual Provisions Do Not Bar the Claimants' Claims.

The Just Energy Entities' customers who sustained property loss, business losses, and physical injuries during and as a result of Winter Storm Uri have viable causes of action against the Just Energy Entities. The contractual provisions cited by the Monitor do not absolve the Just Energy Entities of Liability.

While the Monitor cites the provisions within the Just Energy Entities' "Electricity Plan Agreements" that purport to claim they would not be liable for interruption of power, it admits that the Just Energy Entities acknowledges liability for "direct actual damages". Schedule A, p. 6. The Claimants are seeking direct actual damages. Additionally, the Just Energy Entities' overlook the provisions in their own "Your Rights as a Customer" documents that were clearly violated. Specifically, the "Your Rights as a Customer" document from Just Energy identifies the only circumstances during which a disconnection of service is contemplated:

> The PUCT has provided that under certain dangerous circumstances (such as unsafe electric line situations) any REP, including the POLR, may authorize your utility to disconnect your electric service without prior notice to you. Additionally, Just Energy may seek to have your electric service disconnected for any of the reasons listed below.
> • Failure to pay a bill owed to Just Energy or to make a deferred payment arrangement by the disconnection date set out in the disconnection notice;

> • Failure to comply with the terms of a deferred payment agreement made with Just Energy or the POLR;
> • Using service in a manner that interferes with the service of others or the operation of nonstandard equipment
> • Failure to pay a deposit required by Just Energy or the POLR; or > • Failure of the guarantor to pay the amount guaranteed when Just Energy or the POLR has a written agreement, signed by the guarantor; which allows for the disconnection of the guarantor's service.

See "Your Rights as a Consumer", Just Energy, attached hereto as Attachment 3.

Furthermore, the document from Just Energy clearly states that "prior to disconnecting your service, Just Energy or POLR must provide you a disconnection notice." See "Your Rights as a Consumer", Just Energy, attached hereto as Attach. 3.

The unannounced and devastatingly lengthy power outages to the clients of the Just Energy Entities was a breach by the Just Energy Entities' contracts with and duties to their clients. Claimants' Pre-Filing Claims are based on the Just Energy Entities' failure to fulfill their various statutory and common law duties owed to the Claimants, including centrally the strict liability that accompanies the failure to warn Just Energy Entities' Customers in the marketing[5] and contracting of this "product"[6] sold, coupled with the services[7] rendered by the Just Energy Entities, of the known and potentially life-threatening dangers. Just Energy Entities' duties to its customers arose not just days before or during the February storm, but months and years before the storm, and the Just Energy Entities' breach of those duties occurred not just days before or during the storm, but months and years before the storm.

The Just Energy Entities sold a product – electricity. Well recognized in Texas law is a duty owed to a buyer in a sales transaction involving a product or rendering of a service, entails the duty to warn by an electric utility that the product[8] or service use may be restricted or withdrawn with life threatening consequences.[9] In a marketing-defect suit, an unreasonably dangerous product must present a threat of a harm that would elude the common perception of the product. See Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. v. McGuire, 814 S.W.2d 385, 387-88 (Tex. 1991). Hanus v. Tex. Utils. Co. 71 S.W.3d 874, 880 (Tex. App. Ft. Worth 2002). Of course, there was no "common perception" among utility customers that the electricity they rely on for everyday use, and especially in extreme weather conditions, was produced by unreliable power generating companies whose ability to deliver such product, through the Just Energy Entities, would be disabled when needed most - during a winter storm of sub-freezing temperatures for three days or more, leaving them freezing in the dark.

> It begins with the unremarkable principle: "Services, even when provided commercially, are not products." RESTATEMENT (THIRD) OF TORTS: PRODS. LIAB. § 19 (1998). But it rejects the notion that one who provides a service is not a seller of products used in the provision of the service. To the contrary, the Restatement explains, "When a building contractor sells a building that contains a variety of appliances or other manufactured equipment, the builder, together with the equipment manufacturer and other distributors, are held as product sellers with respect to such equipment notwithstanding the fact that the built-in equipment may have become, for other legal purposes, attachments to and thus part of the underlying real property." Id. § 19 cmt. e.

The misconception that the duty to warn of dangerous condition arising from a dangerous event is not actionable if the warning would not stop the event simply is not the law. In fact, that is precisely why the warning is given – to stop an injury that could occur from a dangerous event or condition that the marketing agent has no ability to stop, only to warn. Just like the warnings on ladders may not prevent an injury if ignored, but then again it may if heeded, the importance of the warning is so that, at least, the Just Energy Entities, the seller, and its Customer, the Claimants, would have equal knowledge of the dangers well in advance of the extreme weather event and have an opportunity to be prepared in time to protect themselves, whether through the acquisition of back-up power sources, preparation of the home for extreme weather, back-up plans to tend to vulnerable relatives or relocate to safer circumstances, and of the various protective measures consumers could have taken to protect themselves in the event of, and well in advance of, extended loss of power.

The elements of a breach of contract claim under Texas Law are: 1) existence of a valid contract; 2) performance or tendered performance by the plaintiff; 3) material breach by the defendant; and 4) damages sustained by the plaintiff as a result of that breach. Paragon Gen. Contractors, Inc. v. Larco Constr., Inc., 227 S.W.3d 876, 882 (Tex. App.--Dallas 2007, no pet.). As a result, the Claimants possess breach of contract claims for the Just Energy Entities' violation of their own contractual assertions identified above. To be clear, by failing to warn their clients of the possibility of catastrophic and lengthy failure to provide energy, failing to notify their clients of the outages in advance, and failing to provide power for reasons other than those listed their representations to their clients, the Just Energy Entities breached their contracts with Claimants.

Finally, since the Claimants assert valid breach of contract claims, additional discovery is necessary regarding the specific contracts entered into by the individual claimants.

[8] Houston Light & Power Co. v. Reynolds, 765 SW2d 784, 785 (Tex. 1988): "Because it is a commodity that can be manufactured, transported, and sold like other goods, electricity is considered a product for strict liability purposes after it has been converted, as it had been here, to a form usable by consumers. Because it is a commodity that can be manufactured, transported, and sold like other goods, electricity is considered a product for strict liability purposes after it has been converted, as it had been here, to a form usable by consumers."

[9] Houston Light & Power Co. v. Reynolds, 765 SW2d 784, 785 (Tex. 1988): "A product may be unreasonably dangerous . . . because of a failure to provide adequate warnings or instructions (marketing defect), citing Am. Tobacco Co. v. Grinnell, 951 S.W.2d 420, 426 (Tex.1997); Caterpillar, Inc. v. Shears, 911 S.W.2d 379, 382 (Tex.1995)."

Understandably, while the Claimants possess evidence of being customers of the Just Energy Entities, many are not in possession of the individual contracts entered into with the Just Energy Entities due to the destructive events of Winter Storm Uri. Without these contracts, which are well-within the control of the Just Energy Entities, and with only the Monitor's bare assertions to go by, the record is grossly insufficient to make a determination as to liability based in breach of contract.

Your Rights as a Customer

PLEASE READ: THIS DOCUMENT CONTAINS IMPORTANT INFORMATION REGARDING YOUR RIGHTS AS A CUSTOMER

This document summarizes Your Rights as a Customer and is based on customer protection rules adopted by the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT). You may view the PUCT's complete set of electric rules at www.puc.state.tx.us/rules/subrules/electric.

1. Cancelling Service

Unauthorized Change of Service Provider or "Slamming": Just Energy must obtain your verifiable authorization before switching your electric service. If you believe your electric service has been switched without your authorization, you should ask Just Energy to provide you with a copy of your authorization and verification. Just Energy must submit this to you within 5 business days of your request. You may also file a complaint with the PUCT. Upon receipt of a complaint filed with the PUCT, Just Energy must take all actions within its control to facilitate your prompt return to your original REP and cease any collections activities related to the switch until the complaint has been resolved by the PUCT. If the PUCT determines your electric service was switched without authorization, Just Energy must cancel all unpaid charges. Just Energy must pay all charges associated with returning you to your original REP within 5 business days of your request, and refund to you any amount paid in excess of the charges that would have been imposed by your original REP within 30 days of your request.

Cancellation of Service: You may cancel your agreement with Just Energy without any penalty or fee if:

- You request cancellation within 3 federal business days after you have signed the Application for Service and received your Terms of Service;
- You move to another premise and no longer have responsibility for electric service at the premise where service was being provided;
- Market conditions change and the agreement allows Just Energy to terminate the agreement without penalty in response to such changes; or
- You receive a notice from Just Energy of a material change in the context of this Agreement and you notify Just Energy of your request for cancellation within 14 days of the date the notice is sent to you. Notice will not be issued for material changes that benefit you or changes that are mandated by a regulatory agency.

If you request cancellation for a reason other than those listed above, exit fees will apply. To cancel your service during the cancellation period, please use the notice of cancellation form or call the Just Energy number above. For details on cancellation after the cancellation window has ended and on exit fees, please call the Just Energy number above.

2. Billing

Unauthorized Charges or "Cramming": Before new charges appear on your bill, Just Energy must inform you of the product or service, all associated charges, and how these charges will be billed and obtain your consent to purchase the product or service. If you believe your bill includes unauthorized charges, you may contact Just Energy to dispute the charges and file a complaint with the PUCT. Just Energy will not terminate your service or file an unfavorable credit report against you for nonpayment of disputed charges, unless the dispute is resolved against you. If the charges are unauthorized, Just Energy will cease charging you for the unauthorized service or product, remove the unauthorized charge from your bill, and refund or credit all money you paid for any unauthorized charge within 45 business days. If charges are not refunded or credited within three billing cycles, interest shall be paid to you on the amount of any unauthorized charge until it is refunded or credited, calculated at an annual rate established by the PUCT. You may request all billing records under Just Energy's control related to any unauthorized charge within 15 days after the date the unauthorized charge is removed from your bill. Just Energy will not re-bill you for any charges determined to be unauthorized.

Payment Arrangement/Plan: If you cannot pay your bill, please call Just Energy immediately. Just Energy offers level/average payment plans to customers who are not currently delinquent in payment. Just Energy may offer you a payment arrangement that allows you to pay your bill after your due date, but before your next bill is due. Just Energy may offer you a deferred payment plan, which allows you to pay an outstanding bill in installments that extend beyond the due date of your next bill. Deferred Payment Plans must be offered (unless the customer previously defaulted or is already on a Deferred or Level Payment Plan) during summer months (July – September) and winter months (January – February) or during extreme weather emergencies to the following residential customers: (a) LITE-UP (b) Critical Care/Chronic Condition (c) those expressing an inability to pay as long as they have not been disconnected in the last 12 months, submitted more than 2 insufficient payments during the last 12 months or received service for less than 3 months and lack of sufficient credit/payment history. (d) whose bill includes charges from previous under-billings. A deferred payment plan may include a 5% charge for late payment. If you do not fulfi ll the terms of the payment arrangement or deferred payment plan, Just Energy may disconnect your service for nonpayment. If you agree to a deferred payment plan or are delinquent when entering into a level payment plan or other payment arrangement, Just Energy will place a switch-hold on your account. A switch-hold prevents you from buying electricity from other companies until the total deferred balance is paid. We may require an initial payment of no more than 50% of the amount past due with the rest payable in equal installments over at least five billing cycles. For details on payment plans, please see your Terms of Service or contact Just Energy.

Financial and Energy Assistance and Discounts: Just Energy must offer bill payment assistance to customers who express an inability to pay or need assistance with bill payment. If funding is sufficient for the PUCT to administer a low-income assistance program, a customer who receives food stamps, Medicaid, AFDC or SSI from the Department of Human Services (DHS) (a "Recipient") may qualify for a discount on electric service through the LITE-UP Texas Program. Customers who do not receive these benefits, but whose household income is not more than 125 percent of the federal poverty guidelines (a "Low-Income Household") may apply for the discount. Please contact LITE-UP Texas toll free at (866) 4-LITE-UP or 866.454.8387 for more information, or contact Just Energy. LITE-UP customers qualify for a payment arrangement/plan even if delinquent.

Meter Testing: You have the right to request a meter test once every four years at no cost. Just Energy can submit your request to your utility electronically. If you ask to have your meter tested more than once every four years, and the meter is determined to be functioning properly, then you may be charged a fee for the additional test(s) at the rate approved for your utility. Your utility will advise you of the test results, including the test date, testing person and, if applicable, the removal date of the meter. You have the right to be instructed on how to read your meter.

3. Service, Disconnection and Restoration

Disconnection of Service: If your payment for electric service is not received by the due date on your bill, Just Energy will mail you a separate disconnection notice. The disconnection notice will explain that your service may be disconnected. The disconnection date will be no less than 10 (21 days for critical and chronic care) days from the date the notice is issued and may not fall on a holiday or weekend. If, prior to the disconnection date, payment is received or satisfactory payment arrangements are made, then Just Energy will continue to serve you under the terms and conditions of service in effect prior to issuance of the disconnection notice.

Just Energy cannot disconnect your service for any of the following reasons:

1. Failure to pay for electric service by a previous occupant of the premise if that occupant is not of the same household;
2. Failure to pay any charge unrelated to electric service;
3. Failure to pay a different type or class of electric service not included on the account's bill when service was initiated;
4. Failure to pay underbilled charges that occurred more than six months in the past (except where related to theft of service);
5. Failure to pay disputed charges until Just Energy or the PUCT determines accuracy of the charges and you have been notified of this determination;
6. Failure to pay an estimated bill unless the estimated bill is part of a pre-approved meter-reading program or in the event your utility is unable to read the meter due to circumstances beyond its control; or
7. Failure to pay during an extreme weather emergency, during which deferred payment plans will be made available.

Just Energy may not disconnect your service if it receives notification by the disconnection date that an energy assistance provider will make sufficient payment on your account.

Availability of Provider of Last Resort: If your electric service is terminated, you may obtain services from another REP or the Provider of Last Resort (POLR). The POLR offers a standard retail service package. Information about the POLR and other REPs can be obtained by calling 1.866.PWR.4.TEX or by visiting www.powertochoose.com.

Disconnection of Service: The PUCT has provided that under certain dangerous circumstances (such as unsafe electric line situations) any REP, including the POLR, may authorize your utility to disconnect your electric service without prior notice to you. Additionally, Just Energy may seek to have your electric service disconnected for any of the reasons listed below:

- Failure to pay a bill owed to Just Energy or to make a deferred payment arrangement by the disconnection date set out in the disconnection notice;
- Failure to comply with the terms of a deferred payment agreement made with Just Energy or the POLR;
- Using service in a manner that interferes with the service of others or the operation of nonstandard equipment;
- Failure to pay a deposit required by Just Energy or the POLR; or
- Failure of the guarantor to pay the amount guaranteed when Just Energy or the POLR has a written agreement, signed by the guarantor, which allows for the disconnection of the guarantor's service.

Prior to disconnecting your service, Just Energy or the POLR must provide you a disconnection notice. This notice must be mailed to you separately no earlier than the first day after the date your bill is due. The disconnection date must be no earlier than 10 days from the date the notice is issued and may not fall on a holiday or weekend or the day preceding unless personnel are available to take payments and service can be reconnected. Just Energy or the POLR may not seek to have your electric service disconnected by your utility for any of the reasons listed under the Disconnection of Service portion of this document. Additionally, Just Energy or the POLR may not disconnect your electric service:

- For non-payment during an extreme weather emergency and must offer you a deferred payment plan for bills due during the emergency; or
- For non-payment if you inform Just Energy or the POLR, prior to the disconnection date stated on the notice, that a permanent resident on the premises has a critical or chronic need for electric service. However, to obtain this exemption, you must enter into a deferred payment plan with Just Energy or the POLR and have the ill-person's attending physician contact Just Energy or the POLR and submit a written statement attesting to the necessity of electric service to support life or prevent a significant deterioration of condition. This exemption from disconnection due to critical care shall be in effect for 63 days and may be applied for again after the 63 days has expired and the deferred payment plan has been fulfilled.

Restoration of Service: If your service has been disconnected for non-payment, Just Energy will, upon satisfactory correction of the reasons for the disconnection, notify your utility to reconnect your service. Just Energy will continue to serve you under the terms and conditions of service in effect prior to issuance of the disconnection notice. If your service was disconnected due to a dangerous situation, your service will be reconnected once you notify Just Energy or the POLR that disconnected it that you have corrected and satisfactorily resolved the dangerous situation.

4. Disputes

Complaint Resolution: Please contact Just Energy if you have specific comments, questions or complaints. Upon receipt of a complaint, Just Energy is required to investigate and notify you of the results within 21 days. If you are dissatisfied with the results of our investigation, you may request a supervisory review. Just Energy must advise you of the results of the supervisory review within 10 business days of your request. If you are dissatisfied with the results of the investigation or supervisory review, you may file a complaint with the PUCT at: P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas, 78711-3326; telephone 512.936.7120 or in Texas (toll-free) 888.782.8477; fax 512.936.7003; e-mail customer@puc.state.tx.us; website address www.puc.state.tx.us; TTY 512.936.7136; Relay Texas (toll-free) 800.735.2989 or with the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division. For a complaint involving a disputed bill, Just Energy may not initiate collection or termination activities or report the delinquency to a credit reporting agency with respect to the disputed portion of the bill. However, after appropriate notice, Just Energy may send a termination notice for non-payment of any undisputed portion of the bill.

5. Other Protections

Do Not Call List: The PUCT will maintain a "Do Not Call List" of customers who do not want to receive telemarketing calls for electric service. Customers may sign up for the list for a nominal fee. Please contact the PUCT to be placed on the Do Not Call List. You may contact Just Energy for further details.

Language Availability: You may request to receive information from Just Energy in Spanish or English. Just Energy does not market in any other language. This includes the Application for Service and Terms of Service, Your Rights as a Customer, the Electricity Facts Label, bills and bill notices, termination and disconnection notices, information on new electric services, discount programs, promotions, and access to customer assistance.

Privacy Rights: REPs are prohibited from disclosing or selling confidential customer information, including your: name; address; account number and ESIID(s); type or classification of service; historical electricity usage; expected patterns of use; current charges or billing records; and the types of facilities used in providing your service; and the individual terms, conditions and price of your agreement. This prohibition does not apply to the release of your information under certain circumstances as required by law, including release of your information to the PUCT, any agent of Just Energy, credit reporting agencies, law enforcement agencies or your utility. Your information will be shared with other REPs or aggregators only with your consent.

Special Services: If you have a physical disability or require special assistance regarding your electric account, please contact Just Energy to inquire about the process to become qualified for any special services that may be available to you.

Sus Derechos como Cliente

FAVOR LEER: ESTE DOCUMENTO CONTIENE INFORMACIÓN IMPORTANTE SOBRE SUS DERECHOS COMO CLIENTE

Este documento resume Sus Derechos como Cliente y está basado en reglas de protección del cliente adoptadas por la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas (Public Utility Commission of Texas - PUCT). Puede ver el conjunto completo de reglas eléctricas de la PUCT en www.puc.state.tx.us/rules/subrules/electric.

1. Cancelación del Servicio

Cambio No Autorizado de Proveedor de Servicios o "Slamming": Just Energy debe obtener su autorización verificable antes de cambiar su servicio de electricidad. Si usted cree que su servicio de electricidad ha sido cambiado sin su autorización, debe solicitarle a Just Energy que le suministre una copia de su autorización y verificación. Just Energy debe presentársela dentro de los 5 días hábiles siguientes a su solicitud. También puede presentar una queja ante la PUCT. Al recibir una queja presentada ante la PUCT, Just Energy debe hacer todo lo que esté bajo su control para facilitar su pronto regreso a su REP (proveedor) original y cesar toda actividad de recaudo relacionada con el cambio hasta que la queja haya sido resuelta por la PUCT. Si la PUCT determina que su servicio de electricidad fue cambiado sin autorización, Just Energy debe cancelar todos los cargos no pagados. Just Energy debe pagar todos los cargos asociados con su restablecimiento a su REP (proveedor) original dentro de los próximos 5 días hábiles a su solicitud, y reembolsarle todo monto pagado que exceda los cargos que habrían sido impuestos por su REP original dentro de los próximos 30 días hábiles a su solicitud.

Cancelación del Servicio: Usted puede cancelar su acuerdo con Just Energy sin sanción o cargo alguno si:

- Usted solicita cancelación dentro de 3 días laborable federales después de haber firmado la Solicitud para el servicio y recibido los Términos de Servicio;
- Usted se muda a otro predio y deja de ser responsable del servicio de electricidad en el predio en que el servicio estaba siendo prestado;
- Las condiciones del mercado cambian y el acuerdo le permite a Just Energy dar por terminado el acuerdo sin sanción alguna en respuesta a dichos cambios; o
- Si recibe una notificación de Just Energy sobre un cambio sustancial en el contexto del presente Contrato y usted notifica a Just Energy de su solicitud de cancelación dentro de los 14 días de la fecha en que la notificación le fue enviada. No se expedirá notificación sobre cambios sustanciales que lo beneficien a usted o cambios ordenados por una agencia reguladora.

Si usted solicita la cancelación por un motivo diferente a los enumerados arriba, aplicarán cargos por cancelación anticipada. Para cancelar su servicio durante el período de cancelación, favor usar el formulario de notificación de cancelación o llame al número de Just Energy indicado arriba. Para obtener detalles sobre cancelación después de finalizada la ventana de cancelación y sobre los derechos de salida, le agradecemos llamar al número de Just Energy indicado arriba.

2. Facturación

Cargos No Autorizados o "Cramming": Antes de que aparezcan nuevos cargos en su cuenta, Just Energy debe informarle sobre el producto o servicio, todos los cargos asociados, cómo serán facturados estos cargos, y obtener su consentimiento para comprar el producto o servicio. Si usted cree que su cuenta incluye cargos no autorizados, puede ponerse en contacto con Just Energy para debatir los cargos y presentar una queja ante la PUCT. Just Energy no dará por terminado su servicio ni emitirá un informe de crédito desfavorable en su contra por el no pago de cargos en debate, a no ser que la controversia sea resuelta en su contra. Si los cargos son no autorizados, Just Energy dejará de cobrarle el servicio o producto no autorizado, retirará el cargo no autorizado de su cuenta, y le reembolsará o acreditará toda suma de dinero pagada por usted por todo cargo no autorizado dentro de los siguientes 45 días hábiles. Si los cargos no le son reembolsados o acreditados en un plazo de tres ciclos de facturación, le deberán ser pagados intereses sobre el monto de todo cargo no autorizado hasta tanto éste le sea reembolsado o acreditado, calculados a una tasa anual establecida por el PUCT. Usted puede solicitar todos los registros que estén bajo el control de Just Energy relacionados a todo cargo no autorizado en su factura, en un período de 15 días luego de la fecha en que los cargos no autorizados sean retirados de su cuenta. Just Energy no le volverá a facturar ningún cargo que haya sido determinado como no autorizado.

Plan/Acuerdo de pagos: Si Ud. no puede pagar su factura, sírvase llamar de inmediato a Just Energy. Just Energy ofrece planes de pagos parejos o en base a promedios a los clientes no morosos. Just Energy podrá ofrecerle un acuerdo de pagos que le permitirá pagar su factura después de la fecha de vencimiento, pero antes del vencimiento de la próxima factura. Just Energy podrá ofrecerle un plan de pago diferido que le permitirá pagar una factura pendiente en cuotas que podrán extenderse más allá de la fecha de vencimiento de su próxima factura. Los Planes de Pago Diferido deberán ofrecerse (a menos que el cliente hubiera incumplido con anterioridad o se hubiera ya incorporado a un Plan de Pago Diferido o Pagos Parejos) durante los meses de verano (Julio a Septiembre) y los meses de invierno (Enero a Febrero) o durante eventos climáticos extremos, a los siguientes clientes residenciales: (a) LITE-UP (b) Cuidado Crítico/Afección Crónica (c) aquellos que expresen incapacidad de pagar en tanto no hubieran sufrido desconexión en los 12 meses anteriores, presentado más de dos pagos insuficientes durante los 12 meses anteriores, o recibido servicio durante menos de 3 meses o carecieran de suficiente historial crediticio o de pago. (d) cuya factura incluya débitos correspondientes a subfacturaciones anteriores. Los planes de pago diferido podrán incluir un cargo de 5% por pago fuera de fecha. Si Ud. incumpliera las condiciones del acuerdo de pagos o plan de pago diferido, Just Energy podrá desconectarle el servicio por falta de pago. Si Ud. acepta un plan de pago diferido o se encontrara moroso al acordar un plan de pagos parejos u otro acuerdo de pagos, Just Energy le aplicará a su cuenta una restricción "switch-hold" (prohibición de cambiar de proveedor). Un "switch-hold" le prohibirá comprar electricidad de otras compañías hasta pagar el total del saldo diferido. Podremos exigirle un pago inicial no mayor al 50% del importe vencido, siendo el resto pagadero en cuotas iguales durante por lo menos cinco ciclos de facturación. Por detalles sobre planes de pago, le rogamos consultar las Condiciones de Servicio o contactar a Just Energy. Para obtener detalles sobre planes de pago, vea sus Términos de Servicio o póngase en contacto con Just Energy.

Asistencia y Descuentos Financieros y de Energía: Just Energy debe ofrecer asistencia para el pago de las cuentas a los clientes que manifiesten su incapacidad de pago o necesiten asistencia para pagar sus cuentas. Si los fondos son suficientes para que la PUCT administre un programa de asistencia para bajos ingresos, un cliente que reciba estampillas de alimentos, Medicaid, AFDC o SSI del Departamento de Servicios Humanos (DHS por su sigla en inglés) (un(a) "Receptor(a)") puede qualificar para un descuento en el servicio de electricidad a través del Programa LITE-UP Texas. Los clientes que no reciben estos beneficios, pero cuyo ingreso familiar no excede el 125 por ciento de las pautas federales de pobreza (un "Hogar de Bajos Ingresos") pueden solicitar el descuento. Le agradecemos ponerse en contacto con LITE-UP Texas en la línea telefónica gratuita (866) 4-LITE-UP o 866.454.8387 para obtener más información, o ponerse en contacto con Just Energy. Los clientes de LITE-UP califican para los planes o acuerdos pago aunque se encuentren en mora.

Prueba de Contadores: Usted tiene derecho de solicitar una prueba de su contador una vez cada cuatro años, sin costo alguno. Just Energy puede enviar su solicitud electrónicamente a su empresa de servicios públicos. Si usted solicita que su medidor sea probado más de una vez cada cuatro años, y se determina que el contador está funcionando correctamente, entonces le puede ser cobrada una tarifa por la(s) prueba(s) adicional(es) a la tasa aprobada para su empresa de servicios públicos. Su empresa de servicios públicos le informará los resultados de las pruebas, incluyendo la fecha de la prueba, la persona que realizó la prueba y, si es aplicable, la fecha de retiro del contador. Usted tiene derecho a recibir instrucciones sobre cómo leer su contador.

3. Servicio, Desconexión y Restablecimiento

Desconexión del Servicio: Si su pago del servicio de electricidad no es recibido para la fecha de vencimiento indicada en su factura, Just Energy le enviará por correo una notificación de desconexión por separado. La notificación de desconexión explicará que su servicio puede ser desconectado. La fecha de desconexión no será menor a 10 días (21 días por cuidado crítico y crónico) después de la fecha de expedición de la notificación y no puede caer en un día festivo o de fin de semana. Si, antes de la fecha de desconexión, se recibe el pago o se hace un arreglo de pago satisfactorio, Just Energy continuará prestándole el servicio bajo los términos y condiciones de servicio vigentes antes de la expedición de la notificación de desconexión.

Just Energy no puede desconectar su servicio por ninguna de los siguientes motivos:

1. No pago del servicio de electricidad por un ocupante anterior del predio si dicho ocupante no es parte de la misma unidad familiar;
2. No pago de cualquier cargo no relacionado con el servicio de electricidad;
3. No pago de un tipo o clase diferente de servicio de electricidad no incluido en la factura de la cuenta cuando se inició el servicio;
4. No pago de cargos sub-facturados ocurridos más de seis meses antes (excepto cuando estén relacionados con hurto del servicio);
5. No pago de cargos debatidos hasta tanto Just Energy o la PUCT determinen la exactitud de los cargos y usted haya sido notificado(a) sobre esta determinación;
6. No pago de una cuenta estimada a no ser que la cuenta estimada haga parte de un programa pre-aprobado de lectura de contadores o en caso de que su empresa de servicios públicos no pueda leer el contador debido a circunstancias fuera de su control; o
7. No pago durante una emergencia por clima extremo, durante la cual se pondrán a su disposición planes de pago diferido.

Just Energy no puede desconectar su servicio si recibe notificación antes de la fecha de desconexión indicando que un proveedor de asistencia para energía efectuará un pago suficiente a su cuenta.

Disponibilidad de Proveedor de Ultimo Recurso: Si se da por terminado su servicio de electricidad, usted puede obtener servicios de otro REP o del Proveedor de Ultimo Recurso (Provider of Last Resort - POLR). El POLR ofrece un paquete estándar de servicios al por menor. Se puede obtener información sobre el POLR y otros REP llamando al 1.866.PWR.4.TEX o visitando www.powertochoose.com.

Desconexión del Servicio: La PUCT ha establecido que bajo ciertas circunstancias peligrosas (tales como situaciones de las líneas de conducción eléctrica) cualquier REP, incluyendo al POLR, pueden autorizar a su empresa de servicios públicos para que desconecte su servicio de electricidad sin previo aviso. Adicionalmente, Just Energy puede buscar que su servicio de electricidad sea desconectado por cualquiera de los motivos enumerados a continuación:

- No pago de una cuenta adeudada a Just Energy o no hacer un arreglo de pago diferido antes de la fecha de desconexión indicada en la notificación de desconexión;
- No cumplimiento de los términos de un acuerdo de pago diferido acordado con Just Energy o con el POLR;
- Uso del servicio de una manera tal que interfiera con el servicio de otros, u operación de equipos no estándar;
- No pago de un depósito requerido por Just Energy o por el POLR; o
- No pago del monto garantizado por parte del garantizador cuando Just Energy o el POLR cuenten con un acuerdo por escrito, firmado por el garantizador, que permita la desconexión del servicio del garantizador.

Antes de desconectar su servicio, Just Energy o el POLR deben suministrarle una notificación de desconexión. Esta notificación debe serle enviada por correo por separado, no antes del primer día después de la fecha de vencimiento de su cuenta. La fecha de desconexión no debe ser antes de 10 días después de la fecha de expedición de la notificación y no puede caer en un día festivo o de fin de semana o el día anterior, a no ser que haya personal disponible para recibir pagos y que el servicio pueda ser reconectado.

Just Energy o el POLR no pueden buscar que su servicio de electricidad sea desconectado por su empresa de servicios públicos por ninguno de los motivos enumerados bajo la porción de Desconexión del Servicio de este documento. Adicionalmente, Just Energy o el POLR no pueden desconectar su servicio de electricidad:

- Por no pago durante una emergencia por clima extremo, y deben ofrecerle un plan de pago diferido para las cuentas cuyo vencimiento caiga durante la emergencia; o
- Por falta de pago si Ud. informa a Just Energy o a su POLR (proveedor de última instancia), previamente a la fecha de desconexión indicada en la notificación, que un residente permanente del lugar tiene necesidad crítica o crónica de servicio eléctrico. Sin embargo, para hacerse acreedor a dicha exoneración, Ud. deberá acogerse a un plan de pago diferido con Just Energy o con su proveedor de última instancia, y hacer que el médico tratante de la persona enferma se ponga en contacto con Just Energy o con el proveedor de última instancia y presente una declaración por escrito certificando la necesidad de servicio eléctrico para el sostén de vida o para evitar un deterioro significativo de la afección. Esta exoneración de desconexión por causa de cuidado crítico tendrá una validez de 63 días y podrá solicitarse nuevamente después del vencimie de dichos 63 días y de haberse cumplido con el plan de pago diferido.

Restablecimiento del Servicio: Si su servicio ha sido desconectado por no pago, una vez corregidos satisfactoriamente los motivos de la desconexión, Just Energy notificará a su empresa de servicios públicos para que reconecte su servicio. Just Energy continuará prestándole el servicio bajo los términos y condiciones de servicio vigentes antes de la expedición de la notificación de desconexión. Si su servicio fue desconectado debido a una situación peligrosa, su servicio será reconectado cuando usted le notifique a Just Energy o al POLR que lo desconectó que usted ha corregido y resuelto satisfactoriamente la situación peligrosa.

4. Controversias

Solución de Quejas: Le agradecemos ponerse en contacto con Just Energy si tiene comentarios, preguntas o quejas específicas. Una vez recibida una queja, Just Energy está obligada a investigar y notificarle los resultados dentro de los siguientes 21 días. Si a usted no le satisfacen los resultados de nuestra investigación, puede solicitar una revisión por un supervisor. Just Energy debe informarle los resultados de la revisión de supervisión dentro de los 10 días hábiles siguientes a su solicitud. Si no le satisfacen los resultados de la investigación o de la revisión de supervisión, usted puede presentar una queja ante la PUCT en: P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas, 78711-3326; teléfono 512.936.7120 o en Texas (línea gratuita) 888.782.8477; fax 512.936.7003; correo electrónico customer@puc.state.tx.us; dirección del sitio web www.puc.state.tx.us; TTY 512.936.7136; Relay Texas (línea gratuita) 800.735.2989 o ante la Oficina del Fiscal General, División de Protección del Consumidor. Para una queja relacionada con una cuenta en controversia, Just Energy no puede iniciar actividades de recaudo o de terminación o reportar la mora a una agencia de informes de crédito con respecto a la porción en controversia de la cuenta. SCHEDULE A

On November 1, 2021, the law firms of Fears Nachawati PLLC, Watts Guerra LLP and Parker Waichman LLP collectively and timely filed D&O claims on behalf of 260 claimants against the Just Energy Entities. In addition, the law firm of Robins Cloud LLP filed D&O claims on behalf of 37 claimants. These claims and claimants are referred to herein as the "D&O Claims" and "Claimants", respectively, All of these Claims arise out of loss of business, property damage and/or personal injuries suffered by Claimants due to the loss of power during winter storm Uri in February 2021.

In their Notices of Revision or Disallowance for Persons who have asserted Claims against the Directors and/or Officers of the Just Energy Entities (the "Disallowance Notices"), which were submitted on January 18, 2022, the Just Energy Entities stated that they would "disallow the Claims in their entirety" because they "are devoid of merit for numerous reasons . . . ." Notice at Schedule A at 1. More specifically, the Just Energy Entities asserted in their Notice that Claimants' Claims should be disallowed on the grounds that: (1) "the underlying claims brought against the Just Energy Entities" are "devoid of merit"; and (2) "[t]here is no legal basis under Canadian or U.S. law for imposing personal liability on directors and officers" for Claimants' Claims. Each of these arguments is addressed below.

I. Dispute to Notice of Revision or Disallowance Regarding Pre-Filing Claims Incorporated By Reference Hereto

Just Energy has justified its disallowance of the Claimants' D&O Claims on the basis that the claims are "contingent, speculative, remote, unproven, unliquidated, and devoid of merit", and references Schedule C to the Disallowance Notice in support of its position.

Schedule C of the Disallowance Notice does not set out any particular response or basis for the Company's refusal of the D&O Claims. Rather, Schedule C is not specifically related to the D&O Claims but rather is only an incorporation by reference of the Company's Notice of Disallowance of the Claimants' Pre-Filing Claims. Accordingly, the Claimants adopt and incorporate by reference hereto the Dispute to Notice of Revision or Disallowance filed in respect of the Claimants' Pre-Filing Claims.

II. Reason For Dispute Specifically Related To Director And Officer Claims

A. The Company Has Disregarded Relevant and Material Facts

The reasons set out in the Disallowance Notice makes it clear that the Company has failed to consider a number of relevant and material facts that demonstrate that certain of the Company's directors and offices are liable to the Claimants as set out in the Proof of Claim.

1. ERCOT Issued Numerous Advisory Notices That The D&Os Failed To Act Upon:

With regard to the systemic failure of the electric industry during and before the arrival of Winter Storm Uri in February, 2021, the Claimants repeat and adopt the positions of fact set out in In re

Winter Storm Uri Litigation, pending before the 281st Judicial District Court of Harris County Texas, as follows:

- Electric Reliability Council Of Texas ("ERCOT") oversees the power grid which, with a few exceptions, supplies electricity to residents/consumers/businesses in the State of Texas;
- On February 3, 2021, ERCOT meteorologists were aware of the oncoming severe weather storm approaching the State of Texas, and warned its market participants (including Just Energy and its officers and directors) to brace for the coldest weather of the year (See e.g. Plaintiff's Amended Petition at paragraph 24, attached hereto as Attachment "__");
- On February 8, 2021, ERCOT issued a formal Operating Conditions Notice ("OCN") to its market participants for an extreme cold weather system approaching Thursday, February 11, through Monday, February 15, 2021, with temperatures anticipated to remain 32° F or below, Id;
- On February 10, 2021, ERCOT issued an Advisory its market participants for the predicted extreme weather for the ERCOT Region, Id;
- February 11, 2021: ERCOT issued a watch for cold weather event for extreme weather expected its market participants, Id;
- The Just Energy Entities and their officers and directors at the relevant times (identified at Appendix A hereto) (the "D&Os") had a duty to review such notices and advisories from ERCOT or otherwise ensure that the necessary, appropriate and sufficient systems and measures were in place to ensure that the Just Energy Entities would receive, consider and act upon such warnings from ERCOT, including ensuring they were prepared to, or had taken all reasonable steps to, continue to provide its customers with electricity at the contract rates. Given the centrality and critical nature of the provision of electricity for the safety and well-being of residents of a modern state such as Texas, the D&Os owed a duty to Just Energy's customers to ensure that they would conduct Just Energy's affairs so as to protect to the extent possible Just Energy's customers from the effects of such weather events;
- As stated in the In re Winter Storm Uri Litigation, the Retail Electric Providers such as Just Energy who were similarly situated to Just Energy, were negligent and grossly negligent as a result of their failure to warn their customers of the severity of the impending winter storm and of the power outages that the storm was almost certain to cause (See e.g. Plaintiff's Amended Petition at paragraphs 180 - 188, attached hereto as Attachment "__"). The Claimants adopt and repeat those statement of position herein; and
- Similarly, the Just Energy Entities's D&Os were also negligent in failing to ensure that Just Energy would receive, consider and act upon such warnings from ERCOT, including ensuring that Just Energy was prepared to, or had taken all reasonable steps to, continue to provide its customers with electricity at the contract rates, and are therefore liable to the Claimants.

2. Vanessa Anesetti-Parra: Vice President (Regulatory Affairs) Of Just Energy & ERCOT Board Member

At all relevant times leading up to Winter Storm Uri's effect on the lives of millions of Texans, including the dates on which ERCOT issued the notices and warnings to the energy industry regarding the severity of Winter Storm Uri and the disastrous effect that it might have on the electric grid (as noted above), Vanessa Anesetti-Parra, a Vice President of Just Energy, sat on the ERCOT Board of Directors. Accordingly, the knowledge that Vanessa Anesetti-Parra had regarding the dangers and consequences of Winter Storm Uri is imputed to and formed part of Just Energy's knowledge and the knowledge of its directors and officers. In the alternative, even if Vanessa Anesetti-Parra's knowledge is not imputed to the other D&Os (which is not admitted), Vanessa Anesetti-Parra herself remains liable to the Claimants.

Almost immediately after Winter Storm Uri moved past the State of Texas, in a filing with the Texas Public Utilities Commission, ERCOT notified the Tx. PUC that Mrs. Anesetti-Parra, one of five non-Texas residents on the ERCOT Board, was resigning her position on the ERCOT Board effective February 24, 2021. See Notice of Electric Reliability Council Of Texas, Inc. Regarding The Resignation Of Four Unaffiliated Directors, at footnote 1, attached hereto as Attachment "__". The immediacy of the resignation is evidence of scienter.

B. Particulars of Other Evidence Solely Within Knowledge of D&Os and Company

The full details and particulars of the evidence demonstrating the D&Os negligence and other wrongful acts are, given their nature, solely in the power, possession and control of the D&Os (including, but not limited to, Vaness Anesetti-Para) and the Just Energy Entities. Accordingly, the Claimants reserve the right to provide further and additional evidence in support of its D&O Claim within the claims resolution process. As a result of the D&O's and the Just Energy Entities' sole control of such evidence, there is no basis for the D&O Claims to have been disallowed in full as opposed to provision a revision of the D&O Claim to account for any contingency that might be associated with the nature of the claims. Nonetheless, and notwithstanding the foregoing, the Claimants state and the fact is that there is no basis to apply any contingency factor to the value of the D&O Claims and the D&Os are liable for the full amount of the D&O Claims.

C. Just Energy Misstates The Relevant Law Regarding D&O Liability For Contract And Tort Claims

The Disallowance Notice is based on a misstatement of the applicable law regarding the liability or potential liability of the D&Os.

Contrary to the position taken by the Just Energy Entities, the applicable law regarding the liability of the D&Os is not solely the law of Ontario and the law of Canada applicable therein. Rather, given that the Just Energy Entities, with the D&Os knowledge, consent and acquiescence, was directly or indirectly conducting business in the State of Texas, Texas law also applies to the liability of the directors and officers of the companies and their parent companies doing business in Texas, particularly as it pertains to the participating in the regulated and critical electricity markets.

Texas law provides that the directors and officers in the position of the Just Energy Entities' D&Os are (or may be) personally liable for the type of claims asserted by the Claimants.

In a recent decision of The Honorable Bill Parker, Chief United States Bankruptcy Judge for the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Eastern District Of Texas, the Court directly dispelled the very notion put forward here by Just Energy, that officers and directors of a corporation cannot be held accountable for their own actions when taken on behalf of the corporation:

> Without reference to any alter ego theory, however, Texas common law has long recognized that a corporate officer who knowingly participates in tortious or fraudulent acts may be held individually liable to third persons even though he performed the act as an agent of the corporation and is acting with the course and scope of his employment. Miller v. Keyser, 90 S.W.3d 712, 717 (Tex. 2002); Leyendecker & Assocs., Inc. v. Wechter, 683 S.W.2d 369, 375 (Tex.1984); *Cage v. WorldFab, Inc. (In re Technicool Sys., Inc.), 594 B.R. 663, 671 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2018).*
> Under such circumstances, Texas common law has traditionally held it unnecessary that the "corporate veil" be pierced in order to impose personal liability upon that officer, as long as it is shown that the corporate officer knowingly participated in the wrongdoing. Kingston, 82 S.W.3d at 758; Walker v. Anderson, 232 S.W.3d 899, 918 (Tex. App. – Dallas 2007, no pet.); Kwasneski v. Williams (In re Williams), 2011 WL 240466, at 1 (Bankr. W.D. Tex., Jan. 24, 2011). . . .*
>
> Absent a decision by the Supreme Court of Texas to address the impact of § 21.223 upon the common law jurisprudence in this area, Miller and Leyendecker remain sound law and the common law principle that an individual acting as a corporate agent may be held individually liable for knowingly engaging in tortious conduct retains its viability.

See In Re Jamieson, 2021 WL 438868 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. February 8, 2021).

The Company's position that Texas law does not recognize claims or causes of action asserted against officers and directors or a corporation is simply not accurate. The fact of the matter is that under Texas law any director or officer participating in a negligent act that causes damage may be held liable for such damages.

For the reasons stated above, the fact is the D&Os failed to the steps necessary to ensure that the Just Energy Entities could or would take the steps necessary to protect the Claimants from the damages that would foreseeably flow from a weather event such as Winter Storm Uri. Further particulars of such failures are detailed in Claimants' Pre-Filing Proof of Claim and their Dispute to Notice of Revision or Disallowance filed in respect of the Claimants' Pre-Filing Claims.

The only way for Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders to provide voting instructions in connection with the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting is by submitting a Subordinated Noteholder VIF (or other applicable form provided by their Participant Holder) to their Participant Holder to instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to the Subordinated Noteholder's Voting Claim.

Quorum

The quorum for each Meeting will be as follows:

(a) at the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class, at least one Secured Creditor with an Accepted Claim; and

The form of resolution to approve the Plan is attached as Schedule "B" hereto.

Entitlement to Vote

The following Creditors are entitled to vote at the applicable Meeting and will be calculated as follows:

In respect of the Meeting of the Unsecured Creditor Class:

(a) the Unsecured Creditors (other than the Subject Class Action Plaintiffs, the holder(s) of the Texas Power Interruption Claim and Term Loan Claim Holders and the Subordinated Noteholder, but including, for greater certainty, other General Unsecured Creditors) with Voting Claims will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of such Unsecured Creditor's Affected Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(b) each Term Loan Claim Holder will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of such Term Loan Claim Holder's Pro Rata Share of the Term Loan Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(c) the Subordinated Noteholder will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of the Subordinated Note Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(d) the Subject Class Action Plaintiffs with Voting Claims will be entitled, as applicable: (a) to one (1) vote per certified Subject Class Action Plaintiff in the amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00; and (b) to one (1) vote per uncertified Subject Class Action Plaintiff in an amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00, in each case, without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Claims for distribution purposes;

(e) the Texas Power Interruption Claimants' Counsel, in respect of the Texas Power Interruption Claim, will be entitled to one (1) vote in the amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00, without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Claims for distribution purposes; and

(f) except as otherwise provided for in the Meetings Order, each Affected Creditor with a Disputed Claim against the Just Energy Entities as at the Record Date will be entitled to one (1) vote at the applicable Meeting in the amount equal to the dollar value for such Disputed Claim as set out in (i) the Negative Notice Claims Package or (ii) the Disputed Claim acceptance value for voting purposes, prepared in consultation with the Monitor, as applicable, sent to the holder of such Disputed Claim or, if no such Negative Notice Claims Package or Acceptance Value was sent, the value set forth in the corresponding Proof of Claim (provided that duplicative Proofs of Claim shall be excluded), without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Affected Creditor's Disputed Claim for distribution purposes. Any vote cast in respect of a Disputed Claim shall be dealt with in accordance with paragraph 57 of the Meetings Order, unless and until (and then only to the extent that) such Disputed Claim is ultimately determined to be: (i) an Accepted Claim, in which case such vote shall have the dollar value attributable to such Accepted Claim; or (ii) a Disallowed Claim, in which case such vote shall be disregarded and not counted for any purpose.

Any Convenience Creditor that holds a Convenience Claim, being an Accepted Claim in an amount that is less than or equal to $1,500, or a Creditor who properly elects to be a Convenience Creditor by making a valid Distribution Election for purposes of the Plan in accordance with the Meetings Order, will be deemed to have voted as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in favour of the Plan in the amount of such Convenience Creditor's Accepted Claim.

In respect of the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class, each Credit Facility Lender with a Voting Claim will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Secured Creditor Class in the dollar amount equal to such Credit Facility Lender's Pro Rata Share of the Credit Facility Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order.

Majorities

The Plan must receive an affirmative vote of the Required Majorities at each Meeting in order to be approved by the Affected Creditors. Subject to paragraph 56 and 57 of the Meetings Order, for the purpose of calculating the two-thirds majority in value of Voting Claims at each Meeting, the aggregate amount of Voting Claims of all Affected Creditors that vote in favour of the Plan (in person or by proxy) at the Meeting shall be divided by the aggregate amount of all Voting Claims of all Affected Creditors that vote on the Plan (in person or by proxy) at the Meeting.

Voting by Proxy or Voting Instruction Form

Any General Unsecured Creditor (other than a Subordinated Noteholder) that is entitled to vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting may vote by: (a) attending the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in this Information Statement or at such Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, or (b) by proxy, in which case such General Unsecured Creditor must: (i) duly complete and sign an Unsecured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Unsecured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such General Unsecured Creditor; and (iii) deliver such Unsecured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Unsecured Creditor Proxy.

Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders do not hold a Voting Claim and cannot vote directly at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting. The only way for Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders to provide voting instructions in connection with the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting is by submitting a Subordinated Noteholder VIF (or other applicable form provided by their Participant Holder) to their Participant Holder to instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to the Subordinated Noteholder's Voting Claim. Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders may instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to how the Subordinated Noteholder should vote its Voting Claim by: (i) duly completing and signing a Subordinated Noteholder VIF or such other documentation as the Participant Holder may customarily request for purposes of obtaining voting instructions; and (ii) delivering such Subordinated Noteholder VIF or other documentation to their Participant Holder so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is three Business Days before the Meetings, or such earlier deadline that their Participant Holder may require, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor, may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, in order to vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting. Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders should contact their Participant Holder and obtain and follow their Participant Holder's instructions with respect to the applicable voting instruction procedures and deadlines, which may be earlier than the deadlines that are applicable to other Affected Creditors. The Subordinated Noteholder may vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting by providing to the Just Energy Entities, through Unsecured Creditor Proxies or voting instructions otherwise communicated in accordance with the Subordinated Noteholder's customary procedures received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. on the day that is two Business Days before the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting.

Term Loan Claim Holders that are entitled to vote at the Meeting of the Unsecured Creditor Class may vote by: (a) attending the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in this Information Statement or at such Unsecured Creditors' Meeting; or (b) by proxy, in which case such Term Loan Claim Holder must: (i) duly complete and sign an Unsecured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Unsecured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such Term Loan Claim Holder; and (iii) deliver such Unsecured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, with the consent of the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor (not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Unsecured Creditor Proxy.

Secured Creditors entitled to vote at the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class may vote by: (a) attending the Secured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in the Information Statement or at such Secured Creditors' Meeting; or (b) by proxy, in which case such Secured Creditor must: (i) duly complete and sign an Secured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Secured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such Secured Creditor; and (iii) deliver such Secured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, with the consent of the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor (not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Secured Creditors' Meeting, and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Secured Creditor Proxy.

Disputed Claims

Each Affected Creditor with a Disputed Claim against the Just Energy Entities as at the Record Date (other than the Subordinated Noteholder, Subject Class Action Plaintiffs, the holder(s) of the Texas Power Interruption Claim, and Term Loan Claim Holders) will be entitled to attend the applicable Meeting and will be entitled to one vote at such Meeting in the amount equal to the dollar value for such Disputed Claim determined in accordance with the Meetings Order. Any vote cast in respect of a Disputed Claim will be dealt with in accordance with the Meetings Order.

The Monitor will keep a separate record of votes cast by Affected Creditors with Disputed Claims and will report to the Court with respect thereto at the Sanction Hearing. If approval or non-approval of the Plan by Affected Creditors would be affected by the votes cast in respect of Disputed Claims, such result shall be reported to the Court as soon as reasonably practicable after the Meetings. To the extent that a Disputed Claim is ultimately determined to be: (i) an Accepted Claim, a vote shall have the dollar value attributable to such Accepted Claim; or (ii) a Disallowed Claim, any vote shall be disregarded and not counted for any purpose.

Monitor Support

The Monitor supports the Applicants' request to convene the Meetings to consider and vote on the Plan.

CCAA PROCEEDINGS

Events Leading to the Commencement of CCAA Proceedings

2020 Recapitalization

On September 28, 2020, Just Energy completed a balance sheet recapitalization transaction (the "Recapitalization") through a plan of arrangement (the "Arrangement") under section 192 of the CBCA. The Arrangement was approved by a Final Order of the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) dated September 2, 2020 and the Recapitalization closed on September 28, 2020. The Recapitalization was the culmination of a year-long strategic review process and reflected a comprehensive plan to strengthen Just Energy's business.

Texas Weather Event

Despite continued improving performance since the closing of the Recapitalization, in February 2021, the State of Texas experienced extremely cold weather for an extended period of time (the "Weather Event"). The Weather Event led to significantly higher than normal customer demand while also causing significant electricity market supply to go offline from February 13, 2021 through February 20, 2021.

In response to the Weather Event, on February 15, 2021, the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") issued an order instructing ERCOT to artificially set the real time settlement price of power at US$9,000 per MWh for approximately 88 consecutive hours (in contrast, the real time electricity price did not hit US$9,000 per MWh for even one 15-minute interval in 2020). As a result, the Just Energy Entities were forced to balance power supply through ERCOT at these artificially set high electricity prices and significantly increased ancillary service costs. Just Energy estimated that it incurred losses and additional costs currently totaling over US$366 million as a result of the PUCT and ERCOT's actions and the Weather Event.

On March 5, 2021, Just Energy received three invoices for approximately US$123 million from ERCOT, of which approximately US$96 million had to be paid by end of day on March 9, 2021. On March 8, 2021, Just Energy received from ERCOT (i) a notice that it must post approximately US$26 million of additional collateral within two business days; and (ii) three invoices for approximately US$25 million, of which approximately US$19 million was due by March 10, 2021. The Just Energy Entities did not have enough liquidity to pay that amount and, if the amount due was not paid, ERCOT could have transferred all of the Just Energy Entities' customers in Texas to a provider of last resort.

CCAA Filing and Chapter 15 Recognition

Due to the losses sustained as a result of the Weather Event and without sufficient liquidity to pay the corresponding invoices from ERCOT when due, on March 9, 2021 (the "Filing Date"), Just Energy and certain of the Just Energy Entities (collectively, the "Applicants") applied for and received creditor protection pursuant to an initial order (as amended and restated on March 19, 2021 and further amended and restated on May 26, 2021, the "Initial Order") under the CCAA from the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) (the "CCAA Court"), which Initial Order has been recognized under Chapter 15 in the United States from the Bankruptcy Court of the Southern District of Texas, Houston Division. This relief has allowed the Just Energy Entities to operate while they restructure their capital structure.

As part of the CCAA filing, the Just Energy Entities entered into the DIP Term Sheet. The Just Energy Entities also entered into Qualified Support Agreements with their largest commodity supplier and ISO services provider, as well as a Lender Support Agreement with lenders under the Credit Agreement. The CCAA filing and associated DIP Term Sheet arranged by the Company, together with the Qualified Support Agreements, have enabled the Just Energy Entities to continue all operations and serve its approximately 950,000 customers without interruption throughout the U.S. and Canada and to continue making payments required by ERCOT and satisfy other regulatory obligations.

Certain Events Following the Commencement of the CCAA Proceedings

Initial Order Amendments

Since the Filing Date, the Applicants have sought and obtained extensions to the stay period (currently set to extend to August 19, 2022) and have obtained other amendments to facilitate their ongoing operations and restructuring efforts, including through authorization to expand the definition of "Qualified Commodity/ISO Supplier" to include new suppliers.

Claims Procedure

On September 15, 2021, the CCAA Court issued the Claims Procedure Order approving a claims procedure for the identification, quantification, and resolution of certain claims of creditors of the Just Energy Entities and their directors and officers (the "Claims Procedure"). Among other things, the Claims Procedure Order established the Claims Bar Date for any Person asserting a Pre-Filing Claim or a Pre-Filing D&O Claim or disputing a Negative Notice Claim of November 1, 2021. The Restructuring Period Claims Bar Date was set as the later of: (i) the November 1, 2021; and (ii) 30 days after the Monitor or Claims Agent sends the Negative Notice Claims Package or General Claims Package.

Since the granting of the Claims Procedure Order, the Just Energy Entities have, in conjunction with the Monitor, been administering the Claims Procedure, including by, among other things: (i) assisting the Monitor and the Claims Agent in their preparation and issuance of Negative Notice Claims Packages and General Claims Packages; and (ii) facilitating the publication of a Notice to Claimants in The Globe and Mail (National Edition), the Wall Street Journal, the Houston Chronicle and the Dallas Morning News.

The Just Energy Entities and the Monitor have worked diligently to review the Proofs of Claim and Notices of Dispute of Claim received to assess which claims require additional information, require revisions, can be resolved or settled, or may be accepted (in whole or in part) or must be rejected.

The procedure for determining the validity and quantum of the Affected Claims for voting and distribution purposes under the Plan will be governed by the Claims Procedure Order, the Meetings Order, the CCAA, the Plan and any further Order of the Court.

Texas Legislative Developments

On June 16, 2021, the Governor of Texas signed into law House Bill 4492 ("HB 4492"), which provides a mechanism for the partial recovery of certain costs incurred by certain Texas energy market participants, including certain of the Just Energy Entities, during the Weather Event.

HB 4492 addresses the securitization of (i) ancillary service charges above the system-wide offer cap of US$9,000/MWh during the Weather Event; (ii) reliability deployment price adders charged by ERCOT during the Weather Event; and (iii) amounts owed to ERCOT due to defaults by competitive market participants, which in turn resulted in short payments to market participants, including Just Energy (collectively, the "Costs").

Consistent with the requirements of HB 4492, ERCOT requested that the PUCT establish securitization financing mechanisms for the payment of the Costs incurred by load-serving entities, including certain of the Just Energy Entities. On October 13, 2021, PUCT signed final orders (the "PUCT Orders") approving the securitization and authorized ERCOT to issue US$2.9 billion of securitization bonds (in two separate tranches), the proceeds of which will be used to repay the Costs. No party appealed the PUCT order by the November 1, 2021 deadline and therefore, the PUCT Orders are considered non-appealable.

On December 7, 2021, ERCOT filed its calculation of the Costs with PUCT in accordance with HB 4492. Based on ERCOT's calculations, the Just Energy Entities anticipate recovering approximately US$147.5 million of the Costs from ERCOT.

Ecobee Transaction

Just Management Corp. ("JMC"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Just Energy, previously owned shares in ecobee Limited ("ecobee"). On December 1, 2021, Generac Holdings Inc. ("Generac") completed the acquisition of ecobee, including all of the ecobee shares held by Just Energy prior to closing of such transaction. Immediately prior to closing, JMC transferred the ecobee shares held by it to Just Energy in accordance with the Court Order dated September 15, 2021. On the closing of the ecobee transaction, Just Energy received approximately $15.6 million in cash and 80,281 common shares of Generac. Just Energy has subsequently sold the Generac shares for net proceeds of approximately $36 million.

Background to Plan

The Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of legal counsel and BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. as financial advisor (the "Financial Advisor"), and in consultation with the Monitor, have continued their restructuring efforts with a focus on developing a restructuring plan that facilitates emergence from the CCAA Proceedings, preserves the going concern value of the business, maintains customer service and relationships, and preserves employment and critical vendor relationships.

Since the stay period was extended on November 10, 2021, the Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of their legal and financial advisors, have been working in earnest to advance the Restructuring. Throughout the past months, the Just Energy Entities have continued their extensive engagement with their most significant stakeholders, including the DIP Lender, the Credit Facility Lenders, and Shell, regarding a framework for the recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities and their respective businesses. Such extensive and ongoing engagement has been productive and resulted in: (a) the Just Energy Entities, the Credit Facility Lenders, the Plan Sponsor, Shell, and the BP Commodity/ISO Services Claimholder executing the Support Agreement on May 12, 2022; and (b) the Just Energy Entities finalizing the Plan for consideration by its creditors.

The Support Agreement, Plan and other related agreements (discussed further below) are the result of lengthy efforts by the Just Energy Entities to restructure for the benefit of their stakeholders, commencing with preparation and distribution of a business plan to the DIP Lenders, Shell, BP, and the Credit Facility Lenders on May 18, 2021. The detailed business plan accounted for changes caused by the Weather Event to the businesses of the Just Energy Entities and was intended to assist key stakeholders in understanding, among other things, the operational projections, near and longer-term liquidity requirements, financial projections, and anticipated business operations of the Just Energy Group during, and upon emergence from, the current CCAA and Chapter 15 proceedings. The business plan was compiled by the Just Energy Entities to facilitate the participation of key stakeholders in the development of a restructuring plan.

Since the business plan was circulated in May 2021, the Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of their legal and financial advisors, have been working to reach consensus with their major stakeholders regarding the terms and structure of a restructuring plan to facilitate the Just Energy Entities' emergence from the current CCAA and Chapter 15 proceedings in a manner which, among other things: (a) preserves the going concern value of the Just Energy Entities' businesses for the benefit of stakeholders; (b) maintains relations with key Commodity Suppliers to ensure uninterrupted supply for the Just Energy Entities' customers; (c) preserves the ongoing employment of most of the Just Energy Group's approximately 1,100 employees and independent contractors; and (d) maintains critical relationships between the Just Energy Entities and regulators across Canada and the United States and other business-critical stakeholders.

The lengthy and determined efforts of the Just Energy Entities to develop restructuring terms which achieve the foregoing objectives resulted in the development of the Plan and the execution of the Support Agreement, Backstop Commitment Letter, and other transaction-related documents by the Just Energy Entities, the Plan Sponsors and other significant stakeholders. A summary of the Support Agreement, Backstop Commitment Letter and other transaction-related documents, together with a detailed discussion regarding the Plan is provided below.

The key terms of the Support Agreement and the Backstop Commitment Letter are summarized herein under Support Agreement and Backstop Commitment Letter.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Backstop Party's Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable are being offered and sold exclusively to the Participating Term Loan Claimants and, if applicable, the Backstop Parties, in reliance on the exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act set forth in Section 4(a)(2) thereof (such New Equity Offering Shares and New Share, the "4(a) (2) Securities").

Pursuant to Section 1145, the offering, issuance, and distribution of the 1145 Securities shall be exempt from, among other things, the registration and prospectus delivery requirements of section 5 of the U.S. Securities Act and any other applicable U.S. federal, state, local or other law requiring registration prior to the offering, issuance, distribution, or sale of the 1145 Securities. Each of the 1145 Securities, (a) will not be "restricted securities" as defined in rule 144(a)(3) under the U.S. Securities Act; and (b) will be freely tradable and transferable in the United States by each recipient thereof that (i) is an entity that is not an "underwriter" as defined in section 1145(b)(1) of the U.S. Bankruptcy Rules, (ii) is not an "affiliate" of New Just Energy Parent as defined in Rule 144(a)(1) under the U.S. Securities Act, (iii) has not been such an "affiliate" within ninety (90) days of the time of the transfer, and (iv) has not acquired such securities from such an "affiliate" within one year of the time of transfer. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the 1145 Securities remain subject to compliance with applicable securities laws and any rules and regulations of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, if any, applicable at the time of any future transfer of such 1145 Securities and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

The 4(a)(2) Securities will be issued without registration under the U.S. Securities Act in reliance upon the exemption set forth in section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, Regulation D and/or Regulation S (and similar registration exemptions applicable outside of the United States). Any New Shares issued in reliance on Section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, including in compliance with Rule 506 of Regulation D, and/or Regulation S will be "restricted securities" subject to resale restrictions and may be resold, exchanged, assigned or otherwise transferred only pursuant to registration, or an applicable exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act and other Applicable Law, including state securities laws and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

The Just Energy Entities recommend that potential recipients of New Shares issued under the Plan consult their own counsel concerning the potential recipients' ability to freely trade such New Shares in compliance with the federal securities laws and any applicable "blue sky" laws. The Just Energy Entities make no representation concerning the ability of any person to dispose of such New Shares.

Distributions in respect of Transferred Claims

The Just Energy Entities and the Monitor shall not be obligated to deliver any distributions under the Plan to any transferee of the whole of an Affected Claim unless a Proof of Assignment has been delivered to the Monitor no later than the Initial Distribution Record Date or, in the case of a Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holder, the Term Loan Record Date.

If any Creditor entitled to a distribution pursuant to the Plan cannot be located by the Monitor on the applicable Distribution Date, or if any Creditor's distribution under the Plan is returned as undeliverable (an "Undeliverable Distribution"), no further distributions to such Creditor shall be made unless and until the Monitor is notified by such Creditor of such Creditor's current address, at which time all such distributions shall be made to such Creditor. If such Creditor cannot be located by the Monitor or if any delivery or distribution to be made pursuant to the Plan is returned as undeliverable, or in the case of any distribution made by cheque, the cheque remains uncashed, for a period of more than six (6) months after the applicable Distribution Date or the date of delivery or mailing of the cheque, whichever is later, the Claim of any Creditor with respect to such undelivered or unclaimed distribution shall be discharged and forever barred, notwithstanding any Applicable Law to the contrary, and any such cash allocable to the undeliverable or unclaimed distribution shall be released and returned by the Monitor to New Just Energy Parent or its designee, free and clear of any claims of such Creditor or any other Creditors and their respective successors and assigns. Nothing contained in the Plan shall require the Just Energy Entities, New Just Energy Parent or the Monitor to attempt to locate any holder of any Undeliverable Distributions.

Treatment of D&O Claims

All Released D&O Claims will be fully, finally and irrevocably compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date. All D&O Indemnity Claims shall be treated for all purposes under the Plan as General Unsecured Creditor Claims and shall be fully, finally, and irrevocably compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date.

All Non-Released D&O Claims shall not be compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date, but shall be irrevocably limited to recovery from any insurance proceeds payable in respect of such Non-Released D&O Claims pursuant to the Insurance Policies, and Persons with such Non-Released D&O Claims shall have no right to, and shall not, make any claim or seek any recoveries other than enforcing such Persons' rights to be paid from the proceeds of the applicable Insurance Policies by the applicable insurer(s).

Treatment of De Minimis Claims

No holder of an Accepted Claim that is less than $10 (a "De Minimis Claim") shall be entitled to or receive any distributions pursuant to the Plan in respect of such De Minimis Claim, and all such De Minimis Claims shall be fully, finally, irrevocably and forever compromised, released, discharged, cancelled and barred, and shall be treated as such in the calculation of any Pro Rata Share under the Plan.

Treatment of Unaffected Claims

Unaffected Claims shall not be compromised under the Plan. No holder of an Unaffected Claim shall: (a) be treated as a Convenience Creditor; (b) be entitled to vote on the Plan or attend at any of the Meetings in respect of such Unaffected Claim; or (c) be entitled to or receive any payments or distributions, or be subject to any compromise or settlement, pursuant to the Plan in respect of such Unaffected Claim, unless specifically provided for under and pursuant to the Plan, including without limitation, pursuant to Section 3.6, Section 5.4(a)(v) and Section 11.3 of the Plan.

of set-off, option, dilution or other remedy) or remedy under or in respect of any such obligation or agreement, by reason: (i) of any event which occurred prior to, and not continuing after, the Effective Date, or which is or continues to be suspended or waived under the Plan, which would have entitled such party to enforce those rights or remedies, (ii) that the Just Energy Entities have sought or obtained relief or have taken steps as part of the Plan or under the CCAA or Chapter 15, or that the Plan has been implemented by the Just Energy Entities, (iii) of any default or event of default arising as a result of the financial condition or insolvency of the Just Energy Entities, (iv) of any change of control of the Just Energy Entities arising from implementation of the Plan, (v) of the effect upon the Just Energy Entities of the completion of any of the transactions contemplated by the Plan, or (vi) of any compromises, settlements, restructurings, recapitalizations or reorganizations effected pursuant to the Plan; and declares that no Person shall discontinue, fail to honour, alter, interfere with, repudiate, terminate or cease to perform any non-competition agreement or obligation, provided that such agreement shall terminate or expire in accordance with the terms thereof or as otherwise agreed by the Just Energy Entities and the applicable Persons;

(f) authorize the establishment of the Plan Implementation Fund with the Monitor and authorizes the Monitor to perform its functions and fulfil its obligations under the Plan and to facilitate the implementation of the Plan on and after the Effective Date, including matters relating to the resolution of Disputed Claims, distributions and payments from the Plan Implementation Fund and the termination of the CCAA Proceeding and the Chapter 15 Proceeding;

(g) subject to the payment of the amounts secured thereby, declares, except for the Administration Charge which shall continue against the Administrative Expense Reserve, all CCAA Charges, shall be terminated, released and discharged effective on the Effective Date;

(h) provide the basis for an exemption from the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act in respect of the distribution of the New Shares pursuant to Section 1145 and section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, in each case, as described in Section 5.3(g) to 5.3(i) of the Plan;

(i) declares all Accepted Claims and Disallowed Claims determined in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order are final and binding on the Just Energy Entities and all Creditors and that all Encumbrances of Affected Creditors (other than Encumbrances in respect of Unaffected Claims, the New Credit Facility and the New Intercreditor Agreement), including all security registrations in respect thereof, are discharged and extinguished, and the Just Energy Entities or their counsel shall be authorized and permitted to file discharges and full terminations of all related filings (whether pursuant to personal property security legislation or otherwise) against the Just Energy Entities in any jurisdiction without any further action or consent required whatsoever;

(j) declare any Claims that have been preserved in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order against Directors that cannot be compromised due to the provisions of section 5.1(2) of the CCAA will be limited in recovery to the proceeds of any Insurance Policy;

CERTAIN REGULATORY MATTERS RELATING TO THE PLAN

Canada

Resale of Securities

The Just Energy Entities intend that the issuance and distribution of all the New Common Shares and New Preferred Shares under the Plan shall qualify for exemption from the prospectus and registration requirements of Canadian Securities Laws on the basis of the exemption provided in section 2.11 of National Instrument 45-106 – Prospectus Exemptions. As a consequence of this exemption, certain protections, rights and remedies provided by Canadian securities legislation, including statutory rights of rescission or damages, will not be available in respect of such new securities to be issued in connection with the Plan.

The New Common Shares and New Preferred Shares will be subject to restrictions on transfer in Canada. New Just Energy Parent is not, and will not be following the Effective Date, a reporting issuer (or equivalent) in any province or territory of Canada and New Just Energy Parent's securities will not be listed on any stock exchange in Canada and have not been and will not be qualified for sale to the public under any applicable Canadian Securities Laws. Any resale of the New Common Shares or New Preferred Shares in Canada must be made in accordance with applicable securities laws, which will vary depending on the relevant jurisdiction, and which may require resales to be made under available statutory exemptions or under a discretionary exemption granted by the applicable Canadian Securities Commissions.

As a reporting issuer or its equivalent in each of the provinces and territories of Canada, the Company is subject to applicable Canadian Securities Laws, including Multilateral Instrument 61-101 – Protection of Minority Security Holders in Special Transactions ("MI 61-101"). MI 61-101 is intended to regulate certain transactions to ensure the protection and fair treatment of securityholders by requiring enhanced disclosure, approval by a majority of securityholders (excluding interested or related parties) and, in certain cases, an independent valuation.

The protections afforded by MI 61-101 apply to, among other transactions, "related party transactions" (as defined in MI 61-101), which include issuances of securities to "related parties" of the issuer (as defined in MI 61-101).

As the Plan Sponsor is a control person of the Company, it is considered a "related party" of the Company for the purposes of MI 61-101. Accordingly, the issuance of shares and the payment of other consideration to the Plan Sponsor pursuant to the Plan, the Backstop Commitment Letter and the Support Agreement will be considered a "related party transaction" and/or a "business combination" within the meaning of MI 61-101. The Company is not subject to the requirements of MI 61-101 to prepare a formal valuation as its shares are not listed for trading on certain specified markets. The Company has advised the Court of the requirements of MI 61-101 regarding minority approval of related party transactions and business combinations and the Court has determined, in accordance with the CCAA, that a meeting of the shareholders of the Company is not required to be held in order to approve the Plan.

United States

The offering, issuance and distribution of New Shares pursuant to the Plan and the other transactions contemplated by the Support Agreement (excluding the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable) shall qualify for exemption from, among other things, the registration requirements of section 5 of the U.S. Securities Act any other applicable law requiring registration prior to the offering, issuance, distribution, or sale of New Shares in accordance with, and pursuant to, section 1145 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, and any other registration rights applicable outside the United States. Each of the 1145 Securities, (a) will not be "restricted securities" as defined in rule 144(a)(3) under the U.S. Securities Act and (b) will be freely tradable and transferable in the United States by each recipient thereof that (i) is an entity that is not an "underwriter" as defined in section 1145(b)(1) of the U.S. Bankruptcy Rules, (ii) is not an "affiliate" of New Just Energy Parent as defined in Rule 144(a)(1) under the U.S. Securities Act, (iii) has not been such an "affiliate" within 90 days of the time of the transfer, and (iv) has not acquired such securities from such an "affiliate" within one year of the time of transfer. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the 1145 Securities remain subject to compliance with applicable securities laws and any rules and regulations of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, if any, applicable at the time of any future transfer of such 1145 Securities and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable, are being offered and sold exclusively to the Participating Term Loan Claimants and, if applicable, the Backstop Parties, in reliance on the exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act set forth in Section 4(a)(2) thereof, which exempts transactions by an issuer not involving any public offering.

Any New Shares issued in reliance on Section 4(a)(2), including in compliance with Rule 506 of Regulation D, and/or Regulation S, will be "restricted securities" subject to resale restrictions and may be resold, exchanged, assigned or otherwise transferred only pursuant to registration, or an applicable exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act and other applicable law, including state securities laws and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

Any resale of New Shares by an "affiliate" (or former "affiliate") of New Just Energy Parent may be subject to the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act, absent an exemption or exclusion therefrom. The enforcement by investors of civil liabilities under the U.S. securities laws may be affected adversely by the fact that certain of the Just Energy Entities are organized under the laws of Canada and that substantial portions of the assets of the Just Energy Entities are located outside the United States. As a result, it may be difficult or impossible for holders of New Shares to realize upon judgments of courts of the United States predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States against the Just Energy Entities. In addition, holders of New Shares should not assume that the courts of Canada: (i) would enforce judgments of United States courts obtained in actions against such persons predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States; or (ii) would enforce, in original actions, liabilities against such persons predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States.

RISK FACTORS

In addition to the other information set forth and incorporated by reference in this Information Statement, Affected Creditors should carefully review the following risk factors before deciding whether to approve the Plan.

Certain risk factors relating to the business and securities of the Company are contained in the 2021 MD&A and the 2021 Annual Information Form, which are incorporated by reference in this Information Statement and which has been publicly filed on SEDAR at www.sedar.com and on the website of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission at www.sec.gov, and are available on the Company's website at https://investors.justenergy.com. Affected Creditors should review and carefully consider the risk factors set forth in the 2021 MD&A and consider all other information contained therein and herein and in the Company's other public filings before determining how to vote on the Plan.

Risks Relating to the Plan and the Restructuring

The Plan may not be implemented

The Just Energy Entities will not implement the Plan unless and until all conditions precedent to the Plan, some of which are not under the control of the Just Energy Entities, are satisfied or waived. See Implementation of the Plan – Conditions to Plan Implementation. There can be no certainty, nor can the Just Energy Entities provide any assurance, that all conditions precedent to the Plan will be satisfied or waived, nor can there be any certainty of the timing of their satisfaction or waiver. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, there is a risk that the aggregate amount of the New Equity Offering Proceeds and Cash on Hand will be less than the total amount to be paid, distributed or reserved for or from any source by the Just Energy Entities in order to implement the Plan. Accordingly, there is a risk that more capital may be required in order for the Just Energy Entities to be able to implement the Plan, and there is no certainty that (i) such capital will be available, (ii) the terms on which it may be provided, or (iii) the impact it will have on the Just Energy Entities' stakeholders.

Consummation of the Plan is subject to Affected Creditors' acceptance and approvals of the Court and the U.S. Court

Before the Plan can be consummated, it must have been approved by the Required Majorities and sanctioned, after notice and a hearing on any objection, by the Court, and the U.S. Court must enter a Sanction Recognition Order. There can be no assurance that the Plan will be approved by the Required Majorities, and that even if approved, that the Court will sanction the Plan or that the U.S. Court will enter a Sanction Recognition Order. The failure of any of these conditions will delay or prevent the consummation of the Plan. There can be no assurance that other creditors, securityholders or third parties will not seek to challenge, oppose or delay the implementation of the Plan.

Necessary Governmental Approvals May Not Be Granted

Consummation of the Restructuring depends upon receipt of the applicable Transaction Regulatory Approvals. Failure by any Governmental Entity to grant a necessary approval could prevent consummation of the Restructuring and implementation of the Plan.

The actual amount of Accepted Claims may differ from the estimates herein and adversely affect the percentage recovery of each individual General Unsecured Creditors

Affected Creditors that have Disputed Claims will not be entitled to receive a distribution under the Plan in respect of such Disputed Claim or any portion thereof unless and until such Disputed Claim becomes an Accepted Claim. The Monitor may, but shall not be obligated to, make any distribution to the General Unsecured Creditors before all Disputed Claims have been finally resolved for distribution purposes in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order or further Order. To the extent that Disputed Claims become Accepted Claims, such Disputed Claims that become Accepted Claims may materially adversely affect the percentage recovery of each individual General Unsecured Creditor. Certain of the Disputed Claims which the Company believes are meritless seek significantly inflated sums.

Risks Relating to Non-Implementation of the Plan

The Just Energy Entities may be unable to continue as a going concern

If the Plan is not implemented and another plan is not proposed that meets the approval requirements of the CCAA and/or the Court, the Just Energy Entities may remain under CCAA protection for an indefinite period of time and their businesses could substantially erode or an insolvency proceeding involving the liquidation of the assets of the Just Energy entities with a view to recovering the amounts owing to the Just Energy Entities' creditors could result.

The Company is in default of certain of its obligations under the Credit Agreement

The Company is in default under its secured Credit Agreement. The stay granted by the Court in the CCAA Proceedings currently prevents any action being taken by holders of Credit Facility Claims. If the Plan is not completed, the CCAA stay of proceedings may not be continued, the holders of the Credit Facility Claims could pursue the remedies provided in the applicable credit documents and the CCAA Proceedings may terminate.

The Company may default under the terms of the DIP Term Sheet

The DIP Term Sheet provides for, among other things, a restructuring timeline and milestones. If the Plan is not completed on the timeline set forth in the Support Agreement, the Company will be in default of its obligations under the DIP Term Sheet and the DIP Lenders could pursue enforcement remedies against the Company.

A default under the DIP Term Sheet may also trigger termination rights by counterparties under the Qualified Support Agreements, enabling such counterparties to terminate delivery of physical and financial power and natural gas and other related services to the Just Energy Entities. Any termination of the Qualified Support Agreements could impact the ability of the Just Energy Entities to continue as a going concern.

RECOVERY ANALYSIS

Summary of Stakeholder Treatment under the Plan

The table below summarizes anticipated recovery under the Plan by various stakeholders. This summary is not exhaustive and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the terms of the Plan. In the event of a conflict between the description below and the terms of the Plan, the terms of the Plan (including all defined terms and other schedules and exhibits contained therein) shall govern for all purposes. See Description of the Plan – Treatment of Affected Claims.

Stakeholder Claim	Treatment under the Plan
DIP Lenders' Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the DIP Lenders' Claim will be repaid in full in cash in the amount of US$125 million plus accrued and outstanding fees, costs and interest through the Effective Date.
Commodity Supplier Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the Commodity Supplier Claim will be repaid in full in cash, including all accrued and unpaid interest up to the Effective Date.
BP Commodity / ISO Services Claim	Under the Plan, CBHT will voluntarily compromise its BP Commodity / ISO Services Claim of approximately US$229.5 million and $0.2 million, plus all accrued and unpaid interest thereon through the Effective Date, for preferred equity representing 100% of the New Preferred Shares of New Just Energy Parent, rather than cash recovery.
Credit Facility Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the Credit Facility Claim will be repaid in full in cash in the estimated amount of approximately US$43.3 million and $96.4 million, plus accrued default interest through the Effective Date, less the Credit Facility Remaining Debt (if any). Letters of credit that are issued but undrawn at the Effective Date will be rolled into the New Credit Facility.
Term Loan Claim	The Plan provides that Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holders will be entitled to receive their Pro Rata Share of 10% of the New Common Shares of the New Just Energy Parent and the ability to participate in the New Equity Offering, in satisfaction of the Term Loan Claim in the principal amount of US$208.6 million plus all accrued and outstanding pre-filing fees, costs, interest, or other amounts owing pursuant to the Term Loan Agreement. Each Non-Participating Term Loan Claim Holder will be entitled to receive its Non-Participating Term Loan Lender Pro Rata Share of the Turnover Amounts.
General Unsecured Creditor Claims	The Plan provides that General Unsecured Creditors with Accepted Claims will receive their Pro Rata Share of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool, less payments made to Convenience Creditors and permitted professional fees for post-Effective Date services relating to the Plan and the CCAA Proceedings. See Recovery by General Unsecured Creditors below.
Convenience Claims	The Plan provides that holders of Convenience Claims will be paid in full up to the maximum amount of $1,500.

Stakeholder Claim	Treatment under the Plan
Subordinated Note Claim	While holders of the Subordinated Note Claim will notionally receive their Pro Rata Share of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool under the Plan, this is subject to turnover requirements in the Subordinated Note Indenture and the Plan. See Recovery by Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders below.
De Minimis Claims	Holders of De Minimis Claims will receive no recovery under the Plan.
Equity Claims	Holders of Equity Claims will receive no recovery under the Plan.

Recovery by General Unsecured Creditors

While the precise recovery rate of the General Unsecured Creditors is not known at this time because the amount of the Accepted Claims and the amount of the residual cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool is not yet known, for purposes of considering the estimated recovery of General Unsecured Creditors under the Plan, the Just Energy Entities estimate that based on the best information available to management of the Just Energy Entities, their knowledge of the facts and issues underlying the most significant claims submitted within the Claims Procedure, and discussions with the Monitor:

(a) the range of General Unsecured Claims submitted within the Claims Procedure that will eventually become Accepted Claims, prior to taking into account litigation claims, is between approximately $65 million and $68 million, and the range of litigation claims submitted within the Claims Procedure that are likely to become Accepted Claims is between approximately $500,000 and $40 million, for a total estimated range of General Unsecured Claims (including litigation claims) that will eventually become Accepted Claims of between $66 million and $108 million; and

(b) the range of permitted fees and expenses that is expected to be paid from the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool is between $4 million and $7 million, which will cover, among other things, legal fees to be incurred in litigation undertaken post-Effective Date by the holders of Disputed Claims.

The eventual quantum of General Unsecured Claims that become Accepted Claims may exceed the upper end of the foregoing range, and the residual cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool after payment of permitted fees and expenses may be higher or lower than anticipated (depending on whether the holders of Disputed Claims engage in protracted litigation or settle such Disputed Claims expediently).

The illustrative recovery rate of General Unsecured Creditors has been reflected in the table below, assuming a residual amount of $2.5 million and $5.5 million of funds remaining in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool for distribution to General Unsecured Creditors (calculated as $10 million, less estimated Convenience Claims of $0.5 million, less estimated permitted fees and expenses of $7 million and $4 million, respectively), and in each case assuming Accepted Claims of $66 million and $108 million. These recovery rates are provided for illustrative purposes only and are not indicative of actual recoveries under the Plan.

Illustrative General Unsecured Creditor Recovery Table

Illustrative Residual Amount in General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool	$2.5 million		$5.5 million
Illustrative Accepted Claims (millions)	$66	$108	$66	$108
Illustrative Accepted Claim Recovery Rate	4.7%	2.6%	10.4%	5.8%

Recovery by Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders

The Subordinated Note Indenture governing the Subordinated Notes provides that the Subordinated Notes have been subordinated and postponed and are subject in right of payment to the full and final payment of all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined in the Subordinated Note Indenture). Accordingly, the Plan restricts the Monitor from making any distribution to Subordinated Noteholders or Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders until all persons entitled to turnover of such distributions pursuant to the terms of the Subordinated Note Indenture have been paid in full. As a result, Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders are not anticipated to receive any recovery under the Plan and their Subordinated Note Claim will be cancelled and extinguished.

CLAIMS PROCEDURE FOR NEGATIVE NOTICE CLAIMS

(A) Negative Notice Claims

22. THIS COURT ORDERS that if a Negative Notice Claimant wishes to dispute the amount or Characterization of its Negative Notice Claim as set out in the relevant Statement of Negative Notice Claim, the Negative Notice Claimant shall deliver to the Claims Agent or the Monitor a Notice of Dispute of Claim which must be received by the Claims Agent or the Monitor by no later than the applicable Bar Date. A Notice of Dispute of Claim may be submitted to the Claims Agent through the online portal on the Claims Agent's Website or otherwise delivered to the Claims Agent or the Monitor in accordance with paragraph 51 hereto. Such Negative Notice Claimant shall specify therein the details of the dispute with respect to its Claim.

23. THIS COURT ORDERS that if a Negative Notice Claimant does not deliver to the Claims Agent or the Monitor a completed Notice of Dispute of Claim such that it is received by the Claims Agent or the Monitor by the applicable Bar Date, disputing its Claims as set out in the Statement of Negative Notice Claim, then (a) such Negative Notice Claimant shall be deemed to have accepted the amount and Characterization of the Negative Notice Claimant's Claims as set out in the Statement of Negative Notice Claim, and (b) any and all of the Negative Notice Claimant's rights to dispute the Claims as determined in the Statement of Negative Notice Claim or to otherwise assert or pursue the Claims set out in the Statement of Negative Notice Claim other than as they are determined in such Statement of Negative Notice Claim shall be forever extinguished and barred without further act or notification. For greater certainty, nothing in this paragraph affects any separate and distinct Claims of a Negative Notice Claimant that are not captured in whole or in part in a Statement of Negative Notice Claim (and are separately asserted in a Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim submitted in accordance with this Order).

(B) Adjudication and Resolution of Negative Notice Claims

24. THIS COURT ORDERS that the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, shall review and record all Notices of Dispute of Claim that are received on or before the applicable Bar Date. 25. THIS COURT ORDERS that, subject to and in accordance with paragraph 24, if the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, disagree with the Claim as set out in the Notice of Dispute of Claim, the Just Energy Entities and the Monitor shall attempt to resolve such dispute and settle the purported Claim with the Negative Notice Claimant. In the event that a dispute is not settled within a time period or in a manner satisfactory to the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, the Just Energy Entities shall, at their election, refer the dispute raised in the Notice of Dispute of Claim to a Claims Officer or the Court for adjudication, and the Monitor shall send written notice of such referral to the Negative Notice Claimant.

27. THIS COURT ORDERS that any Claimant (other than any Negative Notice Claimant in respect of its Negative Notice Claim as set out in a Statement of Negative Notice Claim) that does not file a Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim, as applicable, in accordance with paragraph 26 so that such Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim is actually received by the Claims Agent or the Monitor on or before the Claims Bar Date, or such later date as the Monitor, in consultation with the Just Energy Entities, may agree in writing or the Court may otherwise direct:

(a) be and is hereby forever barred, estopped and enjoined from asserting or enforcing any such Pre-Filing Claim(s) or Pre-Filing D&O Claim(s) against the Just Energy Entities and all such Pre-Filing Claims or Pre-Filing D&O Claims shall be forever extinguished;

(b) will not be permitted to vote at any Meeting on account of such Pre-Filing Claim(s) or Pre-Filing D&O Claim(s);

30. THIS COURT ORDERS that any Claimant (other than any Negative Notice Claimant in respect of its Negative Notice Claim as set out in a Statement of Negative Notice Claim) that intends to assert a Restructuring Period Claim or Restructuring Period D&O Claim, that does not file a Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim, as applicable, in accordance with paragraph 29 so that such Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim is actually received by the Claims Agent or the Monitor on or before the Restructuring Period Claims Bar Date, or such later date as the Monitor, in consultation with the Just Energy Entities, may agree in writing or the Court may otherwise direct:

(b) will not be permitted to vote at any Meeting on account of such Restructuring Period Claim(s) or Restructuring Period D&O Claim(s);

(c) will not be entitled to receive further notice with respect to the Claims Process or these proceedings with respect to such Restructuring Period Claim(s) or Restructuring Period D&O Claim(s); and

If the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, determine that it is necessary to finally determine the amount and Characterization of any or all Claims against the Just Energy Entities (or any of them) or their directors and/or officers, the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, shall review and finally determine the amount and Characterization of all such Claims asserted in any Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim received on or before the applicable Bar Date in accordance with the adjudication and resolution process set out in this Order.

32. THIS COURT ORDERS that the Monitor shall make reasonable efforts to promptly deliver a copy of any D&O Proofs of Claim, Notices of Revision or Disallowance with respect to any D&O Claim, and Notices of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance with respect to any D&O Claim, to the applicable Directors and Officers named therein.

33. THIS COURT ORDERS that, subject to and in accordance with paragraph 31: (i) the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, shall accept, revise or reject each Claim set out in each Proof of Claim, and (ii) with respect to a D&O Claim set out in a D&O Proof of Claim, the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor and the applicable Directors and Officers named in respect of such D&O Claim, shall accept, revise or reject such D&O Claim, provided that the Just Energy Entities shall not accept or revise any portion of a D&O Claim absent consent of the applicable Directors and Officers or further Order of the Court.

34. THIS COURT ORDERS that, subject to and in accordance with paragraph 31, if the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor, agree with the amount and Characterization of the Claim as set out in any Proof of Claim or D&O Proof of Claim filed in accordance with paragraphs 26 or 29 herein and intend to accept the Claim in accordance with paragraph 33, the Monitor or the Claims Agent shall notify such Claimant of the acceptance of its Claim by the Just Energy Entities.

37. THIS COURT ORDERS that any Claimant who intends to dispute a Notice of Revision or Disallowance sent pursuant to paragraph 36 above shall deliver a completed Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance, along with the reasons for its dispute, to the Monitor by no later than thirty (30) days after the date on which the Claimant is deemed to receive the Notice of Revision or Disallowance, or such other date as may be agreed to by the Monitor, in consultation with the Just Energy Entities, in writing.

38. THIS COURT ORDERS that, where a Claimant who receives a Notice of Revision or Disallowance does not file a completed Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance by the time set out in paragraph 37 above, then such Claimant's Claim shall be deemed to be as determined in the Notice of Revision or Disallowance and any and all of the Claimant's rights to dispute the Claim as determined in the Notice of Revision or Disallowance or to otherwise assert or pursue such Claim other than as determined in the Notice of Revision or Disallowance shall be forever extinguished and barred without further act or notification.

39. THIS COURT ORDERS that upon receipt of a Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance in respect of a Claim, the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor and any applicable Directors or Officers, shall attempt to resolve such dispute and settle the purported Claim with the Claimant, and in the event that a dispute raised in a Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance is not settled within a time period or in a manner satisfactory to the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor and any applicable Directors or Officers, the Just Energy Entities shall, at their election, refer the dispute raised in the Notice of Dispute of Revision or Disallowance to a Claims Officer or the Court for adjudication, and the Monitor shall send written notice of such referral to the Claimant.

43. THIS COURT ORDERS that the decision as to whether a disputed Claim should be adjudicated by the Court or a Claims Officer shall be in the discretion of the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor.

44. THIS COURT ORDERS that, where a disputed Claim has been referred to a Claims Officer, the Claims Officer shall determine the validity and amount of such disputed Claim in accordance with this Order and, to the extent necessary, may determine whether any Claim or part thereof constitutes an Excluded Claim, and shall provide written reasons. Where a disputed Claim has been referred to a Claims Officer, the Claims Officer shall determine all procedural matters which may arise in respect of his or her determination of these matters, including any participation rights for any stakeholder and the manner in which any evidence may be adduced. The Claims Officer shall have the discretion to mediate any dispute that is referred to such Claims Officer at its election. The Claims Officer shall also have the discretion to determine by whom and to what extent the costs of any hearing or mediation before a Claims Officer shall be paid.

45. THIS COURT ORDERS that the Monitor, the Claimant, the applicable Just Energy Entity and/or, in respect of any D&O Claim, the relevant Directors or Officers, or any other stakeholder (if applicable) may, within ten (10) days of such party receiving notice of a Claims Officer's determination of the amount and Characterization of a Claimant's Claim or any other matter determined by the Claims Officer in accordance with paragraph 44, appeal such determination to the Court by filing a notice of appeal, and the appeal shall be initially returnable for scheduling purposes within ten (10) days of filing such notice of appeal.

NOTICE TO TRANSFEREES

47. THIS COURT ORDERS that from the date of this Order until seven (7) days prior to the date fixed by the Court for the first distribution in the CCAA Proceedings or any other proceeding, including a bankruptcy, to the extent required, leave is hereby granted to permit a Claimant to provide to the Claims Agent or the Monitor notice of assignment or transfer of a Claim to any third party.

Any such transferee or assignee of a Claim shall be bound by any notices given or steps taken or not taken in respect of such Claim in accordance with this Order prior to receipt by the Claims Agent or the Monitor and

AFFIDAVIT OF MARK CAIGER

I, Mark Caiger, of the City of Toronto, in the Province of Ontario, MAKE OATH AND SAY:

1. I am a Managing Director, Mergers & Acquisitions, at BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. ("BMO"). I have 30 years of transaction experience and have been working at BMO for more than 20 years. While at BMO, I have had a broad range of mergers and acquisitions and restructuring experience involving transaction values totaling in excess of $115 billion. Recapitalization/restructuring experience includes an aggregate transaction value that exceeds $34 billion and includes advisory assignments for AbitibiBowater, Call-Net Enterprises (Sprint Canada), Calpine Power Income Fund, Connacher Oil & Gas, MEG Energy, PostMedia, Sears Canada and Yellow Media, among others. I am a Chartered Professional Accountant and a CFA Charterholder and am a member of the Insolvency Institute of Canada (for which I previously served as a member of the Board of Directors).

2. BMO was engaged by Just Energy Group Inc. ("Just Energy") in late February 2021 as an independent financial advisor to assist Just Energy in dealing with the liquidity challenges it was facing following the unprecedented winter storm in February 2021 in Texas and to provide financial advisory services to, among other things, assist in exploring and evaluating potential transactional alternatives. BMO's engagement as financial advisor to Just Energy was approved by the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) (the "CCAA Court") in the Initial Order (the "Initial Order") granted March 9, 2021 (the "Filing Date").

3. Prior to BMO's engagement as financial advisor to Just Energy in February 2021, BMO had provided financial advisory services to Just Energy from March to September 2020 in respect of Just Energy's exploration and evaluation of potential transaction alternatives as part of a broader strategic review process undertaken by Just Energy commencing in mid-2019. The process concluded in Just Energy completing a balance sheet recapitalization transaction through a plan of arrangement under section 192 of the Canada Business Corporations Act on September 28, 2020.

4. I was a member of the BMO senior advisory team on both assignments for Just Energy and as such, I have personal knowledge of the matters deposed to in this affidavit. Where I have relied on other sources for information, I have stated the source of my information and I believe such information to be true.

5. All terms used but not otherwise defined herein have the meanings given to such terms in the Just Energy Entities' proposed CCAA Plan of Compromise and Arrangement, dated May 26, 2022 (the "Plan") or the Support Agreement between the Just Energy Entities, the Plan Sponsor, CBHT Energy I LLC ("CBHT"), Shell, certain Term Loan Lenders, and the Credit Facility Lenders, dated May 12, 2022 (the "Support Agreement").

6. All references to monetary amounts in this affidavit are in Canadian dollars unless noted otherwise. United States dollars have been converted to Canadian dollars using an exchange rate of C$1.27 per US$1.00[1].

A. Effect of the Proposed Restructuring Plan

7. The proposed restructuring plan, as described in the affidavit of Michael Carter, Chief Financial Officer of Just Energy (the "Carter Affidavit") and in the Just Energy Entities' Press Release, will, if implemented:

(a) repay more than $550 million of secured claims with cash including the proceeds of a US$192.55 million ($244.5 million) backstopped New Equity Offering;

(b) convert more than US$229 million plus accrued interest ($315.7 million) of secured debt to preferred equity;

(c) extend Just Energy's credit facility to June 2025 and reduce such facility to $250 million;

[1] The daily average Canadian dollar / U.S. dollar exchange rate rounded to two decimal places on April 22, 2022, as reported on the Bank of Canada website.

(d) settle more than $277 million of unsecured term loan claims and numerous other unsecured claims; and

(e) enable Just Energy to emerge from CCAA Court protection while maintaining stable business conditions with its employees, customers, suppliers and other continuing stakeholders.

A copy of the Just Energy Entities' Press Release is attached hereto as Exhibit "A".

B. Unsolicited Inquiries received by the Just Energy Entities

8. During the pendency of the CCAA proceedings, BMO and/or the Just Energy Entities have received unsolicited, confidential inquiries from 24 third parties regarding potential acquisition opportunities for all or portions of the Just Energy Entities' business[2], and from 3 third parties regarding potential plan sponsorship opportunities. In most cases, the inquiries were of a more general nature with little specificity provided and were targeting only narrow sub-components of the business. In all cases, BMO confirmed the nature of the third parties' respective interests in the Just Energy Entities and/or intended involvement in the Just Energy Entities' restructuring efforts, and the third parties' respective contact information for purposes of future communications. Prior to the Just Energy Entities entering into the Support Agreement, BMO contacted each third party to advise them of the expected filing of the Plan and the issuance of a press release by the Just Energy Entities.

[2] Three of the 24 parties entered into non-disclosure agreements with the Just Energy Entities and received confidential information disclosure. Two of the three parties engaged in extensive discussions with the Just Energy Entities.

C. Equivalence of Value in the Unsecured Creditor Class

9. The Plan is, in essence, a recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities by the Term Loan Lenders who will acquire 100% of the common equity of the New Just Energy Parent (subject to dilution from the MIP) by paying valuable consideration, including new capital of $244.5 million by means of the New Equity Offering and compromising approximately US$208.6 million ($277.7 million which includes accrued but unpaid interest and certain fees as of the Filing Date) Term Loan Claim.

10. The claims of the General Unsecured Creditors rank pari passu with the Term Loan Claim but General Unsecured Creditors will not receive any of the common equity and will not invest any new capital. Instead, the General Unsecured Creditors will receive, in satisfaction of their Accepted Claims, the residual cash remaining in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool after payment of all permitted fees and expenses therefrom.

11. The Plan affords General Unsecured Creditors equivalent value to that received by the holders of the Term Loan Claim when the value of the common equity acquired by the holders of the Term Loan Claim as a class, less the value of new capital invested, implies a recovery rate for the Term Loan Claim that is equivalent to the recovery rate afforded the General Unsecured Creditors from the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool.

12. The enterprise value of the Just Energy Entities at which the Plan is taking place results in an equivalent recovery rate as between the General Unsecured Creditors and the Term Loan Lenders and can be determined by calculating the enterprise value implied by the recovery rate of the General Unsecured Creditors.

13. If there is a party willing to provide a more favourable proposal than the transactions contemplated under the Plan, the Support Agreement contains "fiduciary out" provisions that are favourable to the Just Energy Entities that, for a period of time, permits them to consider an Alternative Restructuring Proposal that may be superior to the Plan, as described in more detail below.

14. The precise recovery rate of the General Unsecured Creditors is not known at this time because the amount of the Accepted Claims and the amount of the residual cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool is not yet known.

15. However, based on a set of reasonable assumptions, a number of which are enumerated below, the enterprise value of the Just Energy Entities implied by the Plan falls within a narrow range of between 4.8 and 5.1 times the mid-point of Just Energy Entities' 2023 estimated EBITDA ($115 - $125 million) ("Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA").[3]

16. A significant portion of this implied multiple range consists of the pro forma capital structure and the capital contributed to fund the Plan as depicted in the table below:

New Preferred Shares (at par value)[4]	$315.7
New Money Invested	244.5
Other (net)	21.7
Total	$581.9
Multiple Implied by Pro Forma Capital Structure / New Capital Contributed	4.85x

[3] Based on a current estimate provided by Just Energy's management.

[4] US$229.5 million plus C$0.2 million plus accrued interest to September 30,2022 converted at C$1.27/US$1.00.

17. Any recovery to unsecured creditors (whether they be General Unsecured Creditors or Term Loan Lenders) would be value that is incremental to the foregoing and would imply an enterprise value in excess of 4.85x Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA.

18. As mentioned above, the enterprise value of the Just Energy Entities implied by the Plan falls within a range that is, among other things, a function of the quantum of Accepted Claims and the residual amount of cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool:

(a) the higher the total quantum of Accepted Claims, and the lower the residual value of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool, the lower the implied enterprise value multiple will be; and

(b) the opposite is also true – the lower the total quantum of Accepted Claims, and the higher the residual value of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool, the higher the implied enterprise value multiple will be.

19. The implied enterprise value multiple range is narrow because, as shown above, the vast majority of the multiple is a function of the pro forma capital structure and the capital contributed to fund the Plan and, incrementally, it is not materially affected by whether the eventual General Unsecured Creditor Claims sharing in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool are at the low end or the high end of Just Energy's management's estimated range of approximately $66 million to $108 million (for Accepted Claims).

20. To demonstrate this concept, and for illustrative purposes only, two different assumptions regarding the quantum of funds remaining in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool for distribution to General Unsecured Creditors (the initial available amount being $9.5 million after deducting an estimated $0.5 million for payment of Convenience Claims) after payment of all permitted fees and expenses therefrom (estimated by Just Energy management to be in the range of $4 to $7 million) has been adopted for this analysis - $5.5 million and $2.5 million.

21. The illustrative recovery rate of General Unsecured Creditors has been reflected in the table below. To demonstrate the lack of sensitivity of the implied enterprise value multiple in the section below, an amount of Accepted Claims much higher than the range estimated by Just Energy's management has been added to the table ($500 million):

General Unsecured Recovery Table

Illustrative Residual Amount in General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool	$2.5 million			$5.5 million
Illustrative Accepted Claims (millions)	$66	$108	$500	$66	$108	$500
Illustrative Accepted Claim Recovery Rate	4.7%	2.6%	0.5%	10.4%	5.8%	1.1%
Implied Enterprise Value to Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA multiple	4.96x	4.91x	4.86x	5.09x	4.98x	4.87x

22. In each of the scenarios identified above, an enterprise value multiple to Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA can be calculated reflecting the Illustrative Accepted Claim Recovery Rate shown in the General Unsecured Recovery Table above and it can be seen in the Term Loan Lender Recovery Rate Table below that at this enterprise value multiple, the General Unsecured Recovery Rate is equivalent to the Term Loan Lender Recovery Rate.

23. It can also be seen in the Term Loan Lender Recovery Table below, that the multiples all fall within a narrow range of 4.8x to 5.1x. As mentioned above, to demonstrate the lack of sensitivity of the implied enterprise value multiple, an amount of Accepted Claims much higher than the range estimated by Just Energy's management has been added to the table ($500 million).

Term Loan Lender Recovery Table

Illustrative Residual Amount in General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool	$2.5 million			$5.5 million
Illustrative Accepted Claims (millions)	$66	$108	$500	$66	$108	$500
Implied Enterprise Value to Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA multiple	4.96x	4.91x	4.86x	5.09x	4.98x	4.87x
Implied Term Loan Lender Recovery Rate[5]	4.7%	2.6%	0.5%	10.4%	5.8%	1.1%

24. In summary, it can be seen from the foregoing that:

(a) the Plan is, at its most basic, a recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities by the

[5] For the small number of Term Loan Lenders who may choose not to participate in the New Equity Offering (Non-Participating Term Loan Claim Holders) the recovery rate will be different than is shown above (see paragraphs 72(a) and 74 of the Carter Affidavit).

Term Loan Lenders for valuable consideration that values the Just Energy Entities in a narrow range of approximately 4.8x and 5.1x Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA;

(b) given a range of reasonable assumptions, the Term Loan Lenders and General Unsecured Creditors (holding Accepted Claims) receive consideration that is of reasonably equivalent value although in different forms at enterprise values within this narrow value range;

(c) the foregoing transaction multiple analysis is, within reasonable ranges, not particularly sensitive to the amount of cash remaining in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool nor the amount of Accepted Claims, neither of which have been determined at this time; and

(d) if a different transaction arises that offers a materially higher enterprise value multiple the result, if such a transaction were implemented, would be a greater recovery available to the unsecured creditors (Term Loan Lenders and the General Unsecured Creditors (holding Accepted Claims)). The 62-day Voting Period under the Support Agreement is specifically crafted to allow any interested party to complete due diligence and submit a more favourable proposal to the Just Energy Entities than the Restructuring provided under the Plan.

D. Process under the Support Agreement and Plan

25. The Plan is the result of lengthy discussions between the Just Energy Entities and their significant stakeholders. It provides for the recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities, the equivalent treatment of unsecured creditors, and represents the best available proposal for the Just Energy Entities in the circumstances. However, as no formal sale process or canvassing of the market has been undertaken by the Just Energy Entities within the current CCAA proceedings, the Plan includes two significant safeguards.

26. First, the Support Agreement provides a 62-day period (the "Voting Period") between the milestone for mailing of the Meeting Materials to Creditors (June 1, 2022) and the deadline for the Creditors' Meetings (August 2, 2022) to allow any interested parties that may want to submit a bid for all or some of the Just Energy Entities' property or otherwise wish to propose a transaction more favourable than the Plan to complete due diligence and submit their proposal. If an interested party is of the view that the Just Energy Entities have value beyond that provided in the Plan, such party is expressly permitted to submit an Alternative Restructuring Proposal.

27. In BMO's experience and based on its knowledge of the Just Energy Entities' business and discussions with management, the 62-day Voting Period is sufficient to allow interested parties to complete all necessary due diligence and submit an Alternative Restructuring Proposal. Among other things:

(a) the pool of potential purchasers for the Just Energy Entities is limited in light of the capital intensive and highly specialized nature of the business and must have the financial backing to post sufficient collateral and access required supply of energy in the electricity and natural gas commodity markets;

(b) over the past 2.5 years, the business of the Just Energy Entities has been broadly marketed, both within and outside of a formal sales process. BMO understands that prior to its engagement in March 2020, significant due diligence was undertaken by various third parties;

(c) since the commencement of the CCAA proceedings, of the 24 unsolicited inquiries received by BMO/the Just Energy Entities, three parties engaged in due diligence in connection with potentially submitting a proposal for the purchase of substantially all of or a portion of the Just Energy Entities' business. The Just Energy Entities, in conjunction with BMO, facilitated multiple rounds of confidential information disclosure and engaged in extensive discussions with two of the three parties regarding the business, finances and operations of the Just Energy Entities. BMO was heavily involved in these processes and discussions. Notwithstanding the foregoing, none of the third parties submitted executable proposals to the Just Energy Entities that were superior to the restructuring; and

(d) BMO and Just Energy made inquiries of major stakeholders to obtain comfort that there are no arrangements that have been made by those stakeholders with third-parties in their capacity as a potential purchaser of all or part of the business of the Just Energy Entities that would cause such parties not to submit an Alternative Restructuring Proposal that they might otherwise be inclined to submit.

28. In light of the foregoing, BMO is of the view that the 62-day Voting Period provided in the Support Agreement for submission of Alternative Restructuring Proposals is sufficient from a process perspective. Such a period will allow due diligence to be undertaken (in addition to the significant due diligence which has already been made available to, and in many cases undertaken by, interested third parties) and for Alternative Restructuring Proposals to be submitted, negotiated and, if appropriate, finalized by the Just Energy Entities.

29. Second, the Support Agreement includes a broad "fiduciary out" provision which permits the Just Energy Board to terminate the Support Agreement if it determines, following receipt of advice from outside legal counsel and financial advisors, (a) that proceeding with the Restructuring would be inconsistent with the exercise of its fiduciary duties or applicable law or (b) in the exercise of its fiduciary duties, to pursue a Superior Proposal.

30. BMO has also read the "fiduciary out" in the Support Agreement. In BMO's experience, the provision is significantly broader than the standard "fiduciary out" provision found in most publicly announced Canadian transactions in the recent past. In particular, under the Support Agreement, the Just Energy Entities are permitted to provide access to non-public information pursuant to a confidentiality or nondisclosure agreement to, and engage in discussions with, any person that had made an inquiry with respect to an alternative transaction. Such person need not submit a written expression of interest or a Superior Proposal to engage the Just Energy Entities' broad participation and disclosure rights. A verbal inquiry is sufficient. Such provisions are exceptionally broad and, in BMO's experience, exceed the scope of market standard "fiduciary out" provisions in Canada over the past number of years.

31. In BMO's view, when taken as a whole, the Plan and the Support Agreement are both facilitative of market engagement by publicly disseminating the best currently available value for the Just Energy Entities as a multiple of Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA, while simultaneously preserving the process for submissions of an Alternative Restructuring Proposal or Superior Proposal by interested third parties, all for the benefit of the Just Energy Entities and their stakeholders.

E. Quantity of the Termination Fee

32. The Backstop Commitment Letter, dated May 12, 2022 among Just Energy (U.S.) Corp. ("Just Energy U.S.") and the Backstop Parties (the "Backstop Commitment Letter") provides for payment of a cash fee of US$15 million (C$19.1 million) (the "Termination Fee") to the Initial Backstop Parties and the Additional Backstop Parties, if any, if: (i) the Just Energy Entities terminate the Support Agreement on the basis that the Restructuring would be inconsistent with the exercise of the Just Energy Board's fiduciary duties or applicable law or to pursue a Superior Proposal, or (ii) the Plan Sponsor terminates the Support Agreement based on the Just Energy Board making the determination to proceed with, and accept, a definitive Alternative Restructuring Proposal or a definitive Superior Proposal.

33. The Termination Fee represents:

(a) 3.4% of the equity[6] to be contributed by the Plan Sponsor and CBHT to the restructuring of the Just Energy Entities under the Support Agreement and the Plan, and[7]

(b) 3.3% - 3.4% of the equity value (including preferred equity) that corresponds to the range of implied enterprise values discussed above.[8]

---

[6] (i) the aggregate subscription amount for the New Common Shares to be issued by the New Just Energy Parent under the New Equity Offering (C$244.5 million), plus (ii) the New Preferred Shares being issued to the BP Commodity/ISO Services Claimholder under the Plan having a par amount of approximately $315.7 million.

[7] $19.1 million Termination Fee / ($244.5 million (New Equity Offering) + $315.7 million New Preferred equity par Value) = 3.4%.

[8] $19.1 million Termination Fee / (common equity value range implied by an enterprise value to Estimated Fiscal 2023 EBITDA multiple of 4.9x – 5.1x of $245.9 - $270.4 million plus New Preferred equity par value of $315.7 million) = 3.3% - 3.4%

34. In BMO's experience, the quantum of the Termination Fee is in line with market terms and is reasonable in the circumstances. As shown in the table below, BMO has sampled 638 publicly announced transactions in Canada between 2007 and early April 2022, which sampling showed that 462 of the transactions (or 72%) included a termination/break fee of between 2.5% and 4.5% of market capitalization. Of these transactions:

(a) 107 (or 17%) termination/break fee of between 2.5% and 3.0%;

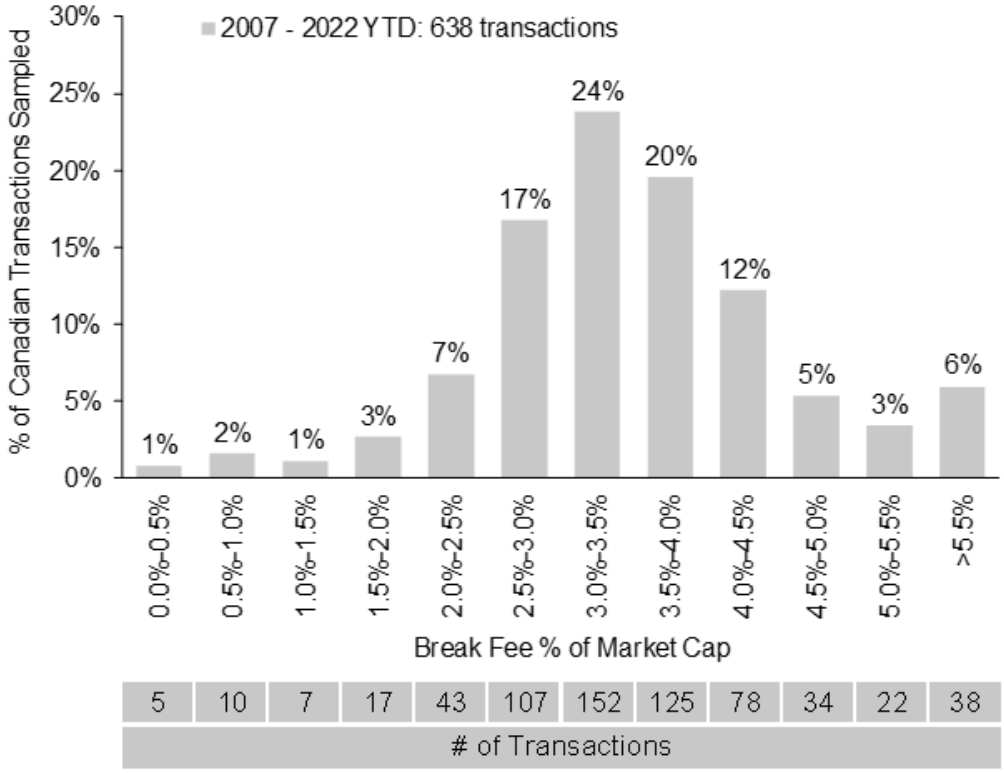
(b) 152 (or 24%) included a termination/break fee of between 3.0% and 3.5% (the equity-based metrics for the Termination Fee are in the 3.3% - 3.4% range and fall within this category);

(c) 125 (or 20%) included a termination/break fee of between 3.5% and 4.0%; and

(d) 78 (or 12%) termination/break fee of between 4.0% and 4.5%.

A table detailing the results of BMO's sampling is provided below:

BREAK FEE AS % OF MARKET CAPITALIZATION



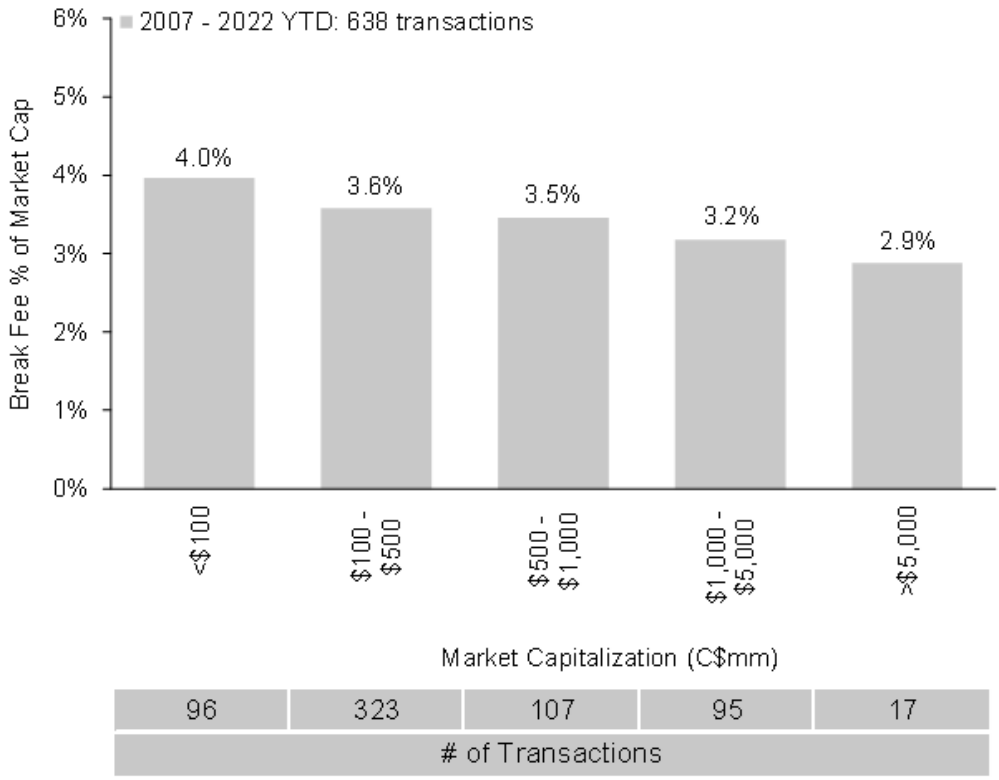
35. In addition to the foregoing, BMO has also sampled the termination/break fee data by market capitalization size for the same 638 transactions. Such sampling showed that the average termination/break fee:

(a) for transactions of between $100 million and $500 million was 3.6% of market capitalization; and

(b) for transactions between $500 million and $1 billion was 3.5% of market capitalization.

36. A table detailing these results, among others, is provided below:

BREAK FEE BY TRANSACTION SIZE



37. Based on the foregoing, the quantum of the Termination Fee accords with the average break fee percentage (2.5% to 4.5%) payable in the 638 publicly announced transactions sampled by BMO since 2007 and falls in the range of the average break fee percentage payable in transactions of comparable value.

38. In BMO's experience, the quantum of the Termination Fee is consistent with market practice.

Just Energy Announces Proposed Plan of Compromise and Arrangement and Execution of Support Agreement and Backstop Commitment Letter for Going Concern Restructuring

TORONTO, May 12, 2022 -- Just Energy Group Inc. ("Just Energy" or the "Company") (TSXV:JE; OTC:JENGQ), a retail energy provider specializing in electricity and natural gas commodities and bringing energy efficient solutions and renewable energy options to customers, today announced that it has entered into a Support Agreement and a Backstop Commitment Letter (each as defined below) with certain of its principal stakeholders, which provides for a comprehensive restructuring and recapitalization transaction that will be implemented pursuant to a plan of compromise and arrangement (the "Plan") under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act (the "CCAA"). The proposed Plan is the culmination of extensive negotiations among the Company, its DIP Lenders (as defined below), its credit facility lenders, certain of its secured commodity suppliers and unsecured term loan lenders. If approved, the Plan will result in Just Energy's emergence from CCAA proceedings and cases commenced under Chapter 15 of the United States Bankruptcy Code ("Chapter 15") pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of Texas (the "U.S. Court"), preserve the going concern value of the business, maintain customer relationships and retain employment and critical vendor and regulator relationships. The Plan provides that certain creditors will receive cash payments and/or equity in exchange for their debt, and existing equityholders' interests will be cancelled for no consideration.

Just Energy and certain of its affiliates (collectively, the "Just Energy Entities") intend to bring motions before the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) (the "Court") on May 26, 2022 for: (i) an Order (the "Meetings Order") that, among other things, approves of the holding of meetings (the "Meetings") of certain secured creditors (the "Secured Creditor Class") and unsecured creditors (the "Unsecured Creditor Class") to consider and vote on a resolution approving the Plan, and (ii) an Order (the "Authorization Order") that, among other things, approves of the execution by the applicable Just Energy Entities of a plan support agreement (the "Support Agreement") and backstop commitment letter (the "Backstop Commitment Letter"), each of which are described further below. The Just Energy Entities also intend to seek recognition in the U.S. of the Meetings Order and the Authorization Order in their Chapter 15 cases.

Additional information with respect to the Support Agreement, the Backstop Commitment Letter, the Plan and the Meetings, including instructions on how to vote at the Meetings, will be set forth in an information statement of the Just Energy Entities (the "Information Statement"), which is expected to be sent within seven days of the granting of the proposed Meetings Order or otherwise made available to creditors entitled to vote at the Meetings as of the applicable record dates. A copy of the Information Statement, Plan, Support Agreement and Backstop Commitment Letter will also be made available on the SEDAR website at www.sedar.com, on the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's website at www.sec.gov and on Just Energy's website at www.investors.justenergy.com.

As previously reported, FTI Consulting Canada Inc. (the "Monitor") is overseeing the Company's CCAA proceedings as court-appointed Monitor. Copies of the Information Statement, the Plan, certain related material documents and further information regarding the CCAA proceedings is available at the Monitor's website at http://cfcanada.fticonsulting.com/justenergy and at the Omni Agent Solutions case website at https://cases.omniagentsolutions.com/?clientId=3600.

Information about the CCAA proceedings generally can also be obtained by contacting the Monitor by phone at 416-649-8127 or 1-844-669-6340, or by email at justenergy@fticonsulting.com.

RESTRUCTURING & RECAPITALIZATION TRANSACTION

The Plan includes the following key elements:

- A US$192.55 million new equity offering (the "Equity Offering") for the purchase of 80% of the new common equity of New Just Energy Parent (as defined below), subject to dilution resulting from equity issued under New Just Energy Parent's new management incentive plan (the "MIP") the terms of which are attached to the Support Agreement.

- The repayment in full of amounts owing under the Company's first lien credit facility, other than up to CAD$20 million, which may remain outstanding under an amended and restated credit agreement following implementation of the Plan. The amended and restated credit agreement will provide for a CAD$250 million facility.

- Secured commodity supply claims will be unaffected.

- The pre-filing secured claims of BP Canada Energy Group ULC and BP Energy Company in the aggregate principal amounts of approximately US$229.5 million and CAD$0.2 million, plus accrued and unpaid interest thereon up to the implementation of the Plan (the "BP Claim"), which claims have been assigned to an affiliate of the Plan Sponsor (as defined below) will be exchanged for preferred equity of New Just Energy Parent having a redemption amount equal to the BP Claim, and entitling the holder to a 12.50% accreting yield for the first four years, increasing 1% annually thereafter and providing for such other terms as set forth in the term sheet appended to the Support Agreement.

- The claims of creditors ("Term Loan Claim Holders") in respect of approximately US$208.6 million principal amount outstanding under the Company's existing unsecured term loan agreement, plus accrued and outstanding pre-filing fees, costs, interest and other amounts owing thereunder, will be settled in exchange for 10% of the new common equity of New Just Energy Parent (subject to dilution from equity issued under the MIP).

- The opportunity for eligible Term Loan Claim Holders to participate in the Equity Offering and the backstop thereof.

- Applicable general unsecured creditors with accepted claims less than or equal to CAD$1,500 ("Convenience Creditors"), and other applicable general unsecured creditors who make an election to be treated as Convenience Creditors, will be paid in full up to CAD$1,500.

- Other general unsecured creditors will be entitled to payment in respect of their accepted claims based on their pro rata share of a general unsecured creditor cash pool in the amount of CAD$10 million, less amounts required to fund payments to Convenience Creditors and applicable fees and expenses, including with respect to the administration of the claims process within the CCAA proceedings and resolution of disputed claims.

- A modified corporate structure in which Just Energy (U.S.) Corp. or such other entity organized in the United States and determined in accordance with the Plan ("New Just Energy Parent") becomes the new parent company of the Just Energy Entities.

- Just Energy will cease to be a reporting issuer and New Just Energy Parent will be a private company.

The trust indenture dated September 28, 2020 (the "Subordinated Note Indenture") governing the subordinated notes issued by the Company (the "Subordinated Notes") provides that the Subordinated Notes have been subordinated and postponed and are subject in right of payment to the full and final payment of all existing and future senior indebtedness. Accordingly, the Plan restricts the Monitor from making any distribution to beneficial holders ("Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders") of Subordinated Notes until all persons entitled to turnover of such distributions pursuant to the terms of the Subordinated Note Indenture and the Plan have been paid in full. As a result, Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders are not anticipated to receive any recovery under the Plan and their claims will be cancelled and extinguished without any entitlement to payment.

Further, as the Company's creditors will not be paid in full under the Plan, no value will accrue to the Company's existing equityholders as a result of implementation of the Plan, and the outstanding shares, options and other equity of the Company immediately prior to implementation of the Plan will be transferred to the New Just Energy Parent or cancelled for no consideration and without any vote of the existing shareholders.

Additionally, holders of accepted claims that are less than CAD$10 will not receive any recovery under the Plan and their claims will be cancelled and extinguished without any entitlement to payment.

The implementation of the Plan is conditional upon, among other things: (i) the approval by the required majorities of the Secured Creditor Class and the Unsecured Creditor Class at the Meetings, which Meetings are to be held by August 2, 2022; and (ii) if the Plan is approved at the Meetings, the Court granting an Order that sanctions and approves of the Plan by August 12, 2022 and the recognition of such Order by the U.S. Court under Chapter 15 by September 15, 2022. The Company expects to implement the Plan as soon as reasonably practicable following entry of such Order by the U.S. Court, subject to the satisfaction or waiver of all condition precedent set forth in the Plan.

SUPPORT AGREEMENT

In connection with the Plan, the Just Energy Entities have entered into the Support Agreement with: (a) the lenders under the Company's debtor-in-possession financing facility (the "DIP Lenders") and one of their affiliates (collectively, the "Plan Sponsor") that are also significant Term Loan Claim Holders, (b) the Company's credit facility lenders, (c) the Company's largest commodity supplier and (d) the holder of the BP Claim. Pursuant to the Support Agreement, among other things, the Just Energy Entities have agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to complete the transactions as set forth in the Plan, and the Plan Sponsor and other counterparties have agreed to vote in favour of, and take actions to support, the Plan, in each case on the terms and conditions set forth in the Support Agreement.

While the Support Agreement provides that Just Energy shall not solicit the submission of any transaction that is an alternative to or otherwise inconsistent with the restructuring and recapitalization transactions contemplated by the Plan (an "Alternative Restructuring Proposal", as such term is defined in the Support Agreement), Just Energy is permitted to consider, respond to and negotiate unsolicited Alternative Restructuring Proposals. The terms of the Support Agreement do not contain a contractual right for any party to match or top any Alternative Restructuring Proposal or Superior Proposal (as defined below).

The Support Agreement may be terminated in certain circumstances, including by any of the Just Energy Entities in the event that the board of directors or similar governing body of such entity (the "Board") determines, upon the advice of outside legal counsel and financial advisors, that proceeding with the restructuring contemplated by the Plan would be inconsistent with the exercise of its fiduciary duties or applicable law, or to pursue an Alternative Restructuring Proposal the terms of which are determined by the Board to be more favorable to the Just Energy Entities and their stakeholders (a "Superior Proposal", as such term is defined in the Support Agreement) in accordance with the terms of the Support Agreement.

The Plan Sponsor may also terminate the Support Agreement if the Board determines to proceed with and accept a definitive Alternative Restructuring Proposal or a definitive Superior Proposal. In either of the foregoing termination scenarios, the Just Energy Entities would be required to pay a termination fee to the Backstop Parties (as defined below) in the amount of US$15 million under the terms of the Backstop Commitment Letter, subject to the granting of the Authorization Order, which fee would be payable concurrent with the consummation of an Alternative Restructuring Proposal after any such termination.

BACKSTOP COMMITMENT LETTER

Pursuant to the Backstop Commitment Letter, the Equity Offering will be backstopped by the Plan Sponsor and other eligible Term Loan Claim Holders who elect to participate in the backstop (collectively, the "Backstop Parties") by providing an executed joinder to the Backstop Commitment Letter and participation form to Just Energy by June 23, 2022. Such forms, together with additional details regarding participation in the backstop, will be provided to applicable Term Loan Claim Holders after the granting of the proposed Meetings Order.

The Backstop Commitment Letter provides for the issuance of 10% of the new common equity of New Just Energy Parent (subject to dilution resulting from equity issued under the MIP) to the Backstop Parties as a fee for their agreement to backstop the Equity Offering.

FURTHER INFORMATION

The Company has been advised by OC II VS XIV LP ("OC II"), a Delaware limited partnership, and certain other funds under common management with OC II (collectively, the "Funds"), who own approximately 29% of the issued and outstanding common shares of the Company, that OC II has filed an amended early warning report pursuant to Canadian securities laws to provide updated disclosure relating to the Funds' participation in the Plan, which is available at www.sedar.com under the Company's issuer profile.

The above descriptions are summaries only and are subject to the terms of the Plan, the Support Agreement and the Backstop Commitment Letter, copies of which are available on the Monitor's website and will be made available on the SEDAR website at www.sedar.com, on the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's website at www.sec.gov and on Just Energy's website at https://investors.justenergy.com/.

If any Creditor entitled to a distribution pursuant to the Plan cannot be located by the Monitor on the applicable Distribution Date, or if any Creditor's distribution under the Plan is returned as undeliverable (an "Undeliverable Distribution"), no further distributions to such Creditor shall be made unless and until the Monitor is notified by such Creditor of such Creditor's current address, at which time all such distributions shall be made to such Creditor. If such Creditor cannot be located by the Monitor or if any delivery or distribution to be made pursuant to the Plan is returned as undeliverable, or in the case of any distribution made by cheque, the cheque remains uncashed, for a period of more than six (6) months after the applicable Distribution Date or the date of delivery or mailing of the cheque, whichever is later, the Claim of any Creditor with respect to such undelivered or unclaimed distribution shall be discharged and forever barred, notwithstanding any Applicable Law to the contrary, and any such cash allocable to the undeliverable or unclaimed distribution shall be released and returned by the Monitor to New Just Energy Parent or its designee, free and clear of any claims of such Creditor or any other Creditors and their respective successors and assigns. Nothing contained in the Plan shall require the Just Energy Entities, New Just Energy Parent or the Monitor to attempt to locate any holder of any Undeliverable Distributions.

5.7 Currency

Unless specifically provided for in the Plan or the Sanction Order, any payment or distribution provided for in the Plan in respect of any Affected Claim shall be made in the currency denominated in the Proof of Claim or Negative Notice Claims Package, as applicable, relating to such Affected Claim, and if no currency has been denominated in such Proof of Claim or Negative Notice Claims Package, then such Affected Claim shall be deemed to be denominated in Canadian dollars.

All payments and distributions made pursuant to the Plan shall be allocated first towards the repayment of the principal amount in respect of the applicable Claim and second, if any, towards the repayment of all accrued but unpaid interest in respect of the applicable Claim.

5.9 Interest

Interest shall not accrue or be paid on any Affected Claim of any of the General Unsecured Creditors or Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holders on or after the Filing Date, and no holder of any such Claim shall be entitled to interest accruing on or after the Filing Date.

5.10 Tax Matters

All distributions hereunder shall be subject to any withholding and reporting requirements imposed by any Applicable Law or any Taxing Authority and the Just Energy Entities or the applicable agent shall, and shall direct the Monitor, on behalf of the Just Energy Entities or the applicable agent, to, deduct, withhold and remit from any distributions hereunder payable to a Creditor or to any Person on behalf of any Creditor, such amounts, if any, as the Just Energy Entities or the applicable agent determines that it or the Monitor, on behalf of the Just Energy Entities or the applicable agent, is required to deduct and withhold with respect to such payment under the ITA or under Applicable Law. To the extent that amounts are so deducted and withheld, such withheld amounts shall be treated for all purposes as having been paid to the Person in respect of which such deduction and withholding was made, provided that such withheld amounts are actually remitted to the appropriate Taxing Authority.

5.11 Priority Claims

Any terms or conditions of any Affected Claim of any of the General Unsecured Creditors or Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holders which purport to deal with the ordering of or grant of priority of payments of principal, interest, penalties, or other amounts shall be deemed to be void and ineffective.

5.12 Fractional Interests

No fractional interests of New Shares ("Fractional Interests") will be issued or allocated under the Plan. Any legal, equitable, contractual and any other rights or claims (whether actual or contingent, and whether or not previously asserted) of any Person with respect to any Fractional Interests shall be rounded down to the nearest whole number without compensation therefor.

5.13 Calculations

All amounts of consideration to be received hereunder will be calculated to the nearest cent ($0.01). All calculations and determinations made by the Monitor and/or the Just Energy Entities and agreed to by the Monitor for the purposes of and in accordance with the Plan, including, without limitation, the allocation of consideration, shall be conclusive, final and binding.

5.14 Cancellation

On the Effective Date, in accordance with the terms and in the steps and sequences set forth in the Restructuring Steps Supplement, and except as otherwise expressly provided for herein, all debentures, indentures, notes, certificates, agreements, invoices, guarantees, pledges and other instruments evidencing Affected Claims (excluding the Credit Facility Claims) and Existing Equity shall (a) not entitle any holder thereof to any compensation or participation other than as expressly provided for in the Plan; and (b) be cancelled and will be null and void (other than, for certainty, the Common Shares transferred and the Common Shares issued to New Just Energy Parent on the Effective Date in accordance with the steps and sequences set forth in the Restructuring Steps Supplement, the Intercompany Interests and the New Shares).

5.15 Modifications to Distribution Mechanics

The Just Energy Entities and the Monitor, as applicable, in each case with the consent of the Plan Sponsor, acting reasonably, and in the case of payment or distributions on account of the Credit Facility Claims, with the consent of the Credit Facility Agent, acting reasonably, shall be entitled to make such additions and modifications to the process for making distributions pursuant to the Plan as may be deemed necessary or desirable in order to achieve the proper distribution and allocation of consideration to be distributed pursuant to the Plan, and any such additions or modifications shall not require an amendment to the Plan or any further Order of the Court in the CCAA Proceeding or the U.S. Court in the Chapter 15 Proceeding.

In the event any such determination is made, New Just Energy Parent and the Plan Sponsor shall use commercially reasonable efforts to apply for and obtain any such Regulatory Approvals in accordance with Section 7.4 as soon as reasonably practicable, except for such Regulatory Approvals that need not be obtained or in full force and effect prior to the implementation of the Plan, which shall be applied for as soon as reasonably practicable after the implementation of the Plan, in each case at the sole cost and expense of New Just Energy Parent.

(a) From and after the Effective Time, all Persons shall be deemed to have waived any and all defaults of the Just Energy Entities then existing or previously committed by any of the Just Energy Entities, or caused by any of the Just Energy Entities, the commencement of the CCAA Proceeding or the Chapter 15 Proceeding, any matter pertaining to the CCAA Proceeding or Chapter 15 Proceeding, any of the provisions in the Plan or steps or transactions contemplated in the Plan, or any non-compliance with any covenant, warranty, representation, term, provision, condition or obligation, expressed or implied, in any contract, instrument, credit document, indenture, note, lease, guarantee, agreement for sale or other agreement, written or oral, and any and all amendments or supplements thereto, existing between such Person and any of the Just Energy Entities, and any and all notices of default and demands for payment or any step or proceeding taken or commenced in connection therewith shall be deemed to have been rescinded and of no further force or effect; provided that, nothing shall be deemed to excuse the Just Energy Entities from performing their respective obligations under the Plan and the related documents, or be a waiver of defaults by any of the Just Energy Entities under the Plan and the related documents.

(b) Effective on the Effective Date, any and all agreements that are assigned to New Just Energy Parent shall be and remain in full force and effect, unamended, as at the Effective Date, and no Person shall, following the Effective Date, accelerate,

11.3 Claims Bar Date

Nothing in the Plan extends or shall be interpreted as extending or amending the Claims Bar Date or gives or shall be interpreted as giving any rights to any Person in respect of Claims that have been barred or extinguished pursuant to the Claims Procedure Order.

11.4 Preferential Transactions

Sections 95 to 101 of the BIA and any Applicable Law relating to preferences, settlements, fraudulent conveyances, or transfers at undervalue shall not apply in any respect, including, without limitation, to any dealings prior to the Filing Date, to the Plan, to any payments or distributions made in connection with the restructuring and recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities, whether made before or after the Filing Date, or to any and all transactions contemplated by and to be implemented pursuant to the Plan; provided, however, that the foregoing shall not apply with respect to the subject matter of the Adversary Proceeding.

In the Plan, the deeming provisions are not rebuttable and are conclusive and irrevocable.

11.6 Non-Consummation

Subject to the Support Agreement, the Just Energy Entities reserve the right to revoke or withdraw the Plan at any time prior to the Effective Date. 11.7 Amendments to the Plan Prior to Approval

Subject to the terms and conditions of the Support Agreement, the Just Energy Entities reserve the right to vary, modify, amend, or supplement the Plan by way of a supplementary or amended and restated plan or plans of compromise or arrangement or both filed with the Court at any time or from time to time prior to the commencement of the Meetings; provided that, the Just Energy Entities obtain the prior consent of the Plan Sponsor, the Credit Facility Lenders, Shell and the Monitor to any such variation, modification, amendment, or supplement, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed. Any such supplementary or amended and restated plan or plans of compromise or arrangement or both shall, for all purposes, be deemed to be a part of and incorporated into the Plan. Any such variation, modification, amendment, or supplement shall be posted on the Monitor's Website and e-mail notice will be provided to the CCAA Proceeding service list. Creditors are advised to check the Monitor's Website regularly. Creditors who wish to receive written notice of any variation, modification, amendment, or supplement to the Plan should contact the Monitor in the manner set out in Section 11.14 of the Plan. Creditors in attendance at the Meetings will also be advised of any such variation, modification, amendment or supplement to the Plan.

In addition, the Just Energy Entities may propose a variation or modification of, or amendment, or supplement to, the Plan during the Meetings, provided that the Just Energy Entities obtain the prior consent of the Plan Sponsor, the Credit Facility Lenders, Shell and the Monitor to any such variation, modification, amendment, or supplement, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed, and that notice of such variation, modification, amendment, or supplement is given to all Creditors entitled to vote, present in person or by proxy at the applicable Meeting prior to the vote being taken at such Meeting, in which case any such variation, modification, amendment, or supplement shall, for all purposes, be deemed to be part of and incorporated into the Plan. Any variation, amendment, modification, or supplement at a Meeting will be promptly posted on the Monitor's Website, served by e-mail to the service list in the CCAA Proceeding and filed with the Court as soon as practicable following the applicable Meeting.

11.8 Amendments to the Plan Following Approval

After the Meetings (and both prior to and subsequent to obtaining the Sanction Order), the Just Energy Entities may at any time and from time to time vary, amend, modify, or supplement the Plan without the need for obtaining an Order of the Court or providing notice to the Creditors, if the Just Energy Entities, the Plan Sponsor, the Credit Facility Lenders, Shell and the Monitor, each acting reasonably, determine that such variation, amendment, modification, or supplement would not be materially prejudicial to the interests of any Creditors under the Plan or is necessary in order to give effect to the substance of the Plan or the Sanction Order.

11.9 Paramountcy

From and after the Effective Time on the Effective Date, any conflict between:

(a) the Plan or any Final Order of the Court in the CCAA Proceeding or the U.S. Court in the Chapter 15 Proceeding; and

(b) the covenants, warranties, representations, terms, conditions, provisions or obligations, expressed or implied, of any contract, mortgage, security agreement, indenture, trust indenture, note, loan agreement, commitment letter, agreement for sale, lease or other agreement, written or oral and any and all amendments or supplements thereto existing between any Person and the Just Energy Entities immediately prior to the Effective Date or the notice of articles, articles, bylaws or constating documents of the Just Energy Entities or New Just Energy Parent immediately prior to the Effective Date, will be deemed to be governed by the terms, conditions and provisions of the Plan or the applicable Final Order, which shall take precedence and priority; provided that, any settlement agreement executed by the Just Energy Entities and any Person asserting a Claim that was entered into from and after the Filing Date shall be read and interpreted in a manner that assumes such settlement agreement is intended to operate congruously with, and not in conflict with, the Plan.

11.10 Severability of Plan Provisions

If any term, section or provision of the Plan is held by the Court or the U.S. Court to be invalid, void or unenforceable, the Court or the U.S. Court, as applicable, at the request of the Just Energy Entities and with the consent of the Monitor, the Credit Facility Lenders and the Plan Sponsor, each acting reasonably, shall have the power to either (a) sever such term, section or provision from the balance of the Plan as approved by the Court or the U.S. Court, as applicable, and provide the Just Energy Entities with the option to proceed with the implementation of the balance of the Plan as of and with effect from the Effective Date; or (b) alter and interpret such term, section or provision to make it valid or enforceable to the maximum extent practicable, consistent with the original purpose of such term, section or provision held to be invalid, void or unenforceable, and such term, section or provision shall then be applied as altered or interpreted. Notwithstanding any such holding, alteration or interpretation of the Plan, the remainder of the terms, sections and provisions of the Plan shall remain in full force and effect and shall in no way be affected, impaired or invalidated by such holding, alteration or interpretation.

11.11 The Monitor

(a) The Monitor is acting and will continue to act in all respects in its capacity as Monitor in the CCAA Proceeding and not in its personal or corporate capacity. The Monitor will not be responsible or liable whatsoever for any obligations of the Just Energy Entities. The Monitor will have the powers and protections granted to it by the Plan, the CCAA and the Orders made by the Court in the CCAA Proceeding. Both prior to and after the Effective Date, the Just Energy Entities shall provide such assistance as reasonably required by the Monitor in connection with the completion of the Monitor's duties and obligations under the Plan.

(b) The Monitor shall not incur any liability whatsoever, including in respect of (i) any amount paid, required to be paid or not paid pursuant to the Plan, (ii) any costs or expenses incurred in connection with, in relation to or as a result of any payment made, required to be made or not made, or (iii) any deficiency in the Plan Implementation Fund or any reserves established pursuant to the Plan. Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, and without in any way limiting the protections for the Monitor set out in the Orders made by the Court in the CCAA Proceeding or the CCAA, the Monitor shall have no obligation to make any payment contemplated under the Plan, and nothing shall be construed as obligating the Monitor to make any such payment, unless and until the Monitor is in receipt of funds adequate to effect any such payment.

11.12 Different Capacities

Persons who are affected by the Plan may be affected in more than one capacity. Unless expressly provided herein to the contrary, a Person will be entitled to participate hereunder in each such capacity. Any action taken by a Person in one capacity will not affect such Person in any other capacity, unless expressly agreed by the Just Energy Entities and the Plan Sponsor, each acting reasonably, and the Person, in writing, or unless its Claims overlap or are otherwise duplicative.

11.13 Authority and Reliance Upon Consent

For the purposes of the Plan, where a matter shall have been agreed, waived, consented to or approved by:

(a) the Just Energy Entities, or a matter must be satisfactory or acceptable to the Just Energy Entities, any Person shall be entitled to rely on written confirmation from either Company Counsel that the Just Energy Entities has agreed, waived, consented to or approved a particular matter;

(f) the Backstop Parties, or a matter must be satisfactory or acceptable to the Backstop Parties, such matter shall be decided in accordance with the terms of the Backstop Commitment Letter, provided that any provision that requires an agreement, waiver, consent or approval from a party in respect of a matter will not limit any agreement, waiver, consent or approval required from a Supporting Party pursuant to the Support Agreement in respect of the same subject matter.

Readers are encouraged to review the Meetings Order in its entirety. A copy of the Meetings Order is attached as Schedule "D" to this Information Statement.

Meetings Order

On May 26, 2022, the Honourable Mr. Justice McEwen of the CCAA Court issued the Meetings Order directing the Just Energy Entities to call and conduct the Creditor's Meetings to vote on the Plan. The Meetings will be held virtually at the times set out below.

Classification of Creditors

The Meetings Order approved the following Classes of Affected Creditors for the purposes of considering and voting on the resolution to approve the Plan:

(b) the Unsecured Creditor Class, consisting of the General Unsecured Creditors and Term Loan Claim Holders (the "Unsecured Creditors", and each an "Unsecured Creditor").

Attendance at the Meetings

Pursuant to the Meetings Order, the Meetings have been called to consider and vote on the Plan.

The Meetings will be held as virtual meetings, rather than "in person" meetings, conducted by way of live audio webcast online as follows:

All Affected Creditors entitled to vote at the Meeting(s) will receive their Personal Meeting Identifier number (the "Personal Meeting ID") with the Information Statement and other meeting materials sent to such Affected Creditors. Validly appointed proxy holders (other than the Monitor) will be provided a separate Personal Meeting ID by the Monitor. Any Affected Creditor entitled to vote at the Meeting(s) who wishes to attend the Meeting(s) and who has not received a Personal Meeting ID, other than Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders, should contact the Monitor directly at its contact information listed on the cover page of this Information Statement. If an Affected Creditor uses its Personal Meeting ID to log in to a meeting, and subsequently votes using the voting options provided during the meeting, it will be revoking any proxy it previously submitted. If an Affected Creditor does not wish to revoke a previously submitted proxy, it may log in using its Personal Meeting ID and decline to vote at the meeting when prompted to do so.

Procedure for Meetings

Each Meeting will be held and conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Meetings Order, notwithstanding the provisions of any other agreement or instrument.

Participants

A representative of the Monitor will act as the chairperson (the "Chairperson") of the Meetings and, subject to any further Order of the Court, will decide all matters relating to the conduct of the Meetings. The Monitor may appoint scrutineers for the supervision and tabulation of the attendance, quorum and votes cast at each of the Meeting. One or more Person(s) designated by the Monitor will act as secretary at each Meeting.

The only Persons entitled to attend a Meeting are (i) the Affected Creditors entitled to vote at that Meeting (or, if applicable, any Person holding a valid Secured Creditor Proxy or Unsecured Creditor Proxy on behalf of one or more such Affected Creditors) and any such Affected Creditor's legal counsel and financial advisors; (ii) the Chairperson, the scrutineers and the secretary; (iii) the Monitor and the Monitor's legal counsel; (iv) one or more representatives of the board and/or senior management of the Just Energy Entities, and the Just Energy Entities' legal counsel and financial advisor; and (v) the Plan Sponsor and the Plan Sponsor's legal counsel and financial advisor. Any other person may be admitted to a Meeting on invitation of the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor. Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders do not hold a Voting Claim and cannot vote directly at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting. The only way for Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders to provide voting instructions in connection with the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting is by submitting a Subordinated Noteholder VIF (or other applicable form provided by their Participant Holder) to their Participant Holder to instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to the Subordinated Noteholder's Voting Claim.

Quorum

The quorum for each Meeting will be as follows:

(a) at the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class, at least one Secured Creditor with an Accepted Claim; and

(b) at the Meeting of the Unsecured Creditor Class, at least one Unsecured Creditor with an Accepted Claim, in each case, present at the applicable Meeting in person (by electronic means) or by proxy.

If the requisite quorum is not present at a Meeting, the Chairperson will be entitled to adjourn the Meeting, provided that any such adjournment or adjournments must be for a period of not more than two days in total, unless otherwise agreed to by the Just Energy Entities, the Credit Facility Agent, the Plan Sponsor and the Monitor. In the event of any such adjournment, the Just Energy Entities and the Monitor will not be required to deliver any notice of adjournment of a Meeting or adjourned Meeting, provided that the Monitor will: (i) announce the adjournment at the Meeting(s) or adjourned Meeting(s), as applicable; (ii) post notice of the adjournment at the originally designated time and location of the Meeting(s) or adjourned Meeting(s), as applicable; (iii) forthwith post notice of the adjournment on the Monitor's Website and the website of the Just Energy Entities' noticing agent, Omni Agent Solutions; and (iv) provide notice of the adjournment to the Service List forthwith. Any proxy validly delivered in connection with either Meeting will be accepted as a proxy in respect of any respective adjourned Meeting.

Voting at the Meetings

Resolutions

At each Meeting, the Chairperson shall direct a vote using the voting options available at the virtual Meeting or by proxy on a resolution to approve the Plan and any amendments thereto and any other resolutions that the Just Energy Entities may consider appropriate with the consent of the Plan Sponsor, the Credit Facility Agent (in respect of the Secured Creditors' Meeting) and the Monitor. The form of resolution to approve the Plan is attached as Schedule "B" hereto.

Entitlement to Vote

The following Creditors are entitled to vote at the applicable Meeting and will be calculated as follows:

In respect of the Meeting of the Unsecured Creditor Class:

(a) the Unsecured Creditors (other than the Subject Class Action Plaintiffs, the holder(s) of the Texas Power Interruption Claim and Term Loan Claim Holders and the Subordinated Noteholder, but including, for greater certainty, other General Unsecured Creditors) with Voting Claims will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of such Unsecured Creditor's Affected Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(b) each Term Loan Claim Holder will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of such Term Loan Claim Holder's Pro Rata Share of the Term Loan Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(c) the Subordinated Noteholder will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in the amount equal to the dollar value of the Subordinated Note Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order;

(d) the Subject Class Action Plaintiffs with Voting Claims will be entitled, as applicable: (a) to one (1) vote per certified Subject Class Action Plaintiff in the amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00; and (b) to one (1) vote per uncertified Subject Class Action Plaintiff in an amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00, in each case, without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Claims for distribution purposes;

(e) the Texas Power Interruption Claimants' Counsel, in respect of the Texas Power Interruption Claim, will be entitled to one (1) vote in the amount equal to the Voting Claim of $1.00, without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Claims for distribution purposes; and

(f) except as otherwise provided for in the Meetings Order, each Affected Creditor with a Disputed Claim against the Just Energy Entities as at the Record Date will be entitled to one (1) vote at the applicable Meeting in the amount equal to the dollar value for such Disputed Claim as set out in (i) the Negative Notice Claims Package or (ii) the Disputed Claim acceptance value for voting purposes, prepared in consultation with the Monitor, as applicable, sent to the holder of such Disputed Claim or, if no such Negative Notice Claims Package or Acceptance Value was sent, the value set forth in the corresponding Proof of Claim (provided that duplicative Proofs of Claim shall be excluded), without prejudice to the determination of the dollar value of such Affected Creditor's Disputed Claim for distribution purposes. Any vote cast in respect of a Disputed Claim shall be dealt with in accordance with paragraph 57 of the Meetings Order, unless and until (and then only to the extent that) such Disputed Claim is ultimately determined to be: (i) an Accepted Claim, in which case such vote shall have the dollar value attributable to such Accepted Claim; or (ii) a Disallowed Claim, in which case such vote shall be disregarded and not counted for any purpose.

Any Convenience Creditor that holds a Convenience Claim, being an Accepted Claim in an amount that is less than or equal to $1,500, or a Creditor who properly elects to be a Convenience Creditor by making a valid Distribution Election for purposes of the Plan in accordance with the Meetings Order, will be deemed to have voted as part of the Unsecured Creditor Class in favour of the Plan in the amount of such Convenience Creditor's Accepted Claim.

In respect of the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class, each Credit Facility Lender with a Voting Claim will be entitled to one (1) vote as part of the Secured Creditor Class in the dollar amount equal to such Credit Facility Lender's Pro Rata Share of the Credit Facility Claim determined as a Voting Claim in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order and the Meetings Order.

Majorities

The Plan must receive an affirmative vote of the Required Majorities at each Meeting in order to be approved by the Affected Creditors. Subject to paragraph 56 and 57 of the Meetings Order, for the purpose of calculating the two-thirds majority in value of Voting Claims at each Meeting, the aggregate amount of Voting Claims of all Affected Creditors that vote in favour of the Plan (in person or by proxy) at the Meeting shall be divided by the aggregate amount of all Voting Claims of all Affected Creditors that vote on the Plan (in person or by proxy) at the Meeting.

Voting by Proxy or Voting Instruction Form

Any General Unsecured Creditor (other than a Subordinated Noteholder) that is entitled to vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting may vote by: (a) attending the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in this Information Statement or at such Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, or (b) by proxy, in which case such General Unsecured Creditor must: (i) duly complete and sign an Unsecured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Unsecured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such General Unsecured Creditor; and (iii) deliver such Unsecured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Unsecured Creditor Proxy.

Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders do not hold a Voting Claim and cannot vote directly at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting. The only way for Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders to provide voting instructions in connection with the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting is by submitting a Subordinated Noteholder VIF (or other applicable form provided by their Participant Holder) to their Participant Holder to instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to the Subordinated Noteholder's Voting Claim. Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders may instruct the Subordinated Noteholder with respect to how the Subordinated Noteholder should vote its Voting Claim by: (i) duly completing and signing a Subordinated Noteholder VIF or such other documentation as the Participant Holder may customarily request for purposes of obtaining voting instructions; and (ii) delivering such Subordinated Noteholder VIF or other documentation to their Participant Holder so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is three Business Days before the Meetings, or such earlier deadline that their Participant Holder may require, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, in consultation with the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor, may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, in order to vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting. Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders should contact their Participant Holder and obtain and follow their Participant Holder's instructions with respect to the applicable voting instruction procedures and deadlines, which may be earlier than the deadlines that are applicable to other Affected Creditors. The Subordinated Noteholder may vote at the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting by providing to the Just Energy Entities, through Unsecured Creditor Proxies or voting instructions otherwise communicated in accordance with the Subordinated Noteholder's customary procedures received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. on the day that is two Business Days before the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting.

Term Loan Claim Holders that are entitled to vote at the Meeting of the Unsecured Creditor Class may vote by: (a) attending the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in this Information Statement or at such Unsecured Creditors' Meeting; or (b) by proxy, in which case such Term Loan Claim Holder must: (i) duly complete and sign an Unsecured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Unsecured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such Term Loan Claim Holder; and (iii) deliver such Unsecured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, with the consent of the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor (not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Unsecured Creditors' Meeting, and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Unsecured Creditor Proxy.

Secured Creditors entitled to vote at the Meeting of the Secured Creditor Class may vote by: (a) attending the Secured Creditors' Meeting in person (electronically) and casting its vote in compliance with the voting instructions provided in the Information Statement or at such Secured Creditors' Meeting; or (b) by proxy, in which case such Secured Creditor must: (i) duly complete and sign an Secured Creditor Proxy; (ii) specify in the Secured Creditor Proxy the name of the Person with the power to attend and vote at the Meeting on behalf of such Secured Creditor; and (iii) deliver such Secured Creditor Proxy to the Monitor so that it is received at or prior to 5:00 p.m. (Toronto time) on the day that is two Business Days before the Meetings, subject to a later date as the Just Energy Entities, with the consent of the Monitor and the Plan Sponsor (not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), may agree in the event of an adjournment, postponement or other rescheduling of the Secured Creditors' Meeting, and such delivery must be made in accordance with the instructions accompanying such Secured Creditor Proxy.

Disputed Claims

Each Affected Creditor with a Disputed Claim against the Just Energy Entities as at the Record Date (other than the Subordinated Noteholder, Subject Class Action Plaintiffs, the holder(s) of the Texas Power Interruption Claim, and Term Loan Claim Holders) will be entitled to attend the applicable Meeting and will be entitled to one vote at such Meeting in the amount equal to the dollar value for such Disputed Claim determined in accordance with the Meetings Order. Any vote cast in respect of a Disputed Claim will be dealt with in accordance with the Meetings Order.

The Monitor will keep a separate record of votes cast by Affected Creditors with Disputed Claims and will report to the Court with respect thereto at the Sanction Hearing. If approval or non-approval of the Plan by Affected Creditors would be affected by the votes cast in respect of Disputed Claims, such result shall be reported to the Court as soon as reasonably practicable after the Meetings. To the extent that a Disputed Claim is ultimately determined to be: (i) an Accepted Claim, a vote shall have the dollar value attributable to such Accepted Claim; or (ii) a Disallowed Claim, any vote shall be disregarded and not counted for any purpose.

Monitor Support

The Monitor supports the Applicants' request to convene the Meetings to consider and vote on the Plan.

CCAA PROCEEDINGS

Events Leading to the Commencement of CCAA Proceedings

2020 Recapitalization

On September 28, 2020, Just Energy completed a balance sheet recapitalization transaction (the "Recapitalization") through a plan of arrangement (the "Arrangement") under section 192 of the CBCA. The Arrangement was approved by a Final Order of the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) dated September 2, 2020 and the Recapitalization closed on September 28, 2020. The Recapitalization was the culmination of a year-long strategic review process and reflected a comprehensive plan to strengthen Just Energy's business.

Texas Weather Event

Despite continued improving performance since the closing of the Recapitalization, in February 2021, the State of Texas experienced extremely cold weather for an extended period of time (the "Weather Event"). The Weather Event led to significantly higher than normal customer demand while also causing significant electricity market supply to go offline from February 13, 2021 through February 20, 2021.

In response to the Weather Event, on February 15, 2021, the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUCT") issued an order instructing ERCOT to artificially set the real time settlement price of power at US$9,000 per MWh for approximately 88 consecutive hours (in contrast, the real time electricity price did not hit US$9,000 per MWh for even one 15-minute interval in 2020). As a result, the Just Energy Entities were forced to balance power supply through ERCOT at these artificially set high electricity prices and significantly increased ancillary service costs. Just Energy estimated that it incurred losses and additional costs currently totaling over US$366 million as a result of the PUCT and ERCOT's actions and the Weather Event.

On March 5, 2021, Just Energy received three invoices for approximately US$123 million from ERCOT, of which approximately US$96 million had to be paid by end of day on March 9, 2021. On March 8, 2021, Just Energy received from ERCOT (i) a notice that it must post approximately US$26 million of additional collateral within two business days; and (ii) three invoices for approximately US$25 million, of which approximately US$19 million was due by March 10, 2021. The Just Energy Entities did not have enough liquidity to pay that amount and, if the amount due was not paid, ERCOT could have transferred all of the Just Energy Entities' customers in Texas to a provider of last resort.

CCAA Filing and Chapter 15 Recognition

Due to the losses sustained as a result of the Weather Event and without sufficient liquidity to pay the corresponding invoices from ERCOT when due, on March 9, 2021 (the "Filing Date"), Just Energy and certain of the Just Energy Entities (collectively, the "Applicants") applied for and received creditor protection pursuant to an initial order (as amended and restated on March 19, 2021 and further amended and restated on May 26, 2021, the "Initial Order") under the CCAA from the Ontario Superior Court of Justice (Commercial List) (the "CCAA Court"), which Initial Order has been recognized under Chapter 15 in the United States from the Bankruptcy Court of the Southern District of Texas, Houston Division. This relief has allowed the Just Energy Entities to operate while they restructure their capital structure.

As part of the CCAA filing, the Just Energy Entities entered into the DIP Term Sheet. The Just Energy Entities also entered into Qualified Support Agreements with their largest commodity supplier and ISO services provider, as well as a Lender Support Agreement with lenders under the Credit Agreement. The CCAA filing and associated DIP Term Sheet arranged by the Company, together with the Qualified Support Agreements, have enabled the Just Energy Entities to continue all operations and serve its approximately 950,000 customers without interruption throughout the U.S. and Canada and to continue making payments required by ERCOT and satisfy other regulatory obligations.

Certain Events Following the Commencement of the CCAA Proceedings

Initial Order Amendments

Since the Filing Date, the Applicants have sought and obtained extensions to the stay period (currently set to extend to August 19, 2022) and have obtained other amendments to facilitate their ongoing operations and restructuring efforts, including through authorization to expand the definition of "Qualified Commodity/ISO Supplier" to include new suppliers.

Claims Procedure

On September 15, 2021, the CCAA Court issued the Claims Procedure Order approving a claims procedure for the identification, quantification, and resolution of certain claims of creditors of the Just Energy Entities and their directors and officers (the "Claims Procedure"). Among other things, the Claims Procedure Order established the Claims Bar Date for any Person asserting a Pre-Filing Claim or a Pre-Filing D&O Claim or disputing a Negative Notice Claim of November 1, 2021. The Restructuring Period Claims Bar Date was set as the later of: (i) the November 1, 2021; and (ii) 30 days after the Monitor or Claims Agent sends the Negative Notice Claims Package or General Claims Package.

Since the granting of the Claims Procedure Order, the Just Energy Entities have, in conjunction with the Monitor, been administering the Claims Procedure, including by, among other things: (i) assisting the Monitor and the Claims Agent in their preparation and issuance of Negative Notice Claims Packages and General Claims Packages; and (ii) facilitating the publication of a Notice to Claimants in The Globe and Mail (National Edition), the Wall Street Journal, the Houston Chronicle and the Dallas Morning News.

The Just Energy Entities and the Monitor have worked diligently to review the Proofs of Claim and Notices of Dispute of Claim received to assess which claims require additional information, require revisions, can be resolved or settled, or may be accepted (in whole or in part) or must be rejected.

The procedure for determining the validity and quantum of the Affected Claims for voting and distribution purposes under the Plan will be governed by the Claims Procedure Order, the Meetings Order, the CCAA, the Plan and any further Order of the Court.

Texas Legislative Developments

On June 16, 2021, the Governor of Texas signed into law House Bill 4492 ("HB 4492"), which provides a mechanism for the partial recovery of certain costs incurred by certain Texas energy market participants, including certain of the Just Energy Entities, during the Weather Event.

HB 4492 addresses the securitization of (i) ancillary service charges above the system-wide offer cap of US$9,000/MWh during the Weather Event; (ii) reliability deployment price adders charged by ERCOT during the Weather Event; and (iii) amounts owed to ERCOT due to defaults by competitive market participants, which in turn resulted in short payments to market participants, including Just Energy (collectively, the "Costs").

Consistent with the requirements of HB 4492, ERCOT requested that the PUCT establish securitization financing mechanisms for the payment of the Costs incurred by load-serving entities, including certain of the Just Energy Entities. On October 13, 2021, PUCT signed final orders (the "PUCT Orders") approving the securitization and authorized ERCOT to issue US$2.9 billion of securitization bonds (in two separate tranches), the proceeds of which will be used to repay the Costs. No party appealed the PUCT order by the November 1, 2021 deadline and therefore, the PUCT Orders are considered non-appealable.

On December 7, 2021, ERCOT filed its calculation of the Costs with PUCT in accordance with HB 4492. Based on ERCOT's calculations, the Just Energy Entities anticipate recovering approximately US$147.5 million of the Costs from ERCOT.

Ecobee Transaction

Just Management Corp. ("JMC"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Just Energy, previously owned shares in ecobee Limited ("ecobee"). On December 1, 2021, Generac Holdings Inc. ("Generac") completed the acquisition of ecobee, including all of the ecobee shares held by Just Energy prior to closing of such transaction. Immediately prior to closing, JMC transferred the ecobee shares held by it to Just Energy in accordance with the Court Order dated September 15, 2021. On the closing of the ecobee transaction, Just Energy received approximately $15.6 million in cash and 80,281 common shares of Generac. Just Energy has subsequently sold the Generac shares for net proceeds of approximately $36 million.

Background to Plan

The Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of legal counsel and BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. as financial advisor (the "Financial Advisor"), and in consultation with the Monitor, have continued their restructuring efforts with a focus on developing a restructuring plan that facilitates emergence from the CCAA Proceedings, preserves the going concern value of the business, maintains customer service and relationships, and preserves employment and critical vendor relationships.

Since the stay period was extended on November 10, 2021, the Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of their legal and financial advisors, have been working in earnest to advance the Restructuring. Throughout the past months, the Just Energy Entities have continued their extensive engagement with their most significant stakeholders, including the DIP Lender, the Credit Facility Lenders, and Shell, regarding a framework for the recapitalization of the Just Energy Entities and their respective businesses. Such extensive and ongoing engagement has been productive and resulted in: (a) the Just Energy Entities, the Credit Facility Lenders, the Plan Sponsor, Shell, and the BP Commodity/ISO Services Claimholder executing the Support Agreement on May 12, 2022; and (b) the Just Energy Entities finalizing the Plan for consideration by its creditors.

The Support Agreement, Plan and other related agreements (discussed further below) are the result of lengthy efforts by the Just Energy Entities to restructure for the benefit of their stakeholders, commencing with preparation and distribution of a business plan to the DIP Lenders, Shell, BP, and the Credit Facility Lenders on May 18, 2021. The detailed business plan accounted for changes caused by the Weather Event to the businesses of the Just Energy Entities and was intended to assist key stakeholders in understanding, among other things, the operational projections, near and longer-term liquidity requirements, financial projections, and anticipated business operations of the Just Energy Group during, and upon emergence from, the current CCAA and Chapter 15 proceedings. The business plan was compiled by the Just Energy Entities to facilitate the participation of key stakeholders in the development of a restructuring plan.

Since the business plan was circulated in May 2021, the Just Energy Entities, with the assistance of their legal and financial advisors, have been working to reach consensus with their major stakeholders regarding the terms and structure of a restructuring plan to facilitate the Just Energy Entities' emergence from the current CCAA and Chapter 15 proceedings in a manner which, among other things: (a) preserves the going concern value of the Just Energy Entities' businesses for the benefit of stakeholders; (b) maintains relations with key Commodity Suppliers to ensure uninterrupted supply for the Just Energy Entities' customers; (c) preserves the ongoing employment of most of the Just Energy Group's approximately 1,100 employees and independent contractors; and (d) maintains critical relationships between the Just Energy Entities and regulators across Canada and the United States and other business-critical stakeholders.

The lengthy and determined efforts of the Just Energy Entities to develop restructuring terms which achieve the foregoing objectives resulted in the development of the Plan and the execution of the Support Agreement, Backstop Commitment Letter, and other transaction-related documents by the Just Energy Entities, the Plan Sponsors and other significant stakeholders. A summary of the Support Agreement, Backstop Commitment Letter and other transaction-related documents, together with a detailed discussion regarding the Plan is provided below.

The key terms of the Support Agreement and the Backstop Commitment Letter are summarized herein under Support Agreement and Backstop Commitment Letter.

The Just Energy Entities are required to provide on a confidential basis to the legal counsel and financial advisors of the Plan Sponsor and the Credit Facility Lenders (a) copies (or if not provided to the Just Energy Entities in writing, a detailed description) of any Alternative Restructuring Proposal no later than one (1) calendar day following receipt thereof by the Just Energy Entities or their advisors and (b) such other information as reasonably requested by the Plan Sponsor's or the Credit Facility Lenders' legal counsel and financial advisors or as necessary to keep the Plan Sponsor and the Credit Facility Lenders informed no later than one (1) calendar day after any such request or any material change to the proposed terms of any Alternative Restructuring Proposal as to the terms of any Alternative Restructuring Proposal (including any changes to the proposed terms thereof) and the status and substance of discussions related thereto. Distributions of the New Shares

All New Shares issued under the Plan shall be deemed to have been issued as fully paid and non-assessable shares of New Just Energy Parent, free and clear of any Encumbrances, except as provided in New Just Energy Parent's New Corporate Governance Documents and arising under applicable securities laws.

Delivery by New Just Energy Parent of the New Shares issued and distributed under the Plan will be made by book-entry positions in the equity records of New Just Energy Parent in the name of the applicable recipient (or such other Person as such recipient directs in writing) (subject to subsequent determination in the discretion of New Just Energy Parent as to the form in which the New Shares will be issued as may be required to implement any provision of the Plan).

On the Effective Date, New Just Energy Parent shall issue New Shares in accordance with the steps and sequences set forth in the Restructuring Steps Supplement (or reserve New Shares for issuance, as applicable, in accordance with Section 5.3(e) of the Plan).

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Plan, no Person (including, for the avoidance of doubt and if applicable, the Depository Trust Company ("DTC")) may require a legal opinion regarding the validity of any transaction contemplated by the Plan, including for the avoidance of doubt, whether the securities to be issued under the Plan are exempt from registration and/or eligible for DTC book entry delivery, settlement and depository services. Any such Person, (including, for the avoidance of doubt and if applicable, DTC), shall be required to accept and conclusively rely upon the Plan and court order related thereto in lieu of any such legal opinion regarding whether the securities to be issued under the Plan are exempt from registration and/or eligible for DTC book entry delivery, settlement, and depository services.

Notwithstanding Section 5.3(c) of the Plan, no Person shall be entitled to the rights associated with the New Shares and all such New Shares shall be reserved for issuance on the books and records of New Just Energy Parent (but, for the avoidance of doubt, not actually issued) until such time as it has delivered a duly executed and completed New Shareholder Information Form to New Just Energy Parent. In the event that such Person fails to deliver a duly executed and completed New Shareholder Information Form in accordance with Section 5.3(e) of the Plan on or before the date that is six (6) months following the Effective Date, New Just Energy Parent shall have no further obligation to issue or deliver, and shall have no further obligation to reserve on its books and records, any New Shares otherwise issuable to such Person (such shares, the "Unissued New Shares") that have not delivered a duly executed and completed New Shareholder Information Form in accordance with Section 5.3(e) of the Plan and all such Persons shall cease to have a claim to, or interest of any kind or nature against or in, New Just Energy Parent or the Unissued New Shares. The stated capital accounts for the Common Shares and the New Shares and any adjustments thereto resulting from the transactions contemplated by the Plan shall be as determined by the applicable New Board, in accordance with the Restructuring Steps Supplement and Applicable Law, as applicable. The Just Energy Entities intend that the issuance and distribution, pursuant to the Plan, of all the New Shares, shall qualify for exemption from the prospectus and registration requirements of Canadian Securities Laws on the basis of the exemption provided in section 2.11 of NI 45-106. The Just Energy Entities also intend that the issuance and distribution, pursuant to the Plan, of all the New Shares, other than as set forth in the next sentence, shall be exempt from the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act in reliance upon Section 1145 to the maximum extent permitted under Applicable Law. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Backstop Party's Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable are being offered and sold exclusively to the Participating Term Loan Claimants and, if applicable, the Backstop Parties, in reliance on the exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act set forth in Section 4(a)(2) thereof (such New Equity Offering Shares and New Share, the "4(a) (2) Securities").

Pursuant to Section 1145, the offering, issuance, and distribution of the 1145 Securities shall be exempt from, among other things, the registration and prospectus delivery requirements of section 5 of the U.S. Securities Act and any other applicable U.S. federal, state, local or other law requiring registration prior to the offering, issuance, distribution, or sale of the 1145 Securities. Each of the 1145 Securities, (a) will not be "restricted securities" as defined in rule 144(a)(3) under the U.S. Securities Act; and (b) will be freely tradable and transferable in the United States by each recipient thereof that (i) is an entity that is not an "underwriter" as defined in section 1145(b)(1) of the U.S. Bankruptcy Rules, (ii) is not an "affiliate" of New Just Energy Parent as defined in Rule 144(a)(1) under the U.S. Securities Act, (iii) has not been such an "affiliate" within ninety (90) days of the time of the transfer, and (iv) has not acquired such securities from such an "affiliate" within one year of the time of transfer. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the 1145 Securities remain subject to compliance with applicable securities laws and any rules and regulations of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, if any, applicable at the time of any future transfer of such 1145 Securities and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

The 4(a)(2) Securities will be issued without registration under the U.S. Securities Act in reliance upon the exemption set forth in section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, Regulation D and/or Regulation S (and similar registration exemptions applicable outside of the United States). Any New Shares issued in reliance on Section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, including in compliance with Rule 506 of Regulation D, and/or Regulation S will be "restricted securities" subject to resale restrictions and may be resold, exchanged, assigned or otherwise transferred only pursuant to registration, or an applicable exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act and other Applicable Law, including state securities laws and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

The Just Energy Entities recommend that potential recipients of New Shares issued under the Plan consult their own counsel concerning the potential recipients' ability to freely trade such New Shares in compliance with the federal securities laws and any applicable "blue sky" laws. The Just Energy Entities make no representation concerning the ability of any person to dispose of such New Shares.

Distributions in respect of Transferred Claims

The Just Energy Entities and the Monitor shall not be obligated to deliver any distributions under the Plan to any transferee of the whole of an Affected Claim unless a Proof of Assignment has been delivered to the Monitor no later than the Initial Distribution Record Date or, in the case of a Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holder, the Term Loan Record Date.

Treatment of Undeliverable Distributions

If any Creditor entitled to a distribution pursuant to the Plan cannot be located by the Monitor on the applicable Distribution Date, or if any Creditor's distribution under the Plan is returned as undeliverable (an "Undeliverable Distribution"), no further distributions to such Creditor shall be made unless and until the Monitor is notified by such Creditor of such Creditor's current address, at which time all such distributions shall be made to such Creditor. If such Creditor cannot be located by the Monitor or if any delivery or distribution to be made pursuant to the Plan is returned as undeliverable, or in the case of any distribution made by cheque, the cheque remains uncashed, for a period of more than six (6) months after the applicable Distribution Date or the date of delivery or mailing of the cheque, whichever is later, the Claim of any Creditor with respect to such undelivered or unclaimed distribution shall be discharged and forever barred, notwithstanding any Applicable Law to the contrary, and any such cash allocable to the undeliverable or unclaimed distribution shall be released and returned by the Monitor to New Just Energy Parent or its designee, free and clear of any claims of such Creditor or any other Creditors and their respective successors and assigns. Nothing contained in the Plan shall require the Just Energy Entities, New Just Energy Parent or the Monitor to attempt to locate any holder of any Undeliverable Distributions.

Treatment of D&O Claims

All Released D&O Claims will be fully, finally and irrevocably compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date. All D&O Indemnity Claims shall be treated for all purposes under the Plan as General Unsecured Creditor Claims and shall be fully, finally, and irrevocably compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date.

All Non-Released D&O Claims shall not be compromised, released, discharged, cancelled, extinguished and barred on the Effective Date, but shall be irrevocably limited to recovery from any insurance proceeds payable in respect of such Non-Released D&O Claims pursuant to the Insurance Policies, and Persons with such Non-Released D&O Claims shall have no right to, and shall not, make any claim or seek any recoveries other than enforcing such Persons' rights to be paid from the proceeds of the applicable Insurance Policies by the applicable insurer(s).

From and after the Effective Date, any Person may only commence an action for a D&O Claim against a Director or Officer if such Person has first obtained (i) the consent of the Monitor, or (ii) the leave of the Court on notice to the applicable Director or Officer, the Just Energy Entities, the Monitor and any applicable insurer(s), or if the action will be commenced within the United States, if such Person has first obtained an Order of the U.S. Court in the Chapter 15 Proceeding on notice to the applicable Director or Officer, the Just Energy Entities, the Monitor and any applicable insurer(s).

Treatment of De Minimis Claims

No holder of an Accepted Claim that is less than $10 (a "De Minimis Claim") shall be entitled to or receive any distributions pursuant to the Plan in respect of such De Minimis Claim, and all such De Minimis Claims shall be fully, finally, irrevocably and forever compromised, released, discharged, cancelled and barred, and shall be treated as such in the calculation of any Pro Rata Share under the Plan.

Treatment of Unaffected Claims

Unaffected Claims shall not be compromised under the Plan. No holder of an Unaffected Claim shall: (a) be treated as a Convenience Creditor; (b) be entitled to vote on the Plan or attend at any of the Meetings in respect of such Unaffected Claim; or (c) be entitled to or receive any payments or distributions, or be subject to any compromise or settlement, pursuant to the Plan in respect of such Unaffected Claim, unless specifically provided for under and pursuant to the Plan, including without limitation, pursuant to Section 3.6, Section 5.4(a)(v) and Section 11.3 of the Plan.

Amendments to the Plan Following Approval

After the Meetings (and both prior to and subsequent to obtaining the Sanction Order), the Just Energy Entities may at any time and from time to time vary, amend, modify, or supplement the Plan without the need for obtaining an Order of the Court or providing notice to the Creditors, if the Just Energy Entities, the Plan Sponsor, the Credit Facility Lenders, Shell and the Monitor, each acting reasonably, determine that such variation, amendment, modification, or supplement would not be materially prejudicial to the interests of any Creditors under the Plan or is necessary in order to give effect to the substance of the Plan or the Sanction Order.

Holders of New Preferred Shares will be entitled to a 12.50% accreting yield with dividends as and when declared by the board of directors for the first four (4) years, increasing 1% annually thereafter.

Management Incentive Plan

On the Effective Date, the board of directors of New Just Energy Parent shall approve and adopt a management incentive plan (the "MIP"), on terms consistent in all respects with the management incentive plan term sheet, attached as Exhibit 4 to the Restructuring Term Sheet appended to the Support Agreement.

Corporate Governance

The New Corporate Governance Documents will provide that the initial board will consist of five (5) directors, each selected by the Plan Sponsor.

In addition to any other restrictions on Transfer (as defined below) of the New Common Shares, the New Corporate Governance Documents will restrict any sale, exchange, assignment, pledge, encumbrance, or other transfer (each, a "Transfer") of New Common Shares that would result in New Just Energy Parent's obligation to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission or under the U.S. Exchange Act. The New Corporate Governance Documents will also contain rights of first offer, tag-along rights and drag-along rights for certain Transfers, along with pre-emptive rights for certain securities issuances. Holders of New Common Shares will be entitled to certain information rights, including audited annual financial statements and quarterly unaudited financial statements.

The material terms in respect of corporate governance of New Just Energy Parent, including the New Corporate Governance Documents, are set forth in the Corporate Governance Term Sheet attached as Exhibit 3 to the Restructuring Term Sheet attached to the Support Agreement.

PLAN SANCTION

The Plan has been filed with the CCAA Court pursuant to the CCAA and the Meetings Order. The CCAA requires that the Plan be sanctioned by the CCAA Court following approval by the Affected Creditors at the Meetings in accordance with the Meetings Order. The Sanction Hearing is anticipated to take place on August 12, 2022 by videoconference.

Any person who wishes to oppose the entry of the Sanction Order will be required to serve on the Service List a notice setting out the basis for such opposition and a copy of the materials to be used to oppose the granting of the Sanction Order.

In the event that the Sanction Hearing is adjourned, only those Persons who are listed on the Service List will be served with notice of the adjourned date of the Sanction Hearing.

The Plan provides that the Sanction Order will, among other things:

(b) declare that as of the Effective Time, the Plan and all associated steps, compromises, transactions, arrangements, releases and reorganizations effected thereby are approved pursuant to section 6 of the CCAA, binding and effective as set out in the Plan upon and with respect to the Just Energy Entities, all Creditors and all other Persons named or referred to in or subject to the Plan;

(d) declare that the releases effected by the Plan are approved and declared to be binding and effective as of the Effective Date upon the Just Energy Entities, all Creditors, all Persons with Released Claims and all other Persons named or referred to in or subject to the Plan, and shall enure to the benefit of all such Persons;

(e) declare that, subject to performance by the Just Energy Entities of their obligations under the Plan and except as provided in the Plan or the Sanction Order, all obligations, agreements or leases to which any of the Just Energy Entities are a party on the Effective Date, including all Continuing Contracts, shall be and remain in full force and effect, unamended, as at the Effective Date, except as they may have been amended by the parties thereto subsequent to the Filing Date, and no party to any such obligation or agreement shall on or following the Effective Date, accelerate, terminate, refuse to renew, rescind, refuse to perform or otherwise disclaim or resiliate its obligations thereunder, or enforce or exercise (or purport to enforce or exercise) any right (including any right of set-off, option, dilution or other remedy) or remedy under or in respect of any such obligation or agreement, by reason: (i) of any event which occurred prior to, and not continuing after, the Effective Date, or which is or continues to be suspended or waived under the Plan, which would have entitled such party to enforce those rights or remedies, (ii) that the Just Energy Entities have sought or obtained relief or have taken steps as part of the Plan or under the CCAA or Chapter 15, or that the Plan has been implemented by the Just Energy Entities, (iii) of any default or event of default arising as a result of the financial condition or insolvency of the Just Energy Entities, (iv) of any change of control of the Just Energy Entities arising from implementation of the Plan, (v) of the effect upon the Just Energy Entities of the completion of any of the transactions contemplated by the Plan, or (vi) of any compromises, settlements, restructurings, recapitalizations or reorganizations effected pursuant to the Plan; and declares that no Person shall discontinue, fail to honour, alter, interfere with, repudiate, terminate or cease to perform any non-competition agreement or obligation, provided that such agreement shall terminate or expire in accordance with the terms thereof or as otherwise agreed by the Just Energy Entities and the applicable Persons;

(f) authorize the establishment of the Plan Implementation Fund with the Monitor and authorizes the Monitor to perform its functions and fulfil its obligations under the Plan and to facilitate the implementation of the Plan on and after the Effective Date, including matters relating to the resolution of Disputed Claims, distributions and payments from the Plan Implementation Fund and the termination of the CCAA Proceeding and the Chapter 15 Proceeding;

(g) subject to the payment of the amounts secured thereby, declares, except for the Administration Charge which shall continue against the Administrative Expense Reserve, all CCAA Charges, shall be terminated, released and discharged effective on the Effective Date;

(h) provide the basis for an exemption from the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act in respect of the distribution of the New Shares pursuant to Section 1145 and section 4(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act, in each case, as described in Section 5.3(g) to 5.3(i) of the Plan;

(i) declares all Accepted Claims and Disallowed Claims determined in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order are final and binding on the Just Energy Entities and all Creditors and that all Encumbrances of Affected Creditors (other than Encumbrances in respect of Unaffected Claims, the New Credit Facility and the New Intercreditor Agreement), including all security registrations in respect thereof, are discharged and extinguished, and the Just Energy Entities or their counsel shall be authorized and permitted to file discharges and full terminations of all related filings (whether pursuant to personal property security legislation or otherwise) against the Just Energy Entities in any jurisdiction without any further action or consent required whatsoever;

(j) declare any Claims that have been preserved in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order against Directors that cannot be compromised due to the provisions of section 5.1(2) of the CCAA will be limited in recovery to the proceeds of any Insurance Policy;

(k) declare that, from and after the Effective Date, any Person may only commence an action for a D&O Claim against a Director or Officer if such Person has first obtained (i) the consent of the Monitor, or (ii) the leave of the Court on notice to the applicable Director or Officer, the Just Energy Entities, the Monitor and any applicable insurer(s);

(l) declare that the New Credit Facility, the New Credit Facility Documents, the New Intercreditor Agreement, the MIP, and the New Corporate Governance Documents are approved and the applicable Just Energy Entities and New Just Energy Parent shall be authorized and directed to carry out their obligations thereunder; and

(m) declare that each Just Energy Entity shall indemnify any Director, Officer or other Person employed or previously employed by a Just Energy Entity for any amount for which such Person is held personally liable as a result of nonpayment of any Taxes (including, without limitation, sale, use, withholding, unemployment and excise Tax) by a Just Energy Entity, along with any expenses or fees incurred in connection with defending any matter for which any of the foregoing Persons could be entitled to indemnification, notwithstanding any provision of the Plan; provided that:

(i) the terms of indemnification shall be consistent with the indemnification obligations of the Just Energy Entities for Directors and Officers immediately prior to the Filing Date; provided that: (A) Persons employed or previously employed by a Just Energy Entity shall be afforded the benefit of such indemnification obligations notwithstanding that they may not be Directors or Officers; (B) the indemnification obligations shall be indefinite; and (C) all Just Energy Entities shall be subject to the indemnification obligations herein;

(ii) the foregoing indemnification obligations shall not apply in circumstances of fraud, gross negligence or wilful misconduct; and

(iii) notwithstanding subparagraphs (i) and (ii) above, where gross negligence or wilful misconduct are requirements for a beneficiary of these indemnification obligations to be held personally liable as a result of nonpayment of any Taxes by a Just Energy Entity, the Just Energy Entities shall indemnify the applicable Director, Officer or other Person notwithstanding any gross negligence or wilful misconduct, and in such cases there shall be no requirement that the Director, Officer or other Person had reasonable grounds for believing their conduct was lawful.

CERTAIN REGULATORY MATTERS RELATING TO THE PLAN

Canada

Resale of Securities

The Just Energy Entities intend that the issuance and distribution of all the New Common Shares and New Preferred Shares under the Plan shall qualify for exemption from the prospectus and registration requirements of Canadian Securities Laws on the basis of the exemption provided in section 2.11 of National Instrument 45-106 – Prospectus Exemptions. As a consequence of this exemption, certain protections, rights and remedies provided by Canadian securities legislation, including statutory rights of rescission or damages, will not be available in respect of such new securities to be issued in connection with the Plan.

The New Common Shares and New Preferred Shares will be subject to restrictions on transfer in Canada. New Just Energy Parent is not, and will not be following the Effective Date, a reporting issuer (or equivalent) in any province or territory of Canada and New Just Energy Parent's securities will not be listed on any stock exchange in Canada and have not been and will not be qualified for sale to the public under any applicable Canadian Securities Laws. Any resale of the New Common Shares or New Preferred Shares in Canada must be made in accordance with applicable securities laws, which will vary depending on the relevant jurisdiction, and which may require resales to be made under available statutory exemptions or under a discretionary exemption granted by the applicable Canadian Securities Commissions.

As a reporting issuer or its equivalent in each of the provinces and territories of Canada, the Company is subject to applicable Canadian Securities Laws, including Multilateral Instrument 61-101 – Protection of Minority Security Holders in Special Transactions ("MI 61-101"). MI 61-101 is intended to regulate certain transactions to ensure the protection and fair treatment of securityholders by requiring enhanced disclosure, approval by a majority of securityholders (excluding interested or related parties) and, in certain cases, an independent valuation.

The protections afforded by MI 61-101 apply to, among other transactions, "related party transactions" (as defined in MI 61-101), which include issuances of securities to "related parties" of the issuer (as defined in MI 61-101).

As the Plan Sponsor is a control person of the Company, it is considered a "related party" of the Company for the purposes of MI 61-101. Accordingly, the issuance of shares and the payment of other consideration to the Plan Sponsor pursuant to the Plan, the Backstop Commitment Letter and the Support Agreement will be considered a "related party transaction" and/or a "business combination" within the meaning of MI 61-101. The Company is not subject to the requirements of MI 61-101 to prepare a formal valuation as its shares are not listed for trading on certain specified markets. The Company has advised the Court of the requirements of MI 61-101 regarding minority approval of related party transactions and business combinations and the Court has determined, in accordance with the CCAA, that a meeting of the shareholders of the Company is not required to be held in order to approve the Plan.

United States

The offering, issuance and distribution of New Shares pursuant to the Plan and the other transactions contemplated by the Support Agreement (excluding the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable) shall qualify for exemption from, among other things, the registration requirements of section 5 of the U.S. Securities Act any other applicable law requiring registration prior to the offering, issuance, distribution, or sale of New Shares in accordance with, and pursuant to, section 1145 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, and any other registration rights applicable outside the United States. Each of the 1145 Securities, (a) will not be "restricted securities" as defined in rule 144(a)(3) under the U.S. Securities Act and (b) will be freely tradable and transferable in the United States by each recipient thereof that (i) is an entity that is not an "underwriter" as defined in section 1145(b)(1) of the U.S. Bankruptcy Rules, (ii) is not an "affiliate" of New Just Energy Parent as defined in Rule 144(a)(1) under the U.S. Securities Act, (iii) has not been such an "affiliate" within 90 days of the time of the transfer, and (iv) has not acquired such securities from such an "affiliate" within one year of the time of transfer. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the 1145 Securities remain subject to compliance with applicable securities laws and any rules and regulations of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, if any, applicable at the time of any future transfer of such 1145 Securities and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the New Equity Offering Shares to be offered and sold in the New Equity Offering and any New Shares to be offered and sold to the Backstop Parties pursuant to their Commitments and for which the exemption to registration pursuant to Section 1145 is unavailable, are being offered and sold exclusively to the Participating Term Loan Claimants and, if applicable, the Backstop Parties, in reliance on the exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act set forth in Section 4(a)(2) thereof, which exempts transactions by an issuer not involving any public offering.

Any New Shares issued in reliance on Section 4(a)(2), including in compliance with Rule 506 of Regulation D, and/or Regulation S, will be "restricted securities" subject to resale restrictions and may be resold, exchanged, assigned or otherwise transferred only pursuant to registration, or an applicable exemption from registration under the U.S. Securities Act and other applicable law, including state securities laws and subject to any restrictions in the New Corporate Governance Documents.

Any resale of New Shares by an "affiliate" (or former "affiliate") of New Just Energy Parent may be subject to the registration requirements of the U.S. Securities Act, absent an exemption or exclusion therefrom. The enforcement by investors of civil liabilities under the U.S. securities laws may be affected adversely by the fact that certain of the Just Energy Entities are organized under the laws of Canada and that substantial portions of the assets of the Just Energy Entities are located outside the United States. As a result, it may be difficult or impossible for holders of New Shares to realize upon judgments of courts of the United States predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States against the Just Energy Entities. In addition, holders of New Shares should not assume that the courts of Canada: (i) would enforce judgments of United States courts obtained in actions against such persons predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States; or (ii) would enforce, in original actions, liabilities against such persons predicated upon civil liabilities under the federal securities laws of the United States or the securities laws of any state within the United States.

RISK FACTORS

In addition to the other information set forth and incorporated by reference in this Information Statement, Affected Creditors should carefully review the following risk factors before deciding whether to approve the Plan.

Certain risk factors relating to the business and securities of the Company are contained in the 2021 MD&A and the 2021 Annual Information Form, which are incorporated by reference in this Information Statement and which has been publicly filed on SEDAR at www.sedar.com and on the website of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission at www.sec.gov, and are available on the Company's website at https://investors.justenergy.com. Affected Creditors should review and carefully consider the risk factors set forth in the 2021 MD&A and consider all other information contained therein and herein and in the Company's other public filings before determining how to vote on the Plan.

Risks Relating to the Plan and the Restructuring

The Plan may not be implemented

The Just Energy Entities will not implement the Plan unless and until all conditions precedent to the Plan, some of which are not under the control of the Just Energy Entities, are satisfied or waived. See Implementation of the Plan – Conditions to Plan Implementation. There can be no certainty, nor can the Just Energy Entities provide any assurance, that all conditions precedent to the Plan will be satisfied or waived, nor can there be any certainty of the timing of their satisfaction or waiver. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, there is a risk that the aggregate amount of the New Equity Offering Proceeds and Cash on Hand will be less than the total amount to be paid, distributed or reserved for or from any source by the Just Energy Entities in order to implement the Plan. Accordingly, there is a risk that more capital may be required in order for the Just Energy Entities to be able to implement the Plan, and there is no certainty that (i) such capital will be available, (ii) the terms on which it may be provided, or (iii) the impact it will have on the Just Energy Entities' stakeholders.

Consummation of the Plan is subject to Affected Creditors' acceptance and approvals of the Court and the U.S. Court

Before the Plan can be consummated, it must have been approved by the Required Majorities and sanctioned, after notice and a hearing on any objection, by the Court, and the U.S. Court must enter a Sanction Recognition Order. There can be no assurance that the Plan will be approved by the Required Majorities, and that even if approved, that the Court will sanction the Plan or that the U.S. Court will enter a Sanction Recognition Order. The failure of any of these conditions will delay or prevent the consummation of the Plan. There can be no assurance that other creditors, securityholders or third parties will not seek to challenge, oppose or delay the implementation of the Plan.

Necessary Governmental Approvals May Not Be Granted

Consummation of the Restructuring depends upon receipt of the applicable Transaction Regulatory Approvals. Failure by any Governmental Entity to grant a necessary approval could prevent consummation of the Restructuring and implementation of the Plan.

The actual amount of Accepted Claims may differ from the estimates herein and adversely affect the percentage recovery of each individual General Unsecured Creditors

Affected Creditors that have Disputed Claims will not be entitled to receive a distribution under the Plan in respect of such Disputed Claim or any portion thereof unless and until such Disputed Claim becomes an Accepted Claim. The Monitor may, but shall not be obligated to, make any distribution to the General Unsecured Creditors before all Disputed Claims have been finally resolved for distribution purposes in accordance with the Claims Procedure Order or further Order. To the extent that Disputed Claims become Accepted Claims, such Disputed Claims that become Accepted Claims may materially adversely affect the percentage recovery of each individual General Unsecured Creditor. Certain of the Disputed Claims which the Company believes are meritless seek significantly inflated sums.

Risks Relating to Non-Implementation of the Plan

The Just Energy Entities may be unable to continue as a going concern

If the Plan is not implemented and another plan is not proposed that meets the approval requirements of the CCAA and/or the Court, the Just Energy Entities may remain under CCAA protection for an indefinite period of time and their businesses could substantially erode or an insolvency proceeding involving the liquidation of the assets of the Just Energy entities with a view to recovering the amounts owing to the Just Energy Entities' creditors could result.

The Company is in default of certain of its obligations under the Credit Agreement

The Company is in default under its secured Credit Agreement. The stay granted by the Court in the CCAA Proceedings currently prevents any action being taken by holders of Credit Facility Claims. If the Plan is not completed, the CCAA stay of proceedings may not be continued, the holders of the Credit Facility Claims could pursue the remedies provided in the applicable credit documents and the CCAA Proceedings may terminate.

The Company may default under the terms of the DIP Term Sheet

The DIP Term Sheet provides for, among other things, a restructuring timeline and milestones. If the Plan is not completed on the timeline set forth in the Support Agreement, the Company will be in default of its obligations under the DIP Term Sheet and the DIP Lenders could pursue enforcement remedies against the Company.

A default under the DIP Term Sheet may also trigger termination rights by counterparties under the Qualified Support Agreements, enabling such counterparties to terminate delivery of physical and financial power and natural gas and other related services to the Just Energy Entities. Any termination of the Qualified Support Agreements could impact the ability of the Just Energy Entities to continue as a going concern.

RECOVERY ANALYSIS

Summary of Stakeholder Treatment under the Plan

The table below summarizes anticipated recovery under the Plan by various stakeholders. This summary is not exhaustive and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the terms of the Plan. In the event of a conflict between the description below and the terms of the Plan, the terms of the Plan (including all defined terms and other schedules and exhibits contained therein) shall govern for all purposes. See Description of the Plan – Treatment of Affected Claims.

Stakeholder Claim	Treatment under the Plan
DIP Lenders' Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the DIP Lenders' Claim will be repaid in full in cash in the amount of US$125 million plus accrued and outstanding fees, costs and interest through the Effective Date.
Commodity Supplier Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the Commodity Supplier Claim will be repaid in full in cash, including all accrued and unpaid interest up to the Effective Date.
BP Commodity / ISO Services Claim	Under the Plan, CBHT will voluntarily compromise its BP Commodity / ISO Services Claim of approximately US$229.5 million and $0.2 million, plus all accrued and unpaid interest thereon through the Effective Date, for preferred equity representing 100% of the New Preferred Shares of New Just Energy Parent, rather than cash recovery.
Credit Facility Claim	The Plan provides that holders of the Credit Facility Claim will be repaid in full in cash in the estimated amount of approximately US$43.3 million and $96.4 million, plus accrued default interest through the Effective Date, less the Credit Facility Remaining Debt (if any). Letters of credit that are issued but undrawn at the Effective Date will be rolled into the New Credit Facility.
Term Loan Claim	The Plan provides that Beneficial Term Loan Claim Holders will be entitled to receive their Pro Rata Share of 10% of the New Common Shares of the New Just Energy Parent and the ability to participate in the New Equity Offering, in satisfaction of the Term Loan Claim in the principal amount of US$208.6 million plus all accrued and outstanding pre-filing fees, costs, interest, or other amounts owing pursuant to the Term Loan Agreement. Each Non-Participating Term Loan Claim Holder will be entitled to receive its Non-Participating Term Loan Lender Pro Rata Share of the Turnover Amounts.
General Unsecured Creditor Claims	The Plan provides that General Unsecured Creditors with Accepted Claims will receive their Pro Rata Share of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool, less payments made to Convenience Creditors and permitted professional fees for post-Effective Date services relating to the Plan and the CCAA Proceedings. See Recovery by General Unsecured Creditors below.
Convenience Claims	The Plan provides that holders of Convenience Claims will be paid in full up to the maximum amount of $1,500.

Stakeholder Claim	Treatment under the Plan
Subordinated Note Claim	While holders of the Subordinated Note Claim will notionally receive their Pro Rata Share of the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool under the Plan, this is subject to turnover requirements in the Subordinated Note Indenture and the Plan. See Recovery by Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders below.
De Minimis Claims	Holders of De Minimis Claims will receive no recovery under the Plan.
Equity Claims	Holders of Equity Claims will receive no recovery under the Plan.

Recovery by General Unsecured Creditors

While the precise recovery rate of the General Unsecured Creditors is not known at this time because the amount of the Accepted Claims and the amount of the residual cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool is not yet known, for purposes of considering the estimated recovery of General Unsecured Creditors under the Plan, the Just Energy Entities estimate that based on the best information available to management of the Just Energy Entities, their knowledge of the facts and issues underlying the most significant claims submitted within the Claims Procedure, and discussions with the Monitor:

(a) the range of General Unsecured Claims submitted within the Claims Procedure that will eventually become Accepted Claims, prior to taking into account litigation claims, is between approximately $65 million and $68 million, and the range of litigation claims submitted within the Claims Procedure that are likely to become Accepted Claims is between approximately $500,000 and $40 million, for a total estimated range of General Unsecured Claims (including litigation claims) that will eventually become Accepted Claims of between $66 million and $108 million; and

(b) the range of permitted fees and expenses that is expected to be paid from the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool is between $4 million and $7 million, which will cover, among other things, legal fees to be incurred in litigation undertaken post-Effective Date by the holders of Disputed Claims.

The eventual quantum of General Unsecured Claims that become Accepted Claims may exceed the upper end of the foregoing range, and the residual cash in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool after payment of permitted fees and expenses may be higher or lower than anticipated (depending on whether the holders of Disputed Claims engage in protracted litigation or settle such Disputed Claims expediently).

The illustrative recovery rate of General Unsecured Creditors has been reflected in the table below, assuming a residual amount of $2.5 million and $5.5 million of funds remaining in the General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool for distribution to General Unsecured Creditors (calculated as $10 million, less estimated Convenience Claims of $0.5 million, less estimated permitted fees and expenses of $7 million and $4 million, respectively), and in each case assuming Accepted Claims of $66 million and $108 million. These recovery rates are provided for illustrative purposes only and are not indicative of actual recoveries under the Plan.

Illustrative General Unsecured Creditor Recovery Table

Illustrative Residual Amount in General Unsecured Creditor Cash Pool	$2.5 million		$5.5 million
Illustrative Accepted Claims (millions)	$66	$108	$66	$108
Illustrative Accepted Claim Recovery Rate	4.7%	2.6%	10.4%	5.8%

Recovery by Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders

The Subordinated Note Indenture governing the Subordinated Notes provides that the Subordinated Notes have been subordinated and postponed and are subject in right of payment to the full and final payment of all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined in the Subordinated Note Indenture). Accordingly, the Plan restricts the Monitor from making any distribution to Subordinated Noteholders or Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders until all persons entitled to turnover of such distributions pursuant to the terms of the Subordinated Note Indenture have been paid in full. As a result, Beneficial Subordinated Note Claim Holders are not anticipated to receive any recovery under the Plan and their Subordinated Note Claim will be cancelled and extinguished.
